TAXATION IN AUSTRALIA, UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN ARE HEAVIER THAN CANADA'S CHARGE

Canadian Per Capita Debt $442.46, the Lowest in the Empire.

LAPOINTE SPEECH.

Minister of Justice Defends British Preference as Key to Old Country Trade.

OTTAWA, April 30 (By Canadian Prss)—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, warmly defended the Government's financial policy in the House yesterday. He sharply challenged Conservative charges of business failures as due to the tariff, and quoted Bradstreet in support of his argument. He claimed that taxation in Canada was lower than in the United tSates. Including federal, provincial, municipal and school taxes, the tax per capita in Canada he gave as $61.51 against $68.49 in the United States, $99.36 in the United Kingdom and $99.22 in Australia.

The debt per capita in Canada—Mr. Lapointe continued—was $442.46, including federal, provincial and municipal debt. In the United States it was $268.57 per capita but in Canada the debt included the debt on Government railways. Great Britain had a per capita debt of $922.48; Australia of $820.58. Canada's per capita debt was the least in the Empire.

Mr. Lapointe spoke of the Conservative amendment to the budget as having been "outrageously bobbed." It was an "emasculated political instrument deprived of all virility." He observed that the Government's policy was being attacked by Conservatives and Progressives from opposite extreme angles; and that in itself was the best illustration of a middle course.

R. V. Lesueur, Conservative, of West Lambton, urged investigation of the proposal to amalamate the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

Defends British Preference

Mr. Lapointe defended the British Preference which had given Canada a great deal of trade with Britain. Canadian exports which enjoyed free access to Great Britain exceeded imports from that country, and could not but be beneficial to the balance of trade. He denied that the British preference had seriously hurt the boot and shoe industry. As a matter of fact, the imports of boots and shoes into Canada were less today than they were last year or in any year during the Conservative administration. Canada produced in 1923 boots and shoes to the value of forty-five millions and there was no falling off in production today. It was true that the war time exports to United States had greatly fallen off. That was inevitable. Perhaps it was the loss of this business that gave rise to whatever complaints were being made by the Canadian manufacturers of footwear..

Mr. Archambault interrupted to ask the Minister if he was aware of the official opposition's attitude toward British preference. Mr. Lapointe replied by saying that to borrow a phrase from Mr. Jacobs, the Conservative attitude of British preference was "Like the wisdom of God, it surpasseth all understanding." Mr. Lapointe briefly defended the trade treaty with France, indicating industrial benefits which had been derived from that argument.

The national policy of 1878 was formed when there was no Western Canada. A truly national policy should consider all sections. The talk of Ontario and Quebec uniting against the West was to be sincerely regretted. Mr. Lapointe would rather see the Liberal party go down to defeat than that such a thing should come about. The Minister of Justice concluded with a plea for political thought which would embrace the entire Dominion.

Conservatives Cheerful

R. V. Lesueur (Conservative, West Lambton) wished to have it understood that Conservatives in the House were essentially optimistic, and were getting more so as the time for election approached. The budget continued to be the most significant and most studied of documents created in parliament and the office of the minister of finance was equal, he believed, in importance to that of the Prime Minister. He could not, however, agree with the present budget. Mr. Lesueur proceeded to outline trade conditions throughout the world.

Mr Lesueur declared that practically full war taxes were still being collected by the Government and Canada was still increasing her deficit. This was a marked contrast with conditions in the United States, where taxes had been reduced, and the United States Government administration had also reduced the debt.

Mr. Lesueur advocated the [illegible]

TO TRY CHINESE.

Wounded Two Sarnia Men Who Accosted Him.

SARNIA, Ont., April 30.—(Canadian Press).—Yip Jim, Chinaman, was committed for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction on a charge of shooting at Archie Lawrence and James Kerr, with intent to maim or disfigure, at the close of a preliminary hearing in the City Police Court yesterday, following an election of trial by jury by H. H. Fuller, counsel for the defendant.

Six witnesses were called for the prosecution, and when their evidence had been adduced, Magistrate Gorman held that it was sufficient to send the defendant up for trial. The question of bail was raised by Jim's counsel, but the Magistrate declined to entertain any motion in that respect, and said that it would have to be taken up with the County Judge. Yip fired on the two young men when they accosted him on the street following a young woman whose identity has not been learned. Both were slightly wounded.

CO-OPERATION IS NECESSARY FOR THE RAILWAYS

Sir Henry Thornton Says That is Policy of Canadian National.

NO AMALGAMATION.

Will Eliminate Wasteful Competition But Services Must Be Kept Up.

TORONTO, April 30.—(Canadian Press).—Co-operation between the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railways with the aim of eliminating waste and improving the financial position of both systems, rather than amalgamation, is the immediate policy of Sir Henry Thornton, according to a statement made last night before the annual dinner of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association. In touching upon the point, Sir Henry appreciated that there had been a great deal of speculation as to the possible attitude or action of the two railways with regard to the amalgamation, but so far as he could see it would not matter what form any amalgamation took, there would be criticism from the public.

"The policy of the Canadian National is that some steps should be taken towards the elimination of deficits and the meeting of fixed charges," Sir Henry stated, "and so it seems to me that it is within the mind of man to imagine that some middle course may be taken, through co-ordination, which will achieve the objective towards which we are working.

"There has been considerable talk about co-operation," Sir Henry continued. "The aim of which would be to eliminate wasteful competition. But whatever may be done, it must be remembered that the services must remain adequate to meet the needs of the Dominion and that any system of economy must not be permitted to throttle the development of the country or burden the services."

ALTER PREFERENCE.

Liberal Says British Labor Percentage Too Low.

OTTAWA, April 30. — (Canadian Press).—Increase in the amount of British labor and material in goods imported under the British preferential tariff was advocated by Clement Robitaille, Liberal of Maisonneuve, speaking in the House on the budget. Under present regulations in Canada, said Mr. Robitaille, it was only necessary for goods admitted under the preferential tariff to be of 25 per cent. British labor and material. In Australia, the percentage was at least 50, and Mr. Robitaille thought we should at least adopt the 50 per cent. basis.

In a previous report, Mr. Robitaille was erroneously quoted as having stated that the British preference had done "considerable good."

West Sending Deputation For Hudson Bay Railway

WINNIPEG, Man., April 30—(Canadian Press).—To renew the claims of the Prairie Provinces for the necessity of providing for the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway to Port Nelson, a delegation from the On-to-the-Bay Association will proceed to Ottawa next Saturday.

The Western contingent will be joined by Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, who is now in the West, while Alberta will be represented by one of the executive of the United Farmers of Alberta.

SOUTH AFRICAN PREMIER HIDES SECESSION IDEA

Hertzog Says Independence Would Be Mistake, But Speech is Ambiguous.

CHARITY SOUGHT.

"The Cape Times" Asks For Precise Meaning in Guarded Phrases.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Apl. 30 (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's).—The Cape Times recognizes the statement made by General Hertzog, Premier of South Africa, at the National Assembly, Tuesday, that personally he thought secession would be a flagrant mistage for South Africa, as by far the clearest and least equivocal declaration he had ever given the country regarding the question of South Africa's seccession from the British Empire.

The Cape Times, however, draws attention to a passage in the premier's speech, in which he gravely warned General Smuts, former premier, and the present opposition in the legislative assembly, that whenever they should establish or seek to establish the superiority or dominance of one section of South Africa over another section on the ground of superiority "based upon British connection," secession would "inevitably become the watchword of those over whom they might try to establish that dominance."

Guarded Phrases.

Another passage in Premier Hertzog's address emphasized by The Cape Times is one in which the premier ,after arguing that the late Smuts government never had represented the country and never had put the interests of South Africa first, said:

"The Nationalists will not look upon secession as a matter of practical politics as long as the government stands by its duty of making the welfare and prosperity of the country its first consideration."

The Times invites Premier Hertzog to tell the country, particularly the English-speaking section of it, precisely what he means by these guarded phrases. It asks whether the premier's second statement does not necessarily mean that if the South African party (the Smuts' party) returns to power, secession will immediately become a matter of practical politics again.

Does Minister Approve.

The paper further asks whether Tielman Hoos, Minister of Justice in the Hertzog administration, and the "real arbiter of the pact policy" (the policy of the Nationalist-Labor pact or coalition) stands by the premier's declaration, and points out that the secretary of the Transvaal Nationalist party has just declared that there is no inention of tampering with the clause in the party's programme aiming at "sovereign independence."

SUIT FOR C.P.R. STOCK.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 30.— A writ claiming payment of $14,250, or as an alternative, the return of 100 shares of Canadian Pacific railway stock, has been issued in court of King's Bench, by Zillis Lobel, against William Martin, P. White and Melville H. Jones, operating in Winnipeg under firm name of Clark and Martin

The plaintiff, in her statement of claim, alleges that on January 6, 1923, the defendants obtained from her 100 shares of Canadian Pacific stock, without her "knowledge, consent or authority." The statement further charges that the defendants have refused to surrender the stock.

BABY BORN ON SUBWAY.

PARIS, April 30.— A strong, healthy baby boy was born to Mme. Marie Collet, 22, in a subway train here.

PICKETING AT GLACE BAY REJECTED AS POTENTIALLY DETRIMENTAL TO MINERS

Anxious To Avoid Disturbances, Said Miners' President, Warning That Soldiers and Police Would Be Brought In.

GLACE BAY, N.S., April 30. — (Canadian Press).—A motion to begin active picketing at the machine shops at once was defeated overwhelmingly yesterday at a meeting of the Glace Bay Mechanics' Local, which 400 members attended. District Secretary Alexander McKay and Board Member John McDonald outlined the policy of the District Executive to date. They advised the men to stick together solidly, and had nothing to say at present regarding any policy change in the Mine Workers' Union.

The question of picketing caused some heated argument, some of the members being in favor of an active campaign to start at once. A vote taken in this question resulted in only 39 of the large assemblage present voting in favor.

J. W. McLeod, president of the Mine Workers, addressed a meeting of the Victory Local on the picketing question.

President McLeod called attention to the history of industrial disputes here, where picketing had been carried on, and the result was the bringing in of police and soldiers.

Just now it would be detrimental to the cause of the men to have any disturbances of this nature, he advised. A vote was taken on the question, and by a large majority it was decided that picketing would not be undertaken.

GOOD MARKETS IN ANTIPODES

Canadian Manufacturers Should Take Advantage, Says Wm. Armstrong.

JUST MADE VISIT

WINNIPEG, Man., April 30. — (Canadian Press).—A substantial market for Canadian products exists in New Zealand, Australia and the Orient, for the manufacturer who goes after the business, is the opinion held by William Armstrong, Vice-President of the Manitoba Gypsum Company, who has just returned to Winnipeg from a combined business and holiday trip.

The Canadian manufacturer, Mr. Armstrong said, had a decided advantage over the United States in seeking entry into the New Zealand and Australian markets. There is the preferential duty in both countries, which favors Canada, and again he said there was a preference of the people for Canadian goods. "The chief requirement is for the manufacturer to go there, find out what the people want and then endeavor to fill their needs," he declared.

The greatest difficulty facing the company, with which he is connected, Mr. Armstrong continued, was the heavy freight rates from Winnipeg to Vancouver, which placed them at some disadvantage in meeting competition with the United States. To overcome this problem, plans are under consideration for the development of gypsum deposits by the company in British Columbia. The development of this property, he intimated, will be started in the near future and a new mill to be constructed there will be devoted to export trade, leaving the Winnipeg plant to take care of the home market.

From the immigration viewpoint, Mr. Armstrong believes Canada offers greater attractions and opportunities than either New Zealand or Australia. In the latter country, property was held at too high a figure to permit the man without money to make a start, while the restrictive regulations limited the number of people that might be admitted there.

The Government system in Australia, he considered, afforded the Canadian manufacturer additional advantages. There the stringent regulations, restricted working conditions, made the cost of production so great that it was possible for the Canadian manufacturer to compete successfully with the Australian.

JARVIS EXPLAINS.

Says There Was No Bargain With Smith or Pepall.

TORONTO, April 30 (Canadian Press)—Declaring there never was any bargain, understanding or arrangement, expressed or implied with Hon. Peter Smith or Andrew Pepall, or any other person, that Peter Smith was to receive any share or benefit from the purchase of succession duty free bonds, Aemilius Jarvis, Sr., in a statement issued last evening gives his explanation of his connection with the provincial bond purchase transaction. Mr. Jarvis, in his statement, says that Peter Smith was not present at the cabinet meeting when the contract was negotiated, and that he had no knowledge that Smith, or anyone for him, was to share or benefit in any way from the transaction.

WIDE VARIANCE IN ORE ASSAYS

Difference in Value of $16 From Tests of One Sample.

BINGO MINE CASE.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 30. — (Canadian Press)—Startling divergence in two assay results on the same piece of rock from the Bingo Gold Mines were revealed by D. J. Kennedy, superintendent of the mine, on the witness stand yesterday at the preliminary hearing of Joseph Myers, manager of the mine, who is charged with making false statements with intent to defraud.

Kennedy stated that he brought down a sample of rock in September, 1923, and submitted it to Milton Hersey for assaying. The value was reported as low as $1, he said. Myers suggested that the pulp be obtained from Hersey, put into a Bingo sack that was in the office and sent to another assay firm. This was done, the witness said, and the assay result showed a value of $17.

The witness said that first instructions at the mine were that no one was to be allowed down, but that in June, 1924, he was told by Myers to allow any responsible party to go down the mine if they wished.

Prof. J. S. Delury, of the Manitoba University, told of sampling the property. Re-examination of assay pulp under his supervision had revealed, he stated, particles of unnatural gold. All samples for assay had been forwarded in bags supplied by Myers.

EX-ARMY BUTCHER HELD FOR SLAYING

Admits Body May Be That of Wife; Threats Recalled.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Threats attributed to Frank Kocurek, former Army butcher, that he intended to kill his wife, have led to his detention in connection with the discovery a week ago of the dismembered and headless body of a woman in a catch basin.

Kocurek was taken into custody after William Littleton, an acquaintance, told the police Kocurek had said:

"I am going to kill her and when I do it I'll use my Army experience as a butcher and kill her in such a way that should what's left of her be found, no one will ever be able to tell who she was.'

Kocurek admitted the body might be that of his wife, who, he said, was kidnapped by two men May 11, 1924. Later, confronted by Littleton, he changed his story and said his wife had left him. He produced a letter he said she had written him May 12, 1924, saying she was returning to her home in Detroit. Another letter from her mother, written three months ago from Ecorse, Mich., said she did not know where the daughter was.

A hatchet and large knife, covered with a brown substance, were found in Kocurek's home. Tests to determine whether the stain is rust or blood will be made.

Kocurek was hysterical after several hours of interrogation and frequently became incoherrent, prosecutors said.

DOG CAN COUNT SHEEP.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, April 30.—A shepherd near here claims he has a dog that count his sheep. He sent the dog into the pasture where he thought he had 25 sheep. As the dog came back it barked each time the shepherd called a number up to 24. It was silent as he called 25 and one sheep was found missing.

Canadian Dollar Rises To Above Par in States

NEW YORK, April 30. — Canadian currency came into its own to-day when a quotation of 1-32 of one per cent. premium for the Dominion's dollar, was posted on the New York money market. No cause could be ascribed in banking circles for the above par quotation in Canadian money, the first of the present year. On January 1st, the Canadian dollar was discounted at 11-32 of one per cent., in the United States.

RATES ENQUIRY METHOD SCORED AS LACKING AIM

"Fishing Expedition," Said H. H. Stevens, Without Definite Plan of Procedure.

PROBE PETERSON.

Consider the Peterson Agreement, Conservative Advises in First Criticism.

OTTAWA, April 30. — Criticism of the manner in which the investigation by the special parliamentary committee on ocean rates is being conducted, came just before the committee adjourned last evening. R. J. Symington, K.C., Government counsel, was questioning W. T. Marlow, general foreign freight agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in regard to the methods used in the North Atlantic conference in fixing rates. Mr. Symington was basing his questions on minutes of the meetings held by the conference and the Canadian liner committee. A number of the questions were in regard to rates made during the "adjustment period" shortly after the close of the war, and Chairman A. R. MacMaster asked if it was necessary to go so far back.

Sir Henry Drayton and Hon. H. H. Stevens, two of the Conservative members of the committee, protested against the method adopted in the invesigation. Sir Henry suggested that Mr. Symington should explain to the committee just what he was trying to bring out by each question The committee appeared to be on a "fishing expedition" without any definite plan of procedure. Mr. Stevens said that the effort of Mr. Symington seemed to be to select different items from the minutes in an effort to prove that the conference was culpable. He thought it would be wiser to take the one definite thing the committee had before it—the contract with Sir Willian Peterson—and consider it first.

Present Other Side.

G. H. Montgomery, counsel for the steamship companies, remarked that if Mr. Symington was to proceed with excerpts from the minutes designed to bring out his side of the case, the steamship companies should be permitted also to go through the minutes and illustrate the benefits resulting from the conference.

Mr. Symington took the ground that it was necessary to ascertain the methods adopted by the conference in fixing rates. A number of the members of the committee agreed with this point of view, and F Rinfret, Liberal, St. James, said that the method of procedure had been decided by the committee some days ago and that the members were merely wasting time in discussing it.

Mr. Symington finally said that he would go through his extracts from the minutes and try and eliminate as many as possible. The committee then adjourned.

Rate on Implements.

"Do you know that the rate on agricultural implements from Canada to South Africa is lower than from Canada to the United Kingdom?" H. J. Symington, government counsel, asked.

"No, I do not, but I understand that the Elder-Dempster line received a subsidy for the South African service," Mr. Marlow said.

"What are the respective distances?" Mr. Symington asked.

The witness answered that the distance from Montreal to London was 3241 miles, and from Montreal to Cape Town 719 8miles.

Mr. Symington said he was informed that the rate to London was $10 a ton and $7.50 to Cape Town.

M. Marlow said he could not give the rate on agriultural implements

OTTAWA, April 30 (Canadian Press). — Right Hon. Arthur Meighen (Conservative leader), and Premier Mackenzie King will speak on the Budget debate in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Commemorating Events That Stand Out in History of the Old Province.

DOWN TO LAURIER.

MONTREAL, April 30.—(Canadian Press).—That the early history of Canada should not be permitted to pass into oblivion and that the struggles of the pioneers of both races, fighting at times against each other and at times joining against a common enemy, should be perpetuated, has inspired the historical monuments commission to erect posts throughout Quebec at places of great historical interest. These will commemorate events that played a great part not only in the Provincial history of Quebec, but also in the development of the whole Dominion. A few words of descriptive comment will inform the passerby of the nature of the event, the memory of which it is desired to preserve.

These posts direct attention to many phases of Canada's early life. They recall the seigneurial days of Old Quebec, the martrydom of the earliest missionaries by the Indians, the battles between the American revolutionaries and the Canadians, between the British troops under Monckton and Wolfe and Fraser, and the French, and also dwell on the pious associations of the inhabitants by recalling the birthplaces of their religious leaders.

The rebellion of 1837 plays its part in the scheme. The "patriots" of that day are venerated and attention drawn to the manner of their dying.

First Protestant Church.

The memorials will be erected immediately and the work is to be completed by June 1. The list, published yesterday in the French-language newspaper, "Le Devoir," includes the following:

"Berthier-en-Haut: The seigneurie of Berthier was conceded to the Sieur de Randin, October 29, 1672. Alexander Berthier, officer of the Carignan Regiment, purchased it from the Sieur de Randin. The chapel was built in 1786 by the Seigneur Cuthbert and was the first Protestant church erected in Quebec.

"Long Point: Commandant Ethan Allen was defeated by the Canadians at Long Point and made prisoner in 1775.

"Lungueuil: The seigneurie of Longueuil was conceded to Charles le Moyne in 1657 and erected as a baroney in 1700.

"Pointe aux Trembles: The parish was established in 1674 and in 1675 a fortified mill was erected. Near here in 1760, the 'Atlante,' commanded by Vauquelain, carried on a heroic battle with two English warships.

A Political Memoire.

"St. Charles (Richelieu): The assembly of six counties, which formulated the principles of responsible government, took place here on October 23, 1837.

REPORTS STILL ARE OPTIMSTIC IN PETERBORO'

Manufacturers Look on Increasing Orders and Say Future Bright.

TANGIBLE EVIDENCE.

No False Hopes Held in Today's Interviews—Solid Grond.

Optimism continues as the keynote for future business in manufactures in the investigation of local conditions being made by The Examiner, and when this statement is backed up by a tangible increase in orders, cause is given for looking on the outcome for Peterborough with a certain degree of hope.

Business Assured.

It was learned on a visit to the Elliot Manufacturing Co. to-day that business with that firm is assured. Their files of place orders will keep their factory humming busily throughout the summer.

T. C. Elliot explained that the work carried on by that firm is not confined to the factory but that hundreds of articles are made by ladies who in the consideration of the firm were qualified to make the goods satisfactorily.

Mr. Elliot says that much of the bulk of his sales are made in Canada and that while a great deal of local wool is used there are also great imports from Australia. Mr. Elliot says that the firm may be forced to start a night shift, so great is the pressure of orders.

E. C. Gartner, of the Coca-Cola Company, says that to date of this year the business shows a gain of from 40 p.c. to 50 per cent. Mr.

EXPECT MAY DAY TO BRING RIOTS

Police of Europe on Lookout For Communist Outrages.

By Webb Miller
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, April 30.—Fearing that the arrival of May Day to-morrow will be a signal for concerted Communist outrages, the police of France, Italy, Bulgaria, Esthonia, Hungary and the Rhineland took action to-day.

Special precautions were also taken in Great Britain and other countries of Europe, the authorities claiming evidence of a widespread international plot to foster "Red" outbreaks. Eleven Communists were arrested in Paris with automatic revolvers and ammunition in their possession. Raids conducted for the last three days throughout the French capital have disclosed stores of explosives. A huge infernal machine was discovered in a railway station near Riga, apparently designed to wreck a special train carrying the Esthonian President and many Government officials.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Wages is the biggest item of expense of operating retail stores.

By LAWRENCE A. ADAMS

* * *

Too many clerks is a danger every retailer has to watch. Competition in retailing is keen and the retail price is pretty well set. If a merchant has too many clerks his expense will be greater than his margin and he will accordingly lose money. On the other hand, the greatest saving in expense and accordingly the highest profits come to those merchants who attain the greatest efficiency in the use of the time of their employees. A merchant who has three clerks occasionally busy will have trouble in competing with another store of the same size which has two clerks constantly busy.

Money spent for idle time is so much money wasted.

SOLID BLOC FROM CAMPBELLFORD FOR M. E. MAYBEE AT CONVENTION

Delegation to Warkworth on June 5 Will Support Nomination of Present Member.

RESORTS STIRRING.

New Cottages at Healey Falls Under Way or On Paper.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 30—Robert Lowrey, who has for years held the position of vice-president for Campbellford in the Northumberland County Conservative Association ,says that Campbellford will send to the Conservative convention to be held at Warkworth on June 5th a solid delegation to support M. E. Maybee, M.P., for renomination. Mr. Lowrey adds that while he cannot speak for the township of Seymour he believes that the delegation from that part of the riding will also give Mr. Maybee individual support.

According to the local vice-president Mr. Maybee has always stood well with the party and has lost none of his popularity since his election to the Dominion Parliament.

Who Will Get Permits ?

"Who will get permits to sell the new beer?" is the leading question here at present. Not a single grocer has to date signified a desire to take up this line but there are plenty of other applicants. Assistant License Inspector Armstrong of Warkworth, who was here recently, said that the inspectors have not yet received any special instructions and they do not expect any to be issued by the department until the first week in May.

Local Resorts Popular

Without any special advertising campaign the summer resorts in this district not only retain their popularity but grow in favor with their patrons from year to year. An unusually busy season is expected this year, a greater influx of American tourists than ever. Fred Kelly, whose resort at Healey Falls is the regular summer home of prominent residents of the leading cities in Ohio, is already receiving inquiries by mail from his former patrons. A number of new cottages have been and will be built at Healey Falls by Americans.

The resort at Percy Boom, always well patronized by visitors from Rochester and other points in New York state, will be open again as soon as the weather permits. J. P. Boyce, the proprietor, is still ill in hospital in Peterboro, but his son will have charge of the business at Percy Boom where there are a large number of comfortable cottages for rent.

Local owners of summer cottages at Trent River are already preparing for the opening of the season when they will move out there and make the trip to their place of business every day by auto.

For several years there has been talk of establishing a free camping ground for visiting autos and now that Deputy Reeve Palliser has taken the matter up in the Town Council something is likely to be done. The grounds of the Seymour Agricultural Society have always been regarded as an ideal location for such a camp and local business men would be certain to reap a large revenue from such an institution. Campbellford, too, offers hotel accommodation to visitors second to none in any of the towns of Ontario. It has been found that camp centres where free camping grounds have been maintained that autoists on tour not only avail themselves of these conveniences but prolong their stay, especially in places that offer the inducements to angle that Campbellford possesses.

FIND WILD CAT.

Two Girls See Animal Asleep in Barn—Makes Its Escape.

BROCKVILLE, April 30 (Canadian Press).—Yesterday, as the two young daughters of Timothy Griffin, Sand Lake, Leeds County, went into their father's barn they discovered a wild cat asleep between two calves. They hurriedly closed the door, but with a yell and a bound the animal jumped through the open window and got away.

NERVES ALL GONE

Mrs. J. H. Hallenbeck, 117½ Welland Avenue, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"I was in a gas explosion; it left me with a weak heart, and my nerves were all gone. I suffered everything; couldn't sleep, or endure any excitement, and when left alone I felt as if I could scream. I took dizzy spells, often falling and bruising myself. My mother read about your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and bought me a box, but having taken so many different kinds of medicine it just seemed that I did not have any confidence in any of them. I took one box of H. & N. Pills, and felt so much better I continued with them until I had used five boxes, and after I had taken them I did not need any more. I cannot praise, or recommend, Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills too highly after all they have done for me."

LEAGUE TO HAVE SEVEN TEAMS IN COMING SEASON

Northumberland League Admits Frankford, But Orland Drops Out.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

League Finished Last Year With Substantial Balance in Bank.

(By a Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, April 30. — Frankford was admitted to membership in the Northumberland Baseball League at the annual meeting which was held here yesterday. The other towns that will enter teams are: Brighton, Campbellford, Hastings, Colborne, Warkworth and Roseneath; Orland having decided to drop out at the last moment.

As Frankford is outside the county limits, the team from that town will not be eligible to play for the Clarke Cup, which is awarded only to Northumberland county teams. If Frankford should finish first in the league, the team will play off with the runners up to decide which shall enter the O.B.A. finals. The Northumberland teams finishing second and third will play the deciding game for the Clarke Trophy.

Mr. Hattricks Case.

One of the delegates representing the Frankford team was William J. Hattrick, formerly of Peterboro, who in February last opened a law office in Frankford. He was formerly one of the best players in the Central Ontario League team in the city where he formerly resided and is desirous of continuing the sport in his new home town. Mr. Hattrick explained that Frankford, being outside the County, could not win the Clarke Cup even if the team finished first. All they cared for was a chance to get into the game.

For his own part, Mr. Hattrick admitted that he did not become a resident of Frankford until February, a month later than the date set by the residence rule, but he asked that he be given a chance to play with the team so that no game in which he took part could be protested.

C. H. Davidson and Kory Zufelt moved that Frankford be admitted and C. D. Daniels and Kory Zufelt that Mr. Hattrick be allowed to play with the team. Both motions carried.

Delegates Present.

The attendance was unusually large, 31 delegates sitting down to the annual supper which was held in the Leonard House. The representatives from the various teams were as follows:

Campbellford—Rev. C. D. Daniel, C. H. Davidson, Charles H. Nadoo and George T. Salter.

Warkworth—Kory Zufelt, H. Beswetherick and J. Dixon.

Colborne—K. W. Vanderwoorst, Dr. T. W. Warner, J. F. Wilson and H. J. Mayhew.

Roseneath—C. W. Varcoe, M. Davey and Joseph Downs.

Orland—M. H. Mulhall and J. H. Belford.

Balance Increased.

The report of Secretary-Treasurer Lapp showed that the total receipts last year were $124.05 and the expenditures $74.77, leaving a balance on hand of $49.28, a considerable increase over the surplus of 1923. This report was adopted.

Officers Elected.

As Dr. E. C. McKee, the president, was unable to be present, the meeting was called to order by Vice-President C. H. Davidson of Campbellford. The following officers were elected for the coming season:

Honorary president—Sam Clarke, M.P.P.

President—C. W. Varcoe, Roseneath.

Vice-President—C. H. Davidson, Campbellford.

Secretary-Treasurer— M. Davey, Roseneath.

The members of the executive committee chosen from the various teams were as follows: Frank Marshall, Brighton; C. D. Daniel, Campbellford; W. Wellman, Hastings; Dr. Gordon Armstrong, Roseneath; J. F. Wilson, Colboorne; W. J. Hattrick, Frankford; Harry Zufelt, Warkworth.

President's Right To Vote.

It was moved by Dr. Warner, seconded by Fred Sprung, that at the meetings of the executive the president can vote only in the event of a tie and that the secretary-treasurer or any other officer cannot vote at any time. Only one vote will be allowed each club and the above rule was adopted to prevent a recurrence of a dispute over a point of parliamentary procedure that arose at any executive meeting last year.

President Varcoe and Secretary-Treasurer Davey will represent the League at the meetings of the O. B.A.

Pay For Secretary.

On motion of C. H. Davidson and Harry Zufelt, retiring secretary Lapp was voted an honorarium of $10 for his efficient services and the same amount will be paid Mr. Davey, his successor. Ex-President McKee and Mr. Lapp were tendered a vote of thanks on motion of Kory Zufelt and J. F. Wlison.

No Increase In Penalty.

The Brighton delegates made an attempt to have the penalty for forfeited games increased from $15 to $25, but this was voted down.

Umpire System Unchanged.

Mr. Lapp put up a strong argument in favor of engaging neutral umpires, these to be paid $4 each per game. Only in this way, he believed, could the best service be secured, as home umpires were likely to be influenced by the crowd. Mr. Lapp did not wish to imply that umpires are wilfully dishonest, but they were human, and it must be admitted that some of them are incompetent.

Roseneath was the only team that supported Mr. Lapp's motion, the other delegates being of the opinion that while the neutral umpire system was desirable, it was too expensive for the majority of the clubs.

Plea For Clean Sport.

J. F. Wilson, of Colborne, urged that baseball be kept clean, and suggested that at the opening games the manager of the home team made an address to the fans, asking them to observe the rules of decorum.

The sentiment of the meeting was that the team managers should preserve order at their home games. In order to give the players a chance and to prevent interference by the crowd, it was decided that a rope or cable be set up at least twenty feet from the home plate and first and third bases, and that none but players and officials be allowed inside this barrier.

On motion of J. F. Wilson and C. H. Davidson, it was decided to remain in affiliation with the O.B.A.

President Varcoe and Secretary Davey will draw up the schedule, and copies will be sent to the various clubs as soon as this work is completed.

SALESMAN DISAPPEARED.

Took Motor Trip and Has Not Been Seen Since.

LONDON, Ont., April 30 (Canadian Press)—High Constable Arthur Wharton spent yesterday in Wallaceburg probing the disappearance of E. S. Thomas of Mount Bridges, who was last seen on Wednesday, April 15th. Thomas is a fertilizer salesman. His last business calls were made in Wallaceburg and the authorities are the possibility that he may have met foul play there. It is claimed that he took a motor trip with Samuel Watson, pool room proprietor and implement dealer. Thomas travelling bags were found in a room in the Dupont Hotel, where he had stopped. Efforts are being concentrated to discover where Thomas went after leaving Watson's company.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK

The wonder trip of the coming summer will be conducted by Dean Laird of Macdonald College, to Victoria, B.C., and back.

Inspired by the success of the trip to Victoria last year on the occasion of the Teachers' Federation meeting at that point, and filled with patriotic motives for everyone to see their own country, the Dean has arranged for a special train of standard sleeping cars to leave Toronto on July 20, visiting Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver, thence steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be via the Okanagan Valley, Nelson, the Kootenay Lakes, Windermere Bungalow, Camp, from which place the party will be motored to Banff, 104 miles over the newly completed Banff-Windermere Highway, the most charming, and awe inspiring trip it is possible to conceive, with stops at Radium Hot Springs, Vermilion River, and Storm Mountain Bungalow Camps—another day at Banff, then Edmontno, Saskatoon, Devil's Gap Bungalow Camp, near Kenora on the Lake of the Woods, steamer from Fort William, to Port McNicoll, thence rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate on August 10.

Everything is included at the price of $325.00 from Toronto transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels, and on steamers, sightseeing tours at points visited, and all gratuities.

All will be welcome.

Fare from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrated booklet sent on application to Dean Laird, Macdonald College, P.O., Que.

TURNS STATE EVIDENCE.

MONTREAL, Apr. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Receiving a promise of immunity from the Attorney-General on condition that he would relate all he knew of the case, Alexander Cahan, who with Michael Fulker, is accused of murdering Leo Demers, the "hermit of Shawbridge," six years ago, testified at the preliminary enquette, which opened before Magistrate A. Manchand at St. Jerome to-day, that Fulker had admitted to him that he had killed Demers, thinking he had money.

Cahan testified that Fulker then warned him to say nothing about the matter or he too would be murdered and Fulker, he added, insisted on his helping him to hide the body, which they did.

NEW RAILWAY PLAN.

Premier Would Serve Dominion Without Seeking Profit.

TORONTO, April 30 (Canadian Press).—A proposal whereby the railways of Canada should be operated with the aim of developing trade with the Dominion, and distributing various products of the different provinces to scattered points of Canada rather than with any objective of declaring profits was outlined last night by Hon. G. H. Ferguson, in the course of an address before the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association. Mr. Ferguson pointed out that if the problem of trade and transportation were attacked from that angle it would provide a solution for the whole Canadian difficulty.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

Comedian Fell Down Fire Escape in Toronto Hotel Jury Finds.

TORONTO, April 30 (Canadian Press).—Investigation into the death of Carl A. Lind, comedian with the "Dream Girl" production, which played at a local theatre last week, was concluded at the morgue last night, when a verdict of "accidental death" was returned. Lind succumbed to injuries received on Thursday morning last, following a party in a local hotel by falling down an inside fire escape.

PRINCE AT CAPE TOWN.

Miles of Cheering Crowds Greet Wales in Southern Dominion.

CAPE TOWN, April 30 (United Press).—The Prince of Wales landed here today from H.M.S. Repulse and drove through miles of cheering crowds to receive an official address of welcome from the local authorities.

A general amnesty for prisoners, with the exception of long term convicts and those sentenced to death, was declared; thousands being freed in all parts of the country.

CANADA AND LEAGUE.

Would Not Have Assumed Obligations Without Entry of United States.

OTTAWA, April 30. — (Canadian Press).—It is doubtful if Canada would have assumed the obligations implied in the League of Nations' covenant if it had been definitely known in 1920 that the United States would not participate, Hon. Raoul Dandurand, Government leader of the Senate, told the Upper Chamber yesterday in the course of an address. Senator Dandurand, with Hon. E. M. Macdonald, Canadian Minister of National Defence, represented Canada at the Geneva Assembly last year.

tion of a bureau on the budget similar to that which, in the United States, had done much to cut down the expense of civil government. The Canadian Civil Service contained men as capable of reviewing the Civil Service of Canada and other sources of public expenditure, and he felt sure that a great saving could be effected if such a bureau was formed, and if every department of the government service co-ordinated to reduce expenses where ever possible. He believed there were many Government expenses normally reasonable which should not be postponed or eliminated altogether, because of the unusual conditions of national finance.

Railway Problem

The Government ,stated Mr. Lesueur, should investigate the idea of amalgamating the two great railway system in Canada. He believed, however, that the people of this country would very carefully scrutinize any agreement made for the Canadian Pacific railway to take over the C.N.R.

The suggestion for the Canadian National Railways to take over the C.P.R., he stated, was "not as easy a problem as some of the members indicated." He feared that the experiment of the Canadian National Railways taking over the C. P. R. would be hazardous and dangerous; and believed that the banking circle would not look upon such a merger without "grave alarm as to the financial future of Canada's credit."

Mr. Lesueur thought it was time that we found out how and when the Canadian National Railways were going to stand on their own feet. The people of Canada had been very generous in their grants to this line, and patient in waiting for results. He suggested also that a month to month check on C.N.R. expenditures should be kept.

Canada had an excellent opportunity owing to conditions in Europe for carrying out an aggressive immigration policy.

Mr. Lesueur concluded his speech by urging the government to attack expenditures with a view to reduction and to keep a constant scrutiny and check on railway expenditures. The Government should cease drifting.

Brethen Begins

G. A. Brethen (Progressive, Peterboro E.) said that Mr. Lesueur's speech had been "a gem of constructive debate." He advocated encouragement for the purchasing of Canadian goods. The tariff changes of the last few years could not, he said, possibly do all the things to industrial conditions which were claimed by the two older parties. The high tariff of the United States had not benefitted the American farmer and he doubted if it had done much for the manufacturers. Mr. Brethen was still speaking when the house rose at six o'clock. He will resume his speech today.

RATES ENQUIRY

from Montreal to South Africa but he understood it was 35c a cubic foot from New York, as compared with 25c a cubic foot to the British Isles.

There was some discussion on an item found by Mr. Symington in the minutes of the liner committee in regard to the rate on lumber. It developed that there was at one time a rate on lumber to which all the conference lines agreed. Then the Canadian government Merchant Marine quoted a lower rate, but on representations by the other conference lines, restored the higher rate. The Head Line had also at first thought the lower rate was satisfactory, but finally agreed to the higher one.

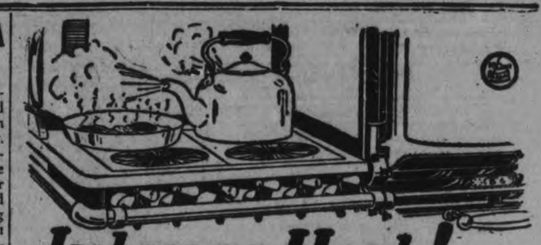
Compete with Tramps.

"Does the conference try to keep tramp steamers out?" asked Mr. Symington.

"We try to make a rate which will compete with the tramps," Mr. Marlow replied.

Mr. Symington referred to a minute showing an increase in the wheat rate had been made at a certain time, while the rate on oats remained unaffected. He asked the reason for this.

Mr. Marlow replied that probably no oats were moving at the time. On the other hand there might have been a surplus of wheat for export.



Intense Heat! —fast Cooking!

NOT least of the remarkable points about McClary's Gas Range is the full constant flow of intense heat that comes from the burners. This makes cooking fast—nearly twice as fast as with wood or coal—without fuss, muss or trouble.

—The porcelain enameled top, rust proof and sanitary.
—The porcelain enameled oven, so easily cleaned and kept sweet.

These are just a few of the qualities which have made McClary's known as the satisfactory Gas Range.

"In other words, is the rate made on the basis of all the traffic will bear?" queried Mr. Symington.

"That is a factor," the witness admitted.

GREAT BRITAIN'S EXPLOIT.

The prestige of Great Britain will be materially increased by the return of the British Empire to the gold standard.

It is a financial victory second only in importance to the exploits of the British forces during the war, and it represents a persistent and determined battle against the economic conditions that necessarily resulted from the world conflict.

Confidence is created by such an action on the part of Britain in restoring the basis of her coinage at a time when there is much unemployment at home and when British trade abroad is far from its pre-war volume.

The MontrealStar, pointing out the reversion to the gold standard is of immense worth to Britain in every way, declares that "it enhances her prestige, for instance, as a potential war power quite as much as would a new flotilla of warships, and will greatly help to extend her trade influence throughout the earth."

This is not all that is involved in the change, because it will also eventually restore London as the money market of the world.

In spite of the terrible drain upon her financial resources, she has taken care of her debt to the United States, has balanced her Budget and has been able to reduce taxation.

THE NEW BEER TAX.

Apparently the Provincial and Federal authorities do not regard 4.4 beer as a beverage, but as a gold mine.

On top of the announcement of a Provincial tax of 10c per gallon on the new beer, comes a declaration that the Federal Department of Customs and Excise propose to clap a Federal excise tax of 12½c a gallon on the same concoction.

That makes the total tax 22½c per gallon, and some of our Collegiate Institute students who are expert calculators may be able to tell us how much of the 4.4 would have to be consumed to drink the country out of debt—which now would seem to be the objective of those in authority.

Many people have been drawing rosy pictures of the halcyon days to come when big foaming steins of Nickle-Ferguson brew would be retailing at 5c per stein.

It looks as if the ex-Kaiser has a much better chance of coming back than 5c beer.

At least if the 5c price does prevail the odds are that the glasses will be far from big—dinghies instead of schooners as it were.

The new levy goes to show that there is only one thing our Federal and Provincial legislators can do better than talk, and that is to find fresh fields for taxation.

CANADA'S NATAL DAY.

The declaration of Hon. S. F. Tolmie, the former Minister of Agriculture, in his speech during the Budget debate that Canadians should celebrate the First of July as thoroughly as citizens of the United States celebrate the Fourth, should be remembered.

As a people we fall down lamentably in our outward manifestations of a national spirit.

Dominion Day, the anniversary of the Confederation that gives us the present Dominion of Canada, should be a most significant occasion, marked each year by appropriate patriotic exercises throughout the length and breadth of the country.

Is it so marked?

The answer need not be given since the First of July has become nothing more than a holiday.

Thousands of new Canadian citizens know nothing about the anniversary that is being celebrated, and only the newspapers try to enlighten them as to the historic importance of the day.

The contrast across the international line on the Fourth is marked.

The anniversary is made to stand for something, and is used for a nation-wide patriotic demonstration that makes the people of the United States take a new pride in their country.

There is no reason why a similar use should not be made of Dominion Day in Canada.

Canadian Clubs, Daughters of the Empire, the War Veterans' Associations, organizations such as the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and similar bodies should take cognizance of Hon. Dr. Tolmie's statement and ask themselves if there is not something that they can do to bring about a proper celebration of Canada's natal day.

WHY THE DIFFERENCE?

When it is a question of promptness in the transaction of public business the "Mother of Parliaments" sets a pace that seems impossible of duplication by the Parliament of Canada.

On Tuesday Winston Churchill introduced his Budget proposals, several of them of a most revolutionary nature, and the cables declare that "upon the completion of Chancellor Churchill's statement on the Budget the House of Commons voted to accept all of the proposed measures."

That is the Westminster way.

The Ottawa method is decidedly different.

His proposals were not nearly as drastic as the Churchill programme, yet the Canadian House of Commons is today sitting through its twenty-fourth "working" day of the debate on the Budget.

Great Britain returns to the gold standard, restores the McKenna duties, makes provision for the insurance of the sick and aged and reduces the income tax all in one afternoon, while Canada has spent five weeks in talking about legislation of very secondary importance in comparison with that proposed by Mr. Churchill.

It used to be said that the British could be counted upon to "muddle things through."

There are times, however, when they show a rate of speed that makes Canadians appear decidedly slow.

SUN WORSHIPPERS.

Quite without premeditation the people of the United States are coming to be a nation of sun worshippers. And this new habit of theirs is not by any means a bad one, even if at times it does lead to carelessness in other ways less reminiscent of paganism.

The daylight saving rule that will become effective to-morrow was an outgrowth of the very general search for some of the lost benefits of what Colonel Roosevelt used to call the simple life. Sunlight makes for good health and long life. It makes for happiness and a cheerful disposition. The doctors are now corroborating the assertions of those outlawed amateurs in philosophy who said many years ago that sunshine will even cure a great many diseases and that it is a thing not to be shunned with umbrellas, but to be sought out and enjoyed.

One might even suppose that the rage for golf and surf bathing and other outdoor diversions that have become almost universal in this country during the last twenty-five years represent sun worship by indirect methods. It takes great multitudes out into the open. It would require a temperament greatly different from that with which the average American is endowed to make mere walking in the sun seem enjoyable or of any use. Golf, therefore, occupies the mind of the devotee and provides him with a comfortable sense of being busily employed. A game of any sort saves the sun worshipper's face. He proceeds to his devotions with a sort of camouflage. He might walk on an open road or lie in a field or dig trenches to carry a hod and derive as much benefit thereby as he derives from golfing or lolling in the sands at Newport. But the rituals of sun worship have been carefully formulated to maintain in the individual a sense of his place in the order of society.

The practiced worshipper must be visible clearly before the Lord as one engaged in an esthetic experience apart from the harsher requirements of daily existence. A hod would spoil the picture. So would a pick or a shovel. Golf and tennis are other matters. They suggest joy and voluntary devotion, though when all is said and done they probably do less for the digestion than brick and mortar and wood piles and burdens of various sorts do for folk who feel that physical exertion in the sun is an outrageous imposition against which there should be a law. The ancients believed that the sun was the source of all life and all happiness, and it is a bit odd to find that savage tribes long ago sensed truths which the laboratories are only now disclosing.

Certainly the savages seem to have been right. To any one who lives for the most part indoors and who glimpses the sun only now and then from an office window, their rightness will seem unquestionable at this time of the year. It is for people of this sort and in response to their desires and their obvious needs that the daylight saving practice was originated. It is in every way an excellent practice. Statutes intended to make it illegal could never be made to work successfully, for the simple reason that, while you may pass laws to prohibit people from moving the hands of clocks "displayed on public buildings and on public highways," it would be impossible to force people in cities to stick to traditional hours of work. Daylight saving could be practiced even if there were a law to compel you to keep standard time by your watch. You would only have to begin work and quit an hour earlier than usual.

This and neighboring communities will move on the daylight schedule after midnight tonight. There is no law about watches or the old home clock. Turn your watch ahead an hour when you go to bed tonight and you will be in harmony with your environment.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

THE BOX OF MYSTERY.

Johanna Southcott has long held the honorable rank of prophetess among the people of England, says the Ottawa Journal. She was born in Devon, 1750, and lived the life of a dairymaid on the downs of that country which gave to literature the immortal Lorna Doone. She was, however, intensely religious at a period in British history when emotionalism was general, and in time became a mystic. Whether or not an interrupted love affair had anything to do with her taking up the prophetic role is neither here nor there.

She wrote books, and these books made a profound impression in their time on the British mind, which was peculiarly receptive to emotional religion during the great Wesley and Whitfield revivals. She was accepted by many as one who could see into the future. She gained credit for having foretold events which did come to pass. Then after long seclusion and meditation, she closed her life by depositing in a sealed box the sum of her prophecies and conclusions, and this box was committed to trustees on the express condition that it should not be opened until a century had elapsed.

That was not all. It was a further explicit condition that the box should not be opened except in the presence of twenty-four consecrated bishops of the Anglican Church, including its Primate and the Archbishop of York, from which it will be seen at once that Johanna had a shrewd sense of what would nowadays be classified as "publicity." The 100 years have passed; but up to the present time the 24 bishops, among them the two specially designated dignitaries, could not be got together. The Archbishop of Canterbury has, however, yielded to public curiosity and interest in this matter, and has made arrangements for compliance with all the conditions of the dead prophetess.

What will the box be found to contain? Speculation is active on both sides of the Atlantic on the subject. Will the Devon dairymaid be found to have bequeathed to a patient and waiting world anything of real value to mankind? We may soon know.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 29. — Cattle trade is slow, with prices just about holding steady at the 25c decline in Monday's market. There was not a heavy run for the midweek, but with about 1,000 cattle left over from the earlier markets, the total supplies were rather more than could be very speedily absorbed. This made trade a little draggy, but prospects are fair for a pretty good clean up for the week-end.

Export buyers are practically out of the market for the balance of the week, but expect to be in again next week for about the usual quota, though still awaiting definite word as to a boat for Liverpool.

Hogs are weak, and packers are bidding another 25c lower on tomorrow's loadings. Steady to-day on basis of $11.75 f.o.b.

Sheep—Choice, $8 to $9; clipped, $6 to $7; heavy, $5 to $6. Calves—choice, $9 to $10; medium, $7.50 to $8.50; light, $5 to $6; grassers, $3 to $3.50.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, April 29.—The egg situation changes very little from day to day which is rather unusual at this season. Values continue very firm and shippers' offers show no signs of easing. Winnipeg is offering extras 29, firsts 27, seconds 24 in export cases f.o.b. shipping point.

Toronto — Jobbing, prices unchanged.

Montreal—Steady, dealers paying extras 31, firsts 29; jobbing, extras 34, firsts 32, seconds 27.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 29.—Frost prediction pointing to serious possible crop damage, especially in Kansas and Nebraska, brought about a buying flurry in the wheat market late today, as a result, when prices took a sudden jump and had a strong finish, 1-2 to 2 3-4 cents net higher, May $1.52 to $1.54 1-4, and July $1.41 1-2 to $1.41 3-4; with corn unchanged to 3-8 cents off; oats 1-8 to 1-4 at 3-8 cent down and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 15 cents decline.

FIRST CHEESE AUCTION

MONTREAL, April 29. — The United Dairymen Co-operative held their first auction sale of cheese for the season 1925, here today, when there were 707 boxes of Ontario white and 77 boxes colored cheese offered. The former lot sold at 17 1-2 cents per lb, and the latter lot at 18 1-8 cents per lb.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 29. — While the enquiry from foreign buyers for all lines of Canadian grain was very large on the Montreal market today, exporters stated that in most cases prices were below working basis and in consequence little business was worked, there being only sales of odd loads of oats and barley for May shipment. In the ocean freights, business was also quieter with spot room let to Liverpool at 1s. 9d. per quarter for heavy grain, and at 1s. 6d. for oats, but the rate for May was steady at 2s. for heavy, and at 1s. 9d. for oats. The demand continues to be chiefly for Continental room and rates rule firm at 15 cents per 100 pounds for heavy grain.

The only business of importance reported in the local cash grain market was the sale of a few loads of No. 2 Canadian Western oats at 64 1-8 cents per bushel, and No. 2 feed oats at 1 cent per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal.

The market for car lots of oats was stronger at an advance of 1 cent per bushel.

The condition of the local market for eggs was unchanged, prices for all grades being steady with a fair volume of business passing in a wholesale jobbing way, and the market was moderately active. The receipts were 2,292 cases, as compared with 3,297 for the same day last week, and 2,491 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The market for potatoes was without any new feature to note, business being still very slow on account of the fact that buyers seem to have ample supplies on hand to meet their requirements. The feeling was about steady with car lots of No. 1 Green Mountain quoted at 60 cents per bag, and Quebec varieties at 50 cents per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk, ex-track.

The receipts of butter in Montreal were 619 packages, as compared with 524 for the same day last week and 663 for the corresponding day a year ago. The market was quieter owing to the fact that local and outside buyers seem to have filled their wants for the present and in consequence the volume of business was small. The tone was easy and although there was no change in prices announced, the indications were that they would be lower in the near future.

The receipts of cheese were 1,352 boxes, as against 1,175 for the same day last week, and 605 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no important change in the condition of the market except that the competition for white cheese seems to be keener than that for colored as a premium is being paid for it. There was some business reported over the cable, and prices on spot were unchanged, with Western No. 1 white and colored quoted at 18 1-2 cents per lb. and No. 2 grades at 17 1-2 cents per lb., while Quebec 20-lb. cheese sold at 15 to 15 1-2 cents per lb.

The first session of the St. Hyacinthe cheese board of the season 1925 will be held on Saturday.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR.

GLORIA GORDON, twenty and pretty, marries LICK GREGORY, because she thinks he has money. Gloria's idea of marriage is plenty of fun and expensive clothes.....but no children.

When Dick tells Gloria she must do her own housework she has hysterics. So Dick borrows MAGGIE, his mother's maid, to teach Gloria to cook. Gloria refuses to learn.

STANLEY WAYBURN an actor whom Golria once loves, calls on her. When Dick sees him leave the house Gloria tells her husband that he was only an interior decorator.

Dick is home ill for a few days. His secretary MISS BRIGGS, comes to work there with him. While they are busy Gloria makes plans for a house-warming. She invites Stanley Wayburn. Dick recognizes him as the man whom Gloria has told him was an interior decorator.

Glory becomes reckless and drinks too much when she sees Stanley kissing MYRA GAIL. She faints away while dancing with DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, whose wife, MAY, is in love with JIM CAREWE.

The party breaks up when LOLA HOUGH "bawls" out BILL, her husband, for "petting" with May. Maggie, disgusted, leaves the house. The next morning Dick asks Gloria if the man he saw leaving the house was Wayburn or not.

Gloria said nothing. She could hear the ticking of the hall-clock in the stillness of the house.

Then the front door opened and closed. Dick stood in the doorway.

"I just ran in to have a little chat with Glory," she said, smiling as pleasantly as any afternoon caller. "But I must run along now. Perhaps you'll come along and tuck me into my car, Richard?"

Gloria watched her tall husband and his mother walk down to the curb-stone. They stood talking beside Mother Gregory's car.

"About me, I'll bet!" Gloria said to herself.

Why had Mother Gregory stopped scolding her the minute Dick came into the room, Glory wondered.

Was it because she didn't want to upset Dick and his delicate stomach by a quarrel?

Or was it because she didn't want him to know that she was interfering in Glory's affairs . . . in the running of her house?

If that was the case, Glory made up her mind that she'll tell Dick just what Mother Gregory had said to her! . . . She'd let him know that his mother couldn't come into their house and try to arrange their lives for them!

The very idea of her trying to tell Glory whether she was to serve hard liquor or lemonade at her parties! It was none of her business!

* * *

"Your mother's just like the mothers-in-law in the funny papers," she said when Dick came into the house. "She's been trying to tell me I shouldn't have had cocktails at last night's party. Gosh, I'd hate to sit through one of her bone-dry dinners. They must be ghastly!"

Dick didn't answer her. He stood watching her futile efforts to wipe some stains from the hall mirror.

"Here, give me that duster!" he said finally. "You shinny upstairs and make the beds. I'll clean up down here. . . . I'm the world's best parlor maid, if you only knew it!"

Glory stood watching him for a minute or two.

* * *

He was tall and thin. And there was an eager look in his face . . . in the quick movements of his body . . . that made him seem splendidly alive.

Gloria knew every detail of Stan Wayburn by heart. The cleft in his chin, his polished black hair, his ice-blue eyes . . . and his thrilling way of looking at you.

* * *

Dick came toward her across the living room, shoving the vacuum-sweeper ahead of him as he came. He left broad dusty streaks on the rug behind him.

Glory laughed.

"Gosh, but you're doing a bum job of house cleaning!" she said. Dick dropped the sweeper and caught her in his arms to kiss away her laughter.

"No! No!" Glory cried. With all her strenght she pushed him away from her and ran upstairs. . . .

. . . . The very thought of him was like a knife twisting in her heart.

What was there about Myra Gail that made all the men fall in love with her, Glory wondered.

Myra, with her sullen gray eyes, wasn't even pretty. She talked very little in her drawing, husky voice. She did not try to please anyone particularly.

It must be her clothes that made her so alluring . . . that turned the trick, Glory decided.

For there was no doubt that Myra had wonderful clothes. She bought them in Paris.

. . . Glory stopped making beds and opened the door of her clothes-closet.

* * *

With a new scorn she surveyed the dresses hanging there. A few weeks ago when she had bought them for her trousseau she had thought them beautiful.

Now she saw that there were too many ruffles on them, too many buttons, too much fringe. Even the colors were wrong! . . . They should be subtle greens and dusky grays, like Myra wore. . . . instead of bright blues and frantic reds.

Well, was there any reason why she shouldn't have clothes like Myra's if she wanted them?

Of course, if she asked Dick for them he would be sure to say he couldn't afford them for her. But she wouldn't ask him! . . . She would simply go and buy them!

After all, it was no crime to have a few becoming clothes, was it?

. . . She would buy a dress of cream and amber to match her skin and hair!

She would buy black velvet to set off the pearly whiteness of her neck and arms! . . . And a scarf of real lace like foam along the edge of a wave!

She wished that it were Monday morning instead of late Saturday afternoon . . . so that she could go downtown and begin to shop, then and there.

* * *

By the time Glory had made the twin beds and had hung a neat row of face towels in the bathroom, it was dark.

Downstairs she could hear the faint rattle and clatter of dishes. She supposed that Dick had finished straightening the house in his slap-dash man's way, and was washing the glasses from last night's bout.

Halfway down the flight of steps she stopped. From the kitchen came the rich odor of broiling ham. . . . Dick must be getting supper!

Glory had a sudden feeling of distaste for the house with its reminders of last night's hilarity. She wanted to get out of it . . . to go somewhere. To a restaurant. Anywhere.

She ran into the kitchen.

"Oh, take that thing off!" Glory cried. "I hate to see a man in an apron, fussing around the kitchen. It doesn't look manly!"

"Well, if my wife doesn't know how to cook, and won't try to learn to cook, I can't starve, can I?" he asked. "Somebody's got to get our supper."

"I don't suppose it's occurred to you that there are restaurants in this town?" Glory asked saucily. "And anyway it's Saturday night . . . we ought to go out and bat around a bit."

"Going out to eat is just twice as expensive as eating at home," said Dick. "And, gosh, I'm tired after staying up nearly all last night. I'm all in, as a matter of fact. . . . Come on, Glory, be a sport, for once, and say you'll have a fried ham sandwich at home!"

"Not a chance!" Glory cried. "I didn't have any hinch today, and I'm as hungry as a bear. So hitch up the car, old thing, and we'll drive downtown for supper. . . . And maybe we'll get wild, afterward and go to a movie, eh wot?"

She ran upstairs, whistling as she went.

* * *

Dick stood alone in the bright untidy kitchen.

He was still shaky from his attack of "flu" earlier in the week.

His head and his eyes ached. He was tired to the point of nausea.

He wondered how he could sit through a restaurant meal and a moving picture show afterward. . . .

He put on his hat and went out to the garage to start the car.

Ah, she had not gone wrong on that hat! It was perfect.

She was twice as beautiful in that hat as in any other hat she ever had on her head! And why? . . . Because it had cost twice as much as any other one that she had ever owned.

Oh, there was no getting away from the fact that anybody could be good-looking who had good-looking clothes! . . . and when you had beauty to start with as she had . . . well, you were just plumb crazy if you don't insist upon beautiful clothes to bring it out! They were your due . . . They were her due . . . Gloria's! . . . And, by jinks, she would have them!

"Rikky-tikky-tavy," Glory said when they were seated in Cressman's tea room. "I hope you meant what you said this morning when you told me I could hire a new maid to take Maggie's place."

Dick looked up from the dinner menu.

"Why?" he asked. "You haven't hired one already, have you?"

Glory nodded.

"I was going to talk to you about that, tonight, and it slipped my mind," Dick said. "I was going to ask you if you could get along with a laundress and cleaning woman for a while. . . . Somehow or other, it's costing us more to live than I figured it would, and I'm no millionaire, you know."

Glory drew lines on the tablecloth thoughtfully.

"I've hired an awfully nice-looking Swedish girl," she remarked, after a time. "She says she can do all the work in our house."

"How much are you going to pay her?" he asked.

"Eighteen dollars a week," Glory said bravely.

"Eighteen dollars a week!" repeated Dick. "Great Scott, Glory, you must have lost your mind! I can't afford to pay a maid $18 a week and board her, besides! It'll cost me $100 a month, easily. I can't do it, honey. . . . I just haven't got the money!"

"I've told her to start work in the morning, and she's coming," Glory said. "So, we'll have to keep her for a little while."

She raised her limpid eyes. Across the restaurant at a corner table sat Stanley Wayburn. He was looking straight at her.

CLOVER KILLS CATTLE.

Fungus Growth in Sweet Clover Blamed By Veterinary.

INGERSOLL, Ont., April 30. — (Canadian Press).—The death of a number of cattle in the Dorchester district recently has been traced to sweet clover as the contributing cause. On the farm of Charles Mitchell five head were lost. Malcolm McVicar, ex-M.L.A., also had four animals die from the same cause. Dr. Gill, veterinary of Dorchester, stated that the fibrine in the blood is destroyed by a fungus growth in the stocks of the clover, and under the influence animals frequently bleed to death.

Mutual Aid in Formulating Fiscal Policy Will Bring Results.

AT DISADVANTAGE.

Both Face Competition From United States, Says C. J. Bodley.

TORONTO, April 30.—(Canadian Press).—While there are strong indications that Canadian national business is being sacrificed on the altar of foreign bargain counters, and while many professional and manual workers are unemployed in Canada, the country appears to be passing out of this situation, and there is a feeling of confidence that Canada is entering on better times, said C. J. Bodley, chairman of the Toronto branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, to-day at a luncheon in connection with the joint annual meeting of the Toronto branch of the Ontario division of the association. R. R. Moodie of Hamilton presided.

It was time, said Mr. Bodley, that the Canadian manufacturing and agricultural interests consolidated efforts in trying to overcome the disadvantage all were in with respect to trade with the United States whose policy was the United States first and all the time, and whose taxation per head is a fraction of the Canadian burden.

There should be a revision of the fiscal policy, said Mr. Bodley, and in the formulation of a new policy, farmers and manufacturers would have a good deal to say, and they should not be in hostile camps.

The horse belonged to A. Atkin, new and second-hand dealer on Hunter Street, and escaped while the block was being lifted. Slight damage was done to the harness.

PRINCE WELCOMED BY SOUTH AFRICANS

Large Crowds Gathered in Cape Town Streets To Greet Him.

CAPE TOWN, April 30.—(Canadian Press).—The Prince replied to the addresses with a felicitous speech, in which he sang the praises of South African scenery.

His remarks roused the large audience to intense enthusiasm. Loud speakers broadcast the speech throughout the city, and the Cape wireless station distributed it over the whole Union.

The Prince was given all possible official honors on his landing this morning. The Earl of Athlone, the Governor-General, accompanied by Princess Alice, his wife, boarded the Repulse to greet him. Premier Hertzog, his Cabinet Ministers and other notables, also welcomed the Prince.

The principal function in the welcome was a civil meeting in the large open space fronting the City Hall, which was packed to its utmost limits.

The Mayor, in his address, assured the heir to the Throne of a loyal reception throughout the country, remarking that the spontaneous enthusiasm which had greeted his visits to other Dominions had proved to the world that he lived in the hearts of British subjects. After addresses tht Prince proceeded to the stands in Government Avenue, where the school children welcomed him by singing "God Save the Prince of Wales."

UNITED CANADA IS SOUGHT BY NEWSPAPER MEN

OFFICERS ELECTED.

TORONTO, April 30—Canadian newspapermen are prepared to lend hearty support to any movement which tends to create a greater spirit of national unity and to eliminate section differences. Unanimously adopted yesterday by the annual meeting of the Canadian Daily Newspapers' Association, a resolution, presented by J. G. Elliott of the Kingston Whig, reads:

"This association views with much gratification the proposals on foot to foster a spirit of greater unity between the Provinces of Dominion. We appreciate the efforts which have been made, and commend to our membership hearty endorsation of the movement, which we believe will tend greatly to the development of Canada as a whole.

Keeping of Old Files.

Preservation of newspaper files as a means of securing authentic data for Canadian histories and for a multitude of other important uses, was strongly urged upon individual members by a second resolution adopted. The use of public libraries is suggested in cases where adequate provision for the filing of past numbers is not provided in the newspaper office. Fire losses, it was stated, had wiped out many important recordings of past events, which would be invaluable at the present time.

JOE HAS SOLD 19 MILLION HUXTRAS

CHICAGO, April 30—The huskiest pair of lungs in all Chicago belong to Joe Marzano.

Joe is Chicago's oldest and richest newsboy. For 31 years he has stood on the same corner yelling "Huxtra," with just enough Italian accent to lend it romance.

Each day he sells from 2000 to 4000 papers. Also many magazines are retailed from his stand.

He figures that in his 31 years he has handed 19,344,000 papers to his customers. His profits clear are from $90 to $100 a week which has enabled him to buy a house, raise five children and educate them as well.

Likewise he owns "ril estate."

"Pappee, all about it. Get your huxtra. Hello keed. Howdy do Mr. So and So."

Thus goes the day for Joe, who, though 52 years of age, figures his lungs are good for another 25 years.

REPORTS STILL ARE OPTIMSTIC

Gartner believes that this will be the best year ever experienced by the company. "The snow storms," he remarked, held us up for a couple of days, but since that time we have picked up tremendously.

More Optimistic.

L. A. Turner, manager of the Card and Paper Works, Ltd., says that business is greatly similar to that of last year.

"The public," Mr. Turner states, "is still buying from hand to mouth, but as a rule the paper industry is more optimistic than it has been for some time as paper stock is now becoming more staple."

Mr. Turner says that he has had a great demand for cardboard stock to be used in advertising.

"This would appear to indicate," he says, "that a great drive is about to be made in the line of a selling campaign."

No Change Here.

From an authority at Barries, Ltd., it was found that though business was slightly better in the west it could not be said to have improved greatly in other sections which made conditions of this year equal to those of last.

Barries report that the adjustment of the gold standard and the fixing of a preferential tariff should have a stabilizing effect on Canadian business in general, as it tended to instil the people with confidence.

OPTIMISTIC REPORT.

J. J. Duffus, President and General Manager of Duffus Motor Sales Dealers in Ford products, gives this optimistic report:

Undoubtedly there is a vast improvement over last year. In taking off our semi-monthly report April 15, the first three months and a half this year showed a 59 per cent. increase in volume in business compared with the same period in 1924 and with a very much reduced overhead.

It is a well known fact that motor cars are sold to some extent on deferred payments, but so far this year our business has been mostly cash, which seems to me to be very strong evidence of much better times.

Farming conditions constitute the best barometer I know of. If people engaged in agriculture get a reasonable chance to make good all others will be prosperous. From what I have heard most people in the country have pretty well cleaned up. Spring conditions were never more favorable. Fall wheat, rye, clover, etc., never looked better. With a good crop this year we should enjoy prosperity such as we have not for many years.

While we have experienced tough times during the past few years, I believe we are all the better for it. None other would have brought us back to reasonable economy. An honest wage, a good day's work, goods sold at proper values, small profits and good returns and optimism are potent factors in hastening the return of prosperity, which seems to be in evidence.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES MAKE SUGGESTIONS

Several Resolutions Presented to Premier, Who Promises Consideration.

TORONTO, April 30.—(Canadian Press). — Led by J. G. Elliott, of Kingston, a deputation of the Urban School Trustees' Association, waited on Premier Ferguson this morning and presented copies of resolutions passed by the Association at their last meeting. The deputation urged that the Government has enabling legislation to permit boards of education to reduce their numbers to seven, six or five members elected over the urban municipality as a whole.

A resolution recording disapproval of any act which would levy an extra burden of taxation on urban centres by reason of the establishment of metropolitan areas was also brought to the attention of the Premier. The deputation also expressed themselves as in favor of a moderate amount of home work on the ground that it developed initiative. Approval was also expressed of the possible establishment of junior university classes in high schools as it would place higher education within "the reach of the masses." A resolution approving of the cadet movement was also passed on to the Premier, as was one calling for an interprovincial exchange of teachers.

GATE QUESTION VEXES ALNWICK COUNCIL AGAIN

No Decision Has Been Reached on Removal of Gate.

OTHER BUSINESS

Poundkeepers Authorized to Charge Double the Present Fee for Strays.

Alwnick township council held their April meeting in the Town Hall, Roseneath, on Saturday, April 25, at 2 o'clock, with the reeve and all the councillors present.

A communication was read from The Globe Indemnity Liability Insurance Co., Montreal, which was received and filed, also one from the Amusement Tax Branch, Toronto, asking for information regarding the use of the hall for entertainments. The clerk was instructed to answer the enquiries.

Robert Greacon's resignation as pathmaster was accepted and Ross McCracken appointed in his place.

J. T. Drope interviewed the council, asking for assistance in building a wire fence along the road fronting his farm, and received the usual grant of 50 per cent. of the cost of the wire.

The assessors roll was accepted as returned.

Pound-Keepers Complain.

A complaint was voiced from the pound-keepers, stating that the remuneration was not enough. The act in force was passed by the township in February, 1877, and the prices then do not correspond very well with the prices of today. On resolution of Councillors Parker and Braithwaite, the set prices for the care and feeding of pound animals was doubled.

R. McCracken was present asking for help to repair the wharf at McCracken's Landing and also asking for the road leading to this landing to be gravelled. Reeve Mouncey and Councillors Parker and Brown were appointed a committee to look over this road and also any other roads in that district which needed attention.

A discussion over buying a new small grader took place and finally the clerk was instructed to write several companies for prices, a special meeting to be called as soon as theses are received.

The Gate Again.

The matter about the removal of the gate on the road leading to Mr. Shearer's farm which was laid over from the March meeting was again brought up for discussion. Councillor Parker thought that the council should ask Mr. Kelley to remove the gate. Reeve Mouncey said that by doing that they would be clearing hearer and if Mr. Kelly refused where would the council get off at.

Councillor Parker said in the agreement Mr. Kelly had agreed to take off the gate when requested to do so and he thought he ought to be given the chance. He said that they would be just doing what the ratepayers put them there to do, the township business.

Councillor Timlin asked why the 1924 council didn't take it off when requested.

Councillor Brown said "Let Kelly and Shearer fight it out themselves."

Reeve Mouncey asked what would happen if the council refused to order the gate off. Braithwaite wasn't sure what to do as the township solicitor, after having the matter placed in his hands, had not as yet replied and he would like to have legal advice before he took any action.

Councillor Parker said that he would back up the work of the 1924 council and he moved a resolution, that the clerk write Mr. Jas. Kelly asking him not to put the gate across the road. Mr. Parker could not get a seconder for his resolution. He then wanted the yeas and nays taken on it but this was objected to by Reeve Mouncey, on the ground that it was not a resolution until it had received a seconder. Mr. Parker said he wanted it put in the records so that 1926 council or any other would know where he stood in the matter. He finally succeeded in getting it placed in the minutes.

It was moved by Councillors Braithwaite and Timlin that the matter be laid over until May 9 for further advice.

The clerk was authorized to sign orders on the treasurer for the following accounts:

Cecil Radley, breaking roads $5.90; John Burrison, breaking roads, $3.90; Thomas Saadercock, breaking roads, $2.20; A. Braithwaite, committee work, $1.90; H. Mouncey committee work, $1.50; E. Timlin, committee work, $1.50.

MODERN VAL JEAN.

LONDON, Eng., April 30.—Jean Val Jean should have lived in London in 1925. When Russ Hilton was arrested for stealing a loaf of bread because he was near starvation, a kind-hearted constable released him and presented him with a large basket of groceries.

Color is highly important in both inside and outside painting. Painting to protect property gives the opportunity of creating beauty, which adds to value.

In all communities colors on adjoining places should be considered. A house between two brightly colored ones may adopt a neutral shade. Light colors become a home set well back among trees and shrubs.

Strong, warm colors with slight contrast between body, trim and roof tints make a house seem bigger, while darker or medium shades show to advantage on larger houses.

A painter or dealer can explain many ways to get fine effects and to bring out the best points in every home. Then again, paint manufacturers will gladly supply color information.

EUROPE LEARNS NOTHING FROM THE WORLD WAR

Question on Continent is When Will the Next War Begin.

NEAR BOILING POINT

Martial Drums Heard Above Voice of Peace-Seeking Statesmen.

By FREDERICK KUH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, April 30.— (United Press).—Europe is said to have learned nothing and forgotten everything about the world war.

The anvil on which war is forged has scarcely cooled, and the bellows are again being applied to the cracking embers.

While the statesmen of Europe, standing jauntily before the footlights, are tuning their harps to peaceful melodies, the muffled clanging of impatient armies is heard off-stage.

The question most frequently asked among the audience in this European arena is not, "Will there be another war?" but "When will it begin" and "Where will it break out?"

While the statesmen's Jazz Band plays Those Peacetime Blues, the insistent martial drums will intrude with their disconcerting rattle.

Without the United States, Germany and Russia, the League of Nations finds its pacific influence turned into an object of unreserved cynicism throughout wide circles on the continent. Even if Germany is admitted to the League, it remains to be seen whether the politicians of the Reich will be able to surmount the disbelief of the German millions in the League's efficacy.

As for Russia—I remember a recent conference of foreign correspondents at the Moscow foreign office. A German correspondent had just asked the high Soviet official, who was presiding, whether the Soviet Union would join the League. There was a moment of tense silence. The mouth of the Soviet spokesman turned upward into a slow smile.

Another correspondent suddenly laughed outright and in a moment the whole conference was enjoying the joke. What? Somebody taking the League seriously? Loud guffaws from the assembled multitude. The German newspaper man, who had put the question, grinned sheepishly. No, if you mention the League in Moscow, you must keep your tongue in the cheek—or take the consequences of ridicule.

Near Boiling Point.

Of course, there are other projects. We hear much nowadays of the outlawry of war and the Hague tribunal. But while these schemes remain what Senator Borah calls "Buildings without foundations"—buildings where enterprising lawyers may exercise their forensic skill—Europe, the real Europe, continues to be a cauldron of national and economic rivalries, simmering now, but with a growing tendency to boil over, turbulently.

Britain warily watches France's huge air fleet assure greater dimensions, while France sees her naval power relegated to an uncertain fourth place. In the Saar and Rhineland, restless populations are alternately having their nationalist passions inflamed by France and Germany.

In Central Europe, German chauvinism is recovering momentum. Austria, with four-fifths of her former industry delivered to Czechoslovakia, withers from economic impotence. Czechoslovakia, still nursing a grudge against Poland for the Teschen "plebiscite," is wondering when the Hungarian irridentists will strike out. And, meanwhile, the burly Slovaks cry "Autonomy!" and the German-Bohemian jingoes await the moment when Germany can support their demands against the Czechs. Hungary contemplates her despoiled empire and, giving vent to her humiliation ,echoes her old warwhoop, "no, no, never!"

To the Southeast in the Balkans, the familiar signs of unrest are not lacking. Belgrade, has resorted to dictatorship. Jugoslavia and Bulgaria watch one another cross their frontier, wondering which will heave the first brick. The Macedonians continue their policy of provoking first the Serbs and then the Bulgarians in the hope that some day, while the two are quarreling, Macedonia may run off with the coveted bone of independence.

Rumania with her swollen territories, keeps Transylvania "loyal" with troops and gendarmes and lives in perpetual dread of a Bessarabian uprising or Russian invasion. Turkey and Greece add to the joy of life in the Balkans by baring their teeth at one another and growling. Albania is being ogled by Jugoslavia and Italy, rivals for domination over the Adriatic.

Poland and Germany.

In Eastern Europe, Poland and Germany maintain a half-armed truce, each biding his hour. In the Baltic provinces, Lithunia seeks a new combination of powers against Poland, while others are trying to hammer the Baltic block into an anti-Soviet bulwark. Soviet Russia, convinced that her enemies are crouching for a spring, keeps her gunpowder dry.

From Hamburg to the Black Sea and from Moscow to the Adriatic, Europe affords a spectacle of nations which appear to be spoiling for a fight. Some have bitten off more than they can chew; others are in a backbiting mood.

Blindfold yourself and place a pencil point anywhere on the map of Europe and you are bound to strike some spot of strife. Through many months, these raw trouble-embers of Europe are dormant. A political assassination (like that at Sophia) may set the tongues of flame leaping. Rivalry for a coal deposit or an oil well may set off the bomb. Even some petty dispute may be enough to stir the latent animosities of nations into heated controversies.

AGED WIDOW SEEKS RELIEF FOR 1812 LOSS

Ancestor Turned His Flour Mill Into Fortress in 1812.

NEAR BATH, ONTARIO

Never Received Any Compensation for Destruction of Property.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 30. — (Canadian Press).—It is a far cry from 1812 and its battles belong to the category unhappy, far-off things. But there is a lady in Winnipeg who remembers, and she is asking the Dominion Government to remember, too.

At that time General Russell was the proprietor of a flour mill, grinding out its peaceful portions for the quiet country side of Bath, near Belleville, Ont. When the invasion of the enemy became imminent, the General turned his mill into a fortress, and there sheltered his neighbors and finally repelled the invading force. He had saved that part of Upper Canada, but the mill was ruined.

The Government spoke fair words in tribute of his service, but none of compensation for his losses. It is to secure this belated compensation that Mrs. Kellar, a widow for the past forty years, is now making representation to Parliament.

In her appeal to the Federal authorities, Mrs. Kellar has the support of many prominent men in Western Canada, including Sir Hugh John Macdonald and Rev. C. W. Gordon. In support of her petition, Dr. Gordon has sent the following letter to Ottawa:

"General Russell's granddaughter, while she was fit, earned her own living by hard work. Today friendless and alone, unable to work and too proud to beg, she appeals to the Government of Canada, which her gallant grandfather helped to defend, to give her a little aid in her declining years.

"In this she is moved by the feeling that since distinguished service of her grandfather in those early days received no recognition or pecuniary reward, possibly the succeeding generation to whom the payment of pension to the dependents of those rendering military service has become familiar, might have some claim on the Goverment and that those in charge of such matters might recognize it to be a privilege to care for her in her old age. In this feeling I heartily share."

Old Resident Dead.

Mrs. Wm. Ough, who was born on the Rodick farm, west of Cobourg, nearly 81 years ago, died in Toronto, and her remains were interred in Cobourg Union cemetery on Saturday. Her death removes a link between the present and earlier settlement days. Mr. Ough died twenty years ago. Seven sons and daugthers survive their mother.

Young Man Buried.

The remains of Clifford Peart Chesher, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Chesher, Port Hope, who was fatally injured, when he was thrown from his bicycle on Saturday evening, on the Provincial Highway, two miles west of Cobourg, were taken Monday afternoon to the home of his parents, from which place the funeral took place Tuesday.

Coroner Ferris called an inquest yesterday to inquire into the causes of death and after viewing the body adjournment was made until Wednesday evening. The young man, who was twenty-two years of age, was very popular and his untimely death is keenly mourned by a large circle of friends, while much sympathy is expressed with his parents and their family.

PETERBORO MALE VOICE CHOIR CHARMED LAKEFIELD AUDIENCE

Music Lovers of Neighbouring Town Deeply Appreciated Choral Programme.

FINE PERFORMANCE.

First Appearance of the Chenhall Choir Made a Deep Impression.

LAKEFIELD, April 30—On Tuesday evening Peterboro's Male Voice Choir made its initial appearance here in the auditorium of the Methodist Church, and was greeted by a large and appreciative audience, but, on realizing the excellence of the programme, one could not but regret that there was not a capacity house to enjoy the musical treat that the evening afforded.

The men composing this ambitious organization are possessed of fine voices, and are obviously also endowed with a love of music such as alone can give true expression to the harmony and concord of sweet sounds, and which finds a ready response in the hunger of the human soul for just such a feast as was given.

Mr. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., the gifted conductor, is to be congratulated on his achievement in reaching so high a standard with such a large aggregation of voices. The accompanists and the soloist, Miss LeBarr, left nothing to be desired, the latter perhaps at her best in her rendering of her part in the choir number, "The Last Chieftain," when glorious heights were reached.

Of the group songs, all so pleasing and so well interpreted, the best seemed to be "The Last Chieftain," "John Peel," "The Massacre of the MacPherson," a truly great number, and "The Lost Chord," the latter with Mr. Herbert Rush's fine baritone in solo, was so soul-satisfying that it seemed a sacrilege to applaud, and the effect on this audience was plainly manifest. "My Rose," with Mr. H. M. Niven's smooth, even, sympathetic voice in solo, with choir support in the chorus, was given with happy effect.

In the varied programme there were numbers accompanied by both piano and pipe organ, that produced a grandeur of sound impressive in the extreme. Lighter numbers, happily given, which released one from the tense strain of listening with such close intentness for a brief interval, while fully enjoying the gay lilt, were interspersed judiciously.

There were unaccompanied numbers, too, which proved the possibilities of the human voice without instrumental support, and to which the fullest justice was done. One of these latter, "Abide With Me," in the old hymn setting, given as an encore to the last number, was so finely rendered that it was like an act of reverent worship and hushed the audience into adoring silence.—the greatest compliment one can pay to a great performance. In reviewing the pleasure afforded by this soul-inspiring concert the ardent desire is for power to adequately describe it.

We understand that we are indebted to the enterprise of Rev. C. S. Reddick, Messrs. A. B. Burrows and K. S. Madill for bringing the Male Voice Choir to Lakefield, and we beg to say in compliment to Mr. Chenhall's charming arrangement of the "Gems of Ireland," "more power to their elbow" to get busy again.

After the concert, refreshments were served to the choir by the Ladies' Aid of the church, to whom the gallant visitors gave a hearty vote of thanks.

On the programme which is appended it will be noticed that the opening number was, fittingly, "O Canada," during the rendering of which the audience was caught napping and failed to rise to a standing position. We assure our visitors that Lakefield's patriotism is second to none, and we think their omission of homage in this instance was due to their absorbing anticipation of the musical treat they had come to enjoy and in which they were abundantly gratified. Come again, Mr. Chenhall, and your Male Voice Choir: a hearty welcome awaits you.

BIG CITIES LINKED BY TWIN RIBBONS OF STEEL

There are two outstanding factors in railroad service that seem to be chiefly responsible for influencing travel to a particular route. These factors are equipment and convenience of schedule.

Those whose business takes them frequently on trips between the leading cities of Central Canada and Central United States points are highly appreciative of the service rendered by Canadian National Railways, as regards both these important features.

The number who constantly travel Canadian National on their trips to Ottawa, Montreal, Buffalo, Detroit and Chicago, furnishes striking testimony as to the excellence of the service established on the great double-track route that connects these important cities.

Leaving at convenient times and arriving at hours that suit the business requirements of the average traveller, the Canadian National train that so efficiently link these business centres have all-steel equipment, consisting of compartment sleeping cars, standard sleepers, observation library cars, and modern day coaches—and in addition, splendidly appointed dining cars on which are served meals actually superior to those one expects in the average first-class hotel.

Becoming increasingly popular with the travelling public as the quick, comfortable and dependable route, the Canadian National is the logical choice of those whose business requirements call for the highest type of travel efficiency and whose standards of convenience and comfort are such as to be atisfied with nothing short of perfection in railroad service.

FALL CROPS AND MEADOWS GOOD

The Snowstorms Saved Them and Added to the Moisture.

WARSAW, April 30.—For all the pessimistic views of the winter crops being bare so long in the early spring, the little snows have evidently saved them. There is some splendid looking fall wheat and alsalfa. On the whole, the meadows look well. The moisture seemed to soak into the ground and there is not so much standing water in fields, as generally seen.

The last few warm days have started the leaves on the trees and shrubs, and the grass shows greener every day.

On Thursday evening a very interesting meeting of the township Sunday school executive was held in the Presbyterian church. The president, Thos. Patterson, was in the chair. Mrs. Forsythe gave a short, but very telling report of the meeting in Peteborough. She spoke of the use of the chart, and showed where some of the Sunday schools fell down. Several townships were below their amount of township rate. Dummer was very little.

The difficulties of securing teachers, especially those who had taken the teacher training course, was discussed.

The absolute need of temperance instruction, more than just ordinary temperancee lessons, was stressed, and a discussion on signing of pledges took place.

The annual convention for Dummer will be held in the Baptist church, near the end of May. The ministers, with the secretary, are a committee to prepare for the convention.

Mrs. H. D. Masson Donald, who spent the winter with relatives in Warsaw, returned to her home in Campbellford on Wednesday.

Mr. Pinkerton preached in the Baptist church. He will be here for the summer on and after the third Sunday in May.

Rev. F. G. Weir read for the lesson the last four verses of the eleventh chapter of Ecclesiastics and the twelfth chapter. He took as his text the one word, "Remember," and the subject was a continuation of the sermon preached recently on "Amusements." He ended a most helpful sermon with the warning not to neglect the religious and spiritual side of life.

There was no service in the Anglican church as Rev. Mr. Cox had to go to Niagara.

Miss Margaret Miller will entertain the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid on Thursday afternoon.

The Methodist church is coming to the end of their year, and all reports are wanted in by May 1. The annual Sunday school meeting will be held on on Friday evening.

BEST REFUSE.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association, the president, Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, in the chair. Routine business was transacted during the business session. Considerable discussion took place with regard to the new beer which will make its appearance on May 15. The majority of the ladies were of the opinion that the best grocers in the city would refuse to handle the new beverage, and decided therefore that no action need be taken in this regard unless later circumstances warrant it.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

LOSE WEIGHT.

One raw apple, 1 shredded wheat biscuit with skimmed milk and no sugar, 6 ounces boiled haddock, 1 cup stewed kale with lemon juice, 1 cup lamb stew with vegetables, 4 tablespoons sliced cucumber, 2 slices gluten bread, 2 tablespoons rhubarb pudding, 1 pint skimmed milk, 2 ounces lettuce.

Kale requires longer cooking than spinach, to make it tender, but it has a tang that is very acceptable in the springtime.

The ordinary "bed" of lettuce weighs about one and one-half or two ounces, so if you must use leaf lettuce cut in ribbons instead of hearts of head lettuce, you can figure your ounces accordingly. The average head of lettuce weighs around nine ounces.

Needless to remind you that the fish is served with parsley and lemon, no melted butters or egg sauces.

As an apple is supposed to contain 50 calories, you may eat one at bedtime if you are not very stout and are very hungry.

The lamb stew contains diced carrots, turnips and peas with a bit of onion for flavor. The broth should be unthickened for the reducing "tray."

GAIN WEIGHT.

One raw apple, 1 cup boiled rice with raisins, 6 ounces boiled haddock, with ½ cup egg sauce, 1 cup stewed kale with lemon and butter, 1 cup lamb stew with vegetables, 1 large baked potato, 4 tablespoons sliced cucumbers, 2 tablespoons French dressing, 2 ounces lettuce, 4 tablespoons rhubarb pudding with 2 tablespoons whipped cream, 4 tablespoons steamed graham pudding with 2 tablespoons hard sauce, 2 bran muffins, 2 slices rye bread, 2 Parker House rolls, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons maple syrup, 1 pint whole milk.

Some active, vigorous persons will consider this menu as no more than an ordinary day's fare. But if you are an inactive woman you will do well to think twice before you eat the rice with raisins for breatfast unless you want to gain in weight.

When the too thin girl plans her meals she should keep in mind the foods that will help her most. Rice, potatoes, cream, milk, nuts and egg, especially the yolks, will show the quickest results.

Plenty of vegetables and coarse breads are necessary.

CONDITIONS THAT CALL FOR A TONIC

Symptoms That the Blood is Thin Should Not be Neglected.

Weak, run-down, lacking strength, energy and ambition, nervous, sleepless, poor appetite, digestion disturbed—these are the symptoms named by a great majority of people who have been benfited by the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These tonic pills correct the condition described and if you have any of these symptoms you should give these pills a trial. Their great value in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. Melville Fortune, Preston, Ont., who says: "Some months ago I became very depressed and worried. My friends thought I was in a decline. I would often faint, was weak, pale, and hardly able to go about. I lost weight to the extent of 34 pounds in four months. I was taking treatment but did not get any benefit until I began using Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These made a wonderful change in my condition, and by the time I was on my fifth box I had regained 22 pounds of my lost weight. I feel altogether like a new woman, can do my housework with ease, and have reason to praise Dr. Williams Pink Pills for the great good I have found through their use. St. Alphonsus Lyceum is Scene of Very Pleasant Irish Evening.

COMPLETE PROGRAM.

The evening of Irish music and song presented by Mrs. Fred Hodgson and Miss Margaret McCabe at St. Alphonsus Lyceum, last evening, under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League, was very entertaining. The Irish atmosphere in the songs and instrumental selections, was very much enjoyed by the audience, who seemed to thoroughly appreciate the music of Old Erin.

Every number was heartily encored and each selection was given in an artistic manner that added immensely to the attractions of a programme that was enjoyable from start to finish. The Irish songs were particularly appreciated, in vocal solos, duets and quartettes, and the instrumental selections, in solos and string trio numbers, were applauded enthusiastically. An Irish folk dance, by little Grace White brought down the house.

The programme was as follows: — Vocal number, "Oft in the Stilly Night," and "Young May Moon," by Messrs. J. Minicolo, A. Everitt, J. Fitzpatrick and Leonard; violin solo, "Let Erin Remember," by Mrs. M. B. Hoyland; vocal duet, "Flow On," by Mrs. J. Dwyer and Miss Geraldine Collins; vocal solo, "Irish Love Song" by Mrs. A. A. Perrin; Irish Folk Dance by little Grace White; vocal solo "The Minstrel Boy," by A. Everitt; vocal quartette "The Last Rose of Summer," and a medley of Popular Airs, by Messrs. Minicolo, Everit, Leonard and Fitzpatrick; vocal solo, "Irish Lullaby," by Mrs. A. A. Perrin; string trio, "Down Kentucky Way" and "Juanita," by Mrs. C. Hodgson, and Messrs. Clark, and J. Loescher, with Miss Margaret McCabe at the piano. The programme concluded with a vocal ensemble, "Believe Me, if all those Endearing Young Charms," assisted by Mrs. Nagle Phelan.

Mr. V. J. McElderry acted as chairman. There was a good attendance, with a well filled hall. Mrs. C. Hodgson and Miss Margaret McCabe acted as accompanists.

LENIN NAMED TROTZKY.

But His Dying Statement Was Suppressed to Depopularize Trotzky.

LONDON, April 30. — Leon Trotzky was driven out of power in Russia, although Nicolai Lenin, before he died expressly designated Trotsky as his successor, says Max Eastman, former editor of the Liberator of New York in a book just issued in London entitled "Since Lenin Died."

The triumvirate, Stalin, Zinoviev and Kamenev, suppressed Lenin's dying statement to this effect, says Eastman, and Lenin on his deathbed, wanted but was unable to block them as they carried on a "month-long campaign of unscrupulous falsifications," by means of "official lies" and "unrestricted vituperation against Trotzky."

They did it, says Eastman, "to depopularize Trotzky," to use their own words.

Immigration Officials Say John Kerr Was Smuggling Aliens.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., April 30—(Canadian Press).—John Kerr, 25 years old, of St. David's, Ont., is in the General Hospital, Niagara Falls, Ont., with a bullet through his right lung. His condition is serious. In a statement to the Canadian police and his physician, Kerr said he was shot by State troopers on this side of the river last night.

Immigration officials here say that an attempt was made last night to land several aliens on the river shore at Lewiston, seven miles north of this city. The immigration men were lying in wait for the boat, and pounced from their hiding place after Frank Santo Ro, 36 years old, an alien, had been landed. He was captured by the immigration men. The boat pulled out from the shore and the officers fired several shots after it. They saw a man at the oars lurch as if shot, but the boat made a landing on the Canadian side. Inspector Airey, of the Canadian Provincial Police, was notified by the American immigration men. He started an investigation and found Kerr wounded at the Gadsby Home at Queenston, opposite Lewiston. Members of the family said they heard someone moaning on the verandah and discovered Kerr there wounded. The inspector sent Kerr to the hospital.

YOUR GARDEN

TRIMMING AND REPAIRING GRASS EDGES

At this season of the year the grass edges about the flower, shrub and other borders should be put in shape for the season.

The actual operation may be accomplished with a hand-edging tool (half moon) or a machine with cultivator handles, having a revolving disc for cutting, and a plow point. In the hands of a skillful gardener the former tool will do better work but when there are long stretches to do and especially curves, the latter, with practice, may be made to do efficient work. It is, of course, much speedier, and where time is a factor is worth trying.

The edge itself should be absolutely perpendicular so that it may be raked or weeded right to the cut surface without breaking it down. In this regard it is a little difficult to adjust the disc edging to cut sufficiently perpendicularly. At least half an inch will have to be taken off in the slice in order to get the tool to "bite." This constant trimming will eventually result in enlarging the road or path to too great a width, and every now and then the strip along the edge must be renewed with fresh sod. Also the verge (strip of grass between a bed and road or path) will thus wear down until it is too narrow (two feet is none too wide for a verge, as there should be room for the full width of the mower) and inadequate.

In doing this repairing a careful base line on one side of the road should be established, and the both sides made to conform to the exact width. Sod of the right thickness should be carefully placed on well prepared and enriched ground and thoroughly tramped down level. This may be placed to form the new edge, and when full established carefully trimmed. Possibly a better method, and one which gives a better edge more rapidly, though entailing more work is to cut the entire length about six inches in from the edge, and push this strip of sod, without breaking it to the new line, and insert sods behind it.

Badly worn patches along the roads and paths may be patched in either way, and should be done frequently to keep the grounds shipshape.

TO make mirrors crystal-clear, there is nothing to equal Bon Ami. It is made in both cake and powder forms.

Put it on in a thin soapy lather. It will dry in a minute to a soft, light film, absorbing all the dust, smears and finger-marks as it dries.

Then wipe it off with a soft, dry cloth and the high polish of the mirror will be left clear and shining, without a trace of fog or a speck of lint.

So it is with dozens of other things about the house. And Bon Ami never reddens or roughens the hands!

HUDDERSFIELD ARE LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

Played One Goal Draw With Notts County Yesterday.

LONDON, April 30 (Canadian Press Cable) — Huddersfield Town clinched the championship of the English football league yesterday when at Nottingham they played to a one-goal draw with Notts County. Thus, for the second year in succession, the Yorkshiremen are stamped champions of English soccer.

While they have still one game to do, paying Liverpool at Huddersfield on Saturday next, they have established such a definite lead that it will be impossibe for West Bromwich to overtake them. West Bromwich, who are runnersup at present, may find themselves ousted from this position by Bolton Wanderers, whom they play at West Bromwich. But in any case, even if the Albion should win, they can not hope to end the season in any better place than second to the Yorkshiremen, since the latter's goal average could not be turned in a single game, as their various ratios stands.

West Bromwich would have to register 27 goals to equal the average of Huddersfield Town. This is utterly out of the question.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Frequent mention is made in these articles of the slow start in the back swing and of the necessity for relaxation during the address for the reason that my experience with thousands of players has revealed that here are the two great fundamentals of the game. The golf swing is very easy of accomplishment and the player who learns to relax himself and start slowly and easy, has it. All good players have these two characteristics in common. The par shooter may appear to start quickly away from the ball in his back swing, but he doesn't. Only the trained eye can observe that this initial movement away from the ball is always slow. He speeds up quickly after that, but ask him, and he will tell you to start slowly.

RUTH IMPROVED.

Heavy Hitter of Yankees Will Not Return For Several Weeks.

NEW YORK, April 30.—(Canadian Press).—Considerable improvement is reported in the condition of Babe Ruth, heavy hitter of the New York Yankees. He will not be able to return to the game for several weeks, however.

BOXING TITLES.

Fourteen Decided at Winnipeg in Five Hours of Milling.

WINNIPEG, April 30. — Fourteen Canadian boxing and wrestling titles were decided at the Dominion championships which concluded at the Board of Trade building this morning. Close to 3000 fans sat through the five hours of milling, there being 18 bouts in all.

Of the 15 titles six went out of the province; 7 were won by Winnipeggers and two championships were won by Manitobans outside of the city. The light heavyweight crown went to Charlie Belanger of Winnipeg by default.

HE HAS QUEER JOB.

PARIS, April 30.—One of the queerest jobs is that of the official French cloud painte, who works on a high housetop near the Eiffel tower.

DON'T THROW THIS.

COPENHAGEN, April 30.—A Danish firm claims to have produced a porcelain of such durability that domestic articles manufactured from it are practically unbreakable.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE VILLIAMS

The Yale and Harvard crews will row up stream this year instead of down stream. . . . And yet some people say college boys have an easy life.

Big Munn is still a young man and the chances are he will be able to live down the disgrace that he once held the heavyweight wrestling title.

A law prohibiting prize fighting has stopped the bout between Firpo and Persson in Stockholm . . . This can be interpreted only as a compliment to Firpo, who was never accused of being a prizefighter in this country.

As usual, the Athletics got away to a running start this season. . . . Only in the present instance, they seem to be running in the right direction.

IF IT IS TRUE THAT MR. NURMI IS HIGHLY INTELLECTUAL THEN WHY IS IT THAT HE IS ALWAYS RUNNING AROUND IN CIRCLES?

Babe Ruth was operated on the other day and American League pitchers are wondering if the surgeon took any home runs out of him.

Jack Curley says Big Munn was an "awful mistake." . . . If he means a typographical mistake, then the spelling, we presume, ought to be Big Bum.

Dr. Tanner, a Derby candidate, is listed as a $1,000-to-$1 shot. . . . One ventures the doctor will have to be shot with some magical juice to get any where.

PESSIMISTIC NOTE: WHAT IF THE NEW TOUPEE YOU PLAN TO GET SHOULD DEVELOP DANDRUFF?

Tail note: The Red Sox and Braves.

Billy Evans Says

UNIQUE RECORD.

Pitcher "Lefty" Groves, for whom Connie Mack is reported to have parted with a hundred thousand simoleons, has already shown flashes of greatness despite his inability to finish either of his first two starts.

In his second game of the season, pitted against the Boston Red Sox, he pitched three and one-third innings of erratic yet brilliant baseball.

Six of the 10 batters who were retired while he was on the rubber, struck out. In between the whiffings, Groves walked five men and allowed as many hits.

* * *

Jack Dunn, who developed Groves, says he is the best left-handed pitcher in baseball and that he will win 20 games for Mack.

* * *

SERIOUS FAULT.

One feature of major league ball that is certain to trouble Groves for a time, is the wait 'em out tactics the players will adopt when batting against him.

Groves came to the majors with the reputation of being wild, also having a tendency to have one bad inning, in which lack of control would undo a perfectly pitched game up to that time.

Groves will probably find himself in the hole more times than he has the edge on the batter, because of the keen eye possessed by most major leaguers and their refusal to bite at bad balls.

Until Groves acquires control that will enable him to get the edge on the batter, he is going to be forced to do a lot of pitching.

* * *

His case is no different from that which confronts all recruit pitchers who have a reputation of being wild. He should overcome it.

* * *

SOX FOR COLLINS.

Regardless of where the Chicago White Sox finish in the American League race it is already apparent that the team is going to hustle, a pleasing feature of baseball.

Having the good-will of his players means that 50 per cent. of a manager's troubles are immediately eliminated.

The Chicago White Sox are for Eddie Collins to a man. His brilliant career as a player inspires them and the regard they have for him as a man makes every player give his best from start to finish.

There seems to be a greater dash to Collins' play today than ever before in his long career. He is showing the spirit he wants his players to emulate.

* * *

That's the proper system, a manager should do everything he expects from his players and do it to the best of his ability at all times.

* * *

GREAT HORNSBY.

Rogers Hornsby, premier batsman of the National League, has made a good start toward winning the batting crown for the sixth successive time.

Only the other day John McGraw paid Hornsby a glowing compliment by calling him the greatest right-handed batsman of all time.

Hornsby is a natural hitter. National League catchers tell me that a ball that cuts the heart of the plate is the most effective style to use against Hornsby. At the same time they admit he often murders it.

It is a baseball truth that practically all of the great batters, right or left-handed, prefer a ball just outside or inside to one right over the plate.

They explain it by saying they can get more power into their drive when hitting at such pitches.

* * *

I liken the great Larry Lajoie to Rogers Hornsby as to style and I well recall that a fast ball through the heart of the plate was least liked by Larry.

VILLANOVA CHECKS HOLY CROSS' STRING

Holy Cross' sensational string of 23 consecutive baseball victories was broken the other day by Villanova. The latter's 9 to 4 victory came as a big surprise, as the H. C. team had been figured to add to its long list by whipping the Main Liners.

POND ONE OF YALE'S GREATEST ATHLETES

Yale has a great athlete in "Ducky" Pond, sensational football star and baseball pitcher. He's captain of the Bulldog diamond team for this season and is expected to be one of the university's leading hurlers.

BRITISH FIRMS HAD PROSPEROUS BUSINESS YEAR

Some Industries Did Good Business Despite Heavy Taxation.

AVERAGE PROFITS

Motor Industry, Retail Trading and Rubber Business Were Successful.

It is generally thought that the year 1924 was one of little production and unsatisfactory profits in Great Britain, but a study just completed by one of the staff of the London Times, and just received by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service, shows that certain of the textile industries, especially artificial silk, the cycle and motor-cycle industry and the two most heavily taxed of all trades, brewing and tobacco, had a very prosperous year. The cotton textile industries, shipping, so far at least, as the liner companies are concerned, which have a fairly regular trade and are proverbial for conservation in finance, the oil and petroleum and boot and shoe companies had a fairly prosperous year. The motor industry, general retail trading, and rubber plantation companies earned "average" profits, while the coal, iron and steel, engineering and railway transport lines, all had a less profitable year in 1924 than in 1923, and, therefore, are rated as having passed through a period of serious depression. These facts are brought out by consideration of the ratio of profits to capital. For instance, in the cycle industry the profits amounted to 16.9% in 1924 as against 15.9% in 1923 and 13.4% in 1922. In the motor industry, profits amounted to 6.6% in the year under review as against only 4.7% in 1923 and 1.3% in 1922; and a heavy deficit in 1921. On the other hand, the engineering trades earned only 4.7% on capital in 1924 as against 4.8% in 1923 and 6.1% in 1922; and the coal, iron and steel industries earned only 5.2% as against 6.2% and 3.1% in the two previous years. In the textile industries, cotton manufacturers earned 10.7% on their capital, as against 10.1% in 1923 and 10.8% in 1922 and only 2.8% in 1921. Other manufacturers of textiles earned on an average of 15.2% on capital in 1924, as against 15.8%, 15.7% and 7.4% in the three years respectively. The railways earned 4% on their capital as against 4¼% in each of the two previous years, and 3.9% in 1921. Shipping earned 12.8% in 1924, 12.1% in 1923, 11.9% in 1922. The boot and shoe industry earned 12.3% in 1924 as against 10.2%, 9.1%, and only 0.2% in 1921, while general retail stores earned 9% in 1924 as against 7.3% in 1923, 5.4% in 1922, and 4.6% in 1921.

In 1920, in which year the post-armistice boom culminated, profits were much larger than they have been in any subsequent year. Then came the reaction of 1921, when there was a steep fall in both profits and production. But according to our authority, profits were still higher than the volume of production warranted, owing to th large refunds of excess profits buty received by most companies. The government, in fact, played the role of an involuntary custodian of a compulsory reserve for contingencies, and such repayments did much to help industry over a very difficult period with a minimum of casualties. By 1923 and 1924 industry was standing financially on its own feet once again, and though the rate of advance has recently slowed down considerably, production and profits are now moving forward side by side. The conclusion is that there should be no further unpleasant surprises in store for stockholders. All the evidence goes to show that no constant or striking movement, either up or down, is to be expected and that profits may now be said to stand at something like their mean post-war level.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

The long-waited Curwood story is scheduled for its Canadian premier at the Royal to-night. "Baree, Son of Kazan," is considered the best effort of James Oliver Curwood, and the facts that it has a Canadian North-West locale and that hundreds of Peterboro citizens have read it when it ran in The Examiner should warrant crowded houses at the Royal during its stay.

Anita Stewart shares honors with 'Wolf,' the German police dog, captured by French troops and brought to the U. S. 'Wolf' is said to be the cleverest dog on the screen, taking orders in three languages, English, French and German. "Baree" commences its three-day run to-night at the Royal.

AMATEUR NIGHT TO-NIGHT AT ROYAL.

To-night Peterboro's local talent again assemble at the Royal, and the list is a large one, including

Dorothy Collett,
Ilene Bowler,
George and Harold Coleman,
Annie Fletcher,
Dorothy Cooney,
And a three-round boxing exhibition between "Irish" Jordan and "Red" Thompson.

AT THE CAPITOL

'THE GREAT DIVIDE' EXTERIORS FILMED IN PAINTED DESERT

Arizona Wasteland Used as Background for Metro-Goldwyn Picture

A FASCINATING SETTING

Shimmering Distances All Said to Be Caught by the Camera's Eye

The Painted Desert of Arizona, one of the wonder spots of the world, and particularly of the Southwest, which is barely known despite its beauty and fascination, forms the setting for some of the most important action of "The Great Divide," the Metro-Goldwyn picture which is being shown at the Capitol Theatre today.

"The Painted Desert with all its wonder and mystery, and lure of color and light and remoteness, with the tang of high, cool, lavender blooming mesas set like islands of rock in shifting seas of gaudy colored sand with the romance and the adventure and the movement of the most picturesque horsemen in America." So this unique land is described by Agnes C. Laut.

Land of the Navajos

"Go up to the top of one of these red sand knobs—you see these Navajo riders everywhere, coming out of their houses among the juniper groves crossing the yellow plain, scouring down the dry arroyo beds, infinitesimal specks of color moving at swift pace across these seas of sand. Or else you see where at night and morning the water comes through the arroyo bed in pools of silver, receding only during the heat of the day; out from the ochre rocks that screen the desert like the wings of a theatre."

Beauty All in Film

Percy Hilburn, chief cameraman for "The Great Divide," found such inspiration in the Painted Desert that he captured all the beauty and allure of it on the film.

Conway Tearle, Alice Terry, Wallace Beery, George Cooper, ZaSu Pitts, Huntly Gordon, Allan Forrest and Ford Sterling are in the cast.

AT THE REGENT

WHAT A FAMOUS AUTHOR SAYS ABOUT MAKING LOVE AND SACRIFICE.

The Inside Story Regarding the Early Struggles in This Country That Have Never Been Revealed Before By Robert W. Chambers.

In the making of any work of art one faces it squarely and tries to avoid squinting at it from eccentric angles or peeping furtively at it upside down.

To take Love and Sacrifice as a subject and do anything with in fourteen reels or in fourteen hundred reels, is impossible, because the pre-historic and historic eras stretch across too many aeons.

Nor is it possible to say very much about a single phase of our history in the space of time allotted for an evening's entertainment.

What Mr. Griffith and I have attempted to do is to show something of the devotion and self-sacrifice of those who established our Republic.

We believe that in the present era of unrest we Americans ought to remember what it cost to win our freedom and establish this Government.

We believe that our liberty, won through years of untold suffering and self-sacrifice, is worth preserving, with guarding from secret and insidious attacks at home, worth defending against treachery and overt aggression from without our gates.

"Lest we forget" is the keynote of our picture. "Be it remembered" its summing up.

CANOE TRIPS.

Canadian National Railways Publishes New Booklet for Paddle Excursions.

A booklet which will be welcomed by every canoeist has been issued by the Fish and Game Department of the Canadian National Railways. It is titled "Canoe Trips and Nature Photography" and in a matter of forty pages offers suggestions for 22 canoe trips. There is a map showing the route of every trip and there is at least one trip for every province except Prince Edward Island.

The booklet is something decidedly new in railway publications, and it has been designed to serve a long felt want. In the past it has been a difficult matter for canoeists to secure accurate information and maps on trips they would like to take and for that reason many have had to abandon their plans or confine their operations to territory with which they were familiar. The Canoe Trip booklet of the Canadian National Railways overcomes this difficulty. The booklet outlines various trips and gives information as to outfitters, game and fish, etc. But this is only part of the service. When the canoeist has found a trip which attracts him, all he has to do is to send the number of the trip to the General Tourist department of the Canadian National Railways and he will be provided with the fullest particulars as to portages, camping sites, fishing spots, etc., and also with a large blue print map which can be used as a chart during his journey.

Here's a Hearty Welcome Back To Peterboro Again

Old friends of readers of The Examiner are returning to the City tomorow, and will be "At Home" from about four o'clock on.

They are Jiggs and his wife, Maggie who have been on an extended vacation from the want-ad page. Just a year ago today they left, and tomorrow they return.

"Bringing Up Father" is called the most popular modern "comic" series. It depicts the doings of an Irishman who came to America as a laboring man, became wealthy, and, while he himself remains simple and true to his former allegiances of friendship and habits and tastes, finds himself under domination of a wife who is eager to shine in higher society.

During their absence, the place of Jiggs and Maggie has been ably filled by Andy Gump and his worried wife, whose domestic experiences are just the opposite of Jiggs and Maggie.

Say good-bye to Andy tonight wish him luck in his reducing exercises and get ready to welcome back your old friends tomorrow. The first day finds the family in an interesting position.

United States banking interests will participate to the extent of fifty per cent. in the investmen.

SHOCK WIPES OUT STATIC.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, April 29.—After an earthquake shock, which occurred in Switzerland, people who were listening to a sermon being broadcast from the Lausanne station were able to hear with much greater distinctness.

WHAT IS FEAR?

This little girl holds a seven-foot snake without any show of fear. She is Baby Palmer, daughter of a well-known London naturalist. She has often seen him handle a snake in the same way.

It is generaly held that fear of reptiles is intuitive. It is more likely that such fear is traditional, children being taught by parents through generations that all snakes are dangerous.

Thus it is with the fears that all of us have. If we would approach them bravely, anayze them and know them for what they are we would be much more contented in life. We fear what we do not understand.

FIRE TRUCK IN BAD COLLISION

Driver Hurled Twenty Feet When Touring Car Got in Way.

NO ONE BLAMED.

Last night at seven o'clock, on or about, an alarm was rung in from Water St. near Edinburgh. The fire truck driven by Engineer R. Brotherson collided, on the corner of George and Dublin with a touring car driven by Archie Gates. Kenneth Gates small son of Archie Gates was slightly injured.

Chief Gimblett says that the two cars were travelling at the approximate rate of 20 m.p.h. and that the fire truck had crossed onethird of the distance across the intersection while the touring car, coming from north had crossed fully twot-hirds of the distance when the collision occurred.

The touring car was struck on the rear and was turned completely around facing north on George St. again. The fire truck fared more seriously, the chassis being bent and distorted in several places, the engine thrown out of alignment, and the front wheels as well as the steering wheel being broken.

Driver Engineer R. Brotherson and fireman H. Cooney who was with him, were both hurled a distance of nearly twenty feet and fell, uninjured but shaken, on a nearby lawn.

Chief Gimblett says that Brotherson is one of the best drivers in the department and refutes the rumors which hinted that the siren was not blowing at the time.

Kenneth, the young boy who was injured, received a few minor cuts and abrasions about the heads but it was reported this morning that his condition was not serious.

Chief Gimblett says that the accident was largely of an unavoidable nature and that no blame should be attached to anyone.

CANADA'S DEBT INCREASED BY $262,000,000 IN LAST THREE YEARS, HON. MEIGHEN ASSERTS - KING LAYS BLAME FOR C. N.R. PURCHASE ON CONSERVATIVES

Leader of Official Opposition Declares Surplus of $35,000,000 Claimed by the Government This Year Should Really be a Deficit of $36,500,000.

BUDGET DEBATE DRAWS TO CLOSE

Meighen Calls on Progressives to Vote for the Drayton Amendment for Reduction of Taxes — Premier Says Public Accounts Hand led as in Former Years.

OTTAWA, May 1. — G. A. Brethen (Prog., Peterboro East) resuming his speech on the budget debate at the opening of the House Thursday afternoon, said that the happy conditions which were attributed to the United States to-day, were largely due to the late entry of that country into the war, the war time building boom, reductions in taxation and the very reverse system of financing to that used in Canada.

Mr. Brethen suggested the cutting down of the civil service inside and outside, and the introduction of the eight-hour day principle. He thought that ten million dollars annually could be saved. The departments of Solicitor-General and Minister of Justice might be co-ordinated under one minister, and also the Department of Secretary of State; and Trade and Commerce or National Defence.

"I am heartily in favor of the suggestion that the membership of this House should be materially reduced," he stated. He also advocated a "reasonable reduction of the indemnity," and suggested a "graduated system of payment of the indemnity through some kind of a zone system."

Meighen on Rostrum.

At the outset of his speech, the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the official Opposition, said that he did not propose to deal with the broad question of fiscal policy but would confine himself to a review of the financial conditions in Canada. He wished to save time in this debate which he thought had gone on too long.

He had intended to answer some of the charges made against the late Conservative government by E. E. Archambault of Chambly-Vercheres, during his debate, but in reading through the records he had been struck with the fact that all these charges had been answered over and over. It had been proved that the Ross rifle and other war time equipment which Mr. Archambault criticized was used not a day longer than was necessary, but was replaced as soon as other equipment was available. In view of all the facts, he wondered how Mr. Archambault could "drag up these misty details" in view of the present condition of affairs in the Dominion.

"I don't think I can recall any two speakers who have given the same deductions from the budget presentation," said Mr. Meighen. Mr. Marler had claimed that the Budget was "clear," yet members could not tell what it meant and none had erred more frequently in the presentation of facts than Mr. Marler himself. It failed in the main presentation of Budget presentation. In Mr. Fielding's budget, there had never been complaints of want of clarity. Obscurity in the present budget was in the method of bookkeeping, but because the government, in presenting results of this bookkeeping, endeavored to conceal the facts.

The Robb Methods.

The first year Mr. Robb presented a budget the result of both accounts was given to the public as a whole. To secure a surplus last year, the acting minister included everything except the guarantee he made to the National Railways of $72,500,000, which in reality meant that there was a deficit of $36,500,000, instead of a surplus of $33,000,000 as he had claimed.

Mr. Meighen asked anyone to suggest that the claimed surplus of this year was arrived at by the same methods as were used in 1924. If the same methods had been used Mr. Robb would have had to show a greater deficit than last year for he had put to one side not only the guarantee, but also the cash loan; the difference in the handling of the budget presentation was just in order to get a surplus headline in the newspapers.

The acting minister had put aside a $600,000 advance to the Quebec Harbor Commission, and $900,000 to the Canadian government Merchant Marine, and by the time he put these aside he produced a surplus of $1,800,000.

Mr. Marler interrupted and commenced to make a statement regarding previous budgets.

There were cries of "Order!" Mr. Marler asked if he could proceed with a question?

"Yes, if it is a question," said Mr. Meighen.

Mr. Marler then said: "If the Hon. Member will let me make a statement——" Further words were lost in cries of "Order," and Mr. Marler took his seat. Mr. Meighen proceeded to say that there was no separation of joint accounts.

"What is that?" asked someone on the government benches.

"That means adding up," said W. B. Ryckman, (Cons., Toronto East.)

Country Worse Off.

Mr. Meighen challenged anyone to discover from the budget statement the actual difference in expenditure between the last two fiscal years. Actually, expenditure was three million dollars less than the preceding year. Thus with a revenue of $53,000,000 less the country was $49,000,000 worse off than a year ago.

Referring further to the directorate of the National Railways, Mr. Meighen remarked that "this road's operations are twice the size of the Titanic United States Steel Corporation." He wondered if that corporation were controlled by directors of the type of some of those placed on the C.N.R. Board by the Government.

In the first account the debt of the country had increased approximately $64,000,000 since December 31, 1921. The debt of our railways, due the public alone, had increased over $176,000,000, which made an approximate total of $241,000,000, for the two accounts. If the amount of $4,000,000 arrears of interest due Canada by Greece and Roumania, and included in the last budget as an active asset, and two further sums of $8,000,000 each covering an exchange adjustment due us by the British government, were taken into consideration the total increase in the debt of Canada since the Liberals came into office for these items only was approximately $262,000,000. This, he pointed out, did not include a further indebtedness of $18,000,000 for our railways since the end of last year.

A Colossal Increase.

The increase in debt of the Canadian National Railway, he stated, was colossal.

During Mr. Meighen's analysis of the public debt, Herbert Marler, of St. Lawrence, St. George, interrupted, to say, that the addition to the public debt in the last three years on all counts, was only $111,000,000 and not $262,000,000, as claimed by Mr. Meighen.

The leader of the opposition recommended Mr. Marler to go into the subject again, to use a little more investigation, "and to have less determination to get back into the good graces of the government."

Mr. Meighen deplored the increase in the expenditure of the Colonization Department of the Canadian National Railways. This department, he said, duplicated the efforts of the Immigration Department. With all the increase in expenditure, thirty-seven thousand less immigrants were secured for Canada last year than in the year before. As for the immigration policy of the government, Mr. Meighen said that by actual count, this government had announced nine dif-

LIBERALS ARE JUBILANT WHEN BUDGET PASSED

Twenty-four Days of Debate Preceded Government Triumph.

BIG MAJORITY.

Conservative Amendment Was Defeated By Liberals and Progressives.

OTTAWA, May 1. — (Canadian Press).—After twenty-four days of debate, the House this morning adopted the budget by a majority of 37.

The unexpected large majority aroused wild enthusiasm among the Liberal members. Their forecasts had been between 20 and 25. When the result was announced, they banged their desks in applause and flung sheaves of paper into the air. Seventeen Progressives and Independents voted with the Government. Included in their number was J. Fred. Johnston, Chief Progressive Whip; Robert Forke, Progressive leader, with the remaining Progressives, voted with the Conservatives against the Government on the main motion.

The vote on the main motion was preceded by a division on the Conservative amendment proposed by Sir Henry Drayton, and calling for a reduction of taxation. This amendment was defeated by a majority of 116. Liberals and Progressives voted against and Conservatives in favor. William Irvine, Labor member for East Calgary, voted with the Conservatives, otherwise it was a straight party vote.

Some Wrangles.

The last day's debate on the budget has lasted sixteen hours. Following the speeches of the Liberals and Conservatives, it passed mainly into the hands of the 'Ginger group' of Progressives.

There were wrangles over the responsibility for the long drawn out debate. W. A. Boys, Chief Conservice Whip, charged that Premier King himself had filled 79 columns of Hansard during the session, which, said Mr. Boys, was one-third of the total of all Conservatives.

As the long night passed the dreary dawn filtered through the windows on a curious scene. There was but a scattering of members in the House. Hon. Ernest Lapointe trying hard to keep awake, was the only Minister there. Hon. Dr Tolmie, fast asleep, was the sole occupant of the front Opposition benches.

The "Ginger group," bunched in the far end of the Chamber, with rows and rows of empty benches intervening, carried on the debate alone. A few women sat in the public galleries throughout the night.

Several members arrived about six o'clock, and soon after Speaker Lemieux had resumed the chair, a heated argument arose following the protest that W. C. Good of Brant was reading his speech. W. J. Ward, Progressive, Dauphin, was the last speaker.

The House then divided on the main motion, and the longest budget debate in thirty years, if not in the history of the Canadian Parliament, came to an end.

ROYAL WELCOME BY CAPE TOWN TO THE PRINCE

DENSE CROWDS.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, May 1.—The Prince of Wales was accorded a tremendous ovation when he arrived here Thursday on the battle cruiser Repulse. From the time the cruiser poked her nose through the fog banks early yesterday morning and made her way, accompanied by a naval escort to the landing stage, until a late hour last night the royal visitor was the centre of enthusiastic demonstrations.

The Earl of Athlone, the Governor-General, and his wife, Princess Alice, greeted the Prince on board the cruiser, and when he landed he was welcomed to Cape Town by Premier Hertzog and the members of his cabinet and other high personages.

As the Prince put his foot on shore the sun broke through the clouds. A procession was formed and the visitor was escorted through the gaily decorated streets to the Plaza in front of the city hall, where the official civic welcome was extended. Thousands upon thousands of persons thronged the route of the procession, and windows and balconies were crowded. Tremendous outbursts of cheering came from all points along the route as the Prince passed by. In the enthusiastic crowds were hordes of the cosmopolitan colored population.

Polygot Welcome.

The Prince received loyal addresses from Indian, Chinese, Mayal and other Moslem bodies and from the Cape colored communities. He reviewed the colored Church Boys' Brigade, and also witnessed a parade of white and colored ex-service men and nurses and scouts.

In his address of welcome the Mayor of the city assured the heir to the British throne that he would meet with nothing but loyalty during his visit. The Prince made a happy reply, in which he expressed deep satisfaction over the cordiality of the welcome accorded him.

After the civic welcome, the Prince went to the reviewing stand in Government Avenue, where he was greeted by Cape Town's school children, who sank lustily for him "God, Save the Prince of Wales."

Civic Luncheon.

At noon the mayor and city council entertained the royal visitor at a luncheon in the city hall. After a toast to the King had been drunk, the mayor toasted the Prince, as the most popular guest South Africa ever had. The Prince replied briefly and the entire assemblage, which was an extremely representative one, stood and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Throughout the afternoon the thoroughfares of the city were crowded, and as evening advanced the throngs grew and surged in such numbers that all vehicular traffic had to be stopped.

Last night Cape Town saw the biggest scheme of electrical illumination, in honor of the Prince, since the celebration of the foundation of the Union of South Africa in 1910. A particularly fine display was at the pier head, while out in the bay the Repulse and four ships of the Africa naval station lay at anchor dazzlingly lighted from stem to stern.

INGERSOLL POLICE RECEIVE THREATS

Motorists Tell Them They Will Lose Jobs For Imposing Law.

INGERSOLL, Ont., May 1.—(Canadian Press).—The police here have been receiving various threats in connection with the fulfillment of their duties. On different occasions lately, while admonishing motorists who were creating a breach of the Motor Vehicles Act or local by-laws, they were told that if they pressed this case or that case, they would lose their jobs. "I'll report you" was another favorite expression used by the motorists.

Arthur McNally appeared before Magistrate Paterson yesterday as a result of using such an alleged threat to Constable Gilling, who spoke to him and stopped him for driving over an intersection too fast. Magistrate Paterson did not fine McNally, but made it plain that they were going to put a stop to these threats. He contended that the police were trying to do their duty and it was not for everyone to talk back and tell them what must be done.

FRAUD ALLEGED BY GOVERNMENT; CLAIM $160,628

Canadian Coal Sales Company Said to Have Been Overpaid on Contracts.

SUIT BY CROWN.

Invoices Said to Have Been Presented For Full Amount of Contract.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 1.—(Canadian Press).—A writ was issued late yesterday afternoon in the Court of King's Bench by the Solicitor-General of Canada on behalf of His Majesty the King, against the Canadian Coal Sales Company, Limited, claiming payment of $160,628, alleged to have been over-paid by the Governrment on contracts by the defendant company for the supply of coal of specific name to the Tuxedo Military Barracks since 1920.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, is named as prosecutor of the action on behalf of His Majesty.

The statement of claim sets forth that by document in writing, dated June 10, 1920, the defendant offered to deliver to the Military Barracks at Winnipeg 6,500 tons of Blairmore Mine run coal at a price of $13.30 a ton, which offer was accepted. The defendant, however, delivered only 3,176 tons of the coal named, it is alleged, and presented invoices for 6,500 tons, for which payment was made, by which, it is alleged, the defendant received $44,200.30 beyond the amount for which it had delivered coal of the kind specified in the contract.

A Further Claim.

A further claim is made that by a contract made in May, 1921, calling for the supply and delivery of 7,650 tons of Youghiogheny steam coal, the defendant charged and was paid for 7,649 tons 1,800 pounds, although, it is alleged, only 5,126 tons 1,800 pounds of this coal were actually delivered, and the Government as a consequence overpaid the defendant $23,327.50.

Other Charges.

It is further alleged that under three additional contracts for a supply of coal made in 1922 and 1923, the defendant charged and was paid for 9,996 tons of coal, although only 3,333 tons of the coal named in the contract were delivered, and the Government overpaid the contractor $63,668.52.

It is also alleged that from April 1 to December, 1923, the contractor charged the Government for 2,499 tons of coal, although only 611 tons of the coal mentioned in the contract were delivered, and the contractor was overpaid on this deal $19,735. A further allegation sets forth that between January 1, 1924, and May 31, the contractor charged the Government with 2,903 tons of coal, although, it is alleged, only 1,961 tons of the coal contractor for were delivered, and there was an overpayment to the contractor of $9,696.42 in this connection.

SAW WHITE ROBIN.

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., May 1.—(Canadian Press).—A white robin in town has aroused much curiosity and speculation this week. Several of the citizens who have taken special notice have reported to the effect that it has a white breast as well as a white back and tail, but otherwise it resembles the red-breasted birds.

PRIME MINISTER'S REQUEST FOR REDUCTION BY CANADIAN MARINE WENT TO A FOREIGN CONFERENCE

BATTER RANG THE BELL.

Broke Fire Alarm Box and Brought Out Brigade.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 1. — (Canadian Press).—A hit that Babe Ruth might have gloried in called out all the fire department, stopped a kids' baseball game, and threw some excitement into St. Luke's Hospital, biggest in the city, Wednesday. "Rusty" Bouting, boy slugger, slammed out what looked like a home run. It hit an alarm box, broke the glass, and brought the whole fire-fighting force to the scene.

ANNUAL REPORT NEVER SEEN BY BANK DIRECTOR

Argument in Behalf of C. A. Barnard in Home Bank Appeals.

RAPID PROGRESS

TORONTO, May 1—The appeal court is getting along rapidly with the appeals of Home Bank directors against their convictions in the county criminal court on charges under the Bank Act. Thursday the counsel for C. A. Barnard, Montreal, one of the directors, finished his argument and counsel for the defence got well started. R. S. Robertson, K.C., counsel for Barnard, argued that his client had never seen the annual report for the year 1923 until after it had been sent to the Minister of Finance, and therefore contended that he could not be held as making, using or concurring in it. McGregor Young, K.C., took up the argument for the crown.

Mr. Young said that Barnard was a director of the Home Bank during the critical period of 1916 to 1918, and that he had from the first precise knowledge of the accounts. Therefore, he continued, there was a special duty on him as a director Chief Justice Mulock asked how he proposed to bring the making, using and concurrence of false statements to Barnard. "Because his special knowledge made it incumbent on him to inquire," replied Mr. Young. "When he abstained from making such inquiries he was bringing himself within the provisions of the law."

Absented Himself

Justice Magee thought that the crown would be obliged to establish what items in the annual report were wrong and how Barnard knew. Mr. Young said he would argue that Barnard had absented himself from the annual meeting to enable the directors to make a false return. Justice Hodgins said that the defendant must have committed some act to come within the law. Justice Magee asked how Barnard knew the directors were going to make a false statement if he stayed away for that purpose.

"Do you think his presence at the meeting would have prevented the false statement from being made?" asked the Chief Justice.

"I do not think that follows," replied Mr. Young, "but I do say that there should be a stronger inference of concurrence because he was not there than if he had been there and kept silent."

PRESTON RETAINED.

May Be Required For Ocean Rates Hearing.

OTTAWA, May 1. — (Canadian Press).—The services of W. T. N. Preston, who investigated Atlantic shipping for the Canadian Government, are being retained "for such time as he may be actually engaged in the work of the ocean freight rate inquiry." It was stated in the House Thursday by the Minister of Trade and Commerce in answer to a question from Sir Henry Drayton. Sir Henry asked his question, "In view of statements made by H. J. Symington, Government counsel before the special committee on ocean rates" to the effect that "I do not see whether Mr. Preston's report is right or wrong, so far as the facts are concerned."

Had Asked for Lower Ocean Freight Rate on Nova Scotia Apples.

SHIPPING ENQUIRY

U. S. Lines Would Put Canadians Out of Business in Rate War.

OTTAWA, May 1.— (Canadian Press.)— W. T. Marlow, general foreign freight agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, claimed that the North Atlantic Steamship Conference was of real value to the Canadian shipper, when the Special Parliamentary committee on ocean rates met Thursday.

"If we had no relations with United States' port lines and a rate war ensued, they could put us out of business," Mr. Marlow said. "I think there is a decided advantage both to the Canadian shipper and ship owner in the conference system.

Mr. Marlow was being examined by G. H. Montgomery, K.C., counsel, for steamship companies, when he made the above statements.

"Is it your contention that the rates should be kept up?" Hon. E. J. McMurray, a member of the committee, asked.

"That they should be stabilized as between Canadian and United States' ports," replied Mr. Montgomery.

Shippers Attended.

Cross-examination of Mr. Marlow by H. J. Symington, K.C., government counsel, was completed yesterday. In one particular his evidence differed from that of Col. N. I. Gear, of the Robert Reford Company, a previous witness. He stated that he had presided at meetings of the North Atlantic conference, at which shippers were present.

Mr. Symington said that Col. Gear had informed the committee that the conference never met the shippers. "What shippers did you meet?" asked Mr. Symington.

"Leather men, lumber men," replied Mr. Marlow. He insisted that shippers had attended conference meetings.

Reference was made to a letter written, it was stated, by Sir Robert Borden, when Prime Minister, to the Canadian Government Merchant Marine asking for a reduction in the rate on Nova Scotia apples.

This letter was referred to the North Atlantic Conference.

Foreign Control.

"Doesn't it strike you as remarkable that a request from the Prime Minister should have been referred to a foreign conference?" asked Chairman A. R. McMaster.

"It strikes me as more remarkable that the government line didn't make the rate requested," retorted Mr. Marlow.

Before the committee rose, W. T. R. Preston, who recently reported to the Government the existence of a great steamship combine which was injuring Canadian trade, asked if he might put a question to Mr. Marlow.

Chairman McMaster ruled, however, that questions coudu be put only by members of the committee, and counsel.

The committee adjourned until Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

Mr. Marlow stated that there was no question that during the period when the Reardon-Smith line was operating outside the conference, a great deal of traffic was carried at a lower rate from United States' than Canadian ports. At present, he said, there was an "open rate" on May shipments.

After Big Contracts.

"As a matter of practice you go after the big shipper?" asked Mr. Symington with reference to a contract given by conference lines to shippers who agreed to ship exclusively by them. This contract gave a reduction of ten cents in the rates on certain commodities to shippers who patronized conference lines exclusively.

Mr. Marlow replied that it was chiefly the big shippers who made these agreements. They were anxious to get a stable rate and the steamship companies were willing to give them the reduction in order to get exclusive business.

"I would think there was a decided advantage to the Canadian shipper in having some alliance which saw that the rates from American ports were the same as from Canadian ports," Mr. Marlow said, in answer to George H. Montgomery, counsel for the steamship lines. He said that exports from American ports were much greater than from Canadian ports.

Chairman McMaster said he thought that it would be generally admitted that it would be to the disadvantage both of Canadian shipper and vessel owner if rates from New York were lower than from Canadian ports.

PLACE EMBARGO ON MENNONITES

Immigration Train For Mexico Cancelled—Payment On Hand is Due.

14-CAR TRAIN.

REGINA, Sask., May 1—Mexican politics and an embargo against Mennonites has forced them to cancellation of a fourteen car immigration train to be made up at Swift Current for Mexico, which was due to depart for the south on Wednesday, April 29. The reason given by the railroad company was inability to enter Mexico.

Mennonites have very little to say about the situation which has arisen, according to information late Thursday, and decline to make any statement as to future activities. It has been stated by the Swift Current Mennonites that the second payment on their holdings in Mexico has fallen due, and having failed to meet it, through in ability or design, the government which is closely connected with the land company selling the land, has endeavored to force payment by declaring an embargo.

The party of Mennonites was to have been made up of people from Blumenhoff, Wymark and Braddock, three towns situated south of Swift Current.

MASS REFUSED TO FASHIONABLE GIRLS

ROME, May 1. — (Canadian Press.)—The Bishops of the entire Venetian Archdiocese went to Venice yesterday to discuss the problem of women's fashionable dress which they condemned unanimously as "pagan and indecent."

They decided first that all priests under them must refuse communion to all girls and women wearing collarless or sleeveless, or even short-sleeved dresses and declared that they considered it a lesser evil if the women who long for fashionable clothes despite the Pope's crusade against them did not enter the churches at all rather than "frequent God's house in such clothing."

SMUGGLING BY PARK WORKMEN

Employees of Ontario Government Smuggled Souvenir Jewelry From United States.

GOVERNMENT PAID.

TORONTO, May 1. — (Canadian Press).—The Ontario Government, in the guise of the Queen Victoria and Niagara Falls Park Commission has been caught as a systematic smuggler of United States goods, and has been made to disgorge to the Federal authorities several thousands of dollars which it should have paid in Customs duties. The operations, together with the bills attendant upon them, have been detailed to Queen's Park, following the apprehension of one of the Park employees who was crossing the international bridge with dutiable goods in his possession.

According to Ontario Government officials, the affair centred around the souvenir jewellery which is sold at three souvenir shops in Niagara Falls Park.

The only source of supply for this jewellery which is not made by any Canadian firm was a concern in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and it is stated that the managers of the souvenir stands used to cross the border, secure their stocks of jewellery and carry them back upon their person without paying any duty upon them.

SHORT SESSION SCHOOL BOARD

Campbellford High School Will Continue in Use For Entertainments.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 1.—The regular session of the Board of Education last night last for less than half an hour. The trustees in attendance were Major J. M. Bygott, chairman, George O'Sullivan, J. A. Irwin, J. A. Loucks, D. J. Lynch, John Hull, John Jeffs, Dr. Richardson, C. Benor and Dr. Watson.

Principal Greig of the High School reported htat the cadet uniforms that were ordered at the last meeting had been received, and were entirely satisfactory. He considered that the Board had made a good bargain. The cadets will make a natty appearance at their annual inspection next Wednesday, when the Public School cadets will parade at 10 o'clock, and the High School corps one hour later. Principal Greig extended an invitation to every member of the Board to attend this inspection. It is expected, Mr. Greig said, that between 60 and 65 cadets will be in line.

Chairman Bygtt said he had seen the uniforms and not only was the material excellent but the trimmings gave the outfits a smart appearance.

Entertainments to Continue.

Principal Greig was authorized to purchase a receptacle for the war tax tickets that are collected at entertainments held in the auditorium of the High School, at which the tax is chargeable.

To Visit Grounds.

Members of the Board will visit the school grounds at 2.30 this afternoon to discuss further improvements. Mayor Meyers, Reeve Davidson and Deputy Reeve Palliser will be invited to accompany the party.

Secretary Stephens will write the different coal dealers in town asking their figures for the fuel required in the Public School.

HYDRO IS PAYING.

Government Receives $4,478,397, Including Arrears on Thunder Bay System.

TORONTO, May 1.—(Canadian Press).—The sum of $4,478,397.62 was received yesterday by the Ontario Government from the Provincial Hydro Commission in payment of interest charges on advances by the Government to the Hydro enterprise. The remittance was notable in the fact that it included arrears of interest upon the Thunder Bay system totalling $582,748.69. All units of the Hydro enterprise accordingly are now meeting their interest chargers.

The Government's advances to Hydro now total $142,714,107, the half-yearly interest payment upon this sum amounting to $3,795.93.

CANADA'S DEBT INCREASED BY $262,000,000, IN LAST THREE YEARS

ferent policies in three years, "and they are all wrong." Premier King at this point challenged the figures Mr. Meighen was quoting. The latter said that his secretary had secured them from the Immigration Department, and if they were wrong that department was to blame.

The Drayton Amendment.

In conclusion, Mr. Meighen said that the Government substituted excuses and promises of revival of trade for any concrete policy which would extricate Canada from its "mire of debt." The Drayton amendment asked for a reduction in taxes, particularly of those taxes which bore directly on the average citizen. There was not one Progressive member in the House who had not advocated the same thing. If they believed in the principle involved, why did they not vote for the amendment? In previous years they had said that they agreed with the Conservative policy on most points but they could not stand protection. Well, there was no protection in this amendment. The Conservative party had its own views about protection, and would stand by them. But this time the Progressives had no excuse for voting against the Conservative amendment.

"This time," said Mr. Meighen, "the people are going to find out whether the Progressive members are interested only in continuing this government in office, or whether they are interested in the application of sound principles to government."

Premier King's Reply.

Premier King at the opening of his speech, said that Mr. Meighen had departed from the rules of the House in declining to discuss fiscal matters in this budget debate, which was the debate set apart by Parliament for the express purpose of discussing the tariff. Mr. Meighen had had ample opportunity during this prolonged debate of presenting his tariff policy. The Premier could not understand why he had not done so, "unless he is ashamed or afraid of his own offspring." His reason for not introducing his protection manifesto as an amendment to the budget, might be that he knew that if he had done so, "it would have been so overwhelmed with adverse votes that he would have been even more ashamed of it than he is at the present moment."

The Government had done everything to expedite public business, said Mr. King, believing that the Canadian people did not want the session to be over long. This session had appeared to be going along expeditiously when, for some reason or other, the Opposition had begun to "protract and delay the business of this House in an unreasonable manner and in a manner without precedent."

Had Forced Railway Bill.

The resolution to bring in the ocean rates bill had been held up seven days and then the Conservatives had complained because the Government had brought on a division. In contrast it was interesting to recall the fact that the resolution preceding the bill for the acquisition of the Canadian National Railways had been forced through the House by the late Conservative Government, and no debate at all was permitted.

Mr. Meighen interrupted to deny this.

Mr. King quoted from Hansard that the speaker of that day had ruled the motion not debatable and called a snap division.

Mr. Meighen protested bitterly that he was being blamed for a Speaker's ruling.

The Premier accused him ironically of a "fine spirit of chivalry" in blaming a Speaker who was no longer in the House. A little while ago he had blamed his private secretary for inaccurate figures. Probably most of his other statements were as misleading.

Mr. Meighen jumped to his feet and angrily said that he took full responsibility for the immigration figures he had quoted. What he had said was tha tthe figures came from the Minister of Immigration through his secretary and the Minister was responsible for their accuracy.

The Premier went on to enumerate instances in the present session when, he thought, the business of the House had been unduly delayed by the Opposition.

The reason for this delay, according to information received by him, was that it was thought that the Government might go to the country this year, possibly in June, and Conservatives did not want this. "Could a higher compliment be paid to this administration?" asked the Premier.

While the members had discussed all conceivable matters, in the debate, yet there had not been "the slightest demand of the government to make an appeal to the country," stated Premier King.

"The demand has been made over and over again during the debate, and I make it now," interjected Mr. Meighen.

Had Prolonged Debate.

The country, stated Premier King, was entitled to an explanation as to why proceedings had been protracted. It was the longest debate on the budget that had taken place. Most of the time had been taken up by Conservatives demanding a higher tariff, while Progressives desired a lower. The government's policy, however, he felt, would appeal to "moderate, sensible people."

L. J. Ladner (Conservative, Vancouver South) interrupted to ask if Liberal members had not taken one half the time of the budget debate.

Premier King replied that he would find that the largest percentage of time had been taken by those sitting about him (Mr. Ladner).

"Not those in this direction," said Mr. Meighen.

"We are not discussing distances, we are discussing time," said Mr. King, resuming his speech. The point of Mr. Megihen's speech had been that the government had not taken into account railway expenditures in its finance statement. It had started with insinuations but had become direct statements and the government had been charged with a method of making up its accounts calcultaed to deceive the House. It had been charged that the guaranteed amounts to the railways had not been included and thus the method of bookkeeping had been altered.

Mr. King read a certificate of the Edward-Morgan Company, chartered accountant, Toronto, stating that the accounts had been handled in accordance with other years in the matter of railway accounts. The auditors were the same as were employed by the last administration in 1920.

Blames Conservatives.

The Conservatives were responsible for having purchased the Grand Trunk Railways, and making it a charge upon this country. Now they are trying to indict the government for the present situation though they had no responsibility for initiating the program. Speaking of the administration of the railways, "which was kept free from politics," Premier King said: "I think that the country is pretty well satisfied that Sir Henry Thornton is the best executive it is possible to find under the sun." The government would take the responsibility for that appointment.

In separating the railway debt from the direct obligations of the country, Premier King stated that the government had no desire to mislead the people. "The government wants the country to understand we are keeping railway matters separate and distinct," he added "Our policy is to give government ownership a fair chance." He was doubtful, however, if government ownership could get a fair trial under its present "heirship."

Robb Followed Precedent.

The Acting Minister of Finance's procedure in preparing his budget had been "on all fours" with that followed by his predecessor, and in presenting it before the end of the fiscal year, he had been very careful to under-estimate the revenue of the country, and to over-estimate the expenditures. Had the Acting Minister postponed presentation of his budget until this date, he would have been in a position to "present a more favorable statement."

Premier King said he was now prepared to point out a number of cases in which expenditures in the budget statement to the end of last month, had been over-estimated and various revenues under-estimtaed, resulting in "a saving over the budget of the Acting Minister of Finance of $11,643,000."

The amendment proposed by Sir Henry Drayton contained "mere generalities and platitudes." The amendment had referred to the "alarming increase in public debt"; but this was incorrect. In the last two fiscal years that the Conservatives had been in office, 1920-21, and 1921-22, the public debt had been increased by $174,000,000. This did not take into account the railway situation.

GLOOMY SPEECH ON DAWES PLAN

Nationalist Finance Minister of Germany is Very Pessimistic.

MUST CHANGE PLAN.

BERLIN, May 1 — (Canadian Press)—When the Nationalists' finance minister, Otto Von Schlieben, in the Reichstag last evening, indulged in a g loomy expose of Germany's budget and the burdens of the Dawes plan a new note crept into Germany's foreign policy, the very note which Chancellor Luther and President-elect von Hindenburg are so anxious to keep out.

The pessimism was based on the belief that the Dawes plan burdens are too heavy and carried out the Nationalist implication that before very long the Dawes plan must be changed by new negotiations.

THE EXAMINER'S LOSS.

In the passing of Mr. Ernest G. McKeeley, for the last seven years its City Eidtor, and for seven years before that a member of its Reportorial Department, the Examiner has lost a most faithful and most highly esteemed employee, and the editorial staff a most affectionately regarded colleague.

Mr. McKeeley, during his fourteen years' association with the Examiner, held the esteem and liking of the whole personnel of the office, not only in his own particular field of activity but throughout every department, and his death will be regarded by every Examiner employee as a personal loss.

The Examiner's loss is a community loss, for Mr. McKeeley was not only a good newspaperman and a good comrade, but he was a good citizen, and did much in his professional duties and otherwise to advance every cause that had as its objective the betterment of Peterboro.

Throughout the city and district he had formed a wide circle of friends, who will share with the members of the Examiner organization the shock of his passing.

Of his services to this paper it would be impossible to speak too highly. He gave at all times the last fraction of his energy and ability to make the Examiner a force in its home city and in the surrounding countryside, and no paper was ever more faithfully served.

The Examiner, in recognizing its own loss, expresses its most sincere sympathy with Mrs. McKeeley in her bereavement.

THE TAX ON POWER.

With the general principle of placing an export tax upon electrical power the majority of the people of Ontario are doubtless in full sympathy, believing that the export of electrical energy from this country should be discouraged as much as possible.

But there are peculiar features in connection with the application of the tax, as it affects the municipalities operating under the Hydro-electric Power Commission that should receive the consideration of the Federal Government.

These features were pointed out to representatives of the Government by an Ontario deputation when a request was made that 60,000 h.p. exported annually by the Hydro-electric Commission under a contract with the Niagara, Lockport and Ontario Power Company should be exempted from the new tax.

This contract was made in 1904, and does not expire until 1950; it was entered into, of course, long before there was any suggestion of an export tax, the Hydro assuming the contract when it took over the Ontario Power Company.

If the tax could be collected from the consumer across the line there would be no complaint from this Province, but that does not seem to be feasible, and the application of the new levy will simply have the effect of forcing Ontario customers of the Hydro to pay $110,000 a year for something that is not of the slightest benefit to them.

It is a question that affects a large percentage of the people of this Province.

HONOURING THE PIONEERS.

Douro's organization for the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the settling of the township is complete, and the event promises to be a memorable one in the history of the district.

It is fitting indeed that the memory of the pioneers who converted a forest into a flourishing township should be honoured in this way.

We do not hear enough of the sacrifices made by the gallant men and women who unflinchingly faced the hardships of a new country and made possible the splendid land we love today.

Douro does well to celebrate its centenary.

But there is another way in which a tribute can be paid to the pioneers.

The Blenheim News-Tribune tells of improvements that have been made in the Craford Cemetery, one of the most historic spots in Kent County.

For years this resting-place of the pioneers had been neglected to such an extent that it was almost impossible to locate or decipher some of the tombstones, which date back to 1827.

The Blenheim paper reports that, thanks to the efforts of a number of public-spirited citizens, the cemetery has now been placed in a good condition and will be kept that way.

It is a work that could be copied in many parts of Ontario.

There must be scores of these little cities of the dead, the resting-place of men and women who sacrificed much to develop this Province, that have been allowed to fall into neglect.

They are to be found in every section of the country, and it would be a graceful recognition of the debt we owe to the pioneers if these cemeteries were to be taken in hand and cared for as they should

THE QUOTA LAW.

Many Canadians do not seem to understand the quota plan of controlling immigration into the United States, and as a result there will be hundreds of British and foreign-born residents of this country disappointed if they attempt to take up residence across the line.

For the benefit of Peterboro citizens, it may be explained that the quota law applies to British-born people, no matter how long they have lived in Canada.

Once the British quota is filled each year no more British-born can be admitted, either from Canada or any other part of the world, and as American consular agents state that there is enough advance applications for entrance on file now to complete the quota for several years to come, the chances of many in this country who are counting upon going to the United States this summer are not very bright.

The situation is causing some uneasiness in the border ports, especially in Windsor, where it is complained that many British-born immigrants have located, planning on living there only until July 1st when the next quota opens.

These people are in many cases without work and possess just enough money to carry them through until the end of June.

What is worrying the Windsor authorities is the situation that will arise when the temporary residents try to enter the United States and are turned back.

Peterboro people who have friends in the Motherland who are counting upon entering the United States via Canada would save a lot of trouble by explaining the regulations to them.

Native-born Canadians are not affected by the quota law—but it applies to British-born Canadians, even if they have lived here since infancy.

AN AMERICAN TRIBUTE.

The announcement of the British return to the gold standard is a flaming victory for that tenacity with which the British have always clung to their ideas. The long and painful effort to restore the pound appears, amid the seductive discoveries of post-war European financial history, to have resulted less from a considered economic policy than from a habit of mind. Behind the British attitude toward their financial problem "the playing fields of Eton" always seemed faintly discernible, and, while it has been possible for the advanced economists to doubt whether the British were right, it is impossible not to see that they were inspiring.

The abandonment of the gold standard occurred, as have so many other great moments in British history, in the traditional fit of absent-mindedness. It was not until the eve of the Armistice that it was definitely recognized that the gold standard had become a myth, and it was not until the beginning of 1919 that an embargo was laid on the export of gold. Then the British faced the situation as they faced the other difficulties of the peace and set themselves, with a determination which seems almost automatic in the national character, to return to the normal. At a moment when the wreck of the Continental currencies seemed to be giving the Continental industrials an overwhelming advantage the British balanced their Budget, piled up the taxes and met the resulting unemployment and trade stagnation with a form of social relief that may have been unwise, but was certainly both decent and courageous.

The victory has been won; it is a victory for conservative method and a traditional belief in the way things should be done. The burdens of debt and taxation which have been assumed in consequence have led to serious questioning of the wisdom of the attempt; Mr. Keynes' plan of monetary reform on the one hand or the Socialist proposal of the capital levy on the other are no more at bottom than devices for reshuffling the old ideas, as others—the Germans, for example, with their drastic capital levy in the form of mark depreciation—had already done. The British refused to admit the possibility. They are the first of the major European powers to face and solve the problem which still confronts all the others. The return to gold will have no immediate effect, for it has long been "discounted" by the financiers. The final discount can be effected only by the historian of the future. For the present Mr. Churchill's announcement stands out as a memorial to British doggedness and moral courage.—New York Herald.

PAINTING MR. NICKLE AS A THIEF.

Toronto Telegram, referring to Attorney-General Nickle taking the $60,000 payment of the Jarvis fine, says "he set a poor example of business morality" and resembles the employee "who feels that he is underpaid and who adds to his legitimate wage by rifling the till."

The Telegram is perhaps no farther than usual from the truth, but the inference here is that the Attorney-General of the Province is actually stealing money, says the London Advertiser. The Telegram's statement means that if there is such a thing left as meaning in the English language.

The dispute is between the Province and the city of Toronto, and there are very sound claims to be put forward for each party. The Attorney-General was quite right in moving to secure the amount for the Province, and the city of Toronto was equally within its rights in lodging a protest and claiming the amount.

There are courts quite competent to deal with the final ownership of the fine. What object is to be served at this juncture by a blatherskite rushing in to yell that the Attorney-General has been guilty of the most miserable form of theft and a corrupted code of moral ethics as well?

That sort of talk is calculated to destroy respect for public men and the office they occupy. Painting the Attorney-General in language that might be applied to a common crook because he did what he had a right to do in claiming the $60,000 paid by Jarvis for a wrong done to the Province, is treading on ground where few writers would care to follow.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Canadians have reason to be thankful today. The Budget debate is over.

It is a fairly safe wager that had the Budget division been taken a month ago the result would have been just the same.

It may be Nickle beer, but the Federal tax has made it unlikely that the 4.4 will be nickel beer.

The daylight saving controversy, temporarily lulled, promises to break out again with new vigour on Monday night when the matter is expected to come before the Council again.

The Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A. are two organizations that are doing a real community work and deserve real community support.

The opening of Toronto's new ball park will probable come about the same time as the opening of Toronto's new Union Station.

At least the members of the Federal House succeeded during the Budget debate in piling up some campaign material for platform use.

Peterboro grocers are not rushing to apply for beer permits. The problem of sale for home consumption may, as a result, be more complicated than at first expected.

BROCKVILLE CHEESE 17c

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 30—At a special meeting of the Brockville Dairymen's board of trade this afternoon the total registration 791 boxes sold at 17 cents.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, April 30—A number of cars are on offer at Montreal and Toronto chiefly from the west. The delivered quotations on these are extras 32½, firsts 30½, seconds 27½ in new cases. The prairie province situation is a little difficult at the present time. At a good many centres receipts still continue very light but this is attributed by some to lack of production and by others to the bad condition of the roads. In United States receipts on the larger markets are reported lighter and prices firmer.

Montreal steady, dealers paying extras 31, firsts 29, seconds 25½. These jobbing extras 34, firsts 31, seconds 27.

Winnipeg dealers paying delivered extras 26, firsts 25, seconds 20. Several cars reported rolling east this week.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGD, April 30 — Higher prices in the wheat market today went hand in hand with indications that wheat deliveries here tomorrow on May contracts would be of much less volume than had generally been expected. Closing prices for wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1¼ cents up, May 1.52½ to 153¼ and July 1.41¾ to 142, with corn ½ cents to 1¼ cents down, and oats varying from ¾ cent decline to ¾ cent gain. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 27 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, April 30—The demand from exporters for oats in the local market wa s good and a more active business was done with sales for some fair sized lots of No. 1 feed Oats at 3¼ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, and No. 2 feed at 1 to 1¼ cents per bushel over the same option, C.I.F. Montreal. The feature of the spot market for oats was the advance of 1¼ cents per bushel in the prices of No. 2 Canadian Western which was attributed to the increased premium now demanded for this grade.

There was no improvement in the demand for baled hay, and the market was quiet with a steady undertone, car lots of good No. 2 timothy hay being quoted at $14 to $15 per ton, No. 3 timothy hay at $11 to $12 per ton, and No. 3 timothy hay at $10.30 to $11 per ton, f.o.b. cars here.

Butter Demand Easier

The receipts of butter were 798 packages as against 930 for the same day last week, and 2,130 for the corresponding day a year ago. Owing to the continued somewhat limited demand for supplies from all sources and the more liberal supplies of fresh made goods coming forward an easier feeling prevailed in the market and prices for all grades were reduced ½c per lb.

There was no change in wholesale jobbing prices announced, there being a steady demand for small lots to meet actual wants and sales of finest creamery were made at 35c per lb. in solid packages, and at 36c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 1,671 boxes, as compared with 1,007 for the same day last week, and 1,035 for the corresponding day a year ago. Cable advices received were weaker and Canadian cheese were quoted at 86s to 88s per cwt. There was very little enquiry for supplies and the market was quiet with an easy undertone with a feeling that prices in the country this week should be lower in order to do business at a profit with foreign buyers. The trade on spot was slow with Western No. 1 white and colored quoted at 18½c per lb., and No. 2 grades at 17½c per lb., while Quebec 20 lb. cheese sold at 15c to 15½c per lb.

STERLING RATES

Sterling Demand—$4.84¼.
Sterling Cables—$4.84½.

4 out of 5 are marked

There's no way to get around it. Dental statistics show that four out of every five over 40—and thousands younger, too—are victims of Pyorrhea. Do you want to avoid this dread disease?

Prevent tooth decay below the gum-line

As the soil nourishes the tree roots, the gums nourish the teeth. And as the tree decays if you bare the roots, so do the teeth decay when gum shrinkage starts in.

This condition—one of the first stages of Pyorrhea—is very common and something that ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to prevent. If not checked promptly it will lead to loss of teeth and serious organic diseases.

If used in time and used consistently twice daily, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. It will preserve the gums in their pink, normal, healthy condition, safeguard your health and keep your mouth clean, fresh and wholesome.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

"Women often ask me — says Mrs. Experience – how I get my table linen so immaculate"

"Of course, I tell them the way I've found easiest and best is with Sunlight—just rubbing the linen lightly with Sunlight, rolling it up and putting it to soak. After soaking, perhaps a light rubbing here and there may be called for, then just rinse, and the linen is spotlessly clean. Fine linens should be protected and never come into contact with anything but the purest soap.

"As a household soap there is nothing better or more economical than Sunlight. Every particle is pure soap, with no wasteful 'filler'. Sunlight is mild and easy on the hands, too." Lever Brothers Limited of Toronto, make it.

Sunlight Soap

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR.

GLORIA GORDON, twenty and pretty, marries ICK GREGORY, because she thinks he has money. Gloria's idea of marriage is plenty of fun and expensive clothes.....but no children.

When Dick tells Gloria she must do her own housework she has hysterics. So Dick borrows MAGGIE, his mother's maid, to teach Gloria to cook. Gloria refuses to learn.

STANLEY WAYBURN an actor whom Golria once loves, calls on her. When Dick sees him leave the house Gloria tells her husband that he was only an interior decorator.

Dick is home ill for a few days. His secretary MISS BRIGGS, comes to work there with him. While they are busy Gloria makes plans for a house-warming. She invites Stanley Wayburn. Dick recognizes him as the man whom Gloria has told him was an interior decorator.

Glory becomes reckless and drinks too much when she sees Stanley kissing MYRA GAIL. She faints away while dancing with MR. JOHN SEYMOUR, whose wife, MAY, is in love with JIM CAREWE.

The party breaks up when LOLA HOUGH "bawls" out BILL, her husband, for "petting" with May. Maggie, disgusted, leaves the house. The next morning Dick asks Gloria if the man he saw leaving the house was Wayburn or not.

Wayburn was not alone.

Was it Myra Gail?

. . . Presently the woman half-turned in her chair. Glory saw that it was not Myra.

This woman was blond. She seemed strangely familiar, too. Where had Glory seen her before?

. . . Then suddenly she remembered. The woman was an actress in Stan's company at the theater . . . Sonya Chotek!

The waiter took away the soup plates and served Dick and Glory with veal cutlets and creamed cauliflower.

Glory tried to eat. . . . But she couldn't. There was a lump in her throat, and her eyes were full of hot, jealous tears.

Oh, why did she let Stan Wayburn make her feel this way? . . . Why should it make her angry and jealous to see him with another woman?

"I don't believe I'm hungry after all," she said to Dick. He looked up in surprise.

"Well, you are some kid!" he exclaimed. "You drag me 'way down here and order a three-dollar meal . . . and now you can't eat it!"

"I know . . . I'm sorry," Glory said.

She sat there miserable while Dick finished his meal in puzzled silence.

"What do you want to do . . . go to a movie?" he asked as he helped her on with her coat. Glory shook her head.

"Let's go home. I'm dead tired," she said. She was, suddenly. Her spirit drooped like spent wings.

She wanted to get out of that hateful restaurant . . . away from the sight of Stan and his Sonya Chotek!

And so it was! . . . It hurt unbearably at times. Now, for instance. . . .

* * *

Early the next morning Ranghild Swanson knocked on the kitchen door.

Glory heard her and ran downstairs to let her in.

"I came to start work, even if it is Sunday," Ranghild said. "But I've been to early church already."

"The better the day the better the deed, Ranghild," Glory told her, laughingly.

The very sight of Ranghild cheered her up. She was so blond and smiling that she seemed to have brought the morning sunshine into the kitchen with her.

And she could cook! Even Dick had to admit that the cherry pie she baked for dinner was as good as any that Maggie had ever made.

"But we can't afford her," he said to Glory. "You'll have to look around and find someone who'll work for us for about $10 a week. That's my limit, absolutely!"

"All right, go ahead and vamp me all you want to!" Dick bantered. "But I mean what I say all the same. . . . We've just got to cut down on our household expenses. A few more weeks like this last one would land me in the poorhouse!"

* * *

The next morning Glory could hardly wait for Dick to leave for the office. The moment he was out of the house, she ran upstairs and dressed for the street.

* * *

Glory sighed with joy . . . she would have that very bag in a few minutes!

She opened the swinging doors of the store and went straight to the business office.

"I am Mrs. Richard Gregory, Junior, and I would like to open a charge account," she said calmly to the hard-eyed credit manager.

She gave Dick's office address and the name of his bank.

"All right, Mrs. Gregory," the credit man said cordially, after he had looked up Dick's references. "The store is yours. And we'll do everything in our power to please you."

He opened the glass door of his office with a flourish, and bowed Glory out, quite as if she had been a queen.

This was the only way to shop! . . . No bargain-hunting, no counting out change! Simply to ask for what you wanted, and order it sent home!

"I'd like to see afternoon dresses . . . something really good," Glory said to the saleswoman who came toward her across the gown department.

She sat in a comfortable chair while the saleswoman brought in dress after dress. Finally Glory chose three . . . a peacock blue, a black velvet, and an old-rose crepe.

"I'll try those three on, and see which one suits me best," she said.

They were all wonderfully becoming. Glory couldn't make up her mind which one to buy. She was in delicious despair.

She knew her business, that saleswoman!

"Why does not madam take them all?" she asked carelessly. "It is not every day that she will find three so perfect gowns!"

Glory hesitated.

"Only three hundred dollars for the three of them?" the saleswoman asked in surprise. "But that is nothing! They were twice that much at the beginning of the season! They are a bargain . . . those dresses!"

"All right, I'll take them all," Glory said suddenly. She felt that she simply couldn't go away and leave one of those three wonderful dresses in the shop for some other woman. . . . They belonged to her! They were made for her! All three of them!

* * *

"Of course, I don't really need a hat . . ." Glory thought, as she drifted into the millinery department. But down in the bottom of her mind she knew that she was going to buy one.

"I'd like a dress hat . . . something with plumes, I think," she said to the white-haired woman who came forward to serve her.

The saleswoman shook her marcelled head.

"No plumes," she said, smiling, "for so young a face. We must keep you very simple. . . . Won't you have this chair, please?" She glided away.

Glory watched her opening and shutting drawers and cupboards.

In a few minutes she came back with a wide-brimmed hat of creamy satin.

"Here's madam's hat," the milliner said, setting it on Glory's red-gold head. "Simple, but smart!"

"How much is it?" Glory asked.

"Fifty-five dollars," the milliner answered in the tone she might have used in saying "twi for a nickel."

Fifty-five dollars! Glory wondered what Dick would say if she paid that much for a hat that hadn't a scrap of trimming on it. . . .

* * *

Next Glory bought the beaded bag she had seen in the show-window. It was $30.

"Charge it and send it," she said. She gave her name and address with a feeling of excitement. She had never owned a charge account before in her life.

. . . They were like wishing rings, these charge accounts. You simply ordered what you wanted . . . murmured "Charge it" . . . and it was yours!

Her lips were a natural scarlet. And the black lashes, planted thick around her eyes, gave her a "made-up" look, as it was.

. . . Still, she could always use face cream and scent.

"I want some perfume," she said to the pretty clerk who came to wait upon her. "Not rose or violet. Something spicy and oriental."

Finally she bought two kinds . . . mimosa and lotus-flower.

After that she bought nail polish, night-cream, bath-powder, and a large wooden bowl of elder-flower soap that would float in the bath-tub.

"Twenty-two dollars," said the saleswoman, adding up the cost of these luxuries.

"Charge it," Glory said.

The noonday whistles were blowing when Glory left the store. The street was filled with business girls on their way to lunch, their faces gay and fresh as flowers.

And to think that only a few weeks ago she had been one of them! Why, it had taken her months to earn as much money as she had spent that morning on a few clothes!

How long would it take Dick to earn that $400?

Glory knew that he wasn't half as rich as she had once supposed he was . . .

Suddenly she was frightened at what she had done. She made up her mind to telephone the store to say that she didn't want the things she had just bought. . . . No, bu Js, she did want them! And Dick would just have to pay for them, by some hook or crook!

* * *

Glory hurried home and waited for her purchases to be delivered.

Late in the afternoon they came.

She rushed up to her room a n and trie on the three new dresses . . . one after the other, quickly, before Dick should come home.

Ah, they were lovely! And she was lovely in them. . . . She tried to see herself with Stan Wayburn's eyes as she turned and twisted before the mirror.

"You darling!" she said.

Then she heard the sound of Dick's latchkey in the door downstairs!

And before she had had time to take off the new blue dress she was trying on, Dick was in the doorway.

"So here you are . . ." he began and stopped.

His eyes swept the room from the dresses slung over the foot of his wife's bed to the wrapping paper that littered the rug.

Then he looked at Glory with a question in his eyes. She was speechless.

SEEDING AHEAD BY TWO WEEKS

Bank of Montreal Crop Report Shows Cultivation Begun Earlier.

CONDITIONS GOOD.

MONTREAL, May 1.—The Bank of Montreal has issued the first of its crop reports for the season. Generally it is favorable and indicates that in most parts of the Dominion the early Spring has enabled farmers to be well advanced with seeding and cultivation. The report in detail is as follows:

General.—In the Prairie provinces seeding has been started earlier than usual and the seed bed generally is in excellent condition. The season is three weeks earlier than usual in Ontario and earlier than the average in Eastern Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. In British Columbia the season is about two weeks late. Details follow:

Calgary district: From ten to fifty per cent. seeding has been done. Moisture ample.

Lethbridge District: Recent heavy rains delayed operations, but seeding is now progressing under favorable conditions. Moisture ample. In irrigated districts in the south, six thousand acres are ready for sugar beets.

Regina district: Cold showery weather retarded initial seeding operations in the south, but seeding is now well under way under excellent conditions. Spring ploughing is well advanced. There is no material change in wheat acreage, although indications point to a slight increase.

Saskatoon district: Seeding has been considerably delayed by rains and is not likely to be general for another week. There may be a slight decrease in acreage.

Winnipeg district: Wheat seeding is well under way, varying from 5 to 90 per cent. in different localities. Moisture ample. The early spring will permit the preparation of land which was hindered by bad weather last autumn. Indications are that acreage in wheat will be about the same, with a probable increase in coarse grains.

Seeding in Quebec.

Province of Quebec—In Eastern and Southern districts, owing to favorable weather, farmers have been able to commence their work on the land earlier than last year and the work in many parts is well advanced. Seeding should soon be general. Fruit trees, meadows and pastures wintered well. Maple syrup and sugar production was below average owing to mild weather. In Lower St. Lawrence and Northern districts, the season is generally two to three weeks later than in other districts and the weather and ground is yet too cold to permit the farmers getting on the land.

Province of Ontario—Farmers are well advanced with their work. The soil is in excellent working condition. Seeding operations are progressing favorably and will be finished shortly. Fall wheat has wintered well and is a larger acreage than usual. Pasture and hay meadows need rain and warmer weather.

Early in Maritimes.

Maritime Provinces — Conditions in the Maritime Provinces generally are favorable. The season is about two weeks earlier than last year, but the ground is cold and seeding is not yet started. This year's potato acreage will probably be 25 per cent. less than last year's. Apple trees have wintered well.

Province of British Columbia.—The season is about two weeks later than usual. The ground is in good condition and seeding is well under way. A fairly large acreage of hay was winter killed. Vegetables, except potatoes, are being planted more extensively than usual. Tomato planting are the largest in years. Apricots and peaches will be a short crop. Strawberries suffered winter killing and a light crop is expected. Pasturage good.

SIX DAYS TO FREE DOG.

TRAWSFYND, England, April 30.—Farmers worked for six days before they freed a terrier, trapped in a fox's lair on a rocky cliff.

Food was lowered to the dog by ropes.

MEMORIAL TO BOOTH

A printing workshop and accomodations for officers and their families are among the features of the new building which is is estimated will cost about 500,000 pesos.

The Salvation Army last year provided beds for nearly 500,000 persons and furnished 740,000 meals in Buenos Aires.

Pure food requires perfect ventilation to insure perfect refrigeration. No matter how cold you keep your food, if the odors and gasses cannot escape they cause contamination, souring and spoilage. This means waste and a menace to your family's health. They spell "D-A-N-G-E-R."

GOLD STANDARD CRITICIZED IN BRITISH HOUSE

Sir Frederick Wise Considers Restoration Was Precipitate—Gambling in Exchange.

LABOR STORMY.

Refused To Allow Churchill Explain Budget After Attacking Ramsay MacDonald.

LONDON, May 1 — Reflection seems to have induced certain doubts in the minds of the financial and stocks exchange community concerning the effect likely to follow the return to the gold standard. The fact that exchange failed to respond, as expected, by jumping to parity immediateyl on Chancellor Winston Churchill's announcement, created fears that it may become necessary to raise the bank rate to prevent exports of gold which it is considered in the present state of the British gold reserves cannot be afforded. Such raising of the bank rate, it is contended, would be bad for business and prove a setback to trade.

Opinions are by no means unanimous in approval of the Government's decision; some experts argue that the Government acted hastily.

The second reading of the measures for giving legislative effect to the Government's proposals will be taken next week. Philip Snowden, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, will move the Labor party's official amendment inviting the House to declare that it declines at present to assent to a second reading of the bill re-establishing the gold standard with undue precipitancy, and which may aggravate the present serious condition of unemployment and trade depression.

In the House of Commons last night the budget debate was continued. Walter Runciman, Liberal, expressed approval of the Government's gold policy, but pointed out that the Chancellor of the Exchequer by restoring the McKenna duties and placing a duty on silk was heavily taxing three chief exports of France, namely, motors, wines and silk, whereby almost alone France would be able to rehabilitate her exchange.

Speculation in Exchange

Sir Frederick Wise, Unionist, a note financial expert, strongly criticized Mr. Churchill's precipitency in restoring gold. He was disposed to think that it was a gamble. He had heard enormous figures mentioned as the amount of recent speculation in the exchange market. Nobody would prevent speculators from taking their profits, he continued, and that would mean that gold would have to be found from Britain's small reserve. He was sure the country was anxious to be protected from the possibility of getting any further into the hands of the United States.

Sir Frederic pointed out that India is a large buyer of gold and that when Sweden reverted to the gold standard last year she was obliged to obtain United States credit because of gold leaving the country, India being the buyer in Stockholm at eight pence per ounce over the New York price. These things might happen in England.

Alluding to the Government's purchase of $166,000,000 for the United States debt service, Sir Frederick remarked that surely, as Mr. Churchill knew the gold standard was coming, it would have been wiser to wait and buy these dollars at a cheaper rate.

Ramsay MacDonald, the former Labor Premier, confined his criticisms mainly to the protectionist duties on silk an dother commodities and the Government's insurance scheme.

Churchill Stirs Labor

When Chancellor Churchill rose to reply in the ebate, he evidently was in fighting mood and trounced Mr. MacDonald for employing superficial arguments against the budget. The freedom of his language drew angry protests from the Labor benches, compelling the chairman to appeal for order.

Mr. Churchill heatedly exclaimed: Are we really not to have free speech in this House!"

The chair supported the Chancellor as having said nothing more provocative than had been said by other members. Mr. Churchill tried to continue his speech amid angry interruptions and repeated cries of "withdraw."

Mr. Churchill shouted: "I really was not aware that this was such a sore subject—what am I to withdraw?"

A score of Labor members jumped up in their places, shouting simultaneously what they thought he ought to withdraw, but the chairman repeated that there was nothing for Mr. Churchill to withdraw.

Finding that it was impossible to speak, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said that as the Opposition would not listen, the Government was content that division be taken forthwith, and resumed his seat.

Mr. Churchill appeared desirous of moving closure, but the chairman allowed the Communist member, S. challenge division, and the debate whereupon most of the Ministerialists with Mr. Churchill quitted the House.

Throughout the scene the Labor front benches sat silent, and when eventually Premier Baldwin moved closure, the Labor leaders, on Mr. MacDonald's advice, declining to challenge divsion, and the debate closed without division being taken.

GERMANY WILL FULFIL MISSION

As Long as She Remains True to Herself, Says Hindenburg.

A NEW FATHERLAND.

TORONTO, May 1. — In September, 1919, Field Marshal Paul Von Hindenburg now president of the German Republic, wrote the story of his life. In the last chapter, "My Farewell," he says:

"Comrades of the German Army, once the proud and mighty German Army! How can you talk of despondency? Think of the men who gave us a new Fatherland more than a hundred years ago. Their religion was their faith in themselves and in the sacredness of their cause. They built up a new Fatherland, not on the foundation of doctrines strange to them, but on those of the free development of the individual within the framework of the whole body politic and on his sense of responsibility to the state. Germany will tread that path once more as soon as she is permited to do so.

"Germany, the goal and starting point of so much that is inexhaustible in human civilization and culture, will count as nought only so long as she ceases to believe in her great historical mission. My faith is unshakable that the best among us, with their deep strong thoughts will succeed in fusing the ideas of to-day with the precious relics of ancient times and on them set the stamp of eternal qualities which will bring salvation to our Fatherland.

"Such is the firm conviction with which I have left the bloody battlefields of this War of Nations. I have witnessed the heroic struggle of my Fatherland and I shall never believe that it was its death struggle.

"I have often been asked the question on what I based my hopes of our ultimate victory even in the darkest hours of the war. I could only point to my faith in the justice of our cause and my confidence in our Fatherland and the Army.

"For the time being a flood of wild political passion and sounding speech es has overwhelmed the ancient structure of our state and apparently destroyed all our sacred traditions. Yet this flood will subside again Then from the tempestuous seas of our national life will once more emerge that rock—the German Imperial House—to which the hopes of our Fatherland was confidently set, nearly half a century ago, by our efforts.

"When our national ideals and our national conscience have resumed their sway among us, we shall see how moral values have been struggling to birth in our present grievous trials, and the Great War on which no nation is entitled to look back with more pride than the German people so long as it remained true to itself. Then, and then only, will the blood of all those who fell believing in greatness of Germany have been poured out in vain.

"In that hope I lay down my pen, and firmly build on you—Young Germany!"

RADIO GIVES TROUBLE

Experts Work on Problem of Maintaining Telephone Secrecy.

CHICAGO, May 1.—New problems, added to the tasks which have confronted engineers in designing the modern telephone, have sprung to the fore since the advent of radio broadcasting. Included in the list of these problems is the maintaining of the factor that has made the telephone the great instrument it is today, practical secrecy in communication. And this task has been brought sharply to the attention of the engineer by radio.

With the improvement in the radiocast field, many stations are using tlephone lines to bring to the transmitter events that take place outside the station studio. Such use of the telephone lines recently led to the placing on the air a brief part of a telephone conversation between a man and woman, and made possible for the two telephone users to hear a snatch of the radio program which consisted of a play broadcast by a Chicago station direct from the theater.

Telephone engineers explained, however, that this unusual condition was brought about by what is known as "cross talk," caused when the sealed wire used by the broadcaster became crossed in the telephone terminal with the line being used for telephone conversation.

Much research work has been done by engineers to prevent this so-called "cross talk," which occurs at times during ordinary telephone conversations. The engineers said that great progess had been made in overcoming the difficulty, but that further work was being pursued.

ORIGIN OF QUARTET

Musicians Used to Spend Waiting Hours in Barber Shops Profitably.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 1.—(United Press).—A lot of people wonder when the "barber shop" quartett started. Well, take it from A. S. Gubrasen, local piano manufacturer, it came from the date when men wore wigs and went to the barbers to have them curled and powdered. In those days the good barber shops kept chests of viols, a kind of a violin, with which the male guests made music while awaiting their turn with the barber.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

DISEASES IN VEGETABLES HELP TO REDUCE YIELD AND MUST BE STOPPED TO GET PROFITS

Experiments Have Produced Means of Prevention of Damage.

NO OTHER ESCAPE

Compositions Developed for Control of Both Fungus Growth and Insects.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Anything that reduces the yield of the farm crop reduces the money return to the man growing the crop. When charges against the production of any crop are figured out it is usual to find that the costs are always high irrespective of the yield. The lower the yield the less there is to pay the production charges and profits. Production charges must be paid first. What money remains, if any, is your profit. Plant diseases and insects are always waiting ready t take your share. They frequently succeed. Finding the careless, neglectful type of farmer the easiest to prey on, eating up his potatoes, his apples, his onions, his grain, and small fruit crops. There is no escape except through prevention. Plant diseases like oat-smut, onion rot, potato blight, potato scab and apple scab can be controlled.

Dry Formaldehyde Treatment.

This method has been tested for five successive years by the O. A. College Department of Botany co-operating with farmers in various parts of the province. The results have been uniformly satisfactory. No injury to the grain has resulted and the smut control has been almost perfect. Well worth while when the fields that were sown with untreated seed showed a loss at harvest of six per cent. of the crop. The advantage of the Dry Formaldehyde method of treating seed oats are its simplicity, rapidity and ease of application when compared with the dipping method. One hundred bushels of Oats may be treated in less than one hour; the seed is dry enough to sow; there is no danger of sprouting, moulding or swelling of the seed. There is one disadvantage and it may be overcome by holding the sprayer close to the grain and providing free circulation of air to move the formaldehyde fumes quickly away. A small hand sprayer, a supply of formaldehyde and a scoop shovel comprise the equipment, and their use gives full assurance against loss of crop from oat smut.

Treat the Seed Potatoes.

In each of ten years an experiment was conducted at the College to determine the control of Potato Scab. The potatoes for one plot were left untreated and those for other plots were treated with corrosive sublimate, or with formaldehyde. With corrosive sublimate 2¼ ounces were used to each 13 gallons of water. With the formaldehyde pickle, one pint of formalin was used to each thirty gallons of water. The yields were the same from treated and untreated plots showing that the chemicals did not injure the seed in any way. The quality of the crop was greatly improved by treatment, giving clean marketable potatoes. Sacked seed potatoes immersed for two hours in the formalin solution gave a little better results than those treated with the corrosive sublimate solution. Late Blight is considered to be the most destructive potato disease that we have to contend with,—always bad in wet seasons and on low-lying areas. The successful grower does not wait for evidence of disease to appear and sweep over his field during a night; he takes time by the forelock and applies a protective spray to the potato foliage along with the bug destroying dose. Bordeaux mixture is effective as a preventive against late blight, tip burn and in repelling flea beetles and also if used in conjunction with paris green or lead arsenic in killing Colorado potato beetle larvæ. Early, frequent, and thorough sprayings are necessary. The sprayings had an influence not only in increasing both the yield of marketable and total crop per acre, but also in prolonging the growth of the plants and increasing the size of the potatoes. The results of the experiment show the highest yields per acre from the plots which received three sprayings, both above and below the leaves.

Apple Scab Control.

The experiments carried on by the Department of Entomology for the control of apple scab fungus, in the apple-growing sections have demonstrated that thorough spraying with Bordeaux mixture will effectively control the scab and give 98 per cent. clean fruit. Poisons added to the Bordeaux spray prevents efficiently the ravages commonly due to insects.

Many Ontario farmers are losing on crops that would be profitable if proper attention were given to disease control at the right time. Too many trust to luck, wait to see the damage done before making an attempt to control the evil forces that are ready to prey on the crops. The man that prepares to produce a crop with the expectation of an attack from all sides fires the first and also the last shot, routing the fungus enemy with chemicals that are easily obtainable and easily applied.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. College.

Ontario Snowstorm Is Good For The Farmers

Though many have found last week's snow storm annoying, it has been appreciated greatly by the farmers, particularly in Central and South-western Ontario where moisture was required, and it formed protection against the frost which followed, says the Ontario Department of Agriculture. In most districts wheat has been at a standstill, and in some sections has suffered a setback on account of the continuous dry winds and frosts. Few fields have been sufficiently injured to warrant breaking up, but in Kent some wheat fields have been reseeded with spring grains. While the frequent frosts have been considered harmful to meadows in some counties, on the whole young clover is reported in a satisfactory condition.

FARM SEED HAS TO BE CLEANED

Many Processes Used Between Purchase From Grower and Sale to User.

EXPENSIVE PLANT

Farm seed, as sold to the grower, is practically a manufactured product, almost as much so in fact of work and machining as cotton cloth is a manufactured product of the cotton boll. The grain, clover, or whatever the crop may be, as bought from the farmer after he harvested and threshed it, contains so much in the way of weed seed and imperfect grain that to sow it without proper cleaning, scarifying and other mechanical processes, is merely to choke the fields with weeds and let the grain struggle as best it may.

Too many grain fields of this type are seen, but under the modern development of agriculture and the practical application of modern methods, they are disappearing as the farmer realizes that the cleaner his crop the better his price.

One of the principles used in the complicated and expensive machinery necessary for the cleaning of seeds is the ancient one of centrifugal force which all students of physics encounter. This is the force that makes the mud fly from the rims of moving automobiles on wet days and hit you in the eyes, ears, and ruin the immaculate collar with which you started to work. It also accounts for the finer spray which decorates the neatly-pressed and brushed trouser leg.

This principle shows that the larger and heavier the gobs of mud the higher up they are likely to land, the farther and more forcefully they fly. The smaller, lighter particles with lesser flight, hit the trousers legs. This principle is used in separating weed seeds among others in preparing grain seed for market. The grain on revolving plates obey this law of centrifugal force as precisely as does the mud on an auto wheel. The heavier grains fly the longest distance from the centre of the revolving plate and the lighter ones may just drop over the edge. In this manner the seed is partly separated. Heavy, plump, fertile grains will be cast off into waiting hoppers, while imperfect and light grains will fall a shorter distance, thus accomplishing a separation of weed and grain by a simple mechanical principle.

Although this is a simple principle, the machinery to employ it is by nor means so simple, and a seed cleaning plant needs an investment of thousands of dollars in machinery to complete the various processes which take a bushel of grain and weed seed from the farm and turn out a bushel of grain seed free from weeds to be sold to the farmer when he sows his crops.

EARLY LAYING HELPS.

Studies of egg production of white leghorns show that the faster a pullet comes into production, the greater is her record for the first laying year. This discounts the belief that early production is obtained at the expense of body grwoth.

SOME JOB!

APPLE ORCHARD A GREAT ASSET

Planting of Different Varieties Provides a Continuous Supply.

FOR HOME USE

(Experimental Farms Note.)

A good home fruit garden is a great asset to any family. It provides an abundance of appetizing and healthful food, and often prevents children from yielding to temptation and "hooking" apples from the neighbors. For the home garden the varieties planted should cover the season well, and be of good to very good quality, if such trees are available.

Early Summer.

Two of the hardiest and best early summer apples are Tetofsky and Yellow Transparent. Tetofsky is the better in quality for eating, but is rather small and bears only every other year. The Yellow Transparent is the best for the home garden. Crimson Beauty, a highly colored variety and hardy, is very early but is inferior in quality.

Summer.

The principal summer apple for commerce is the Duchess of Oldenburgh, and this is a very reliable sort for home use as well, but the quality is not good enough for a dessert apple. For the home garden the Melba, originated at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, will, it is believed, soon take the place of the Duchess. The Lowland Raspberry is a Russian vraiety of good quality. In some parts of the Maritime Provinces, Williams Favorite does well and it is good in quality.

Autumn.

The Wealthy is the outstanding autumn variety for the home garden, as it comes into bearing early, the trees bear heavily and the fruit is good both for eating and cooking.

Early Winter.

The Fameuse and McIntosh are the two most desirable varieties for home use of this season, and if only one is planted it should be the McIntosh. Where it will succeed, the Cox Orange Pippin is an excellent sort for home use, but this is not suitable for the colder sections. Grimes Golden is also a good one.

Winter.

Where they will succeed, some of the best winter apples for the home garden are Tompkins King, Northern Spy, and Delicious, but the last variety, on account of its mild flavor, is not very suitable for cooking. For the colder sections there are no good hardy late keeping apples to compare in quality with the above, but Bethel, Scott Winter and Golden Russet all keep well and are among the hardiest.

POTATO PLEASES MOST APPETITES

COLUMBUS, O., May 1. — The potato is ruler of the vegetable kingdom. It heads the list of vegetables consumed by the average person in a year.

The average person consumed 176.9 pounds of potatoes last year, of which only 6.5 pounds were sweet potatoes.

The same individual ate 25.95 pounds of cabbages, making this vegetable a poor second to the potato.

Next to cabbages came beans, green, dry and canned, with 16.18 pounds. Then onions, 15.8 pounds.

Apples lead the fruits consumed, with 55.88 pounds a person. Pork is well ahead of all meats consumed, with 94.8 pounds a year for each person.

Egg consumption averaged 27 dozen a person, and milk, whole and condensed, 266 pounds or about 133 quarts a person.

RADIO IS BOON TO THE FARMER; IMPROVES CROP

High Frequency Waves From Broadcasting Stations Stimulate Plants.

MORE NITROGEN

Precipitated From Atmosphere by Discharges of Electricity.

BOSTON, Mass., May 1st.—The high-frequency radio energy that is being broadcast constantly over the country may prove a boon to farmers in improvement of their crops.

Such is the belief of a Boston electrical engineer who has been observing the effects of electrical energy dissipated by wires over and under ground on the growth and yield of plants.

"In the not far distant future," he says, "radio may prove to be of more practical benefit to agriculture through stimulating the yield of fruits, vegetables and other farm products."

Cost is High.

"For many years," he says, experiments have been carried on both in this country and England with various methods for aiding crop growing by electricity. In England it appears to be chiefly along the lines of overhead wiring.

"The chief deterrent to adoption of this method on a commercial scale has been the cost. The advantages in stimulating growth and increased yield were not sufficient to offset the cost."

Another method of plant stimulation is to put wires into the ground, coat the seed with a finely divided non-deteriorating metal and drive a high-frequency current through the wires.

More Nitrogen.

"There is a general belief that the principal effect of electricity in the soil is the addition of nitrogen to the soil," the engineer explains. "As we go nearer the tropics the precipitation of nitrogen to the earth by the natural electrical disturbances in the atmosphere becomes increasingly heavy and vegetation becomes more abundant.

"It is therefore a natural assumption that artificial discharges of electricity, either through the air or through the soil, will react in the same manner."

From this he concludes the high-power, high-frequency currents transmitted through radio aerials might help growth in the vicinity of these aerials.

"We may look forward to the increased yield of plants in such areas," he says, "as well as a more quickly completed cycle and a constant stimulation of the plant resulting in a healthy condition, permitting a stronger resistance to the encroachments of fungi and other enemies."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ANSWERS "PROGRESS."

To the Editor of the Farm Page.

Dear Sir,—A letter in your paper dated April 17, signed "Progress," should not be allowed to pass without comment. Your correspondent says that the rural opposition to daylight saving does not need demonstration and may be taken for granted, and further adds that there is nothing in daylight saving for the farmer, all of which is true, but when he says that there is no such thing as an altruistic farmer, and that he is against everything that has nothing for himself, no matter how much he may benefit others, he is uttering calumny and insult, for he thereby brands every farmer as selfish, seeking only his own ends at the expense of everybody else. I could make the statement that there is no such thing as an altruistic urbanite, which statement would be absurd and untrue, but the Retail Merchants' Association, the Bankers' Association, and the various labor organizations are not by any means charitable associations. They are organized to further the interests of the people they represent, often at the expense and inconvenience of somebody else. So why should not the farmer oppose an institution that is detrimental to his interests in every way? "Progress" makes two conflicting statements when he says that "daylight saving in Peterborough scarcely touches his life at all, but he is bitterly opposed to it." If it does not touch his life, and not only touch but strike hard, why all the bitter opposition? Bull-fighting in Mexico does not touch his life either, so he should oppose it too. One statement is about as absurd as the other.

Regarding your correspondent's reference to the demand for protection against United States fruits and vegetables, I would ask him what percentage of the agricultural class are aski g this privilege. A small section, possibly 3 or 4% who are specialists in this line, and to whom cheap foreign competition means taking the bread and butter out of their mouths. And as to free implements, if Mr. Progress would look a little beneath the surface of things he might discover that free implements would lower the cost of agricultural production, and in turn the price of foodstuffs, about which he and those of his stripe are so prone to rave at times. And in asking the above-mentioned privileges in what way is the farmer differing from the big city interests who continually howl for protection on their products, while demanding free raw material and machinery. I suppose "Progress" considers himself altruistic.

Your correspondent says the farmers are sore because the urban worker won't work 14 hours day at small pay in order to enable farmers to get help at low wages. No! and many of the city workers won't work at all if they can get meals and doles. And the sooner the farmer quits working 14 hours a day to provide cheap food and clothing for the like of "Progress" the better it will be for himself.

Under daylight saving the city worker whom the farmer hires at low wages, gets restless and wants to lay off when he hears the factory whistles blowing at 4 p.m. standard time.

The farmers' arguments against daylight saving have been expressed often enough and do not require repetition here. But when farmers as a class are subjected to a slanderous attack by a narrow-minded egoist deep resentment is justifiable. If the city council decides to adopt daylight saving I for one will not deprive Peterborough merchants of my trade, because we are indebted to the local market for the absorption of a portion of our produce. Our friend "Progress" no doubt will tell us that he is conversant with farm problems, but his letter displays his colossal ignorance of such. And as for progress, he savors of it about as much as one would expect in an average snail. He denies to one class the right of fighting into to protect its interests while granting the same privilege to another. He is evidently the type who will ask the other fellow to do what he would not do himself. He scarcely merits as much attention as I have given him, but his one-sided statements must not pass unchallenged.

Very truly yours,

—Smith Township.

RAISING DUCKS REQUIRES CARE AND ATTENTION

Feed Often, But Not Too Much for First Few Days.

NEED FRESH WATER

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Ducklings should remain in the incubator about thirty-six hours after hatching to allow them to harden off, and then be removed to the brooder and fed. The temperature of the brooder should be about 95° F. for the first week and then gradually lowered. For the first feed use bread crumbs moistened with water. Squeeze the water out of the bread, moulder it up fine, and feed it on a flat board. Sprinkle fine sand and chick size oyster shell over the bread before feeding. This serves as grit for the baby ducklings. Provide fresh water at each feeding in a self-feeding fountain. Feed the ducklings four times daily for the first few days. Care should be taken not to over-feed for the first three or four days, but there is little danger from overfeeding after that time.

About the fourth day start feeding some mash mixed with the bread crumbs and gradually eliminate the bread during the next few days. The mash should consist of equal parts bran, middlings, and cornmeal to which has been added about five per cent beef scraps and five per cent ground charcoal. Feed the birds five times daily from the fourth day. After the first week green feed should be added. Finely chopped clover makes excellent green food, but any finely chopped green forage could be used. About the eighteenth day the green food should make up about one third of the entire ration. Experimental work at Ottawa would indicate that a large amount of green food is not necessary for the growing of market ducks. We believe, however, that when birds intended for future breeders are being reared with the market ducks, a liberal supply of green food in the growing ration is essential.

When the ducklings are three weeks old the amount of beef scraps should be increased to ten per cent. Fine sand should always be sprinkled over the mash before feeding. Never make the mash sticky or sloppy, but just moist enough to hold together nicely. Continue to feed the birds in this way until they are six weeks old. About this time the cornmeal in the ration should be gradually increased until it makes up half of the ration. Fattening should commence about the sixth week and the birds should be ready for market about 9 to 10 weeks of age. When fattening commences the amount of green feed should be gradually reduced.

Make sure that clean drinking water is regularly supplied and that the ducklings are supplied with ample shade if the weather is extremely hot.

"Green ducks" should be dressed for market just as soon as they have completed their first coat of feathers.

STOCK FARM RUN BY LADY BARKER

CHESSINGTON, Eng., May 1.—(Associated Press).—One of the largest stock farms in England is managed by a woman, Lady Barker, of Barwell Court, famous for its Percheron horses. Lady Barker is not only owner of the estate but is the actual superintendent of the farm stock. Barwell Court includes among its fowls a large number of white fantail pigeons which came from the palace of Abdul Hamid. Several pair of these birds were presented to Queen Alexandra and developed into one of the outdoor sights of Sandringham house.

Also at Barwell are two Percheron horses presented to the late Sir Francis Barker by M. Clemenceau who himself owns one of the finest Percherons in France.

Many scientists believe that fish can hear.

Live Stock In Britain Shows Marked Decrease

MARGATE, May 1. — (Associated Press)—Britons will have to rely on foreign imports of meat to a greater extent than ever because of the serious decline of cattle raising in Great Britain. At the annual meetings of the National Federation of Meat Traders' Associations it was stated that since 1916 stock had declined in England from 18,000,000 to 14,800,000 head last year. The decrease in Scotland was about 200,000 head and in Ireland the numbers had fallen from 3,200,000 to 509,000.

The meeting agreed that it was vitally necessary to increase stocks and that the government be asked to investigate the position arising out of the increasing slaughter of immature lambs, pigs and calves in the country.

FARMERS SOLD AT HIGH PRICE

Very Little Wheat Was Owned by Them When Crop Came.

LESS IN CANADA

From information just received by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, from government crop correspondents in all sections of the country, it may be deduced that the wheat crop was largely out of the farmers' hands before the drastic decline in prices, and that the returns to the farmers were handsome. Furthermore, much of the stock which still remains in the country has been sold forward at prices which ruled some weeks ago, and that the price decline came too late to cause very serious loss to anyone except the speculators.

According to these reports, 15 per cent. of the total 1924 wheat crop remained in the farmers' hands at the end of March. This represented an actual volume of 39,223,000 bushels out of the year's total of 262,097,000 bushels. At this time last year the percentage was the same, but the actual volume was 70,755,000 bushels in the farmers' hands. This year's retention of wheat is smaller than that of any year since 1920, largely on account of the fact that the farmers sold all but actual seeding requirements owing to high prices prevailing.

Approximately the normal proportion of the wheat crop this year was marketable, viz., 95 per cent., or 230,096,000 bushels. Last year's figure was 96 per cent. In addition, 3 per cent., or 7,863,000 bushels, must be deducted for loss in cleaning.

Stocks of wheat in Canada at the end of March amounted to approximately 121,084,000 bushels, against 202,493,000 at the same time last year. This year's stock on hand comprises, in addition to the 39,225,000 above mentioned as in farmers' hands, 73,555,000 in elevators and flour mills and 8,304,000 in transit.

FLOCK MUST BE FREE FROM LICE

Infested Houses Must Be Thoroughly Cleaned and Birds Dipped.

MANY SOLUTIONS

If the farm flock is to be profitable it must be free from lice and mites.

The mites annoy the birds at night and live in the cracks of the house and perches during the day. They may be discovered by examining the cracks of the house. The mite also leaves a salt and peppery-appearing deposit on the perch.

A house infested with mites should be cleaned thoroughly, removing all litter, straw and dust, and washed with a lye solution. The house should be sprayed with a 10 to 20 per cent. solution of soluble stock dip disinfectant.

A follow-up spray in seven days will kill all the mites which may have hatched from the eggs which the adult mites have laid. These eggs are not affected by the spray and so a special spray must be made.

A solution of carboleneum makes the best spray, but stock dip does well and it is already at hand on many farms. Kerosene is good, but it lacks a strong odor which is annoying to the mites.

Lice are more annoying as they infest the bird at all times.

Sodium fluoride solution or powder is the most satisfactory method of eliminating them. Sodium fluoride powder is applied to the region around the vent, under each wing, on the back, and on the breast. This must be worked into the base of the feather.

The bird should be dipped in a sodium fluoride solution only in warm weather when there is no danger of the bird chilling. One ounce of powder to one gallon of tepid water is the correct proportion. In dipping it is best to hold the wings over the back with one hand and the feet in the other.

The bird should be pulled through the water so as to allow the solution to penetrate to the skin. The head is submerged once, the bird lifted out and allowed to drain a few seconds.

Blue ointment morked into the feathers about the vent is very good in eliminating lice. The ointment may be made by mixing one pound of mercuric salt, one pound of lard and one pound of vaselene.

Both bees and wasps originally came from the same parent.

SEEDING TWENTY DAYS AHEAD OF LAST YEAR IN PARTS OF WEST AND IS NEARLY FINISHED

Poultry Men Say More Chicks Hatched This Year

BETHANY, April 30 — The farmers and others who have chickens hatched are all of the opinion that the hatch this year is a much higher percentage of chicks than last year.

Expect Ninety Per Cent. Will Be Completed Before May 15.

EVERYONE PLEASED

Plenty of Moisture This Spring, Even in Very Dry Areas.

WINNIPEG.—The West has had a three-days rain which has delayed work a little, but conditions generally continue to be most favorable. The Manitoba Free Press has called for a seeding report and replies have been prompt and indicate that in Southern Manitoba rather more than 60 pers cent. of the wheat is seeded; in Southern Saskatchewan about 50 per cent., and from 35 to 40 per cent. in Southern Alberta. Seeding is again fairly general in the centre of all three provinces and will be general in the north by about the middle of next week. The largest wheat areas are, of course, in the south and centre.

The seeding report for 1924 was called for May third, and on that date it was stated that seeding would be general the following week. This indicated that 1925 wheat seeding is well in advance of 1924, indeed from 10 days to two weeks for all the provinces and about 20 days earlier in Southern Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Pleases Everyone.

If the weather continues as fine as it is to-day, 90 per cent. at least of the wheat will be seeded by May 15, which is what everyone who has had experience in the West likes to see.

The reports on condition of seed beds are universally satisfactory, there is plenty of moisture everywhere, a trifle too much in few spots in the north. The large areas on North Central Saskatchewan and Alberta that suffered so much from drought last year, all report on an abundance of moisture and an earlier seeding than almost any previous spring. The reports do not indicate any material increase in wheat acreage, for while some districts, notably in Saskatchewan, report an increase of 5 to 15 per cent., a number of districts report decreases, so that when increases and decreases are balanced up, the acreage will probably be about the same as 1924, namely, a little over 21,000,000 acres.

Outside of Manitoba very little seeding of coarse grains has been done, but spring cultivation is being pushed rapidly and the outlook is for increased areas in coarse grains, and for a material increase in all three provinces of the acreages of corn and sweet clover. It is a far cry from seeding to harvest, but at the moment seeding conditions over the entire prairie west are very satisfactory.

PREPARING THE FLOWER GARDEN

The Selection of Flowers and Shrubs For Continuous Bloom.

WHEN TO PLANT.

The gardener must now cease dreaming and prepare for action. Whether a new garden is to be started or an old one re-conditioned, decisions must be made and upon these depends not perhaps success or failure but whether the garden shall be commonplace or distinctive, permanent or transitory. The circumstances of the individual will naturally direct the trend of thought in gardening as in other things. The home owners will tend towards permanency because he hopes to enjoy the fruits of his efforts for years to come while the occupant of rented premises will be enticed by the more ephemeral allurements of the garden of annual flowers. There need be no hard and fast rule in this matter. The garden of perennial and shrubs is all the better for the brightening effect in late autumn of a few annuals while the tenant need not hesitate to plant perennials because in most cases he can take them to his new home as easily as he can his household furniture.

It is agreed then that it shall be a garden of perennial plants, hardy shrubs and bulbs supplemented by such annuals as are necessary to make a showing the first summer and keep the garden in color until frost comes. The aim of the gardener should be to provide a continuous succession from the time the lesser spring bulbs—snow-drops, scillas and crocus species—push through the ground in early spring until the fading of the last flower in October or November. The spring bulbs have commenced to bloom, others are on the way—the hyacinths, narcissus and tulips—and advantage should be taken of the opportunity to observe and note the varieties that would be suitable to the conditions in your garden so that you will be armed with the necessary information when the time comes to make up your order for fall bulbs.

Standard Varieties.

But the gardener is more concerned at the moment with the selection of the standard herbaceous perennials that must be planted as soon as the ground can be got ready to receive them if indeed this preparatory work was not done last fall. A word about selection Many beginners do not discriminate between meritorious and commonplace materials when making up their planting lists. Do not buy an unnamed iris or pæony because it is cheap nor pay an extravagant price for an untried novelty.

It is futile for the ordinary home gardener, who is not growing for the show table, to attempt to keep abreast of the hybridizers, especially in iris, delphiniums and phlox because novelty succeeds novelty in such rapid succession that what is new to-day soon becomes obsolete, or finds its level with the wealth of standard material available for the embellishments of the garden.

Some bewilderment may be experienced by the prospective gardener when confronted by the long list of irises in some of the catalogues. He will not go far wrong in choosing the following baker's dozen: White, Florentina; white with lavender suffusion, Camelot; white standard, purple falls, Rhein Nixe; yellow, Mrs. Sherwin Wright; yellow standards, purple falls, Princess Victoria Louise; yellow standards, maroon falls, Iris King; lavender and bluish purple, Pallida Dalmatical; blue-purple, Alcazar; light purple, Perfection; purple standards and dark purple falls, Parc de Neuilly; lilac and rose, Isoline; violet and reddish purple, Caprice; dull coppery standards and maroon falls, Ambassadeur. The list could be added to almost indefinitely but this will suffice for a start. Irises do not give of their best when crowded and overshadowed by robust neighbors in the perennial borders. If there is room give them special place in the sun and for late summer bloom, interplant with the gladiolus or an annual with foliage not too dense to shade the rhizomes of the iris which should be half exposed on the surface.

Selecting Pæonies.

Pæonies can be planted in the spring but it is advisable to defer it until the season's growth has been completed in September or early October. Pæonies do better as specimen in the perennial border than iris but they too will bloom more abundantly if given a special situation and well prepared ground. These two short lists may help the beginner to make a selection.

WHITE.

Expensive—Le Cygne, 9.9; Kelway's Glorious, 9.8; Elizabeth Barrett Browning, 9.2.

Moderate in Price—Festival Maxima, 9.3; Albatre, 8.7; Marie Lemoine, 8.5.

ROSE AND PINK.

Expensive—Therese, 9.8; Solange, 9.7; Tourangelle, 9.4.

Moderate in Price—M. Jules Elie, 9.2; Albert Crousse, 8.6; Germaine Bigot, 8.5.

RED.

Expensive — Phillipe Rivoire, 9.2; Longfellow, 9.0; Karl Rosenfeld, 8.8.

Moderate in Price—Adolphe Rosseau, 8.5; M. Martin Cahuzac, 8.8; Officinalis Ruhra.

Every pæony collection should include some of the graceful Imperial Japanese types. Three good ones are: White, Isani Gudui; carmine pink, Tokyo; bright carmine, akalu. Visit pæony collections in the neighborhood and compare varieties while they are in bloom. Then order the ones you like best for September delivery.

There is no more stately plant for the perennial border than the delphinium. Of recent years many outstanding named varieties have been produced. Amongst them might be named Sir Douglas Haig, Millicent Blackmore, Mrs. A. J. Watson, the Alake and Statuaire Rude. Unfortunately plants of these varieties are not easily procurable in Canada owing to the difficulty of bringing them across the Atlantic but seed can be had of these and other fine named kinds and the gardener who sows seed always has the chance of producing something just a little better.

For Later Bloom.

For August bloom reliance must be placed upon the sumptuous and sweetly fragrant phlox decussata—reminiscent of Grandmother's garden. A specialist's catalogue will list several hundred varieties but if the home gardener starts with twelve good ones he will by the simple process of division of the roots in spring have not only enough for his own needs but a surplus to exchange with his neighbors. A dozen good ones: Elizabeth Campbell, Frau Anton Buchner, Flora Horning, G. A. Strohlein, Le Mahdi, Rijnstroom, Von Hochberg, William Ramsay, Mont Blanc, Baron Von Dedem, Mrs. Ethel Pritchard.

And for all fall bloom do not forget the merits of the perennial asters or Michaelmas daisies. They will carry the garden right up to the threshold of winter and they are so hardy that a moderate freeze does not effect them. The kinds most suitable for the perennial border or for plantings apart are those belonging to the Novae Belgii, and Novae Angliae sections. These asters are great favorites with English gardeners and they have received much attention from the hybridizers who have turned out an almost alarming number of named varieties. They are worth growing and the late autumn garden especially where it is too cold for the outdoor varieties of chrysanthemums to survive, would be deprived of much of its interest and beauty if they were omitted from the plating list.

With the exception of the iris the plants enumerated are gross feeders and to do their best required deeply dug and well enriched ground. A little trouble but it pays.

FEEDING BABY CHICKS.

Agricultural College practice in feeding baby chicks is to supply sour milk for their first feed. After the chicks have had it before them for about two hours, feeding was begun sparingly with a scratch grain made up principally of finely cracked yellow corn. Mash feed was not supplied until the chicks were a week old.

YOUNG PEOPLES' LEAGUE MERGES IN NEW CHURCH

REPORTS COMPLETE.

Social Evening By Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge—Interesting Programme.

MILLBROOK, May 1 — The annual meeting of the Young People's League was held this week, Rev. F. H. Howard taking the chair. The attendance was most encouraging, and the reports presented showed that the work of the year had been carried on faithfully, and progress made along all lines.

Among those who gave an account of the year's activities in their individual departments, were the president, Miss Estelle Hetherington; and vice-presidents F. N. Alcorn, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mrs. P. Stinson, Mr. G. Elson.

The objective of $100 toward the Forward Movement for missions was reached, and a similar amount will be in view for the ensuing term.

The report of the Wide Awakes, C.G.I.T., group was presented by the president, Jean Burnham, as follows:

Number on the roll, 16; total attendance 68, average 12. Number of regular meetings since January, 5; two or three practices a week for special programmes, made it impossible to hold the usual business and devotional meetings since the New Year.

Among the special activities of the group last year was the sending of two members, Marjorie Sayles and Elsie Spence, to the C.G.I.T. training camp at Lake Couchiching, at an expense of nearly forty dollars; ten dollars was contributed to the church thankoffering fund last October. The amount now on hand is $9.72.

The meeting this week was the final annual gathering as part of the Methodist church, the young people's work becoming a branch of the United Church of Canada after June 10. But as all organizations are asked to go into the Union ready to carry on without any cessation of activities, officers were elected as usual, the list being:

Honorary President, Rev. F. H. Howard; Honorary Vice-President, Rev. J. Wilks; President, Miss S. Hetherington; First Vice-President, Jean Burnham (Devotional); Second Vice-President, Mrs. G. W. Sayles (Missionary); Third Vice-President, Mr. G. Elson (Citizenship); Fourth Vice-President, Mr. P. Stinson (Literary and Social); Fifth Vice-President, Miss P. Burnham (C.G.I.T. group); Secretary, Miss Hattie Barnard; Treasurer, Mrs. W. West; Organist, Miss Marjorie Skitch; Sixth Vice-President, Rev. F. H. Howard (Tuxis Square and Trail Rangers); Treasurer for Forward Movement Fund, Miss Etta Peel; Usher, Keith Barnard.

Brief addresses were made by the new officers, and a business meeting of the executive was held at the conclusion of the regular session.

Rebekahs' Social.

"Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, held its regular meeting on Tuesday evening, and at the conclusion of the business session a most enjoyable social gathering took place the committee in charge including Sisters I. Fallis, N.G.; C. Harkness, V.G.; M. Fallis, P.G.; and Z. Bentley, P.G.

Sister Irene Fallis, N.G., was in the chair for the formal programme, which included: Piano solo by Miss Ada Attwooll; Violin Solo by Mr. Eric Hunter; Piano duet by Misses May Byam and Hattie Barnard; Reading by Miss Pearl Burnham, and Vocal Solos by Mr. V. Hunter.

Four contests gave opportunity for everyone to have a share in the evenings activities: A Hunt for Kisses, with Mrs. A. Fallis, Mrs. T. Harkness, Mrs. H. A. Fallis, and Mrs. P. I. Bentley as captains of the four sections into which the company was divided, was won by Mrs. A. Fallis group, which succeeded in finding the hiding place of the largest number of the taffy balls concealed in the two rooms. A box of bon-bons was the prize shared by the group members.

The same partners were retained for the other three contests, the list of questions under the caption, "If Cupid were a modern man," bringing out some original ideas. Three couples—Miss May Byam and Mr. D. Sheppard, Miss H. Barnard and Mr. E. Morden, and Miss C. Hunter and Mr. F. Elliott were tied for the prize, the first named winning the cut.

The Musical Competition, Miss Barnard at the piano, was won by Miss A. Attwooll and Mr. V. R. Hunter, while the winners in the Guessing Advertisements contest were Mrs. H. Tate and Mr P. I. Bentley.

Sterling silver bar pins for the ladies, and shaving cream for the men were the prizes in each case.

Supper was served in the dining-hall, Brothers J. A. Vance, P.G., and H. A. Fallis, P.G., on behalf of the subordinate Lodge, expressing the appreciation felt by all for the very pleasant evening which had been enjoyed.

Personals.

Rev. G. S. Gervan and son, Russell, went to Ottawa on Tuesday. Mr. Gervan will officiate at the marriage of his sister on Wednesday of this week.

Mrs. L. S. Clarry went to Ottawa this week for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Max Cameron.

Rev. Mr. Graham, of Blakney, near Ottawa, will preach in Grace Presbyterian church next Sunday morning and evening. Mr. Gervan will take Mr. Graham's work the same day.

WAIT AND SEE

LONDON, May 1 (Canadian Press).—With Field Marshal von Hindenburg at the head of the German state and a new government in power in France, the British have fallen back on the policy of "wait and see," so far as the European security situation is concerned.

British officials presume that Germany will stand by her security proposals, which on this side of the channel, at any rate, were adopted as the basis of negotiations for the building of permanent peace in Europe.

Land Was Distributed by Lot and Cost Very Small Sum.

In the year 1823 in the south of Ireland there was much distress and poverty. The potato crop had been a failure for two years in succession, which, coupled with the lack of employment, made the situation very serious in that country. The British Government came to the rescue by appropriating the sum of sixty thousand pounds sterling for the purpose of bringing out immigrants to Upper Canada. In the year 1823 a number of families and single men were sent out to Upper Canada and settled in the district of Bathurst, part of which is now the County of Lanark. The vessels which brought out those families were the "Hebe" and "Stakesby," the former carried 198 adults and 91 children, while the latter carried 184 persons over 14 years and 96 children.

Reports were received early in the year 1825 that settlers and immigrants were proving successful. Mr. Peter Robinson, a brother of Honorable John Bevelry Robinson of York (Toronto), was requested to supervise another immigration acting both in Ireland and Lanark. Inside of three months, 50,200 applications were made, but it was decided that only 2,000 would be allowed to leave the country. Each applicant was required to be recommended by some one of trust, who knew the habits, industry, conduct and general character of the applicants. Not only was an application necessary, but a certificate of character had to be obtained, and in many cases this had to be written on the back of the application, as paper was scarce in those days. Each certificate bears the endorsement of Mr. Robinson and it will be noted that only one out of every thirty applications was accepted. Nine ships were provided by the Royal Navy in April and were to be used the following month. The names of the vessels and the date of their sailing from the Cove of Cork is as follows:

The drawing of the lots by the immigrants was arranged thus: tickets were placed in a box, each ticket representing a lot number, and concession, according to the plan of Douro township. This plan was drawn by Richard Birdsall in 1823. Each man drew a ticket out of the box which decided the location of his future home. Every man over 18 years and not exceeding 45 years received a tract of 70 acres subject to a small rent of two pence per acre. This was to be paid half yearly. The crown reserved 30 acres adjoining each 70 acres granted, for the period of ten years to give the settler a chance to buy the same for the sum of ten pounds sterling. When the settler had completed his settlement duties he could obtain his patent by paying the expenses of preparing the same, an amount not exceeding two pounds, ten shillings sterling on each grant.

A limited number of men were accepted whose age exceeded 45 years. Those were men who had practical experience in farming and were taken in order that they would, by advice, assist the younger men who had comparatively no experience. Several women who had been known in their neighborhoods as being capable and experienced in maternity cases and familiar with the application of home remedies were also included. They were of great benefit to the community as there was no doctor in Scott's Plains (Peterborough) at that time.

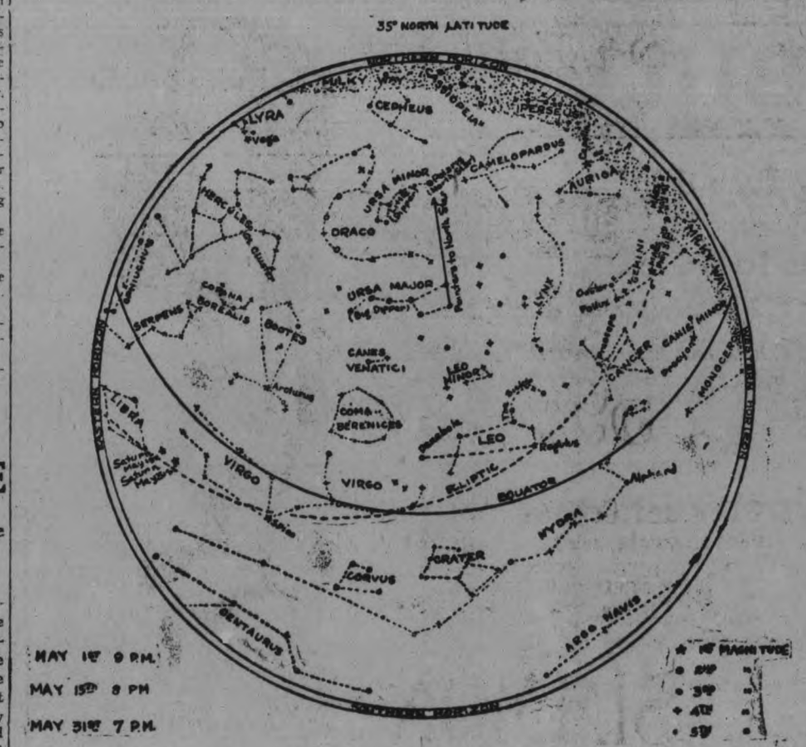
THE EVENING SKY MAP FOR MAY



This map shows the heavens as they appear at 9 p. m. May 1, 8 p.m. May 15 and 7 p. m. May 31 in 35 degrees in latitude will make little difference in the appearance of the heavens so the map can be used in all parts of the United States

The map is to he held inverted or over the head with the top toward the north. The constellations will then be seen as they appear in the heavens.

The Big Dipper in Ursa Major, the Greater Bear, now lies directly on the meridian due north. Beween Ursa Major and Ursa Minor, the Lesser Bear, which is known also as the Little Dipper, with the North Star, Polaris at the end of the handle, will be found part of the constellation of Draco, the Dragon. The tail of Draco lies just north of the bowl of the Big Dipper and the head lies north of the huge constellation of Hercules, which will now be seen in the northeastern part of the heavens.

Leo, the Lion, is now in the western sky near the meidian. The second magnitude star, Denebola, at the top of the tail of Leo, is directly on the meridian due south at this time.

Next to Leo on the east is the large zodiacal constellation of Virgo, the Virgin, which contains the bluish-white first magnitude star, Spica. Also in Virgo at this time will be found the yellowish planet, Saturn, some distnce to the east of Spica.

North of Virgo and high in the eastern evening sky is the kite-shaped constellation of Bootes, in which will be found the orage-colored Arcturus. Vega, now visible in the northeast, Capella in Auriga, far over in the northwest, and Arcturus in Bootes are the three brightest stars of the northern hemisphere of the heavens. They are almost exactly equal in brightness, though very different in color.

Mars is still visible low in the western sky, passing this month from Tarus into Gemini. Venus is now in the western sky also, but is still too close to the sun to be seen this month.

BURNBRAE SERVICES

Large Attendance at St. Andrew's Church—Sunday School Successful.

BURNBRAE, May 1.—The Sunday morning service at St. Andrew's was well attended, when Rev. Mr. McKenzie delivered his special address to the young people. With inspiring and searching phrases, he placed before the assembled young people, the great need of taking a definite stand for their Lord and Saviour.

The Sunday school is getting off to a fine start. Sunday last was the second since the school reopened at Easter and the attendance was over one hundred. The school library has been put in good shape with the addition of several new books.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie has continued his round of visits in the congregation since the roads have improved.

Attended Meeting.

A number of the young men from Burnbrae attended the organization meeting of the Seymour Baseball League held in the Seymour parsonage on Saturday evening. Ernest Eagleson is the member of the executive representing the local team. A meeting will be held shortly to organize the Burnbrae team and get ready for the opening of the season about the 24th of May. Burnbrae should be able to place a fairly strong team on the field, although one or two good players will be lost to Hoard's, who are newcomers in the game.

PROTEST AGAINST ANGLO-CATHOLICS

Dean Inge One of Signers Against Inclusion of Catholic Feasts.

LONDON, May 1.— (Canadian Press.)—Dean William Ralph Inge of St. Paul's Cathedral, who now is in the United States, is among the prominent clerical and lay signers of a striking protest headed "A call to action," published in all the papers here yesterday. It attacks the recent resolution of the House of Clergy of the Church of England in favor of observing under another name the Roman Catholic festival of Corpus Christi. The plan was proposed by the Anglo-Catholic, or High Church, wing of the Church of England, which its opponents charge with conspiring to Catholicize the Church of England and ultimately to re-unite it with the Church of Rome.

The manifesto also protests against the proposal, recently discussed by the House of Clergy to give the Catholic feast of the Assumption a place among the saints' days with a special collect epistle and gospel in the Book of Common Prayer.

NIGHT AIR SERVICE WILL SOON START

NEW YORK, May 1 (United Press)—Sponsored by a group of wealthy men, including Henry and Edsel Ford, a night air express service between here and Chicago will be organized within two months, according to C. M. Keys, vresident of the Curtis Airplane Motor Co.

Two planes will fly each way six nights a week, Keys said. The air express is expected to be used extensively by motion picture concerns in the transportation of news reels.

NEW GLASS PERFECTED

Withstood Rigorous Treatment in Recent Severe Tests.

LONDON,, May 1.—Unsplinterable glass for spectacles has at last been perfected, according to scientists who witnessed a demonstration in London recently when hammers and even a shot gun were used to prove the contention of the manufacturers. This glass, it is claimed, may be ground to any lens curvature required for eyeglasses and spectacles, and is intended particularly for the use of sportsmen and football players who otherswise might have their sight injured by splinters or broken glass in a crash or through accident.

Included in the test was a demonstration in which the lenses were fired at with a shot gun from a distance of 30 yards. No shot penetrated the glass, said the experts, and no splinters flaked loose.

Though unsplinterable sheet glass has been in existence several years, being used for motor wind screens, aviator's goggles and the like, scientists declared they had not been able to produce a hard, clear, safety glass that would take the curves prescribed by opticians for spectacle lenses.

FIVE CARS BURNED.

Blaze Started From Gasoline Ignited by Electric Drill.

BRACEBRIDGE, May 1.—(Canadian Press).—A bad fire occurred here on Wednesday night in Rose Warne's garage, which completely gutted the building. Five cars were burned which were in for repairs.

One of the employees was badly burned in making his escape. The fire was caused by gasoline igniting from an electric drill.

MEASLES KILL MORE THAN MURDERERS

Deaths From Measles in England 138 Per Million Against 6 Murdered.

LONDON, May 1 (nited News).—Measles are deadlier than murders in Great Britain. The reason is that almost any one can lug a measle germ around in his pocket, while toting a gun is dangerous business.

One hundred and thirty-eight persons out of each 1,000,000 in Britain die of measles annually, while murderers reduce each million by six.

Criminals compelled to slay account for five out of each six murders, according to statistics, and only one person in 1,000,000 succumbs to deliberate malice.

The British female is more deadly than the male. Eighty-three men were convicted of murder in 1923 and 87 women. Thirteen men and one woman were hanged. Most of the women convicted had killed illegitimate children. Such persons are usually quietly released from prison after a year or two.

VIENNA POPULAR

VIENNA, (By mail to United Press).—Austria is fast replacing Switzerland as a haven for political refugees. The latest arrival who can be so classed is Bishop Fan Noli, fomer ruler of Albania. With five hundred "Fannolists" who, with him, fled from Albania when Achmed Beg Zogu entered at the of a victorious army, he has taken up residence in Vienna.

Once on Austrian soil political refugees are protected against extradition by the government. In return for this protection they are supposed to refrain from further political activity and plotting.

SOFIA DEMANDS DEATH PENALTY

For Bombing of Cathedral, in Which 160 Bulgarians Were Killed.

SOFIA, May 1. — (Canadian Press).—An indictment, demanding the death penalty for those accused of committing the recent cathedral bombing in Sofia, read Thursday to the investigating court martial, charged that this and other outrages were the work of a conspirator's committee, formerly in conjunction with delegates of a secret Communist committee and with Agrarian Party Communists.

Those indicted are Sacristan Freedman of the Sveti Kral Cathedral, where the explosion which killed 160 persons occurred; former Communist Deputy Grantcharoff, who was shot by police Tuesday; and Communist leaders Petrini, Kossovski, Koeff and Dimitroff. With the exception of Freedman and Petrini, who are under arrest, and Grantcharoff, who has been killed, all the accused have escaped.

The indictment said that the bomb was not placed in the cathedral by the Terrorist, Minkoff, who has been killed but by an engineer named Abadjieff. A defence counsel has been retained and about fifty witnesses have been summoned.

EDWARD COVENEY.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 1. — Campbellford lost another of its pioneer and respected residents in the passing of Edward Coveney, who died ot his summer cottage near the power house at Dam 8 at 9.30 on Thursday morning, after an illness of less than two weeks' duration. Very few people had heard that he was indisposed, so that his death was in the nature of a shock to the entire community.

The late Edward Coveney was born in the County of Prince Edward 84 years ago. When he was 10 years old he came to this district, so that for almost three quarters of a century he had been a resident of Seymour Township. He was one of the oldest and most successful farmers of this district. His son Allan is now on the homestead, the father retiring some years ago to Campbellford. Only a short time ago, accompanied by one of his daughters, he moved to a cottage on the farm, intending to reside there for the summer, so that he died on the farm on which he had settled so long ago.

The deceased early in life was married to Catherine Killoran, a resident of this vicinity, who died 14 years ago. The couple raised a family of seven, four daughters and three sons. The former are: Miss Mary, who resided with her father, Miss Lillian, Mrs. James Daly, whose husband is collector of Customs here, and Mrs. Michael Butler of Peterboro. The sons are: Allan on the homestead, Peter of Campbellford and C. H., who is well known as the proprietor of the Queen's Hotel here.

The remains were removed Friday to the Queen's Hotel, from which the funeral will be held at 9.30 on Saturday morning to St. Mary's Church, of which the deceased had been a life-long and devoted member.

The late Edward Coveney was a man of sterling character, one of the sturdy characters who took up pioneer life on the land in Seymour Township, who struggled against heavy odds and discouragements to conquer the wilderness and who, one by one, are now passing away. He belonged to no organization, took no active part in public life, but devoted all his time to his chosen calling. He had always been a man of remarkable physical vigor and did not give up work until a few years ago.

After Sixty Years.

The remains of the late Mr. Coveney will be interred in St. Mary's Cemetery, and it is recalled in this connection that the deceased attended the first funeral ever held there. That was at the burial of John Lee, who died about 60 years ago. Mr. Coveney attended in a capacity other than that of a mourning friend and relative. He was at that time the only man in the district who owned a team of horses and a spring waggon, and at the Lee funeral this outfit was used as a hearse, with Mr. Coveney as driver.

There were no special carriages for the dead at that time in this district, and people gathered from all parts to attend funerals or church services in primitive vehicles drawn by oxen.

The late Mr. Coveney lived to see a wilderness converted into a garden and no one took a more active part in working this change than he. He first went to the farm on which he died over a trail through the woods, and he was obliged to cut a space in the forest clear of trees to find room in which to build a modest home. Yesterday his remains were carried in a motor vehicle from that farm to the home of his son in Campbellford.

A large number of friends called at the Queen's Hotel last night to view the remains, and to offer the relatives their condolences.

FIREMEN CARE FOR ORPHAN SQUIRRELS

Mother Killed By Automobile—Young Ones at Fire Hall.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 1. — (Canadian Press).—The members of the Woodstock fire department are acting as "good samaritans" once more, the objects of their kindliness this time being four baby squirrels. The mother of these animals was very friendly with J. Henry Brown, and the other day while running across the street in response to his call, she was killed by an automobile. The firemen were called in to relieve the four little ones from their nest, where they were in danger of starving, and they were taken from the tree to the fire hall, where they were placed in a box. They are being fed from a milk bottle, and although it was hard at first to induce them to drink by this method, they have now become accustomed to it, and are making remarkable progress. Several requests have been received by the Fire Chief from citizens for one of the animals, but the firemen refuse to part with them, and intend to keep them at the fire hall as mascots.

MILK PRICE CUT.

Montreal Consumers To Pay 12c. a Quart.

MONTREAL, May 1.—(Canadian Press)—Milk prices in Montreal will be reduced from 13 to 12 cents a quart to-day, it was announced here yesterday. Consumers are given the benefit of a drop of four cents a gallon in the cost of those handling the milk. Up to yesterday that cost has been 25 cents a gallon; now it is 21 cents.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS CUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach,' says a well know authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Blaurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

ATTACK CAUSES FASCIST WRATH

CULTURE ONE-SIDED

ROME, May 1 (Associated Press)—Benedetto Croce, whose position as Italy's leading philosopher and foremost intellectual figure is seldom disputed, has brought down upon himself the wrath of Fascism's leaders and has become the storm center of a vigorous controversy among publicists of culture by publishing a spirited defence of liberalism.

Rejecting the thesis that liberalism, political and cultural is dead, and that the present-day struggle is solely between socialism and communism on the one hand and ultra-conservatism, reactionism and Fascism on the other, Croce, in a recent article, asserted that, Fascism notwithstanding, Italy would some day again have to turn to a liberal government and to a liberal culture.

Fascist culture, he asserted, was one-sided and superficial. Fascists were fond of talking of history and the historical significiance of their cause, but they never had really learned the true lesson of history that only a decadent state would eventually reject it. Fascists also never tired of talking of Italian national traditions, but they seldom realized that their extreme nationalist ideas were initiated by French nationalists like Charles Maurras and Maurice Barres. Authoritarianism, Crace declared, was necessarily transitory and provisional, and the Fascists were again proving of their creativeness.

But, Croce continued, while neither the extreme Right nor the extreme Left was quite sterile, each having its partial place in a national culture, liberalism was necessary to the state because it was the only creed which expressed "the necessity of giving free play, whenever possible, to the spontaneous and inventive forces of individuals and social groups," and because it was the only force which made for real mental moral and economic progress.

The article has drawn many heated responses from Fascist leader writers, most of whom declare that Croce's arguments need no serious answers and that his influence is on the wane among younger Italians. The spokesmen of the cultural aspect of Fascism condemn the philosopher's point of view as dry and pedantic, and assert that the living force of Facist youth will create on Italian culture much more important than that which Croce has gleaned from German philosophy. One of these answers sums up the case in the sentence: "The true work of art and thought is born without preparation and without education."

DRYS GAINING IN MERRY ENGLAND

Consumption of Spirits is Greatly Reduced During Past Year.

DRINK MORE BEER

LONDON, May 1 (United Press)—Is prohibition or rather the spirit of it, graually creeping over England.

It is, judging by the activities of the United Kingdom Alliance, the anti-saloon organiation, and the insistent demands by reformers for the improvement of the existing public-houses on the lines of the French cafe or the German "bierhause," which strikes a distinct parallel to the campaigns in the United States against the saloon carried on for many years by the anti-saloon league before prohibition became law.

The United Kingdom Alliance has given great publicity to its statement on the drink bill for Great Britain. Statistics compiled show that the expenditure on alcoholic liquors in Great Britain in 1924 increased by two and three-quarters percent, as compared with the expenditure and consumption in 1923. The amount spent on intoxicating liquors jumped from 307,500,000 pounds in 1923 to 316,000,000 pounds in 1924.

This increase, however, is mainly due to the increased consumption of beer, in consequence of the reduction in the price of that commody which came into force in April, 1923. Where only 24,989,000 bulk barrels of beer were consumed in 1923, figures for 1924 show a consumption of 26,437,000. The high price of spirits continued to check the consumption. The amount consumed in 1924 is only half of what was consumed in the pre-war year 1913, being 14,337,000 proof gallons as against 28,713,000.

The National Milk Publicity Council is also a member of the campaign It is shown in its report that only 700,000,000 gallons of milk were consumed in 1924, as against 1,000,000,000 gallons of beer. An important point often overlooked by British prohibitionists is the amount of revenue which goes into the national exchequer by the taxation of alcoholic liquors. Where before the war a bottle of whisky cost only 2s. 6d., a similar bottle now costs 12s. 6d., of which increase about 8s. is represented by tax. Taxation figures for 1924 show that 137,100,000 pounds was collected, representing 52,000,000 pounds on spirits, 81,400,000 pounds on beer and 3,700,000 pounds on wines. It is estimated that nearly 675,000 persons are employed in the trade.

The case for the reform of the public houses is based on the comfortless conditions of the majority of the licensed premises and the get-runk-quick methods compared with those of the Continent. The reformers point out that the existing provisions are productive of quick drinking, and are calculated to promote drunkenness, as one has to take a drink standing wedged by a struggling, thirsty mass against a bar. One must drain one's glass at a gulp, or it may be spilled by some jostling neighbor. The reformers maintain that is just what the manager wants to see—everyone with head thrown back, swigging off his drink, as if his life depended on gulping it down in the shortest possible time.

Another sore point with the reformers is the licensing hours. They point out the absurdity of allowing one public house to close at 11 p.m. while its neighbor across the street closes its door at 10 p.m.

The reformers have taken encouragement by the introduction in the House of Lords of a bill by Lord Novar aimed at the improvement of conditions of licensed premises in Scotland.

CRITICS LIKE OPERA

COLOGNE, May 1.—The Cologne Opera company lays claim to the biggest musical find of the year. It has put on "The Love for the Three Oranges," the work of a Russian composer, Serge Prokofieff, and musical critics from all over Europe speak well of the production.

They virtually unite in saying that there is a spontaneity and geniality about the music such as none of the younger modern composers have been able to show. One is reminded of the genius of Richard Strauss The stage decorations are unusual and fascinating and the text is grotesque, humorous, and in part ironical.

The story, a fantastic one, is told with so much wholesome humor with so much brilliant coloring both on the stage and in the instrumentation, that the critics prophesy complete success.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

WOMEN'S CLUB CLOSES YEAR

Discussion of Two Canadian Artists Completes Season's Programme.

AT CONSERVATORY.

The Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association held their last meeting for this season this week in the studio at the Conservatory of Music, with Mrs. F. A. Hodgson as hostess.

The attention of the meeting was occupied by a discussion of the work of two outstanding Canadian artists: Mr. and Mrs. McGillivray Knowles, and with a review of the work of Sir Edwin Landseer, given by Mrs. C. A. Adair.

Mr. Knowles has been the recipient of medals from several American cities and is a member of the R.C.A. Three of his pictures, "The Wayside Cross," "Beaupre" and "St. Leven's Church, Cornwall," are in the National Gallery at Ottawa.

Mrs. Knowles is also an artist of outstanding ability. Her pictures of rural scenes and farmyard life are colorful and faithful in detail, having earned for her the title of the Rosa Bonheur of the barnyard feathered tribe. One of the most notable is "Maternal Cares," a lovely canvas showing a mother hen and her three chicks. One of the birds stands near a basin of water, stretching its neck for a drink, another is searching for a worm, and the other, with feet firm on the ground, stands looking out. The mother bird is attentive to all.

Among the landscapes painted by Mrs. Knowles are "When the frost is on the pumpkin" and "The Dreamer," the latter being a great favorite with the artist herself. Mrs. Knowles, who also excels in the painting of dainty miniatures, has two pictures in the National Gallery at Ottawa: "Nocturne" and "Drink to me only with thine eyes."

Sir Edwin Landseer.

Mrs. Adair's paper, dealing with the life and work of Sir Edwin Landseer, was given in delightfully humorous and informative fashion.

Edwin Landseer, who was born in 1802 and died in 1873, started to paint when he was a very young child, his first attempts being made at the age of three years. He came from a long line of artistic forbears, and won a medal for painting at the age of ten. He was really an authority in the painting of animals, and brought the dog into great prominence in art. In his paintings is much descriptive work of dog character, and the critics called his paintings "Story pictures" that delineated the character of animals on canvas.

He was an extremely popular painter. For fifty years, more of his pictures were sold in England than those of any other artist, and he did a great deal of work for Queen Victoria, with whom he was a favorite. He modelled the lions for the great Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square.

Landseer was the youngest member ever admitted to the Royal Academy, entering that august body at the age of twenty-four. He amassed a large fortune from his paintings, realizing a fortune of nearly a million and one-half dollars before his death. He was assisted to a great degree by his father and brother, who engraved his paintings and sent them into thousands of homes.

Some of the best known of Landseer's pictures are "Dignity and Impudence," "Suspense," "The Highland Shepherd's Chief Mourner" and "A Distinguished Member of the Humane Society."

Dear Sir,—

Your very valuable car arrived here last Friday. On behalf of the Relief Committee I desire to thank you and kind associates for this splendid donation. The industrial situation still looks very dark. Our organization keeps away from the dispute between Board and te men; our work is entirely that of Relief. The hungry are to be fed and to that alone we attend.

St. Luke's Church Auxiliary Held Successful Gathering Yesterday.

The Junior Auxiliary of St. Luke's Church, a society of junior girls from the ages of seven to fourteen, held a well-attended and very successful afternoon tea and sale of home-made cooking and candy at St. Luke's Rectory yesterday afternoon. Mrs. G. J. Bousfield is superintendent of the Auxiliary and Mrs. E. Heap assistant superintendent.

Tea was poured by Mrs. George W. Nicholls and Mrs. H.A. Perry, at a table prettily arranged with pink roses and silver candelabra. Members of the Auxiliary assisted in serving tea.

A sale of home-made cooking was in charge of Miss Muriel Davis, and the Misses Margaret Whittaker and Mary Scott sold home-made candy, with assistance by members.

During the afternoon, a pleasing programme was given, with vocal solos by Mrs. E. V. Storey and readings by Mrs. H. Connolly.

An interesting portion of the entertainment was the exhibit of some of the work done by the children, including several pieces of needlework and an autograph quilt excited much favorable comment, and which will be shown at the annual meeting of the Diocesan Woman's Auxiliary, which takes place in Toronto on May 11th.

FABLES ON HEALTH.

CAUSES OF HIVES

An application of hot towels is the most effective temporary relief for hives, Mrs. Mann learned.

The hot towels should be barely touched to the affected parts, and then instantly withdrawn so as to avoid blistering.

If the touching is repeated this way a number of times it will afford relief from itching, and will generally cause the eruption to disappear.

Sometimes it is most convenient to hold the affected parts over a bath tub and splash the water on it with a basin.

A person affected with hives, however, should not be satisfied with temporary relief. He should begin checking up on the foods he eats.

If he does not know what particular food is disagreeing with him, a doctor, by means of a sensitivity test, will be able to find out.

Authorities are agreed that there are many foods that give rise to hives, though the same food may not have the same effect on all people.

TRAINING YOUR DOG

Here is another difficult trick which will require patience on your part and long practice. It is called the nose stand.

You will have hard work to teach the dog just what you want him to do. We will, for the first time, use the whip, not to punish, but to aid him in holding his hind-quarters in the air while walking on his front feet.

Grasp the dog by the back feet with your left hand and hold the whip in your right hand. Start him walking in a circle around you while you hold up his hind-quarters. Turn him around slowly and at the same time tap his back feet with the whip, but do it very lightly. Do not cause the dog any pain.

Be carful not to tire him by long practice periods on this trick. It will take a month of daily training before he will offer to walk this way without the aid of his master.

When he has learned the trick, teach him to go into it from your cue, which is given by the moving of your foot.

BOARD OF WORKS HAS BUSY NIGHT

Talk of Sewers, Sidewalks and Sweeping Fills Big Session.

The Reeves of North Monaghan and Smith Townships visited the Board of Works, by invitation, last night to discuss the question of laying sewers on the boundary roads. Warden H. B. Rye, of Monaghan, was first on the scene, and all questions pertaining to the south and west boundaries of the city were thoroughly covered. A sewer connection to some houses owned by W. J. Byers was the first matter, and Mr. Rye said that he would take it up with the Township Council at its next meeting. He said that there would likely be no objection as long as the road was left in good condition. With regard to Mr. Byers' sewer connection, that would have to be an agreement between Mr. Byers and the city, and the Council of North Monaghan could not enter into it. While this question was under discussion Alderman Turner asked who would pay for the sewer, saying that the city should not pay any portion of the cost to serve a resident of the township, but this part of the question was laid over for further consideration.

The repair of Lansdowne Street, where a sewer was recently laid, was also mentioned, and Mr. Rye said that as it had been in need of repairs before it was probable that the repairs would be carried out by the township on the usual 50-50 basis.

While he was there, Mr. Rye called the attention of the Board to the need of a sidewalk along the Monaghan Road from Chamberlain Street to the Prince of Wales' School. A large number of children comes up the boundary to school and there is considerable automobile traffic along the road. It was later decided that a cinder path be laid from Chamberlain Street to Wolfe Street and a concrete walk from Wolfe Street to Sherbrooke Street.

Reeve Bert Middleton of Smith Township was present and said there would be no objection to the city building a sewer on Wolseley Street if the road was left in good condition. The request of Mr. Laplant for aid in building a fence at the corner, which at the last meeting of the Board was referred to Smith Township, he said, should have been sent to the Suburban Area Commission.

Street Oiling Early.

The oiling of the city streets commenced on April 28, when the east side of Aylmer Street received its annual treatment. This is a much earlier start than was made in any previous year, said R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, as the first application has usually been made about May 15.

An application from some of the residents for calcium chloride instead of oil, was not encouraged by Mr. Parsons. He said that this material, when properly applied, is very successful, but that it requires four applications every summer, which costs considerable money and is not of great value on roads that have been oiled. In view of his explanation it was decided not to use any of the chemical.

Pavement Problems.

A number of complaints have been made about the dustless sweeper. Some people want it run in the night so as not to interrupt traffic and others want it run in the daytime so as not to interrupt sleep. At present most of the work is done between 2.00 and 7.00 in the morning, although some is done in the afternoon. The matter was left to the chairman and engineer, who will endeavor to please everybody.

In speaking of the sweeper, the Mayor said that a visiting gentleman who had driven around the city recently had complimented him on the cleanness of the city streets.

A proposal that the firemen should flush the streets occasionally at night was not acted on, as it had been turned down in former years on the Chief's dissent.

The City Engineer was given authority to purchase a car of material at a cost of about $300 to repair the holes in the asphalt pavement. He reported that this could be applied with the city's present apparatus and would make a very satisfactory job.

Streets Not Washracks.

The City Engineer reported that certain parties are making a practice of washing cars on the city streets, sometimes on the asphalt. He also complained that the wash racks in garages are connected direct to the sewers without any arrangement to prevent all the mud and grit from going down the sewer. It was moved and carried that a by-law be prepared requiring the insertion of a proper device between wash-racks and the sewers and forbidding the practice of washing cars on the roads.

Mr. Parsons reported that 2 sets of plans for the sewage disposal plant had been sent out and 17 sets for the pumps.

Roller Nearly Ready.

On being questioned about the road roller, Alderman Crowe said that the work of repairing the machine was progressing quite rapidly. He said that the men who were working on it had told him that it was the dirtiest machine that had come into the foundry and it took two days to get it cleaned up so that the difference between the brass and iron parts was noticeable. Alderman Denne expressed the hope that the brass parts would not shine enough to frighten horses on the streets.

New Work.

Sidewalks will be built on Benson Avenue, west side; Walkerfield Avenue, north side; Mark Street, near the lake, west side; Cluxton Avenue, Water Street, east side; Barnardo to Argyle, Monaghan Road, east side; Wolfe to Sherbrooke Streets, Douglas Avenue, both sides, and Brewer Street, west side.

Sewers will be built on Smith Street, west from Downie, Wolseley Street and Edinburgh Street.

The request for a supply of road oil for Little Lake Cemetery will be granted on the usual terms.

Alderman Denne asked if the gravel being used for the city's work could not be purchased from a dealer in the city. The City Engineer said that for concrete use the only gravel from pits in the city was unsuitable, as it contained too fine a quality of sand.

Alderman Turner called attention to slight fills on the edge of Lock Street, near Lansdowne Street, which obstruct the flow of surface water. This will be looked into.

A letter was read from the City Solicitor stating that control of the Provincial Highway is vested in the Department of Highways of Ontario and that permission would have to be obtained from them, and not from the Township of North Monaghan, to build a sewer along the road to supply the lots on the north side.

Shot Man Out Of Pity, German Is Acquitted

POSEN, May 1. — Heintz Muehlnickel, a German aviator, recently was acquitted in criminal court of a charge of murder which grew out of the fact that he killed a wounded Russian out of pity. After the World War Muehlnickel enlisted in the Polish army ,and during the Polis-Russia conflict of 1920 a defective motor compelled him to land midway between the opposing lines.

Muehlnickel came upon a mortally wounded Russian, one of whose legs had been torn away. There was another ghastly wound in his side. The man, an agent of the Communists stationed with the Red Army, implored the aviator to shoot him and put him out of his misery.

At first Muehlnickel refused, but finally unable to bear the sight of the suffering man and fearful that his yells would reveal his own whereabouts to the enemy, he shot him. The next day he buried the man and reported the occurrence to his superior officers.

HIGHER OPERATING PROFITS FOR GENERAL ELECTRIC CO.

Increase of $113,398 Over 1923—The Net Profits Down $99,609.

WRITE DOWN ASSETS.

TORONTO, May 1 — Operating profits of the Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, for the year ended December 31, 1924, showed an improvement over those of the previous year, while net profits, due to a larger write-off for depreciation, were slightly lower than in 1923, but were more than sufficient to take care of dividends paid during the period.

In presenting the financial report to the shareholders at the annual meeting here yesterday, President A. E. Dyment said: "Conditions in our industry, as in practically all industries, were not as satisfactory in 1924 as they were in the preceding year. The improvement experienced in 1923, which was somewhat accentuated during the closing months of that year, unfortunately, only extended into the opening months of 1924, so that the volume of business secured during the year now under review was considerably less than for 1923."

Profit and Loss.

Operating profits for the year of $1,593,632 are shown against $1,482,234 in 1923. After deduction of depreciation allowance of $600,000 and interest and exchange charges of $415,158, net profits of $578,474 remained. Dividends of $364,912 were paid on the preferred and $147,315 on the common, leaving surplus profits of $66,246. Adding the balance forward from 1923 total surplus amounted to $6,696,015. An appropriation of $3,951,910, was transferred to general reserves, reducing the surplus to $2,744,105.

A comparison of the consolidated profit and loss account for 1924 with that of 1923 follows:

Operat'g profits	$1,593,632	$1,482,234
Depreciation	600,000	400,000
Int. & exchange	415,158	404,152
Net profits	578,474	678,083
Dividends	512,227	822,985
Surplus	2,744,105	5,696,015

From the special reserve of $3,951,910, the sum of $1,951,910 was written off and applied in reducing to a realizable basis the book values of certain plants which have been closed down, absorbing the balance of the discount on the debenture issue and in substantially increasing working reserves as a provision against unforseen contingencies.

Balance Sheet

The strong liquid position of the company was maintained, the ratio of current assets to liabilities being 353 per cent., against 324 per cent. at the end of 1923. Current assets stand at $10,074,630 and current liabilities 2,948,856, leaving net working capital of $7,125,774 compared with $8,841,874. Inventories have been reduced from $7,143,390.95 in 1923 to $5,002,739.21, a decrease of $2,145,651.74, which would indicate a much healthier condition. Accounts and notes receivable stand at $4,-255,470, a decrease of $231,054, while cash on hand amounts to $816,420 as against $429,446 at the end of 1923, an increase of $386,975. Accounts and notes payable are shown as $2,-844,598; a decrease of $945,666, a very creditable reduction.

Following is a comparison of the principal items of the balance sheet for the past two years:

Total assets ...	$31,716,639	$34,565,737
Fixed asset	21,248,227	21,129,086
Current assets ..	10,074,630	12,794,176
Current liabilities	2,948,856	3,952,262
Cash	816,420	429,445
Inventories	5,002,739	7,148,391
Receivables	4,255,470	4,486,524
Payables	2,844,598	3,790,264
Capital..	12,800,000	12,800,000
Debenture debt	5,000,000	5,000,000
Reserves..	7,753,977	5,453,124

While not reflected in the balance sheet the directors make reference to the recent issue of capital stock and the retirement of the debentures of the company. The issued capital now amounts to $18,000,000. As the debentures ranked ahead of both classes of capital stock their redemption has improved the position of the shareholders, and as they have been replaced by capital stock, half of which consisted of common shares carrying no dividend obligation, it will mean a considerable saving to the company each year in interest charges.

President's Report

In discussing the report Mr. Dyment stated that while on the whole the results for the year had not been as satisfactory as could be desired the operation of the electrical department had been quite favorable, but had been minimized by unsatisfactory results of some of the subsidiary undertakings.

Mr. Dyment also stated that while immediate prospects were none too bright the manufacturing equipment of the company was being placed in improved condition to take care of any demand which may arise with increasing prosperity and better business conditions throughout the country.

Operations Lighter

In discussion after the close of the meeting, Mr. Dyment stated that operations generally were running at from five to six per cent. lower than at this time last year. The entire average, he intimated, would be between 40 and 50 per cent. The percentage in the electrical business was highest, but operations of the Canadians Allis-Chalmers were at a very low rate, and the flour milling machinery subsidiary at Stratford and the structural steel plant at Toronto were closed down. It was largely the reduction of book values of the two better plants to realizable values that had occasioned the heavy write-off. Orders now on the books of the company were lighter than at this time last year, but the company had recently closed the largest individual electrical machinery order ever placed in Canada. It amounted to between $800,000 and $900,000 in value, and was for the electrical equipment of the new mill of the International Paper Company, Lt., at Trois Rivieres, Que.

New Office Created

Following the practice of the parent company and of other American industrial and financial corporations the office of chairman of the board was created, the occupant of which will be the chief executive officer of the company. To this position Mr. Albert E. Dyment was elected, and will therefore continue as head of the company. The presidency, which has been vacated by Mr. Dyment, was filled by the election of Mr. D. C. Durlard, who joined the board about a year ago following the acquisition by the General Electric Company of large stock interests in the Canadian company. Mr. J. H. Black, of Toronto, president of the Great Lakes Paper Company, was added to the board to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sir William Price. Other directors elected were J. J. Ashworth, George W. Beardmore, H. C. Cox, D. C. Durland, A. E. Dyment, Stephen Haas, Sir Herbert Holt, Sir James Lougheed, W. L. Matthews, F. G. Osler, E. G. Patterson, W. D. Ross, W. G. Ross and A. M. Stewart.

PLAN MADE IN PETERBOROUGH EXHIBITION TO OPEN IN JUNE

Replaces Old Motor Show to Aid the Health Association.

MEETING HELD.

Committees Appointed and Business of Preparation Started Last Night.

An additional page to civic history was prepared last night in the Chamber of Commerce when a meeting of the Peterborough Health Association and gentlemen representing the old advisory board of the Red Cross was held for the purpose of launching a "Made in Peterborough" Fair to take place the first week in June.

If initial enthusiasm is an index to ultimate success the "Made in Peterborough" Fair is destined to be the most remarkable event of its kind which the city has yet experienced. The note of optimism, so apparent in this spring season, was much in evidence and everyone is willing to push and keep on pushing till effort is crowned with achievement.

W. R. Breyfogle, President of the Association, occupied the chair, and explained to the large meeting that the proposed summer fair was to substitute for the Motor Show which had been held in previous years, to raise funds for the continuance of the work of the Health Association and particularly for the maintenance of the summer camp at Jackson's Park.

The reason for the change, Mr. Breyfogle said, was the fact that the committee and some of the motor car dealers felt that the public was possibly growing tired of the motor show and desired a change. In addition to this, it was practically necessary to hold the motor show early in the spring before the weather had grown warm and as there was no means of heating the Armouries it was felt that it might be better to change to the "Made in Peterborough" idea.

By doing this the fair could be deferred till June, when one might be reasonably certain of suitable weather conditions. The change would also mean that such a fair would be of more general and local interest than the motor show previously held.

Recall Summer Fete.

Many of the citizens can doubtless recall the very successful summer fete which took place in 1912, and according to plans now under way, the campaign floated last evening will result in a gala week which will in every respect duplicate that festival if not completely eclipse it. Untiring work by committee leaders and unstinted co-operation by subordinates will make this possible.

Geo. A. MacDonald, manager of the Quaker Oats Co., was elected chairman of the fair committee, and the following ladies and gentlemen were appointed to the various departments essential for the prosecution of the work. While in some instances only the chairman has been named, in every case the committee is to be augmented at the discretion of the leader.

Committees Named.

The committee in charge of display locations is composed of James Hamilton, Roland Denne and W. R. Breyfogle.

The Advertising Committee—Chas. Cook, V. J. McElderry, R. M. Glover, Fred Roy, J. M. McHardy and H. Dicken.

The Amusements Committee — Mesdames A. H. Stratton, Chris. Graham. H. H. Cameron and all the ladies of the executive of the Health Association, together with Messrs. A. L. Killally, R. Brown, Claude Rogers, James Hamilton and G. S. Cameron.

Premium Committee—J. M. McHardy, H. Dicken and J. Marshall.

After a discussion it was decided that the admission fee be 10c. for children and 15c. for adults, and it was further decided that an advance sale of tickets would be arranged at the rate of seven tickets for one dollar.

Colonel Frank Bradburn has very kindly arranged through the commanding officer of the district for the use of the armouries for the week, so that nothing now remains but intensive work on the part of everyone during the month of May so that this effort of the Health Association may be the biggest and best of the many entertainments provided for it in the past.

This drive, if carried out with precision and enthusiasm, will do more for the encouragement and expansion of business than anything previously attempted and if properly conducted will indicate some basis of reality for recent optimistic reports gathered from Peterborough manufacturers.

KILLED WRONG MAN FOR BOMB OUTRAGE

State Prosecutor Decides To Ask For Eight Death Sentences.

SOFIA, May 1 (United Press)—The former Agrarian deputy Grantcharoff, who was suspended from the chamber for alleged complicity in the Sofia Cathedral bomb outrage, was killed in the fields near here resisting arrest on May Day eve. The state prosecutor, following an investigation of the bomb incident, has decided to demand eight death sentences and seven imprisonments. A score of prominent suspects have already been killed. A report says that the police now have discovered that the actual cathedral assassinate was a technician named Abadschieff, and not Ninkoff, the Agrarian, who was bombed to pieces for resisting arrest.

KIWANIS HEARD TWO ADDRESSES

C. H. Buckland Spoke on Work Among Dependent Children of the Province.

AN ENGLISH SPEAKER.

The Kiwanis Club was favored with two speakers of note at the luncheon meeting at noon to-day.

Kiwanian C. Harry Buckland, of Guelph, Provincial Inspector for neglected and dependent children, was the announced speaker and Rotarian Basil Hall, of Bradford, England, president of the British Medical Society, gave an unexpected but much appreciated address. Charlie Cummer who had charge of the financial end of the Minstrel Mimics, was another speaker who was listened to with great attention.

Mr. Buckland gave an interesting talk on the work of the Children's Aid Society, which looks after dependent children in the province and has at present 7793 wards. It is not particularly charged with delinquent children but has a man in the juvenile court at all times.

He said it was a great pleasure to speak to Kiwanians as they were interested in the welfare of other people. If they didn't look after others their motto "We Build" would be of no meaning. Mr. Buckland said it had always been his practice when he had anything that was worth while, to take it up with a Kiwanis Club, as he had always been able to find a volunteer to look after the work.

He said that if everyone made it his duty to look after and set on the right path any children who needed a little help and guidance, the Bowmanville boy's farm would be obsolete in a very few years. This farm, he said, would be the most up-to-date institution of its kind in America, bet he would prefer to see it of no use for lack of inmates.

The object of all Canadians should be to build a nation of stalwarts, such as had been sent overseas. The Canadians had never shirked their duties overseas and must not shirk it here. The government was lavish with its money for such work, and if everyone did his part a worthy citizenship would be developed.

The girl problem he stressed, as being a great menace. All kinds of work is being done for the delinquent boy, but very little to look after the girls. As a result, said Mr. Buckland, the number of illegitimate births is increasing. If someone would talk to the girls who wander up and down the streets at night and put them on the right path, a good work would be done. He hoped that his talk would stimulate the effort of the club in its work for boys and start them doing something to help the girls.

Rotarian Basil Hall.

Mr. Hall said he had been struck with the kindness and hospitality of Canadians but he had been even more impressed with the great enthusiasm they showed in everything. He said that England was a tired nation burdened with taxation, and it was pleasant to see that Canada was recovering from her troubles so rapidly. On the way across the Atlantic it had occurred to him that the day was April 22, when the Canadians had saved the Motherland and the Empire after the best troops of French Africa had broken. "England," he said, "has a thousand years of heroes before her eyes and she is proud of them, but Canada has made her's suddenly." In conclusion, he quoted Service's poem, "The Younger Son."

That the club's share of the profits of the Minstrel Mimics had amounted to $565, was the message of Kiwanian Charles Cummer. A few tickets were sold which were not redeemed, and he thought that the total would reach $700 when this money was turned in.

A formal vote of thanks to all those who had taken part in the performance was moved by J. Wearing, and seconded by C. Lacheur. A vote of thanks to the speakers of the day was moved by J. Marshall and seconded by H. Dickin.

Announcement was made of the death of Kiwanian E. G. McKeeley, and all who are able will attend his funeral, those having cars providing transportation.

Alderman Stocker Wants Gasoline Pump At Market But Colleagues Suggest Pump For New 4.4 Beer

The Market Square is becoming more business-like every day. Walter Stocker, market clerk, appeared before the Board of Works last night and obtained permission to instal a gasoline tank and pump at the clerk's office. The permission was readily granted, and ex-Alderman Stocker spoke the patronage of his former colleagues in his new venture.

While Mr. Stocker was present, Alderman Hancock called attention to the dust which, he said, was so thick on the Market Square on Saturday that he had to stop business for a while because his throat was so dry he couldn't talk.

It was suggested by several of the members that a pump for the new 4.4 beer would be more appropriate than a gasoline pump, doubtless with a view to aiding Alderman Hancock as well.

OFFER AGAIN.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., to-day denied in an exclusive telegram to The Examiner, the story printed in a Northumberland County newspaper to the effect that he would accept nomination in Northumberland, his native county.

In response to a query from The Examiner, Mr. Gordon replied from Parliament Buildings, Ottawa:

"No truth in the rumor that I will be Liberal candidate in Northumberland. If I am nominated in Peterboro as Liberal candidate I will accept the nomination. I have already twice been honored by being made Federal representative of West Peterboro, and I intend to offer myself for nomination again."

THIRD DIVISION GAMES INTEREST FOOTBALL FANS

Huddersfield Have a Safe Lead For Title—Swansea Still in Running.

SEASON NEAR END.

Relegation of Some Teams at Stake in Saturday Games.

LONDON, May 1. — (Canadian Press).—With the virtual winning of the championship of the English League by Huddersfield Town on Wednesday, when they drew with Notts County and thus established a lead which cannot be overtaken in the one game remaining before the season ends, interest in Saturday's League soccer shifts from the First to the lower divisions, and centres particularly on the Third.

In the Southern Section of the Third Division all eyes are rivetted on the game scheduled for Swansea Town, where the locals play with Exeter City in the game that will decide whether Swansea are to stay in the lower string, or move up into the Second Division. As a result of midweek games, Swansea are still running one point behind the divisional leaders, Plymouth, and Saturday's tournaments will clinch the decision for good and all.

With regard to the Second Division, nothing more remains but for both Leicester City and Manchester United to move up into the First for next season. Derby County will not be able to stack up a heavy enough score against Blackpool to turn the tide against them, and will consequently have to stay where they are for another year at least. Derby have put up a hard fight to try and climb out of the Second string, and last year their efforts were similarly thwarted near the close of the season. They will finish this year in the same relative position as they did last, third from the top.

In view of the various League honors being practically decided, little remains to be done. Except for a few anxious clubs travelling around the bottom of the ladder and threatened with relegation, such as Crystal Palace, Oldham and Stoke in the Second Division, the closing games of the season on Saturday sees very little that is vital at stake. Either the Palace or Oldham will accompany Coventry City into the Third Division, for these two teams meet in the final game, and one or the other may go.

The question whether West Bromwich Albion or Bolton Wanderers will finish as runners-up to Huddersfield Town is interesting. These two teams meet at West Bromwich on Saturday, and Bolton will have to win if they are to wind up in second place.

The leaders closing game is with Liverpool, to be played at Huddersfield.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The time required for the full swing of a wood golf club is approximately equal to the taking of three natural steps—I should say steps that were just a little slow. Two of these steps would be equal to taking the club back and the third step would correspond to the forward swing. The average golfer will swing his wood in about the time he would take one natural, slow step. He makes a quick, choppy, slashing movement with it which, of course, doesn't cause much of a seismographic disturbance with the ball, unless he digs into the ground again just back of the ball. The three parts of the wood swing are about equal, but the timing with the iron is slightly different. You take it back just a trifle slower, if anything, but you bring it down just a trifle more quickly. This is because the iron club requires more of a direct hit, while the wood swings.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY!

The Lindsay Daily Post has the following: "Question: Will Jack Oulette be allowed to play with Belleville this year? From past experience with the C.O.B.L. almost anything can happen. Undoubtedly Mr. Oulette will be found in the Belleville uniform if Belleville wants him." You tell 'em Lindsay.—Kingston Whig.

"Red" Legon was out with Peterboro for the first practice and Peterboro is all excited over the fact that he is back with them. They have a right to be, for "Red" is a very valuable man to have "out in the dew."—Kingston Whig.

Belleville isn't worrying over Jack Oulette, but along about the time the cards are being handed out by the C.O.B.L. there will be a lot of fretting up here.—Kingston Standard.

"Let it be said that John Oulette will receive his card and that no subterfuge will be needed to obtain it. Belleville in all its years in the C.O.B.L. has always "came clean" with regards to its players being eligible and that condition still remains. The Kingston writers are sure having brain storms and doing a lot of useless worrying. Oulette was in Belleville on January 1st, and for some time afterwards and has been there repeatedly all through the winter.

"Probably Kingston papers could tell us whether that little boy Currans from the Y. Judeans, Toronto, has been in continuous residence since the first of the year and how many trips he has made to visit friends and relations in the Queen City."

Jack Oulette will pitch ball for the C.N.R. team in the Senior C.O.A.B.L. this season. This authentic statement received from secretary treasurer Vern Weir of the C.N.R. Club this morning should set at rest all rumors suppositions et al.

Manager Walt Gerow will start the boys on the old battlefield—the Exhibition Park diamond—this evening for the first time this season, past practices having been held at the B.H.S. campus. He hopes that every regular and every man who wishes a try-out will be there early. —Belleville Intelligencer.

"Doc" Rutherford, formerly of Peterboro, played with the Petes in the C.O.A.B.L. under Jake Solomon's rule at the short field position.—Belleville Intelligencer.

Local fans will remember Fred Rutherford who played shortstop for Peterboro the year Jake Solomon made a team out of a bunch of young fellows from the city league. Back in 1922 it was.

The East Peterborough Baseball League is holding its annual meeting today. All last year's teams are asked to have representatives on hand and other teams wishing to enter the league are invited to be present.

The Kingston Standard seems to be a little worried about the possibility of Jack Oulette, the Fenelon Falls hurler, being granted a certificate to play with Belleville. Oulette always managers to spend New Years Day with the Belleville teammates and makes the odd trip back from then till the practices start. Of course he keeps a residence in the Quinte town and even if his 'visits' in Fenelon Falls should be for longer periods than his stays in his 'residence' they would not interfere with his eligibility. Oulette has been with Belleville several years now and has never had any trouble before. If the Standard were to conduct a search into the eligibility of their own new players they might find something to worry about too.

GOOD SOCCER BILL FOR TOMORROW

The scheduled soccer bill for tomorrow incudes three games in different series, viz.: Senior league game, junior and senior game and the introduction of the new juvenile league, where boys under 18 years of age will make their debut into soccer.

Three Games.

Quaker Oats versus Canadian Packing Co. at Nicholls Oval in exhibition game at 3 o'clock. Referee, Sam Calladine.

In the senior game, this will be the first time that the two have met this season. Both teams have a win to their credit against the Quaker Oats, so whoever wins tomorrow, they will lead the league. On paper, the Woollens have the pick of the talent in the city. They have an old Thistle boy—Burgess—who will play against his old teammates. But do not think that this will be a run-away game for the faovrites because the Thistle always play a clean and fast game against their opponents.

C.P.C. juniors will make their initial appearance at the Oval tomorrow against the Quakers. Previous to the foregoing tussel, the juveniles will play their ninety-minute period.

SPRING TONIC FOR GOLFERS

As Prescribed by Jock Hutchinson

In putting, the first thing to do is to line up the shot, giving a careful eye to the green to determine just how fast or slow it is. When this is done you will know where you want to hit the ball and how hard you want to hit it.

Next comes the stance. Place the ankle of the left foot on a line with the ball, slightly farther away from the ball than the right foot. Two-thirds of the weight of the body should be on the left foot.

Two-thirds of the control of the club is given the right hand, the left being used to steady the club. When the stance has been taken, line the ball and hole up once more and then start the blade of the putter back straight from the ball. Don't hurry the back swing and don't hurry the forward swing. Do not be in a hurry to hit the ball. Make the stroke evenly.

In missing short putts first see that the grip is not too tight. You need more relaxation just when the tendency is to tighten up.

TERSE TIPS ON SPORT

One of the most famous fights in lightweight division history was that between Joe Gans and Battling Nelson at Goldfield, Nev., in September, 1906.

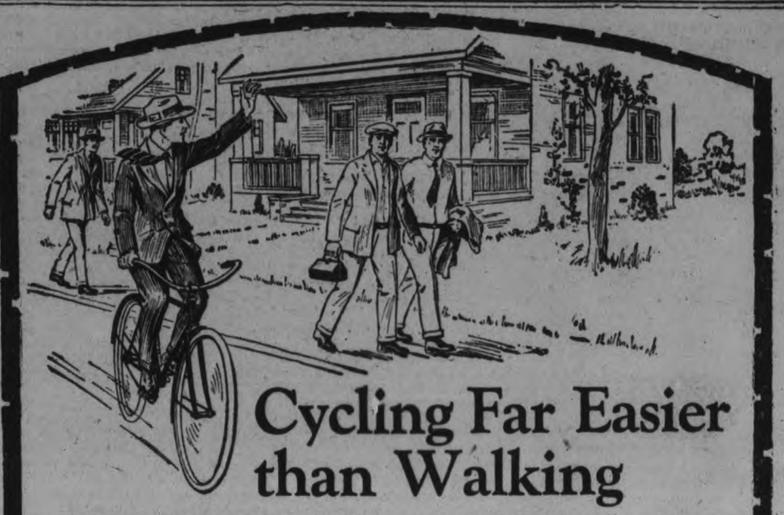
* * *

It was scheduled as a finish fight but terminated in the 42nd round when the decision was given to Gans on a foul. With it went the lightweight championship of the world.

* * *

Gans got something like $11,000 for his end of the purse, while Nelson drew down around $22,500, that being the split decided upon before the fight, regardless of the outcome.

California is the only state in the union which has elected two women to Congress.



Cycling Far Easier than Walking

FRANK Jones used to complain about his feet getting so hot and achey from his long walks to and from work on the hard roads and pavements.

One day when he felt more tired, and his feet hurt him worse than usual, he happened to see a man go gliding by on a bicycle.

"Cycling is far easier than walking," said Frank to himself. And all day long while he was working that thought kept running through his mind.

That night, on the way home, he dropped into a C.C.M. dealer's and looked over the different C.C.M. models, choosing one that suited him in every way.

Since then Frank's feet have had a much easier time and he's quit complaining. In fact, he's boasting now about how fine and fresh he feels since he started Cycling.

He also tells how quickly and easily he Cycles to work and home again—how he saves the shoe leather he used to wear out on the hard cement walks—how he saves valuable time by Cycling instead of walking.

If you gave Frank a chance he would tell you all about the C.C.M. Triplex Crank Hanger—the wonderful power plant that responds to the slightest pressure on the pedals and makes the C.C.M. run so smoothly, quietly and easily.

He would show you the strong, powerful frames of English Seamless Tubing—the bright silvery nickeling that won't rust because it is done over copper—the sparkling enamel that is baked on over a coat of anti-rust so it will stand rain, snow and all kinds of weather—the new Gibson Pedal with its rust-proof aluminum frame—and the C.C.M. Hercules Coaster Brake that coasts so easily, has such braking power, and is ounces lighter than the old-style side-arm type.

The C.C.M. dealer will, also, be glad to tell you all about the C.C.M. and to show you the new models—the Standard, the Special, the Sport model, the C.C.M. Flyer, the Curved Bar model.

Prices have again been reduced. They're now $20 to $25 less than "peak" prices. Biggest values since pre-war days.

AGE NO BARRIER TO ZBYSZKO

Veteran Pole Is Still At Top Though Well Past 50th Milestone.

(By Art Carlson)

Speaking of athletic wonders, don't overlook one Stanislaus Zbyszko, the landmark of Poland.

The hero of over 1000 mat matches evidently refuses to list to the call of old Doctor Time. Like the well-known brook, he seems to go on in the same persistent way.

Some 30 years ago the hairy-chested Stanislaus started in the grappling pastime. And he has been at it ever since.

Zbyszko was quite an up-and-up wrestler in the halcyon days of Frank Gotch and Hackenschmidt, "Russian Lion." That's quite a leap backward, too.

Winning the crown is nothing new for the Polish patriot. For he has reached the heights before. But to cop the laurels in his day and age is something else again. It's a bit out of the ordinary.

When Zbyszko tossed the giant, Wayne Munn, at Philadelphia the other night, he fairly upset the wrestling fraternity — if there be such an assemblage. For only last February Munn had played horse with Zibby, pinning him to the mat twice in quick fashion.

While the big Nebraskan may have been ill when he tackled Stanislaus the second time and may possibly have not been in tip-top shape, you must, nevertheless, hand a slice of credit to the Pole.

For Zbyszko had everything against him save experience. He conceded around 25 years in age, over 30 pounds in weight and nearly a foot in height. That's quite an edge.

It is true that the wrestling game has been under a dark cloud for a spell. The crown has shifted from one dome to another in rather rapid fashion. It has passed here and there. And then back again in a sort of round-robin way.

But be that as it may, you've simply got to hand the old chevrons to Stanislaus Zbyszko, whose physical displacement are far below those of most of the other top-notchers.

And to a champion who regained the title at a time in life when most men have long since forgotten their athletic ambitions and shelved their equipment.

A meeting of the City Baseball League was held in the Chamber of Commerce last night for the purpose of re-electing officers and discussing the prospects for the coming season. Representatives from a number of teams were present.

J. Sullivan, president of the city league, occupied the chair, and in a brief address stated that Peterborough had a wealth of baseball genius waiting to be developed, but a deplorable lack of men who were willing to act as managers.

Mr. Sullivan was nominated for the presidency for the comnig season, but explained that it would be impossible for him to act in that capacity.

The Grounds Available.

The question of suitable grounds for playing purposes was dealt with and it was discovered that the East City teams intended playing their games on a lot near the London street dam. Lou LeBarr is also of the opinion that Stevenson park will be frequently available.

"IRISH" JORDAN AND "RED" THOMPSON IN THREE-ROUND EXHIBITION.

Before a crowded house at the Royal last night two of Peterboro's foremost exponents of the art of self defence displayed their wares, 'Irish' Jordan, bantamweight champion of Peterboro, is ready to defend that title at any time.

The boys put up a snappy three-round bout. Both showed skill and training, and as it was just a friendly "scrap," it wouldn't be fair to single out any winner.

Unqualified Enthusiasm Behind "Made In Peterborough" Exhibition

Expected It Will Be and Plans Laid For the Biggest Affair of the Kind Ever Held in the District.

Organization was completed last evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms for the putting on of the "Made in Peterborough" exhibition in the Armouries during the first week in June.

All those present, and there was a very large attendance, were most enthusiastic, and from reports received it is believed that this exhibition will be the very best drawing card that has been in Peterborough for many years.

Why everybody gets behind the project of course is, for one reason due to the fact that the receipts are for the carrying on of the work of the Peterborough Health Association, possibly the most worth while organization in the city, composed of representatives from all classes and creeds. Then again, it being a "Made in Peterborough" project advertising "Made in Peterborough" goods, it naturally will secure the whole hearted support of the city and district.

Manufacturers are going to make worth while exhibits; retail merchants the same. The Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs are right behind the effort, and organizations are coming forward offering their services in any manner in which they can be utilized. It is fully expected that this big proposition with the enthusiastic support it is receiving will turn out to be one of Peterborough's best affairs of the year.

BABY SMOTHERED.

Tragic Accident on Rice Lake Road at Bewdley.

PORT HOPE, May 1.—A tragedy occurred yesterday morning a few miles north of Port Hope, on the Rice Lake Road, when the 2-months'-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drury of Peterboro was smothered to death. The family were motoring to Hamilton, and, after stopping at Bewdley, wrapped up the child and continued on their way. The baby appeared to be asleep, but after travelling a few miles it was noticed that the child was blue in the face. Medical aid was immediately summoned from Port Hope, but the child was beyond all recovery. Coroner A. G. Aldrich was notified, and pronounced death due to accidental smothering.

OLD COUNTRY SOCCER.

THEATRES

"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," FINE PRODUCTION.

It is a long time since we have seen as thoroughly satisfying a photoplay as "Baree, Son of Kazan," now playing at the Royal. Perhaps we are partial to plays of the outdoor type, and we think most of the fans are. However, it would have to be a hard-hearted individual indeed who would not like Baree. The picture is out of the ordinary because the story is there; it is impossible to guess what is coming next (unless you have read the story), and then you are anxious to see if it is screened as you imagined it would be. The scenery of the Canadian North in spring and winter is beautiful.

Another thing you will notice. "Wolf," the clever dog, does not do anything impossible as in most pictures where a dog has a prominent role. This dog has been handled with great skill by the director, and Anita Stewart and entire cast do great work.

You're going to like "Baree," and if we are any judge of what photo play fans want we prophecy that the Royal will be a busy place the next two nights.—Fan-Fan.

AMATEUR NIGHT AT ROYAL.

Ilene Bowler sang "My Mamma's Lullaby." Her voice was low and sweet, but not strong enough to carry; result, she could not be heard, only in the front rows.

Dorothy Collette sang "Grace Darling."

Gallagher and Sheen was put over in fine style by Coleman Bros and the applause hit of the bill was little six-year-old Annie Fletcher in her song, "Lullaby Land."

WHY GRIFFITH CHOSE WAR OF NORTH COUNTRY.

It is unfortunate from the historian's point of view that artists and writers choose the spectacular rather than the important events and incidents of a war as the subjects of their paintings and their writings. For it very frequently happens that the really important events of a great war, like that of human life in general, lack that spectacular quality which inspires the artist and the writer, and hence, being neglected, gradually pass from the ken of men. Oftimes, too, events both important and spectacular have been overshadowed by events which might be termed "super-spectacular" and so have passed from memory.

So it probably is that one of the most important campaigns of the War of American Independence, having failed hitherto to attract the chroniclers, has been well nigh forgotten. It has remained for David Wark Griffith, creating his titanic romance of "Love and Sacrifice," now at the Regent Theatre, to bring from oblivion the great struggle to save the grain fields of the North Country and to place it where it belongs—among the decisive struggles of the history of the United States. Faith, aided by artists and models, has made Washington's voyage across the frozen Delaware one of the best known incidents of the United States Revolution. From the historian's angle however this was a minor incident indeed compared with the battle in the North Country. Two lives were lost when Washington's forces crossed the river. Ten thousand men, women and children were slaughtered when Captain Walter Butler, Captain Hare, and their band of ruthless, painted Tories and Indians, swept through the North Country, bent on destroying the grain which alone could keep Washington's Army supplied with food.

Confronted with the gigantic task of bringing the high points of the Revolution within the two and a half hours' space allotted, Griffith with the advice of leading historians chose to depict the story of the war in Northern New York and Western Pennsylvania, rather than the better known, but comparatively unimportant battles and incidents which artists and writers have made famous.

REAL THRILLS EXPERIENCED FILMING "THE SPANIARD."

It often happens that there are more thrills connected with the filming of a motion picture than are shown on the screen. This, at any rate, was the case with the Raoul Walsh-Paramount production, "The Spaniard," coming to the Capitol on Monday. Ricardo Cortez, Jetta Goudal and Noah Beery are featured in the picture, which is based on the popular novel of the same title by Juanita Savage.

Two bull fights are features of this unusual dramatic production, written for the screen by J. T. O'Donohoe. As you never can tell what a real, live Spanish bull is going to do from one minute to the next, there was much unlooked for action during the course of production.

Cortez, in the title role, is a matador in the production. To take the player's own word for it, standing up before the onrushes of an enraged bull is no cinch. On several occasions things might have ended disastrously for several of the minor players in the picture when the animal went on a rampage, and broke through a protective stockade had not a cowboy with his lassoo been right on hand to throw Mr. Bull as neat as you please.

So much for the hectic life of a bull-fighter. "Me for dim lights, soft music and a dark-eyed senorita for company," says Cortez.

"THE GREAT DIVIDE."

The atmosphere of the production is unusual and seems to give the story more of a realistic setting than the majority of screen dramas. The Painted Desert of Arizona makes a fascinating background for the story, which centres about the conflict of will between a man and a woman. One of the most unique portions of a dramatic picture is the filming of the cloudbreak. The spectators can almost feel the tingle of the giant spray that fills the rocky canyon and sense the struggle of the men and beasts that make their way through the storm and the fury of the grinding waters.

Possibly this sense of conflict is the main theme of the picture. The leader of a trio of bad men, all intent on the one woman, buys off one of his companions and kills the other, seizes the girl, marries her, and takes her to his lonely home. The gradual regeneration of the man and the manner in which the woman comes to love him, make one of those productions that keep the audience keyed up to interest through every moment. The by-play of passion and the pull and tug of contending wills make the main theme of "The Great Divide." Oddly enough, the title is somewhat misleading. "The Great Divide" forms the background of the picture, but has nothing to do with its main theme.

The cast is superb. Conway Tearle as Stephen Ghent gives a wonderful characterization, and Alice Terry, blonde and lovely, is the heroine whose implacable will contradicts her yielding demeanor.

A "Wide Awake" comedy and the usual interesting short reels form the balance of a good programme.—Jeannette.

Closing Quotations on Principal Active Stocks.

TORONTO, May 1.— (Canadian Press.)—Hollinger advanced forty-five points on the stock exchange to-day, presumably on the basis of the settlement of the long standing dispute between the Hollinger Consolidated and Northern Canada Power Co. J. B. Holden, secretary of Hollinger, up till one-thirty this afternoon would make no statement as to the details of the settlement, but it is known that R. S. Robertson, K.C., who was to represent Northern Canada Power Co. in the appeal of this case before the Privy Council, had cancelled his reservation. It was further stated by persons close to the companies interested that the case was undoubtedly settled. The appeal was being made to the Privy Council against the award to Hollinger of nearly two million dollars for power shortage during the winter of 1921-1922 and other periods.

FIRE TRUCK SMASH CALLS FOR ACTION

Discussion on Repairing or Replacing Occupies Committee Another Loaned.

A special meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was held last night to consider the repair or replacing of the fire truck, which was damaged Wednesday night.

A report was read from Chief Gimblett, with an attached report from the two firemen who were on the truck at the time. It was reported that the truck had cost $1,138.34 in three years for initial cost and repairs, $804 being the actual first cost of the machine. The team of horses which it replaced were sold for $585. A price for the repair was quoted, also a price for a new chassis, a Reo speed-wagon. The Brewer garage has lent the department a truck for use until the old one is repaired or a new one purchased.

It was moved by Aldermen Turner and Crowe that the chairman, the Mayor and the Chief be a committee to get further prices, both on the repair and on a new truck and report to the Council on Monday night.

It was reported by the Mayor and chairman, that an adjustment had been made with the Dunlop Rubber Company, in regard to some hose that had not given perfect satisfaction, whereby the city is to purchase 475 feet of hose and receive an additional 175 feet in adjustment of their claim.

Facts About OPTOMETRY

Young Eyes Are Not always Good Eyes

By no means. A lot of people think they are. If you are a parent, and have children going to school, and you imagine their eyes do not need attention because they are young, you may be making a serious mistake. Young eyes are in thousands of cases abnormal and no one knows anything about it. Think what a handicap that means to a child. Children's cases are given our closest attention.

WORKERS CELEBRATED 'MAY DAY' BY ORDERLY DEMONSTRATONS IN INDUSTRIAL CAPITALS OF WORLD

Almost Complete Absence of Strikes Was Marked Feature of Annual Holiday.

MONTREAL PARADE.

British Commons Refused to Ratify Convention For Eight Hour Day.

LONDON, May 2. — (Canadian Press).—May Day appears to be losing, if not its one-time importance as a labor festival, at least its reputation for disorderly demonstrations by the working classes. Advices from all the great capitals of Europe last night were to the effect that May Day passed quietly and almost entirely without disorders, although everywhere demonstrations of more or less importance were held, some of them of an imposing character.

What chiefly distinguished yesterday from other May Days was the almost complete absence of strikes by workmen. The twenty-four hour strike in past days used to be quite a common aspect of the May Day demonstrations, which nowadays are generally confined to parades and mass meetings.

Quiet in Germany.

Some variation had been anticipated Friday arising from the supposed strong feeling aroused in Germany by the election of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg as President of the Republic. It had been predicted in some quarters that advantage would be taken of the holiday to give public expression to these alleged feelings, but everything passed off quietly in Germany, and even in Cologne, where opposition to Von Hindenburg is known to be strong, no disorders occurred, although the huge demonstration there bore a Communistic aspect.

England's Labor Day.

In England the demonstrations were of a festive holiday character. It was a coincidence that during the day the House of Commons debated and rejected the Laborite bill proposing ratification by Great Britain of the Washington eight-hour day convention.

In France the demonstrations were comparatively orderly. The same may be said of Vienna, Budapest, Stockholm, Oslo (Christiania), Copenhagen, Madrid, Moscow and other capitals. A feature of many of the demonstrations held in these cities was a demand for putting into force the Washington eight-hour convention.

At Copenhagen an attempt by a Communist to harangue a gathering was frustrated by the Socialists, who pulled him down from the stand, and after a sharp tussle drove him away.

BANNED RED BANNERS.

MONTREAL, May 2.—(Canadian Press).—Canadian "Reds" held their annual May Day parade yesterday afternoon but nothing exciting happened. The procession was orderly, there were no fiery speeches, nor was there any display of large Red banners, both omissions being due to orders from the City Hall. At first there were more policemen than paraders, the authorities having decided to be fully prepared for possible rioting, but the services of VETERANS' PENSIONS.

Amendments Introduced By Hon. H. S. Beland's Bill.

OTTAWA, May 2.— (Canadian Press.)— A resolution to provide for amendments to the Pension Act was introduced in the House Friday afternoon by Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. Among the amendments contemplated, are provisions for a definite pension, irreducible for two years in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis; for increased pensions to mothers whose husbands are physically helpless, or in a dependent condition, and for conditions under which pension may be continued to dependent parents.

The resolution was carried without further discussion, and a bill based on it was given first reading.

C.N.R. BRANCHES ARE PROPOSED IN PARLIAMENT

Three Resolutions For Construction of Extensions Submitted by Hon. G. P. Graham.

WEST AND EAST.

Two in Saskatchewan and One in Nova Scotia—Estimated Costs Shown.

OTTAWA, May 2. — (Canadian Press).—A resolution to provide for the construction of a Canadian National Railway branch line between Turtleford, Saskatchewan, and a point in Township 48 was introduced in the House of Commons Friday by Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, carried, and a bill based on it given first reading.

Mr. Graham explained that the line proposed in the resolution this year was slightly shorter than that proposed in the bill which had been rejected by the Senate last session. The Minister also stated that the bill was a little different in that it provided for the utilization of $801,000 of trust funds held by the Saskatchewan Government. Together with this sum, the total amount to be expended was $1,871,000, or an average expenditure per mile of $27,925. The mileage of the Turtleford branch line was to be 67 miles, including 23 miles already graded.

Sir Henry Drayton advised against the policy of accepting trust funds for the construction of branch lines.

Another Branch Line.

Another resolution provides for the construction and completion of a railway line from a point about five miles south of Regina to Avonlea, Sask., by the Canadian National Railway, prior to August 31, 1927. The resolution sets out that the estimated amount proposed to be expended is $941,000, covering 33 miles at an average expenditure of $28,515 per mile.

In the absence of Western Progressive members interested in the matter, the committee decided to report progress and bring the resolution up again for consideration.

Nova Scotia Line.

Hon. George P. Graham also introduced a resolution to provide for the construction, or completion, prior to August 31, 1928, of a railway line from Sunnybrae to Guysborough, N.S., by the Canadian National Railway Company.

The amount estimated to be expended was set out in the resolution at $3,500,000 for sixty-seven miles at an average expenditure of $52,239 per mile.

The resolution will come up for consideration of the committee of the whole next week.

Father Flogged By Mob For Daughter's Knickers

SHREVEPORT, La., May 2. —Because John Barker's 14-year old daughter wore knickerbockers and rode a bicycle, Barker was taken from his home and flogged April 4, Barker testified at a hearing of W. C. Oliver and W. E. Miller, two of those charged with participation in the flogging. Warrants for the arrest of three others were issued yesterday.

C. A. Stewart, an oil worker, said he knew of the intended flogging in advance, but did not participate, though he admitted participating in other floggings. He said his life had been threatened if he testified for the State.

AGREEMENT ON LAKES' LEVELS

Protocol of Pact Submitted in Commons—Information to be Given Monday.

ONCE REJECTED.

OTTAWA, May 2—A resolution approving the convention and protocol between Canada and the United States for regulating the level of the Lake of the Woods and submitting to the international joint commission certain questions as to the regulation of the levels of Rainy Lake, was introduced in the House of Commons Friday by the Prime Minister, and will be given further consideration next Monday.

Mr. King told the House that the convention was the culmination of negotiations which had been under way since 1912, and was for the purpose of raising and maintaining the levels of the Lake of the Woods. The treaty provided for the establishment of the necessary boards of control and arbitration. It was, said the Prime Minister, one step along the path of international peace.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, pointed out that this matter had been referred to the International Joint Commission some years ago. Canada and the United States had carefully prepared their cases, and a report was made in which the representatives of both countries concurred. The United States government, however, did not approve of the finding of the boards, resulting in the delay which had occurred during the past six years. He would like to know what concessions, if any, had been made to the United States, in order to bring about the present convention and protocol. What was there in the treaty by way of concession from the original finding of the International Joint Commission? He thought that the members of the house should be given an opportunity to study the matter further, and suggested that it be brought up again for consideraion at a later date.

The Prime Minister consented and the matter will be given further consideration on Monday next.

WHEAT SOARING AGAIN ON NEWS OF LIGHT CROP

U. S. Estimates of Winter Crop Shrink Heavily Below April Figures.

"SHORTS" CAUGHT.

Chicago Had Friday's Advances With Winnipeg in Sympathy—Liverpool Up.

CHICAGO, May 2.—Wheat went soaring Friday due mostly to bullish crop news, and closed well around top prices, with the shorts scrambling to cover. Rye was a good second in the upgrade scramble, while the strength in coarser gains pulled up the corn and oats also.

Wheat closed with gains of from 6 3-4 to 8 1-4 cents, while corn gained 2 1-2 to 3 cents, oats 3-4 to 1 3-4 cents, and rye finished 5 to 5 3-4 cents higher. May wheat closed at $1.60, May corn at $1.07 1-2, May oats at 41 3-4 cents, and May rye at $1,12 1-2.

July wheat at the close was at $1.50 and was relatively stronger than the other grades. Local sales were 34,000 bushels of wheat, 21,000 bushels of corn, and 35,000 bushels of oats.

Winnipeg Moves Up.

WINNIPEG, May 2.—Extremely bullish private estimates on the United States winter wheat crop sent values soaring in a sensational manner on all North American markets yesterday. Winnipeg May wheat showed early strength and on a steady wave of buying principally on the part of local interests, prices advanced to a maximum gain of 8 1-4 cents from Thursday's final quotations, the nearby future touching $1.70. Increased offerings during the latter part of the session forced a mild reaction, the close being 6 1-2 cents up at $1.68 1-4.

Active spreading movements were in progress throughout the session, while "shorts" were busy covering. Exporters were moderately active, the sales being chiefly centred upon the July delivery.

The private crop reports which aroused the rampant bullish enthusiasm, showed the United States to be practically on a domestic basis. Estimates of the winter wheat crop ranged from 444,000,000 bushels down to 427,000,000 as compared with the last Government estimate of 490,000,000 bushels, early in April.

Foreign markets were substantially stronger, Liverpool cables closing 5 1-4 pence higher for 100 pounds.

Trading in coarse grains futures was light, but these markets were all stronger with rye at a gain of 6 3-8 cents, showing the most pronounced advance.

NOVA SCOTIA TO DEMAND BETTER FEDERAL TERMS

Claims Not to Have Received Just Treatment From Dominion Government.

TO PREPARE CASE.

Legislature's Bill Provides For Commission to Study Neglect of Province.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 2.—(Canadian Press).—Visions of prorogation of the Legislative Assembly this week were dissipated yesterday by the announcement that a public hearing would be held Tuesday morning next on the bill introduced Thursday by Premier Armstrong, aimed to prevent strikes and lockouts in Nova Scotia industries and strenuously objected to by the Labor members of the House.

Friday's session was brief and was chiefly concerned with the second reading of Bill 185 introduced Thursday by Premier Armstrong, calling upon the House to ask from the Federal Government a satisfactory re-arrangement of the Dominion fiscal policy to suit the Province of Nova Scotia and carry out the terms of Confederation. The bill provided that a commission be appointed, vested with the authority provided by the Public Inquiries Act, to study the conditions under which Nova Scotia had existed since Confederation, and prepare data showing in what particulars the province had failed to receive just treatment at the hands of the Federal Government.

Several bills were reported back from the Legislative Council, including that designed to limit the vetoing powers of the Upper Chamber and to place age and term restrictions upon its members. The Upper House adhered to its previous amendments and a joint conference was arranged to meet Monday evening next in an attempt to reach an agreement upon the points at issue.

Tribute to Fishermen.

An unusual incident occurred during the session, when news reached the House that a Lunenburg schooner, the Cape D'Or, had been rammed and sunk with the loss of five lives, off Mahone Bay Thursday night, the dead including a woman, wife of the captain of the schooner.

PENSIONS PLAN FOR AGED GOES TO CONFERENCE

Joint Discussion By Representatives of the Dominion and Provinces is Sanctioned.

CONTINUE ENQUIRY.

Government Shelving the Question For Another Year Labor Member's View.

OTTAWA, May 2. — (Canadian Press). — Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, introduced a resolution in the House Friday afternoon, proposing that the final report of the special committee which was appointed at the last session of Parliament to make an enquiry into the old age pension system for Canada, be referred to a special committee for further examination and report.

Mr. Murdock pointed out that since last session, correspondence had taken place with several Provincial Governments, arising from the proposal of last year's special committee for co-operative action between the Federal and Provincial authorities in this matter.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, asked what enquiry the special committee now proposed to conduct, and what additional information it could gather. He thought that there were already too many special committees in the House.

Joint Discussion.

Premier Mackenzie King pointed out that replies had not been received from all the provinces. The matter was one in which the Federal and Provincial authorities were interested; and he thought that by "conference and joint discussion," rather than by formal correspondence between Government departments, the matter could be more satisfactorily proceeded with.

William Irving (Labor, Calgary East) said that in view of the Government's attitude it was apparent that they wished to shelve the question for another year. He suggested that the Government, instead of referring the matter to a committee, bring in legislation providing for old-age pensions.

Sir Henry Drayton briefly stated that any committee would not likely get anything accomplished under the circumstances. There were too many committees sitting anyway, and the Government might begin to consider that "this special committee was about played out."

Inconsistency Pointed.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni) pointed out that those who were urging the Government to go into this matter which would involve enormous expenditures had, a few hours previously, voted for an amendment condemning the Government for not reducing expenditure.

Mr. Meighen asked who had favored old age pensions, and Mr. Neill replied that that had been the general tenor of the argument. The resolution was then carried, and, by unanimous consent of the House, the special committee to which the question was referred, was made up of the same members as the committee of last year.

Canadians Show Sense In Changes On Prohibition

LONDON, May 2.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The Outlook, commenting on the approaching sale of 4.4 beer in Ontario, under the amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act, says:

"Now that Ontario is about to allow the sale of 4.4 beer practically all of Canada has turned away from strict prohibition. Good sense it is, too. The Canadians have found that bone-dry prohibition does not work, and having more adaptability or more honesty than their neighbors of the United States, have simply repealed the unenforceable law.

"It should be added, however, that in most of the provinces of the Dominion the sale of drink is considerably restrictly under government control."

CANTEEN FUNDS BILL ADVANCED

Sir Arthur Currie Will Be Chairman of Central Board Of Trustees.

YUKON INCLUDED.

OTTAWA, May 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, moved second reading, in the House of Commons yesterday of a bill respecting the disposal of canteen funds.

Dr. Beland, explained that he had prepared an amendment to one of the classes so as to provide for a separate board of trustees for the Yukon territory, and also to have the Yukon share in the allottment of the funds as a province. This amendment was approved by the committee.

In reply to Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William), Dr. Beland stated that Sir Arthur Currie and expressed his willingness to serve on the Central Board of Trustees as chairman. The Minister stated that at the time of his recent conversation with Sir Arthur, he, Dr. Beland, had told him that the second trustee would be nominated by all the Veterans' Associations, and that Sir Arthur would be given the opportunity of satisfying himself that all organizations ha dbeen represented in such a nomination. The third nominee, declared Dr. Beland, would be nominated by the governing body of the Canadian Red Cross, or Canadian Patriotic Fund.

Hon. R. J. Manion thought that this selection was fair.

Dr. Manion and J. Arthurs, (Conservative, Parry Sound), both entered protests against the use of any of the canteen funds for an adjustment bureau. This, they said, should be a charge upon the people of Canada. The bill was given second reading.

ILLEGAL OPERATION.

Montreal Woman Accused of Second in Few Months.

MONTREAL, May 2.—Madame Josephine Lamothe, at present serving a year's sentence in jail for conspiracy with one Guilmette to perform an illegal operation several months ago, was yesterday held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury for the death of Benangere Rocheleau, aged 22, who died two days ago following an illegal operation.

Evidence at yesterday's inquest was that the deceased had visited Madame Lamothe after receiving the usual advice as to her condition from a regular physician and that the woman had performed the operation for $50. Dr. L. Leriche testified that the victim had called to see him and had told him about the operation, not, however, mentioning who had performed it. When the girl died, he had given a certificate explaining the medical causes of death.

CHINESE HOUSE BOY SUSPECTED IN GIRL'S DEATH

Charged Wtih Murder of Scottish Girl in Vancouver Last July.

WAS ABDUCTED.

Unable to Explain His Movements Since Disappearance Six Weeks Ago.

VANCOUVER, May 2.—Wong Foon Sing, missing house boy from F. L. Baker's home, Shaughnessy Heights, was formally charged with the murder last July of Janet Smith in Point Grey police court Friday.

The charge was laid by acting chief of police Murdoch, and the Chinese was remanded for one week.

The missing boy was arrested by Detective Sergeant Kirkham, early yesterday morning, when Point Grey police received a telephone call from an unknown person saying that a man was acting queerly on Marine Drive. Sergeant Kirkham went to the scene and later his prisoner was identified.

On being brought to the station, the man was identified as the missing house boy.

Tossed Out of Auto.

Questioned by the police the Chinese stated that he had been tossed out of an auto not far from the place where he had been arrested. He was unable to say how long he had been driven about, but thought it must have been three hours.

It was his impression that he had been removed from his place of confinement by the men who abducted him on the night of March 20. He was not clear on this point, because, he said, he had been blindfolded before being taken from his place of concealment. He appeared to be in good health and had not suffered any violence and had even been recently shaved.

Particulars Withheld.

M. B. Jackson, K.C., of Victoria, the special counsel, instructed by Attorney-General Manson more than six months ago to devote his attention to the Smith mystery, declined to give particulars of what led up to the arrest.

The Point Grey police made the arrest as a result of efforts made in co-operation with myself and the Attorney-General's department. That is all I can say at the present time. Wong Sing will be kept closely guarded in the meantime," he stated over the long distance telephone from Victoria.

The information alleging murder was signed by Walter Own, assistant of provincial police, it was announced from Victoria.

No information has been given out by the provincial police as to how Wong Foon Sing came to be on Marine Drive or where he had been held since his disappearance on March 20. The Chinese, it is understood was unable to give the police any particulars of where he had spent the past six weeks since his disappearance.

David Patterson, president of the Scottish Societies, which have been working on the case since the death of the Scottish nursemaid, was unable to throw any further light on the mysterious re-appearance of the Chinese house boy.

NEW BEER WILL BE AVAILABLE ABOUT MAY 20

Applicants For Permits Must Fit Up Their Premises Properly.

NO BARS ALLOWED.

Must Must Not Use Interior Screens or Shutters to Hide Customers.

TORONTO, May 2 (Canadian Press.—Four point four per cent. beer will be available to the Ontario public on May 20 or 21. A formal announcement to this effect was made yesterday at the Parliament Buildings by Premier Ferguson, who stated that notice was thus being ven of the date in order that the applicants for permits for the sale of the beverage might have an ample opportunity of equipping their premises so as to handle the trade in accordance with the law.

Earlier in the day, the Hon. Mr. Nickle, attorney-general, threw some additional light upon the conditions under which the beer must be sold. Retailing premises, he said, would not be allowed to use interior screens or shutters to veil their customers, nor would bars of any description be allowed.

DEAN INGE RAISES FURORE IN U. S.

Says Jews Had Better Rebuild Their Temple in New York.

BALTIMORE, May 2 (Canadian Press).—"I am inclined to suggest that they (the Jews) had better rebuild their Solomon's Temple in New York It is here that by far their largest community exists."

Dean Inge of St. Paul's, London, was delivering his second and concluding lecture on "Problems of Democracy."

Earlier in the lecture, the Dean startled his audience by his praise of the German Government, and the statement that the French are the most avaricious people on the face of the earth."

Communish, he said, is now dead in Russia, "except for export." There are, he added, two conditions under which the Communist can live—"In celibacy and on a religious basis." "If you admit families, private ownership comes back," he said.

TAKES ACTION AGAINST TOWN

Campbellford Man Says Sewer Construction Men Took Lumber From Him.

DIVISION COURT.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2. — Sidney Bidgood has entered an action in the Division Court against the town, claiming damages to the amount of $40 which he considers the value of lumber that was taken from his premises by the men engaged in sewer construction work. Mr. Bidgood alleges that the lumber was taken without his consent and was not returned, several planks according to his statement having been burned by the employees of the town. The case will be heard at the next session of the Division Court on May 8th.

This matter has been discussed at two sessions of the council and at a special meeting last week it was acted to allow Mr. Bidgood $15, but he stated at the time that he would accept this amount. A committee was appointed by the council to look into Mr. Bidgood's claim but was unable to bring about a settlement. A number of witnesses will be called on both sides when the case comes before the court.

First Half Holiday.

The first half holiday was observed by the business men yesterday, and nearly every store in town was closed, the owners of those which were kept open having refused to join in the agreement to close. The wet weather was unfavorable for holiday making and a number of excursions which had been planned by local anglers were abandoned.

Shortly after the hour of midnight which ushered in the open season for trout fishing, A. J. Wood and F. J. Smith, were abroad, autoing through the darkness to a trout stream in the vicinity of Warkworth. They returned about the middle of the afternoon with a fine catch of speckled beauties.

Chief Moves Here.

Police Chief Brown, who has been boarding since taking his present position at the beginning of the year, being unable to secure a suitable residence, has moved his family and household effects from Port Hope to Campbellford. He will occupy the residence on Grand Road, owned and formerly occupied by Earl Williams, who has removed to Toronto.

Harry Seaborn was acting Chief during the absence of Chief Brown.

Nothing Was Done.

Members of the Board of Education and Town Council intended holding a joint open-air session at the High School grounds yesterday to deal with the proposed extension of Booth and other proposed improvements. On account of the rain only four of those expected turned up, besides John Hall, who is superintending the work of improving the grounds and who declines to make any further expenditure without a mandate from those in authority. Those who braved the elements were Major Bygott, D. J. Lynch, Dr. H. O. Richardson and Deputy Reeve Palliser. Nothing was done, but it is expected that a delegation from the Board of Education will wait on the Town Council at the meeting of the latter body Monday evening.

Is Seriously Ill.

Mrs. John Burke, mother of J. A. Burke, down-town telegraph operator, is seriously ill at her home on Booth Street, and as she is nearly 80 years old, very little hope is held out for her recovery. Mrs. T. F. Langney, Mrs. Burke's only sister, and whose home is in Chicago, and two sons, A. A. Burke of Rocky Ford, Colorado, and J. T. Burke, of Toronto, have been called here on account of the serious condition of their relative.

Softball Schedule.

There will be a meeting in the Public Library to-night to draw up a schedule for the Softball League, which was recently organized. There are eight teams already entered.

Reindeau; Secretary - Treasurer, Harry Ingram; Manager, N. W. Heayn; Coaches, Chas. Montgomery and Jack Nesbitt; Finance Committee, E. Stephens, Dr. V. C. Bussey and H. D. Atkinson.

The following rules were adopted: All players will be required to procure their official birth certificates and amateur cards at once.

Players must attend and be prepared to play all regular games on dates set by the association.

BRITISH TRADE STILL DEPRESSED

Over 1,200,000 Are Unemployed and Many Coal Mines Are Closed.

BUILDING SHIPS.

LONDON, May 2 (Canadian Press).—The April summary of British trade issued by the United States Chamber of Commerce in London enumerate various features of the budget statement of Chancellor of the Exchequer Winston Churchill, but indulges in no prophecies as regards the results to be expected from the policies outlined.

The British coal trade is extremely depressed, the report says, with more than 400 pits closed and 16,000 miners idle.

The total unemployment in the country is 1,202,700, or 152,154 over the same period last year.

A slight improvement is noted in the production of pig iron, which exceeded that of March by 70,000 tons. The steel output was 40,000 tons greater.

Tin plate, on the other hand, showed only a 75 per cent output.

Scottish ship builders during April launched twenty-eight vessels, totalling 94,517 tons, but the shipping industry is still depressed.

NEW SHELL.

Dream of Armament Experts Comes True, Its Maker Says.

LONDON, May 2 (Canadian Press).—The production of a greatly improved 16-inch armor-piercing shell for the British service was announced here yesterday by Sir Robert Hadfield, head of the great armament firm bearing his name. Sir Robert explained he was not at liberty to give details of the tests of the new shell, but said the results obtained would have been thought impossible two or three years ago.

"The dream of armament experts and metallurgists has come true," he added.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL

If there is in Campbellford such a society as a branch of Social Service or a Law and Order League, then that organization has in the Town Council an able and consistent representative in the person of George A. Kingston, who is serving his second year, and who since his first election has held the important position of Chairman of the Finance Committee. Mr. Kingston, who is also President of the Chamber of Commerce, is the recognized public champion of public morality, and is at present taking a leading part in the move to increase the police force of the town. He is prominent in church and temperance affairs and advocates prohibition as a matter that should be kept entirely separate from party politics.

Mr. Kingston was raised on a farm, but took a university course and taught for some years in the Public and High Schools of Campbellford, also serving the town as a member of the Board of Education. He abandoned the teaching profession to take up the more strenuous and exerting duties of a newspaper publish and editor.

Nearly every man, no matter what his profession, has some fad or avocation to afford him relaxation by diverting his mind occasionally from his daily pursuits. Some men take up the raising of chickens, others play the saxaphone or some other wind or string instrument, while of later days others find the chief solace of their leisure hours in the solving of crossword puzzles. Mr. Kingston's main diversion is an interest in pure-bred cattle, in the breeding of which he was noted before he gave up farming. He has already been marked as the most likely candidate for the mayoralty when Mayor Meyers is permitted to give up that position.

PAST GRAND'S NIGHT AT STIRLING LODGE

Former Heads of the Lodge Confer Initiatory Degree.

STIRLING, May 2—Past Grands' night at Stirling Lodge No. 239 I.O. O.F. on Wednesday night proved to be an interesting event when the initiatory degree was exemplified in a very proficient manner by a degree team composed of the following officers: P.G., W. T. Sure; N.G., H. E. Hulin; R.S.N.G., Mason Clarke; L.S.N.G., M. W. Sine; V.G., Jetty Thompson; R.S.V.G., C. B. McGuire; L.S.V.G., C. W. Thompson; Warden, Alex Parks Con., Arthur Andrews; O.C., Ham Johnston; R.S.S., J. W. Sarles; L.S.S., Bert Sarles; Chaplain, J. B. Thompson; Guardian, Thos. Spry; S.S., D. A. Burkitt; S.S., Alex. Fargey; S.S., Geo. Megginson; S.S., Frank Ashley.

Messrs. Thos. Spry, P.G., Alex. Fargey, P.G. and Bro German Sine were the recipients. P.D.D.G.M. W. T. Sine, who is the oldest Past Grand connected with the lodge, in point of service made the presentations and pinned the jewels on the brothers' breasts. Afterwards a light lunch was served by the entertainment committee and a very pleasant event came to a close.

Reckless Driving

Some reckless motor driving was done on Sunday evening on Stirling streets. The driver finally came to grief when his car ran into the ditch at the roadside near Ivanhoe. Constable Tanner has taken the matter in hand, and having secured the number of the car, proceedings are likely to be taken against the offending motorist.

Farmers Busy

The farmers are very busy with their seeding operations, although the growth is not very rapid as yet. At the cheese board meeting on Saturday the price was 17⅝c, an advance of 3c over that of last year, which gives an encouraging outlook for the dairying industry.

Many improvements

Mr. Thos. Cranston is building a new garage near his residence; also a cement wall along the edge of his lawn.

Mr. Jackson Moore has purchased the property on North Street occupied by Dan Derry and is remodelling the same adding an upper story. He is to occupy it as a garage. Mr. Derry has removed to the property owned by the Memorial Committee on Mill Street.

Miss Freda Thompson was awarded first prize, Miss Myrtle Richardson second prize, and Miss Gladys Joblin and Clinton McGee shared honors for third prize. The judges were: D. Walt, chairman, Mrs. C. W. Barret an Allan Donnell.

NO MORE LIMITS TO BACKUS NOW

Premier Ferguson Says He Must Fulfil His Present Obligations.

NOT ENOUGH TIMBER.

TORONTO, May 2 (Canadian Press).—The timber concessions which E. W. Backus has been seeking from the Ferguson Government to augment those which he received from the Drury regime are not to be granted. The statement was made yesterday by the Prime Minister that the policy of the Government would be to grant no more concessions to Mr. Backus at the present time, and that he would be required to fulfill his present agreements with the Government.

In a recent conference which he held with Government members, Mr. Backus declared that he could not erect mill which he was obligated to build in Kenora unless he were given more pulp resources upon which to draw. He also declared that the water powers already ceded to him were insufficient and would have to be augmented.

SATURDAY, MAY 2, 1925.

A FAMOUS SPEAKER.

Peterboro is to have an opportunity on Monday of welcoming and listening to a former resident of Peterboro, who has attained a reputation as a public speaker and as a student that is more than country-wide.

Mrs. R. F. McWilliams of Winnipeg, wife of ex-Mayor McWilliams, formerly of Peterboro, is to address the local Women's Canadian Club on Monday afternoon at an open meeting, and she is sure to have a message full of interest for her audience.

Mrs. McWilliams' fame as a speaker is known in all parts of Canada, and extends across the border—in fact, she has just returned from a convention at Richmond, Va. She is giving a series of addresses in Ontario, and Peterboro should welcome the opportunity of hearing a former resident who has won many laurels since leaving this city.

THE Y.W.C.A. PAGEANT.

The Y.W.C.A. is to be congratulated upon the success of its gymnasium pageant at the Grand Opera House last night and upon the prospects of another huge audience tonight.

As a demonstration of what the Young Women's Christian Association is doing to develop stronger, healthier girls the programme was a revelation to those who saw it last night.

It was an inspiring and impressive occasion, and spoke volumes for the training methods of Miss Caroline Littlefield, whose efforts were responsible for the complete success of the programme.

No one who saw the scores of girls, from tiny tots up to mature age, who took part in the various exercises could doubt the value of the work being done by the Y.W.C.A., or question its usefulness as a community asset.

When the training along other lines that is being done by the institution and its service not only as home for girls away from home but as a meeting place for Peterboro girls generally, are also thrown into the scale it will readily be admitted that Peterboro would be in a bad way without such an organization.

CRITICIZING TORONTO.

The Globe, in referring to the meeting of Canadian newspapermen in Toronto the other day, remarked that they would go home and proceed to tell how many things they found wrong with the Queen City.

The indictment is scarcely merited.

The majority of the people of Ontario, outside of Toronto, newspapermen included, are proud of the Provincial capital, and most of them enjoy visiting Toronto.

They are always impressed by the signs of progress and advancement that they find by the metropolitan appearance of the city and by the general cleanliness and brightness that are characteristic of the biggest centre in Ontario.

They find the Toronto street car service good, and the Toronto police never fail to make a hit with visitors from the hinterland because of their courtesy in giving information.

The Globe need not worry.

The loudest complaints abut the Queen City are to be heard among the folks who live there.

The people of the rest of the Province are almost invariably pleased with what they see in Toronto and with the welcome they are accorded, and few of them go home in a fault-finding mood, the Globe notwithstanding.

HINDENBURG IN 1919 AND 1925.

President Hindenburg of Germany is seventy-eight years of age, and has been elected to a term of office the duration of which is seven years. The interest in his election has not decreased by the fact that he was successful. His success has started the discussion all over again. Had he been defeated the incident would have been a closed one; the world would have said that it was the end of the Hohenzollerns, and admitted there was truth in the lines, "The old order changeth, giving place to new."

The Hindenburg of today may or may not be the Hindenburg of wartime. That doubt comes from his own statements on two occasions, one in 1925 and the other in 1919. The most recent was in his speech accepting nomination:

"My life lies clear before the world. I believe I did my duty in the hard times. If this duty now commands me to act as President on the basis of the constitution, regardless of party, person, origin or profession nothing will be wanting on my part.

"As a soldier I always thought only of the whole nation, not parties. Parties are necessary to the parliamentary rule of the country, but the head of the state must be above parties, independent of them, and must conduct the office for the benefit of every German."

If the German language suffers nothing in its translation to English that means that President Hindenburg, prior to his election, committed himself to the idea of a republican Germany. Those who hold that he meant what he said when he expressed his willingness "to act as President on the basis of the constitution" also point out that Hindenburg stood by President Ebert when the reactionaries were attempting by a bold stroke to set up a monarchy in Bavaria, at which time Ludendorff gave an amazing example of the asinine qualities he so abundantly possesses.

So much for that view of the Hindenburg as he appears today. What of the Hindenburg who, at the close of the war, sat down to pen the story of his life? In the concluding chapter, "My Farewell," he said:

"Comrades of the German army, once the proud and mighty German army! How can you talk of despondency? Think of the men who gave us a new fatherland more than a hundred years ago. Their religion was their faith in themselves and in the sacredness of their cause. They built up a new fatherland, not on the foundation of doctrines strange to them, but on those of the free development of the individual within the framework of the whole body politic, and on his sense of responsibility to the state. Germany will tread that path once more as soon as she is permitted to do so.

"Germany, the goal and starting point of so much that is inexhaustible in human civilization and culture, will count as nought only so long as she ceases to believe in her great historical mission. My faith is unshakable that the best among us, with their deep, strong thoughts, will succeed in fusing the ideas of today with the precious relics of ancient times and on them set the stamp of eternal qualities which will bring salvation to our fatherland.

"Such is the firm conviction with which I have left the bloody battlefields of this war of nations. I have witnessed the heroic struggle of my fatherland, and I shall never believe that it was its death struggle.

"I have often been asked the question on what I based my hopes of our ultimate victory even in the darkest hours of the war. I could only point to my faith in the justice of our cause and my confidence in our fatherland and the army.

"For the time being a flood of wild political passion and sounding speeches have overwhelmed the ancient structure of our state, and apparently destroyed all our sacred traditions. Yet this flood will subside again. Then from the tempestuous seas of our national life will once more emerge that rock—the German imperial house—to which the hopes of our fathers clung in days of yore, and of which the future of our fatherland was confidently set, nearly half a century ago, by our own efforts."

Once more, if the German language retains its flavor when translated into English, that message meant that Hindenburg was an imperialist of the first order. His tribute to the imperial house of Germany was no mealy-mouthed prattle, but the positive declaration of an ardent belief. He might just as well have written "Let us bide our time until this flood of wild political passion spends its force, and then, comrades of the German army, there will emerge that rock—the German imperial house."

So there he is, the quasi-political pleader of 1925 on one hand—the champion of kaiserism in 1919 on the other. Small wonder that the world looks on and wonders which Hindenburg Germany has elevated to the highest position in the gift of its people.—London Advertiser.

THE WELCOME ON THE MAT.

Settlement on the land of British families, under the agreement entered into by Hon. James A. Robb with the Imperial Government, is proceeding in a manner that should give the greatest satisfaction to the Minister and those who are associated with him in this great colonization effort. Although the agreement calls for the settlement of only 3,000 families within three years, it is generally understood that the plan as devised was in the nature of an experiment. If it is successful—and present indications are that it will be—there will doubtless arise a demand for its extension. The Government of Great Britain is spending huge sums of money to assist many thousands of its people to migrate to distant parts of the Empire. In the case of the agreement with Canada, known as the British Family Settlement Plan, assistance is given amounting to an average of $300 per family for farm equipment, while the Canadian Government undertakes to provide the farms and to extend the time of repayment over a period of 25 years.

Reports from various parts of the Dominion which have already received the vanguard of this body of migrants are that the newcomers have been selected with extreme caution. Only families are accepted and in most cases the settler and his wife are accompanied by grown-up sons and daughters. Until thoroughly acquainted with local farming conditions the father and grown-up sons and daughters will be placed with old-established settlers, gaining money and experience which will enable them to take hold of their own farm problems with confidence.

One of the most pleasing features in connection with the present plan is the whole-hearted reception which has been accorded the newcomers by individuals and the various community associations. It has been the effort of public-spirited citizens to make them feel comfortable. Homes were mostly ready for occupancy, with fires burning and hot meals prepared for the weary travellers. Clergymen, church societies, municipal bodies, were at the depot. If the house intended for the settler was not quite ready homes of neighbors were thrown open.

The Wilkie, Saskatchewan, Press tells of the arrival of some of the new settlers in that district and calls upon its readers to give them "a word of cheer and hope." The Pilot Mound, Manitoba, Sentinel speaks of another batch which arrived there recently and observes: "The newcomers were met on their arrival by ladies of the local Anglican Church; later a hot lunch was served in the Veterans' Hall and other thoughtful aids rendered towards making the incoming settlers feel that they had come among friends." It adds that the settlers "appear to be of the very best type" and "were more than pleased with the hearty and friendly welcome accorded them by local people."

It is not only kindliness of spirit which should dictate these hearty demonstrations of welcome. It is good business. Canada wants immigrants of the right type, and the best way to secure them is to ensure that those who come are satisfied. The old attitude of "don't care" paid poor dividends. Many came were disappointed and disseminated injurious propaganda.

If the Government does its part in directing farm home seekers to desirable lands in good localities it is surely up to the old-established residents to hold out the hand in welcome and to assist within reasonable bounds in making them happy and contented in their new surroundings.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The stocking of the district waters with pickerel has made the advent of the local fishing season much earlier than it used to be when anglers had to wait for the bass and maskinonge embargo to be lifted.

It would have been interesting if each member of the Federal House in recording his voice on the Budget could have stated whether or not the debate had anything to do with determining his decision.

In spite of safety first propaganda, one issue of a newspaper recently carried in a single column a grade crossing death story, a rocking-the-boat tale and the old reliable empty-shotgun piece.

A THOUGHT.

He Smiled—and his home was a place of happiness.

He Smiled—and children ran out of their way to meet and greet him.

He Smiled—and his co-workers in business worked better than in any other place of employment.

He Smiled— and his business clients and callers spoke well of him; and business increased.

He Smiled—and all who entered his office door were pleased to be greeted as a friend and equal.

He Smiled—and followed the smile with a brotherly handclasp; and those who were discouraged and downcast went out and took a new grip on life and their work.

He Smile—and while the years rolled on, he grew younger—because he smiled.—Chas. T. Lief.

The hog situation has weakened sharply, declining rapidly from the recent high levels around $12 to $12.25 .o.b. to $11.50, to-day's bid price for yesterday's loadings. A sharp drop in bacon prices in the ld Country is chiefly responsible for the lower live hog prices on this side.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 1.—Exciting upturns in price, amounting in some cases to 9 cents a bushel, resulted today from unofficial crop estimates suggesting that the United States would harvest 201,000,000 bushels less wheat this year than last. The close in the wheat market was feverish, 6 to 8 1-2 cents a bushel net higher; May $1.59 1-4 to $1.60, and July $1.50 to $1.50 1-4, with corn 2 1-2 to 3 cents up, oats at 3-4 to 1 5-8 at 1 3-4 cents gain, and provisions showing an advance ranging from 25 to 52 cents.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, May 1—There seems to be a slight slackening up of receipts of eggs during the last 2 or 3 days, this is attributed by some to the cooler weather and by others to the fact that country shippers are storin more freely this season than formerly.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

A feature of the domestic cash grain market was the good demand from New York exporters for Canadian Western Oats and a fairly active business was done including sales of No. 2 grade at 14¼ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, No. 1 fee grade at 3½ cents per bushel over, No. 2 feed grade at 1¼ cents per bushel over C.I.F. Montreal with sellers of the latter grade asking two cents per bushel over at the close of the session. New York was also in the market for No. 3 Canadian Western at 8¾ cents per bushel over the May option, but none were offering. In sympathy with the strength in oats in the Winnipeg market local prices for car lots were advanced two cents per bushel.

On account of the steady upward tendency of wheat prices of late, the tone of the market for winter wheat grades of flour was stronger and prices were marked up at the close of the session twenty cents per bar-

The Engineering Masterpiece of the Year ~ ~ ~ ~ The most talked of Car on Four Wheels

NOT since the days when automobiles were curiosities has the public showed such interest in a car as they are showing in this beautiful and powerful new Overland with six cylinders.

Everybody instantly admires this great car's refreshing newness. Its sensational power performance is the main topic in automobile circles. People say it is away ahead of all other cars of its class in power . . away ahead in lightning pick-up and getaway . . away ahead in beauty . . in luxury and comfort . . away ahead in economy. And it is away ahead in all these things because it is so far ahead in progressive engineering. Its low price is all out of proportion to its great advantages. Don't fail to see the new Overland Six. The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR.

GLORIA GORDON, twenty and pretty, marries DICK GREGORY, because she thinks he has money. Gloria's idea of marriage is plenty of fun and expensive clothes.....but no children.

When Dick tells Gloria she must do her own housework she has hysterics. So Dick borrows MAGGIE, his mother's maid, to teach Gloria to cook. Gloria refuses to learn.

STANLEY WAYBURN an actor whom Golria once loves, calls on her. When Dick sees him leave the house Gloria tells her husband that he was only an interior decorator.

Dick is home ill for a few days. His secretary MISS BRIGGS, comes to work there with him. While they are busy Gloria makes plans for a house-warming. She invites Stanley Wayburn. Dick recognizes him as the man whom Gloria has told him was an interior decorator.

Glory becomes reckless and drinks too much when she sees Stanley kissing MYRA GAIL. She faints away while dancing with T.R. JOHN SEYMOUR, whose wife, MAY, is in love with JIM CAREWE.

The party breaks up when LOLA HOUGH "bawls" out BILL, her husband, for "petting" with May. Maggie, disgusted, leaves the house. The next morning Dick asks Gloria if the man he saw leaving the house was Wayburn or not.

"Well, what have you been doing—buying out the town?" he asked.

Glory smiled. "Hardly that, dearest," she said. "Just a dress or two."

She came toward him, swaying like a model in a style-show. Her lips were pursed up for a kiss.

"Kissums sticky mouf," she said, babyishly.

Dick kissed her with the utmost gravity.

"Where did you get all these clothes?" he asked.

"From my generous husband. . . . I charged them to you," Glory answered. "Now, don't be cross, please. I really needed a few things."

Dick frowned.

"But you just bought a new dress last week for your party," he said. "What's the matter with it?"

"Oh, that thing!" Glory answered, her lips curling. "My old dressmaker made it. . . . It had no style."

"I thought it was beautiful," Dick said, helplessly.

Downstairs, Ranghild was striking the Chinese dinner gong.

"You know, Dick," Glory said after dinner, as they sat before the wood fire in the living-room, "a woman needs more clothes than a man does."

"How much did you spend to-day?" he asked.

"Only a little bit over four hundred dollars," Glory said.

"But wait until you see all the lovely bargains I picked up!" she cried before he had time to answer.

She ran upstairs and dressed herself in the new black velvet dress. Then she put on the cream-colored hat, and dabbed mimosa perfume behind her ears and under her chin.

"Don't I look like a million dollars?" she asked, excitedly, when she came down, again.

"You sure do," Dick admitted. "But I want to show you something . . ."

* * *

"Oh, don't show me figures, please," Glory protested. "I don't understand them, and they make my head feel all fuzzy inside . . ."

"These won't," Dick said. "Look here, I haven't four hundred dollars in my checking account! And I'm paying for some telephone company stock that I'm going to give you for your birthday . . ."

"Oh, don't! I don't want it. Give me an automobile instead!" Gloria cried, clasping her hands. "I've just got to have an automobile! May and Myra and all the girls have one!"

"May and Myra have rich husbands," Dick answered. "You've married a poor man, and you'll have to get used to being a poor man's wife. . . . I'll teach you to drive my roadster, and you can use that to go your bridge club and lunch parties."

Glory pouted.

"I don't want that old ark," she said drearily. "I want a little closed car, like the one your mother has."

"Give me time, and I'll be able to get things like that for you," Dick replied. "In another ten or fifteen years . . ."

"Ten or fifteen years!" Glory broke in. "Why, in ten or fifteen years I'll be an old woman! I won't care about parties and beautiful clothes then!"

Dick laughed at her.

"You'll be a very attractive woman, in your early thirties," he said. "And you'll find that your taste for clothes will be just as strong as it is now . . . stronger, perhaps.

"In the meantime," he went on, looking at her gravely, "you'll have to economize a little. . . . Now, I want you to promise me that you'll never go downtown and run up bills on me again, without asking me about it first. . . . Will you promise me that?"

Glory looked him straight in the eye. Slowly she shook her head.

"No," she said, clearly. "I won't make any such promise . . . for I know I'd break it. I'm going to have clothes. I won't look like a frump. Don't you want me to be as well-dressed as other women?"

"I can't say that I'm particularly crazy about having a clothes-horse for a wife," Dick answered, picking up his paper. "And there's just one more thing I have to say . . . I can't be worried to death about bills and expenses at home, and do anything like my best work downtown every day."

* * *

Glory smoothed down the folds of her black velvet dress thoughtfully.

"Other men seem to buy their wives an occasional dress or two," she remarked with cutting sarcasm. "And I don't notice that they crack under the strain. Good-night, I think I'll go to bed. There's no use trying to sit up and talk to you when you're wound up for one of your sermons on economy. . . . Jimmy, but I wish I were still earning my $25 a week! Then I wouldn't be jawed to death every time I spend a penny!"

She went upstairs, but not to bed. She spent an hour brushing her hair, polishing her nails, cleaning her face carefully with cold-cream and cold water . . . putting her new clothes away in sachet powder.

* * *

Before ten the next morning May Seymour telephoned Glory.

"Hello, Lazybones!" she said in answer to Glory's sleepy "Hello."

"I've been up for two hours," May went on proudly. "Bathed Mah Jongg already."

"Did you call me up to tell me you'd given your dog a bath?" Glory laughed. "I have something better to tell than that myself . . . I've got a lot of new clothes to show you. Bought 'em yesterday."

"Well, doll yourself up in some of them and we'll go downtown and jazz around a bit," May said. "I'm blue as indigo . . . and I don't know why. Found a gray hair in my brush, for one thing, this morning! Think of it . . . gray hair at twenty-five! . . . What do you suppose I'll look like at forty?"

"Just the way you do now," Glory comforted her. "Brunettes don't fade, May. And there's a lot of good hair dye on the market when you really need it. . . . What time will you call for me?"

"Oh, about twelve," May said, and rang off.

Glory set about the serious business of dressing.

She had just finished by the time May honked the horn of her car outside the house at noon.

"If anyone telephones for me when I'm gone, please say I'm having lunch at the Downeyflake tea room with Mrs. Seymour," Glory told Ranghild, who was cleaning silver in the pantry. She had a vague idea that Stan might take it into his head to phone her.

* * *

"Well, will you kindly take a look at the Fifth Avenue, kid!" May exclaimed as Glory opened the door of the automobile and stepped in. "That's the best-looking hat I ever saw in my life!"

"I'm glad you appreciate it. . . . Dick all but killed me for buying it," Glory sighed. "My goodness, to hear him talk you'd think I'd committed a murder instead of buying myself a few clothes!"

"That's the way with all the men," May sympathized as the car sped through the sunny streets. "I tell you, Glory, a woman has to fight for everything she gets in this world! . . . I've broken John of his everlasting dingdonging about bills, though. . . . Every time he razzed me for spending money, I turned right 'round and spent some more! . . . Now he's afraid to open his mouth about bills."

"What does a girl get out of marriage but a few clothes and parties, and a houseful of furniture to keep dusted, anyway?" she went on after a moment. "Nothing else at all! . . . But a man's marriage just doubles his interest in life. He still has his business, and a home and wife on the side! Whereas a girl gives up everything when she marries."

Glory thought this over. Surely May hadn't given up everything when she married Dr. John. She certainly had not given up Jim Carewe, for instance. They still went around together as they had before May's marriage.

Dr. John was a mystery to Glory. Didn't he care if his attractive young wife and Jim Carewe lunched together two or three times a week while he, himself, was making his calls? . . . Or did he care so much for May that he let her do as she pleased, so long as she was content to be his wife? . . . Glory couldn't figure it out.

May parked her car outside an automobile saleroom.

After the two girls had shopped and lunched they decided to go back to Glory's house to look at her new clothes.

* * *

Glory was vaguely unhappy.

Somehow or other she had had a wild hope that she would see Stanley Wayburn in the restaurant where she and May had lunched. When she had dressed that morning she had been dressing, half unconsciously for Stan's eyes.

And she had not seen him.

"Look at that blue car there in the window, Glory," May indicated a glossy little roadster in the window of the show-room across the side-walk.

Glory looked. The little car was a beauty.

"Just for the fun of it, let's go in and price it," Glory said impulsively. They went in.

"That's our new 1925 model," said the natty young salesman, opening the door of the car so that Glory could get into it. "The very best buy on the market . . . $1800 exactly!"

Glory sat down behind the wheel. The soft springy seats were covered with blue leather. And on the dash was a tiny clock set in dark blue enamel.

"This car drives as easily as a one-hoss shay. It's an ideal machine for a lady," the salesman said, turning to May.

"You certainly should have that car, Glory," May said in her metallic voice. Glory stepped out of the automobile.

* * *

That night she asked Dick to buy it for her.

"I don't want any old telephone company stock, Rikky," she said, pleadingly. "And I'm crazy for this little bus. It's the 'cutest thing in the world. . . and it would keep your Glory so snug and warm these wintry days. . . . I could even go to market in it every morning, and bring my vegetables and meats home in it."

That touch about the markets was an inspiration, she knew. For Dick loved the idea of her being a housewife . . . picking out her own strawberries and rump-roasts in the markets, and bringing them home.

"I want that telephone stock for you . . . but there is one way I can buy you the automobile," he said finally.

"How?" Glory asked eagerly.

Blaze on Spadina Avenue Destroys $90,000 Worth of Stock.

TORONTO, May 2. (Canadian Press) — Damage to stock will amount to $90,000 as the result of fire which broke out in the premises of the McDonald and Dawn Company in the basement of a building at 460 Spadina avenue yesterday morning. Ten thousand theatrical costumes were practically destroyed by the fire, and smoke and water injured much stock on the floors above. Damage to the building is estimated at $20,000.

WORKERS CELEBRATED

the constables were not required once during the whole day.

The procession, as it wended its way along the streets in the eastern section of the city, was composed of well-dressed Communists, silk-stockinged women and the usual quota of miscellaneous sympathizers, the majority of whom carried slogans denouncing capitalists, child labor and so forth, together with signs advertising the greatness of the Communist cause. Small red flags and red hats not having been prohibited, they were everywhere in evidence. When the parade was over, the Communists and their followers held a meeting in Prince Arthur Hall, where they gave vent to their pent-up objections to everything involving capital.

Between 40,000 and 50,000 families were engaged in moving, owing to Montreal's yearly leasing system. No strikes of any importance are in progress in the city at present.

C.W.V.A. HELD ALOOF.

GLACE BAY, N.S., May 2.—Approximately eight hundred persons paraded here yesterday in the May Day demonstrations.

In the parade were delegations from several miners' locals, from the different women's labor clubs, and several school children. While the parade was forming upon Union Street the "Red Flag" was sung.

Thursday evening at a meeting of the G.W.V.A. band it was decided that the band as an organization would take no part in the parade, whether it was headed by the Union Jack or not. The majority of the band members preferred to turn in their instruments rather than have anything to do with the May Day demonstrations.

The Caledonia local banner, followed by about forty bonafide members of the local, bore the Soviet emblem, the sickle and hammer.

John W. McLeod, president of the United Mine Workers of Nova Scotia, was among the membership of the Dominion No. 6 local in the parade. Alexander McKay, district secretary, was one of the members of the Caledonian delegation. Joseph Nearing, the vice-president, along with James Clarke, took charge of the formation of the reserve local section of the parade.

QUIET IN OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, May 2. — (Canadian Press). — Ottawa building trade circles experienced one of the quietest May Days of years, with no signs of any labor troubles or threatened strikes.

Members of the Plumbers' and Steam Fitters' Union are still negotiating for a new agreement, but the matters in dispute are likely to be amicably settled. Contractors and builders reported that there was a good supply of building labor and that the supply of skilled mechanics was adequate to meet the demand.

NOVIA SCOTIA TO DEMAND

in pursuing their vocations," told the House that the victims of the disaster were constituents of his and paid great tribute to them and to their young captain who was saved. He was followed by his colleague, A. H. Sperry, and following this tribute the House maintained a period of complete silence.

The House was adjourned until Monday night at 8.30.

CLAIM MADE IN COMMONS.

OTTAWA, May 2. — (Canadian Press).—Speaking in the debate on the budget early Friday morning, W. A. Black (Conservative, Halifax) referred to depressing conditions existing in the Maritime Provinces, and charged the Government with doing little or nothing to improve these conditions.

"I realize that the Government has proposed a change in the tariff on coal," Mr. Black said. "This is being reluctantly done, after persistent representations were made. But it is a small measure of the justice which Nova Scotia demands, and which it should be receiving at the hands of the Government."

Mr. Black stated that at the time representations were made to the Government in regard to the coal duties, the need of tariff assistance for the Nova Scotia steel industry was also urged. Nothing had been done for it, however. It was a well-known fact that the Government's tariff changes of 1924 had injured the Nova Scotia steel industry. The industry had been deprived of markets by tariff changes of the present Government, and had been forced partially to close its doors. The result was unemployment, not only in the steel works, but in the coal mines, and the action of the Government had "contributed largely to the industrial debacle which is now being witnessed in Eastern Nova Scotia, and which is palsying the whole economic life of this province."

Worst in History.

"Nova Scotia was never, in all its history, passing through such a gruelling period of depression as it is suffering to-day," Mr. Black declared. In spite of this, the Government was trying to make Nova Scotians believe that they were in a "golden era." He would not repeat what had often been well said, in regard to the understandings and agreements which were cornerstones of the Confederation pact, "which understandings and agreements Nova Scotia claims have not been faithfully lived up to."

Turning to the railways situation, Mr. Black charged that instead of helping develop the Maritime Provinces, railways had been converted into agencies for the depression of these provinces. Freight rates had been imposed which denied maritime people access to the markets that they were guaranteed at the time of Confederation. So exhorbitant were these rates, that traffic was being handled by other means. While not overlooking the fact that "after prolonged electioneering dodging," a contract had been let for the construction of a grain elevator at Halifax, Mr. Black asserted that grain had been pouring out through foreign ports without regard to promises made. He cited two factories manufacturing fertilizer which had closed down as a result of the tariff policy of the Government.

In closing he declared that Nova Scotians were still crossing the line in order that they might earn a livelihood. "It is said that there are more Nova Scotians in Massachusettes and in the New England States than in the province itself," he asserted.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

HOW TO PLAN JUNE WEDDING

Arrangements Should Be Made for Trousseau and Ceremony Early.

HEARTS AFLUTTER

Already the approach of June, the month of roses and weddings, has set the heart of many a bride-to-be aflutter with thoughts of the small cares incidental to the trousseau, the bridal retinue, the wedding and the honeymoon.

It is a wise bride that plans her wedding so as to have a day or two of complete rest at the end, minus the frantic rush that often brings the bride to the altar on the verge of hysteria.

The trousseau, for the next few weeks, will be the prime consideration. It is designed on simple lines this year, with an eye to rapidly changing fashion.

Two frilly afternoon dresses, one formal gown, several dainty house dresses, four pairs of slippers, one of oxfords, a street hat and a sport hat, a light wrap and a heavier sport coat, two pairs of gloves and a fur scarf will fill the needs of the summer bride.

Lingerie, of course, must be prepared in plenty, and may be as elaborate as the bride's purse will permit.

Household linens should be bought as soon as the bride knows what her house is to be like, and should be chosen, not only for beauty, but for durability.

* * *

Wedding invitations should be sent two weeks before the wedding. Four o'clock and 8 o'clock are now favorite hours for weddings, though Catholic and Episcopalian ceremonies are often performed at high noon.

A church wedding will accommodate a great many more guests that a home wedding, of course, but is much more expensive. Decorations should not be overdone, and a simple color scheme harmonizing with the bridal gowns should be followed.

Candle light ceremonies are increasing in favor.

One or two solos usually precede the ceremony, and the wedding march is played either on the organ or the piano, with a violin obligato.

A bride chooses her sister or her best friend for honor maid or matron, and three or four bridesmaids from her intimate friends. The groom chooses the best man and the bride and groom together select the ushers. If the groom has a sister, she must be included in the retinue.

The bride's father or nearest male relative if the father is dead gives her in marriage.

It is essential that the entire bridal party shall rehearse the ceremony at least once, with the musicians.

The minister will be able to give invaluable advice concerning the details of the ceremony.

At a church wedding, the organ again strikes up the wedding march and the party leaves the altar in procession. At a home wedding, the bride and groom stand near the altar to receive the congratulations of their friends.

* * *

In either case, the reception takes place in the drawing room of the bride's home. If a wedding breakfast is to be served, the guest list should be limited to the number that can be seated at the table.

The menu should consist of consomme, salad, ices, cakes, coffee and bonbons. If there is a wedding cake, the bride must cut it.

Refreshments for a reception are less elaborate. Ices, cakes, nuts and coffee will be enough.

A honeymoon usually lasts about two weeks, and the bride makes no attempt to answer the wedding gifts until she returns. She must keep a careful record of gifts and donors, lest she thank the wrong person.

The only proper acknowledgement of a wedding gift is a personal note, in which the grooms's thanks are incorporated with the bride's.

A Coat When It's Not a Dress

The "surprise cloak" is what Parisiennes call this Drecoll model. It is a coat when a coat is needed and a gracefully draped dress when occasion demands a dress only. The novel costome is made of Marcain and crepe de chine. The front is bordered and monogrammed in handkerchief fashion.

Y.W.C.A. PAGEANT.

(By Jeanette)

A capacity house greeted the first performance of the big Gymnasium Pageant by the members of the Young Women's Christian Association at the Grand Opera House last night. Nearly five hundred girls, from tiny tots to senior classes, took part in a programme which was run off in snappy, military fashion, with no tiresome waits, and a conclusion at an early hour. Miss Caroline Littlefield, the physical directress of the Y.W.C.A., is to be congratulated on the manifest advances made by members under her tuition from year to year. The different classes last night acquitted themselves admirably. A consideration of the difficulty encountered in the training of such tiny morsels of humanity as took part in some of the exercises last night, and the excellence with which they went through their parts, affords some conception of the quality of their instruction and the careful efforts by their directress.

Possibly the dance portion of the entertainment was the most popular with the audience. The dances were varied and beautiful, the costuming forming an important part in their attractive staging. From the dance of Old Ireland, with its lilting measures, to the stirring martial note of the Dance of Victory, there was color and grace and life in the pretty series.

The programme opened with a Grand Processional March, in which every member of the various classes took part. The military atmosphere which characterized the different physical exercises was very apparent in the precision with which the hundreds of girls took their places, all in trim middy suits, and wound through the house and back again to the stage, the procession led by Miss Littlefield and the tiny tots of the baby classes.

The Intermdeiate Class followed with a Single Stick Military drill, then the Advanced Class went through a series of Swedish gymnastics, difficult evolutions that aroused much applause and included an odd exercise in "The Human Wheel," with eight girls forming a living, revolving circle, four supporting their half-recumbent companions.

Elementary Club swinging by the Junior Class was something out of the ordinary in such youthful performers, and was followed by a cunning baby number: "The Romance of the Kewpies and the Golliwogs," by the Babies' Class and the Junior Boys. The tiny lassies, in their pink and blue and yellow suits, with huge butterfly bows, aroused plenty of enthusiasm with their pantomomic reproduction of a group of children lost in the woods, and came on and went off with a goose-step turn to their gait that sent the house into peals of laughter. Their rescuers were the Golliwogs, little boys with fearsome black wigs and black suits adorned with colored discs, brandishing firearms and doing an "awkward squad" step and some leap frog stunts before marching off with their prizes.

The fancy club swinging exercises by the Advanced Class were intricate and splendidly done, and the reed exercises by the Senior School Girls and Senior Classes were graceful expositions of the art which may be extracted from physical exercises of this type.

"A Bit of Ould Ireland," by the Junior Class, was one of the gayest numbers on the programme. A hopping, frolicsome group of youths and maidens, the swains in black jackets an brown breeks, with green stovepipe hats, and their sweethearts in the bright greens and reds of the Emerald Isle, received enthusiastic applause for their free, light-footed grace in a jolly Irish jig.

"The Soldier and His Sweetheart" (from a Russian Toy Shop), by the Intermediate Class, was a dainty, flirtatious number, with a jaunty air to the tripping of the girls, in yellow frocks with huge hair bows, and their cavaliers in the tight blue and red uniforms and black tricorne hats of the Russian soldier.

The second portion of the programme was composed of a series of dances, depicting the rythmic movements of many lands and peoples.

The Senior School Girls had a pretty dance in "Katinka" (The Beloved Russian Doll), a sliding dance with odd measures, the performers wearing Dutch costumes of yellow and green, with pendant narrow ribbons from their red head-kerchiefs.

The Flower of Spain, by the Senior Class, was a lovely exposition of the grace of Old Seville, the girls in orange and black, with orange motifs on their enveloping Spanish shawls and red roses beneath the brims of their flat black Spanish hats.

A dance that aroused repeated encores was the graceful "Dance of Youth" by the Advanced Class. This beautiful number, interpretive of the spirit of youth, was done by a group in pale green draperies, holding golden balls, its soft, weaving measures bringing renewed applause.

"The Story of the Fan," by the Junior Dancing Class, was the rhythmic tale of the young miss in a new gown who discovers a fan, and, dancing, weaves a tiny romance until someone approaches. A group of pretty maidens in frilled pink frocks and white pantalettes, waving big black fans, went through the quaint, dignified movements of this attractive number.

A dance in waltz rhythm, with graceful, arm-linked maidens playing at various games, was the Senior Dancing Class interpretation of some of the Schubert Waltzes. This was a beautiful dance, done in rainbow tinted chiffons of varied, harmonizing shades, the matching stockings of the dancers and their gold shoes making lovely costumes for an effective number.

The Intermediate Dancing Class had the "Moment Rhythmique," a Greek dance, interpretive of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," with the lovely, intertwining measures costumes in soft, misty blues, with fragile blue scarves.

A splendid programme ended with one of the best numbers of the evening, "The Dance of Victory," by the Senior Dancing Class, a stirring martial number, dramatic and beautiful, in French flame effect with the performers in flame-colored costumes.

During the intermission, Mayor Turner spoke appreciatively of the splendid community endeavor of the Y.W.C.A. and of the work of Miss C. Littlefield, which he commended especially. He asked for the co-operation and support of the citizens in the work of the "Y," and thanked them, in the name of Miss Littlefield and the Board of Directors, for their attendance.

A beautiful basket of pink roses, presented by the Board of Directors, was given Miss Littlefield last evening, and given her on the stage by two tiny tots, Joy Walker and Jackie Roper.

Accompanists for the occasion were the Misses Madeline Willis and Gwen Donley, with Mrs. E. Foster playing violin and Mr. F. Smith the drums and traps.

The Pageant will be repeated this evening in the Grand Opera House.

A very jolly little Superstition dance, attended by about thirty young people, was given last night, under the auspices of the Peterboro Amateur Chemists' Association, at the residence of Mrs. F. A. Hodgson who kindly loaned her spacious home for the occasion. The handsome rooms were decorated in an original manner, with a profusion of colored paper hangings and a paper streamer bower for orchestra. The Association, formed of a group of amateur scientists, including Allan Neal, George Cunningham, William Velland, Fred Hodgson, Winston Merrell and Harry Ebbs, made delightful hosts, and were in charge of a programme of novelty dances that added much to the merriment of the evening. There was a confetti dance, a skeleton-moon dance, a balloon, a gravestone, and a thunder and lightning dance, and a lucky number dance, with thirteen as the prize-winning number, and a lively black kitten in a basket as the prize. The kitten fell to the lot of Jean Gilman.

The decorations were unique and very effective. A huge lighted moon formed the only bit of illumination in the entrance, along with a tall lighted candle that stood guard by "Carol," the white-swathed skeleton that forms the mascot of the club, who extended a ghostly welcome to all incomers. A shadowy white hand beckoned from a dark corner, miniature grave stones adorned with epitaphs of companions adorned the mantelpiece and a bony skull formed another bit of decoration. The orchestra, which provided excellent music, was composed of piano, violin, jazz trumpet, drums and traps and banjo and saxaphone, played respectively by Robert Dixon, Jerry Collins, Cliff Hayes, Harold Whaley and Paul Koster.

MISSIONARY PLAY AT PARK STREET

Young People Presented 'The Pill Bottle' in Able Manner.

The young people of Park Street Baptist Church presented a clever little missionary pageant, entitled "The Pill Bottle," in the church on Friday evening, the aim of the young people being to place before the congregation the terrible conditions in India.

The story centres around Barbara Lane, a charming young college student, and the most popular girl in school. As a result of her popularity with boys and girls alike, she has become rather spoiled. At the termination of four college years, she and Francis, her special girl friend, decide that upon Barbara's return from India, where she is going to spend some time visiting her parents, who are missionaries there, they will commence their life-work as Interior Decorators, a very pleasant and remunerative occupation. After much weening and wailing on the part of her classmates, who dislike saying farewell, fearing that Barbara will remain in India, she departs for that country, assuring her friends that she would not consider remaining in such a hot "sticky" country.

On arriving there, however, she sees some of the problems which her father and mother meet in their work, and is so shocked by the conditions among the natives, that on her very first night, she decides to become a missionary doctor.

The part of Barbara was very ably taken by Dorothy Metcalfe, who handled the two extremes of the giddy young college student and the "Angel of Mercy in India" in a most versatile manner.

The other parts were equally well taken, and the following is the cast of characters:

Barbara Lane: Dorothy Metcalfe.
Frances: Viola Tranter.
Helen: Nettie Hardie.
Jane: Laura Purvis.
Dr. Lane: Aylmer Moore.
Mrs. Lane: Margaret Riddell.
Hindu Husband No. 1: Roland Jones.
Hindu Husband No. 2: Percy Luther.
Hindu Boy: Raymond Dixon.
Bible Woman: Verna Saunders.
Outcaste: Ethel White
Patients: Violet Saunders, Blanche Panter, Dorothy White, Ena Batley, Addie Wright, Elsie Rae, Grace Chambers, Peggy Hardie, Clara Parker, Agnes Moore, Nellie Masters and Mrs. Dixon.

The first part of the programme took the form of vocal and instrumental solos given very effectively by the following:

Vocal solo, Alfred Thompson; piano solo, Ansel Taylor; vocal duet, Muriel and Gladys Thomas; vocal solo, William Saunders; vocal solo, Maurice Dunkley; vocal solo, George Nicholls; piano solo, Ernest Elliott; vocal solo, Edith Pilling; vocal solo, Mrs. McLeod; male quartette: Aylmer Moore, George Nicholls, William Saunders and Alfred Thompson.

Much credit is due Neil Porter, who not only directed the pageant but also accompanied the various numbers. Also to Mrs. White, who designed the costumes for the pageant the vividness of color in the costumes of the natives of India adding much to the effectiveness of the scene.

The ladies ushering at the door were Mrs. N. Porter, Ethel Parker, and Ivy Yarrow.

Rev. Norman McLeod acted as chairman.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 5

What 'Orange Pekoe' Means

Many buyers of tea have come to ask for 'Orange Pekoe' believing that it signifies fine quality. This is not, however, necessarily the case. In the trade 'Orange Pekoe' is only a name given to the first leaf below the bud or tip on any Indian or Ceylon tea bush. An 'Orange Pekoe' leaf grown at a high elevation usually possesses a very fine flavour. If, however, the plant is grown at a low elevation, it may still be 'Orange Pekoe' but also be of very poor quality. The consumer's only safeguard is to buy a tea of recognized goodness. High grown 'Orange Pekoes' comprise a large part of every blend of "SALADA" and give to "SALADA" its unequalled flavour.

TRAINING YOUR DOG

This is the seventh of a series telling how to train dogs to do tricks.

Teaching a dog the sense of balance is considered by dog trainers to be one of the most difficult features of his work.

At this stage of his training the dog should be a year or a year and one-half old.

Do not take up balancing until your dog is fully developed, as the success of this work depends on his strength and steadiness. Constant training over a long period is necessary for a dog to acquire a keen sense of balance.

To teach your dog to balance on his back feet in your hand, start him in a sitting position on your right hand. Grasp his front feet with your left hand and raise him to a standing position.

By allowing him to rest his front feet against your hand you will enable him to find his proper balance.

This trick should be practiced the dog about a foot from the floor. Be careful and do not let him fall as this will cause him to be afraid.

FABLES ON HEALTH.

Dry baking soda is an excellent remedy for slight burns where the skin is not broken.

The soda should be spread on the part and then a clean bandage applied.

When the flesh is broken some oily substance should be used. This substance should be thoroughly cleaned, and all air should be excluded from the wound.

Clean olive oil, or vaseline, is good. Old linen should be soaked in one part of these and gently wrapped around the part.

If the burn is a very serious one, while the doctor is being sent for bathe with a boric solution. Boric is cooling and healing.

Never wrap fingers together when burned. Wrap separately. If wrapped together they will stick and cause much pain.

The same rule applies to toes also.

Wrappings should be soaked in vaseline. Cotton should be placed underneath. This helps to keep out the air and thereby relieves pain.

Through the Gates of Fairyland

By C. S. and A. G. HAMMOCK

Cinderella and the Little Glass Slipper

There was once a rich man whose wife died, leaving him with one little girl. After a few years he married again, hoping to give his child a mother's love and care. This time he married a widow with two grown-up daughters, and all three of them were very proud and haughty. So the poor little girl soon became very unhappy. Her step-sisters were jealous of her, for she was very beautiful and they were plain and ugly. They did all they could to make her miserable. The poor child was made to spend her time in the kitchen, where she had to do all the rough work; and because she sat beside the cinders in the grate they called her Cinderella.

The King of the country had an only son and he was very anxious that the Prince should marry; so he gave a great ball and invited all the grand ladies in the realm. It was to be a very splendid affair, lasting three nights, and every one was eager to go.

Cinderella's sisters received invitations, and from the day they arrived they talked of nothing but of what they should wear.

The great day came at last, and when Cinderella saw their beautiful clothes she wished that she, too, might go to the ball; but when she mentioned it, they simply laughed in scorn.

So the two sisters and their mother drove away in their carriage to the King's palace. Cinderella sat down before the kitchen fire and began to cry softly, for she was very miserable.

As she sat there in the dusk, her face buried in her hands, she heard a voice calling: "Cinderella, Cinderella!" With a start she looked up and there in front of her was a little old woman, leaning upon a stick.

Cinderella was so surprised that she stopped crying and stared in astonishment.

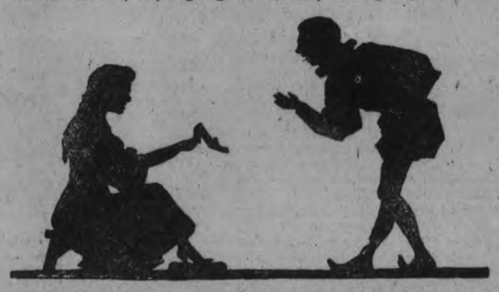
"Why are you crying?" asked the old woman.

"Because my mother and sisters have gone to the ball and I am left here all alone," said Cinderella.

"So you want to go to the ball?" asked the old lady.

"Yes, but it cannot be; I have nothing to wear but rags."

"Well, don't cry any more. I am your Fairy Godmother," said the old woman, "and if you do as I tell you, you shall go to the ball. Now run out to the garden and bring a pumpkin!"



Cinderella ran out and brought the biggest pumpkin that she could find.

"Now fetch the rat trap from the cellar," said her Godmother, and Cinderella quickly obeyed. There were six mice and a rat in the trap.

The fairy waved her wand over them and immediately the pumpkin turned into a wonderful coach, the mice into six beautiful horses and the rat into a stately coachman.

"There," said the fairy, "is the coach to take you to the ball."

"But I have nothing to wear but this ragged frock!"

At once her rags turned into the most beautiful dress in the world, all shining with gold and silver and precious gems. On her feet were the daintiest pair of glass slippers that were ever seen.

"Now you can go to the ball," said her Godmother, "but come away before the clock strikes twelve, or all your splendor will vanish and your dress will again be rags."

Cinderella promised to obey her Godmother, got into the coach and away she went.

Her arrival made a great stir in the palace. So lovely a face and so rich a dress had never been seen before, and all wondered who she was.

At a quarter of twelve, Cinderella, remembering the instructions of her Godmother, said good-by to the Prince and went away.

She reached home just as the clock struck twelve. At once her finery vanished and when the sisters came home a little later, there was Cinderella, dressed in her old shabby frock, in her usual place.

The two ugly sisters talked all the next day about the beautiful lady, never dreaming that she was their despised sister.

In the evening after they had again gone to the ball, the Fairy Godmother came again, and once more Cinderella drove to the palace in her coach. She was dressed more beautifully than before, and again the Prince danced with her all the evening.

But the third night Cinderella was enjoying herself so much that she quite forgot the time until she heard the clock begin striking twelve. Jumping up in alarm, she ran out of the room. The Prince tried very hard to overtake her, and Cinderella in her flight lost one of her glass slippers.

As the Prince stopped to pick it up, Cinderella escaped. Just as she was crossing the palace grounds the clock finished striking, and at once all her finery vanished. There she was, dressed in her old rags.

When the Prince came out to the Palace gate the guards told him that nobody had passed that way except a ragged little girl. So the Prince had to go back to the ball with only a little glass slipper to remind him of the beautiful lady.

Next day the King sent out all his heralds with a proclamation, saying that the Prince would marry the lady whose foot the slipper fitted. But though all the ladies in the land tried on the slipper, it would fit none of them.

At last the heralds came to the house where Cinderella lived. The eldest sister tried the slipper on first, but it was quite impossible for her to get her foot into it. The other sister had no better luck. Then Cinderella asked shyly if she might try it on. Her stepmother and sisters were very unwilling, but the herald said, "The Prince wishes every woman in the land to try on his slipper." Asking Cinderella to be seated, he knelt down and tried the slipper on her foot. And it fitted her perfectly!

Then Cinderella drew from her pocket the other slipper and put it on. Immediately her ragged dress was changed into the wonderful ball dress again and she became at once the beautiful lady with whom the Prince had fallen in love at the ball.

This time Cinderella's finery did not vanish; and when her sisters offered to let her wear some of their beautiful things, they found her supplied with everything a grand lady could desire.

The heralds departed to bear the good news to the King.

Just imagine the chagrin of the two ugly sisters when the hated Cinderella became the beautiful lady who had won the Prince's heart!

They thought of the many ways in which they had slighted Cinderella and were much distressed to think of how she might treat them when she became the bride of the Prince.

When the King received the news, he proclaimed a week of merry-making in honor of the approaching wedding which was announced throughout the kingdom.

At length the wedding day arrived and all the knights and ladies from all over the kingdom were present.

Cinderella, being very kind-hearted, saw to it that the ugly sisters who had treated her so badly were present and shown the greatest respect. She forgave them freely for all their offenses, on the occasion of her great joy.

After the wedding, Cinderella brought her two sisters to live at the palace. After a time they overcame their envious ways, due, no doubt, to the sweet disposition of Cinderella, and later they were married to gentlemen of the court.

ONCE POPULAR SOFT TUBE IS OBSOLETE

Require Too Much Adjustment to Secure Most Sensitive Reception.

The once popular "soft" detector tube is rapidly becoming obsolete because of the delic adjustment of filament and plate voltage which is required to make it operate most efficiently. Prior to the development of satisfactory methods of radio frequency amplification, it was necessary to take advantage of every iota of sensitiveness in the detector to secure the best long distance results. But with constantly increasing technical knowledge and experience of radio engineers, it is now possible to make receivers capable of the utmost long distance reception equipped without using soft detector tubes.

A "soft" detector tube is slightly more sensitive than a hard one for very weak impulses, provided its filament and plate potential are adjusted to precisely the correct points. This requires a specially tapped B battery and a vernier filament rheostat.

However, hard tubes have accustomed listeners to tubes which are not critical. Such tubes work satisfactorily with any plate voltage between 22½ and 45, while a few turns more or less of filament rheostat resistance make little or no difference in signal strength.

On the other hand, with the "soft" detector tube, the correct plate and filament voltage are so difficult to determine that most users never do operate the tube at its most sensitive point. To find the sensitive point, it is necessary to tune in a distant station, then to reduce the plate voltage to 10½. By increasing filament voltage, a point of maximum signal strength is found. The signal strength at that adjustment is carefully observed. Then the plate voltage is increased to the next tap of the battery; that is, the 18 volt tap. The filament voltage is again readjusted and the signal strength noted. This process of finding the most sensitive point is repeated for each tap of the B battery up to 22½ volts. The combination of filament and plate voltage which gives the loudest signal is used as long as good reception is secured with it.

This process cannot be successfully carried out with the receiver tuned to a local station because the adjustment which gives the loudest signal from a nearby station is not likely to be the one which is most sensitive for distant reception.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that the correct adjustment does not remain constant. The proportion of gases in the tube and, in consequence, its operating characteristics, are affected by temperature changes and age. Sometimes, while listening to a single program, the process of finding the correct filament and plate voltages must be repeated, because the signal fades out as the most sensitive operating point changes.

Another factor which has hastened the disappearance of the "soft" decetor tube is its heavy filament current drain of one ampere. This, compared with but a quarter of an ampere for the best hard tubes, is a heavy drain on the storage battery supplying the filament current.

Considerations of simplicity in wiring, economy in current drain, delicacy of adjustment, and the lesser importance of detector sensitiveness because of radio frequency amplifier development, have led to the rapid disappearance of the once popular and highly valued soft detector tube.

FRUIT MARKET AT IN-BETWEEN TIME JUST NOW

Some Stocks Are Coming in More Plentifully Than Before.

PRICES DOWN.

Pineapples and Strawberries Have Dropped in Price Recently.

An "in-between season" is the way most of the dealers describe the present local market conditions. A wholesale fruit man jotting down a long order from a customer and wishing that overdue stocks would arrive and a retail fruit dealer cleaning up a load of spinach and regarding a light rainfall with a pessimistic expression were highlights of yesterday's trip for market news. Retail fruiterers, when not engaged in parcelling up orders for delivery or putting things in paper bags for customers, spend a good deal of time in furbishing up their goods. There is a good deal of work about the retail fruit business. A bunch of bananas, for instance, isn't simply removed from the truck and hung up on a string in the shop window. It usually arrives in a green state and is conducted to a lower-floor ripening room, where a warm atmosphere helps it to attain a ripe golden hue.

Apples are polished to a consistent brightness, tomatoes are removed from their tissue paper individual wrappings and arranged to look their best, parsley and mint are placed in bowls of water, strawberries have to be constantly inspected to see that they are fit for sale, and there is a good deal of cleaning and sorting and tearing off of loose outer covering from things like spinach and lettuce.

With the first week in May comes the beginning of the pineapple season. The big, spiny pines are coming in now from Cuba, Havana and Porto Rico, and their price, which has decreased slightly during the past ten days, is expected to be down just a little lower within the next fornight.

Strawberries, for which the demand is said not to be as great as usual this year, are selling at 30 cents for the pint box.

New potatoes are also down a bit. Twenty cents will buy a small measure.

In the medley of eatables that pour in to the city from far-away points, one variety of vegetable has escaped entirely the thrall of the import stamp. The first of the season to arrive in local circles is spinach, from city hothouses.

Pansies in boxes at 20 cents each are harbingers of flowery days to come.

Flour prices are down slightly. The half barrel that sold at $5.25 to $5.35 a couple of weeks ago is now priced at $5.00 to $5.25, and the twenty-four pound bag is sold at $1.25, a decrease of 10 cents in some stores.

Butter Grading.

Creamery butter has decreased by a couple of cents on the pound. The question of butter occupies considerable attention in the life of the average Canadian farmer. The "Canadian Grocer" of recent date speaks of the harm done Canadian butter exporters by varying faults in some of the butter shipped from the Dominion. Mouldy butter has caused a great deal of damage to its reputation in London markets.

An odd complaint from the Old Country transpired after a large shipment had been sent from the western provinces via Vancouver and the Panama Canal. This shipment showed a very strong orange flavor on its arrival at Liverpool.

Pasteurized and unpasteurized butter alike found patrons in different sections of the British markets, and one to one and one half per cent of salt was the general demand.

Buyers in touch with British markets admit that Canadian butter and cheese are as good as always in the majority of cases, and better in most than the goods of their competitors, but faults in grading and packing by some shippers cause the better qualities to be penalized on account of indifference of some exporters. Danish butter, although pronounced no better than the Canadian make, usually has a beter demand in the old country, because of the uniformly careful system of grading in that country, and cheese, from New Zealand gets the first choice over Canadian cheese, because of irregularity in some grades from the Dominions.

Russia Competing.

Russia promises to be in the future a serious competitor to Canada as a purveyor of dairy foods to the British Isles. In 1922, Russia exported 40,000 casks of butter, 200,000 in 1923 and the estimated figure for 1924 is placed at 450,000.

A number of new regulations regarding butter and cheese trade have been announced by Dr. J. A. Ruddick, dairy and cold storage commissioner for Canada, following a recent conference with the Montreal Dairy Exporters' Association and the Montreal Merchants' Association. In submitting these proposed changes to the associations, Dr. Ruddick explained that they were made necessary by the fact that dealers were putting up any kind of butter in prints or moulds under guise of government graded. The government, he explained, could not grade butter in prints, and therefore it was necessary to stipulate in the regulations that nothing should appear on the wrappers containing butter cut into prints which would indicate government grading.

The life of the Government grade certificate, he pointed out, was only six weeks, and very often butter so graded was put into prints or blocks for retail sale, long after that period has expired.

New Regulations.

The proposed regulations, which will be submitted to Ottawa within a short time, are as follows:

"Any butter which has been graded as solids in export packages and which has afterwards been cut or moulded into blocks or prints shall be deemed to be not graded, and no person shall brand, mark, describe or advertise butter which has been so cut or moulded into prints, as graded butter.

"The grader's certificate covering any lot of butter packed as solids in export packages shall be deemed as cancelled when that particular lot of butter is cut or moulded into blocks or prints.

"No person shall mark, brand, or describe or advertise in any way any ungraded butter, or any butter for which the grader's certificate has expired in such a manner as to convey the impression that it is graded butter.

"No butter packages bearing any one or more of the grade marks prescribed in section 22 of these regulations and from which the butter has been removed, shall be used again for the packing of butter unless all such grade marks have been completely erased.

"Any person who packs butter in a package which bears any of the grade marks prescribed in section 22 of these regulation shall be deemed guilty of an offence against these regulations.

"No person shall knowingly sell, offer for sale, or have in his possession for sale, any butter branded marked, described as, or advertised contrary to sections 24,25,26 and 27 of these regulations."

HAVELOCK BOARD TAKES UP REPORT

Continuation School Lacks School Spirit and Needs Equipment.

HAVELOCK, May 2. — The Havelock Board of Education held a special meeting in the school on Tuesday evening, with all the members and the continuation school staff present.

A communication was received from Mr. Roberts, secretary of the Underwriters' Association acknowledging receipt of a letter setting forth the valuation of the school property and stating that it would be presumptuous for him to determine the amount or insurance that should be carried, but that he considered 75 per cent of the valuation would be a fair percentage.

On motion of Trustees Jas. Barlow and Dr. Thompson the communication was ordered filed.

Inspector Mills' Report.

Under the item, accommodations, the inspector advises that new blackboards should be provided.

Under Equipment, the inspector advises that at least the sum of $50 should be expended in new books for the library.

The principal drew attention to the fact that there were a number of books missing, and accounted for the same as a result of the cabinet having a glass broken through which pupils could help themselves to the books.

An effort has been made to recover these by asking pupils to make search and if found to bring back the books belonging to the school library.

Some have been recovered in this way, but there are still about a hundred dollars' worth of books unaccounted for.

The board decided to leave the purchase of books recommended by Inspector Mills until a later date, pending the return of books that may be brought back.

Under physical culture, the Inspector points out that this has been neglected to some extent, and makes mention o fthe fact that grants for Cadet Corps are withheld when physical culture work is not complied with according to the regulations.

Under general remarks, the Inspector drew attention to the fact that a great deal of money, both governmental and local, had been expended on the school in recent years for results not satisfactory. He pointed out the poor school spirit, and that too many pupils do not take their work seriously. Also, he pointed out the high average age of those entering Continuation School, one year higher than the average for the Province. As to salaries the Inspector said they were fair and that good returns should be expected, and further said there is no valid reason that a school of excellent efficiency should not be built up in Havelock.

After a thorough discussion of the report and consultation with the staff, it was found that the Inspector, staff and board were working to accomplish the same end, and it was found that the school is showing improvement.

Moved by Trustees Dr. A. S. Thompson and Jas. Barlow, that the Inspector's report be received. Carried.

Miss McKewen, Public Health Nurse, addressed the board regarding her work, and asked if the board desired that the work be carried into the Continuation School.

Cadet inspection will be held on some date near the middle of May. The Inspector asked for the attendance of the whole school as well as a goodly showing of citizens and a representation from the board.

On motion of Trustees Dr. A. S. Thompson and D. A. Forde, the Principals were allowed to suspend school operations during the inspection.

On motion of Trustees E. Fennell and J. Barlow, Dr. A. S. Thompson was asked to represent the board at the inspection.

The meeting adjourned until the third Tuesday in May.

KIDNAPPER CAPTURED.

Farm Hand Said To Have Stolen Eleven Year Old Girl.

RANDOLPH, Vt., May 2. (Canadian Press).—Earl Woodward, farm hand and former convict, and Lucille Chatterton, eleven-year-old girl, he is alleged to have kidnapped, were captured in a barn in Brookfield yesterday morning. They are being brought to this town.

Hundreds of thousands of women, every spring and fall, must face the drudgery of house-cleaning.

They know that heating stoves and pipe furnaces fill their homes with dirt, and smoke up the curtains and wall paper, and they want to get rid of these out-of-date methods.

The patented CaloriC Pipeless Furnace keeps the fuel, kindling and ashes in the basement—and thereby largely eliminates house-cleaning.

We sell the CaloriC on the basis of "Satisfaction or money back." A splendid time to get a CaloriC is just before you clean house. The next best time is just after you clean house so that your house may stay clean.

See us at once and learn why more than 125,000 users in Canada, Alaska and the United States prefer the CaloriC to any other method of heating.

GOOD OFFICERS AND TEAMS FOR COMING SEASON

Northumberland League Expects to Have Best Year of Its Career.

ALL PROFESSIONS.

Doctors, Farmers, Lawyers, Mechanics and Clergymen Are Among the Players.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 1. — The Northumberland Baseball League start the season of 1925 with brighter prospects of success than it has ever faced since its organization. There are seven good teams in the membership; the league is well officered and the annual meeting held at Warkworth on Wednesday was distinguished by enthusiasm and harmony. It is a matter of general regret that Orland has dropped out but that team has always been in a peculiar position. Orland is a small village and for that reason was obliged to draw its players from a large district. Some of the best of these men lived nearer other towns that have teams in the league and the rule which provides that such players sign with the team nearest their home proved a hardship to the ambitious little hamlet that in spite of all difficulties maintained an excellent team in the league for the past two seasons, the players being noted for their gentlemanly and sportsmanlike behaviour in the field. W. J. Lattimer, the father of the team, is one of the best supporters of clean sport that baseball has ever known and he surrounded himself with a bunch of young men who shared in his enthusiasm.

The New Officers.

C. W. Varcoe of Roseneath, deserves the honor that was conferred upon him in his unanimous election to the presidency of the league. Mr. Varcoe was one of the few young men who met at Baltimore a few years ago and organized the league which has grown from a modest beginning to an organization with seven teams, representing all parts of Northumberland County. Mr. Varcoe can play almost any position in a game, but like so many modest individuals he has retired under the delusion that the younger players of to-day are too fast for him. He has always taken an active part in annual and executive meetings, and some person has dubbed him the fighting man from Roseneath, on account of the pertinacity with which he sticks to an idea when he embraces it.

The New Secretary.

Mr. Davey, the new secretary-treasurer, is the teacher in the Roseneath school, and is the guide and philosopher of the baseball team. He played a game himself when baseball was a crude institution compared to what it is to-day, but he has kept pace with every new development and the rules that have been adopted year after year, until he is a recognized authority on all points open to debate. His son, Wilford, also a teacher, is one of the best batters and infielders on the team, and has the record of going through an entire season without once striking out.

The Retiring Officers.

President Varcoe and Secretary Davey succeed two officers, ex-president Dr. E. C. McKee and ex-secretary Gordon Lapp of Brighton, upon whose administration it will be next to impossible to improve. Mr. Lapp leaves a set of records complete and above criticism; he shows a larger surplus than the League ever had before and he well deserved the honorarium that was voted him for his services. Mr. McKee is a player of renown and in an executive capacity is just as valuable as he is on the diamond.

Frankford is Welcomed.

The delegates who represented Frankford at the annual meeting certainly created a good impression and from this new entry great things are expected. Frankford is known as a town where baseball is the favorite pastime and where the people give their team generous support. The fact that the team is outside the county bars the team from winning the Clarke cup, even if they finish first, but if they do take that position they can represent the league in the O. B.A. finals. Any team that includes W. J. Hattrick, with his experience as a former member of the Peterboro Central Ontario Club is certainly an aggregation with which to reckon.

Some Star Players.

It is likely that M. H. Mulhall, who can play any position from the pitcher's box to the outfield, will be in the Colborne line up this season. Kory Zufelt will manage and hold down the first sack for the Warkworth team, and his brother Archie will do the bulk of the pitching. Nearly every one of the former Orland pitchers will be absorbed by the neighboring clubs.

Nearly all trades and professions are now represented in the league. There are farmers, mechanics, lawyers, dentists, medical doctors, as the roster of the various clubs, and with the advent of Rev. C. D. Daniel, the clerical profession has a worthy and skilled colleague in the game.

Ambitious Juvenile League.

The newly organized Seymour baseball league is already looking forward to teams to conquer beyond the confines of the township, and have offered to have the leaders in that league play the champion Northumberland League team for the Clarke cup at the end of the season. They have been informed that only members of the latter league are eligible to compete for that trophy.

The Mutual Life Pays its Claims Promptly

DELAYS in the settlement of life insurance claims add financial worry to the distress of the bereaved family. The Mutual Life of Canada has always made a special feature of prompt payment of claims, being the first company to waive the 30 to 90 days time limit for settlement, which was the custom in pioneer days.

It is not the desire of the Mutual Life to take advantage of technicalities to postpone or contest settlement of claims. The purpose of this company is to be a refuge and a comfort in time of family trouble and stress. The widowed and the fatherless receive the full benefits provided for them by Mutual policies at the earliest possible moment, and with the least possible worry.

TAX ROLL FOR 1925 IS GIVEN TO COLLECTOR

Only a Small Balance Remains Unpaid From 1924 Tax Roll

$9,309 OUTSTANDING

Total for 1924 Was $723,854.49, Which is Nearly Paid.

The tax roll for 1925 will be turned over to the tax collector for the purpose of making out the bills. This was decided at the meeting of the finance committee last night, Alderman McIntyre dissenting.

Mr. Green reported that all the taxes had been paid except $9,309.31 from a total of $723,854.49. It was felt that it was not good business to put two rolls in the collector's hands although there was only a small balance outstanding.

A letter was read asking for a contribution of 1c per capita to a tourist organization. The letter was received.

A by-law will be prepared to cover issuing debentures for $14,000 to cover water mains laid by the Utilities Commission during 1924.

It was moved by Alderman Denne seconded by Alderman Turner that the Finance Committee be authorized to sell the debentures authorized during the year.

A letter was read from the band of the Peterborough Ranges stating that they would be giving a concert in Victoria Park on May 3, and inviting the members of the committee to attend.

John Crane appeared before the committe to ask for a share of the music grant for the Symphony Orchestra. He was promised consideration.

The chairman was given authority to pass such accounts as he found properly certified.

U. S. SPEEDERS TO BE ASKED FOR $25 BOND IN HAMILTON

American tourists who contemplate passing through Hamilton, Ont., would do well to make certain that they have at least $25 in cash. They may need it if they meet a speed cop.

Chief of Police David Coulter has just issued a new set of rules for his motorcycle force and the chief one is that when an American tourist is caught speeding he shall be asked to deposit $25 as a guarantee of his presence in court on the following day.

If the tourist is wise he will pay the $25 and forget about it. The fine will be $25 anyway and there is not one chance in a million of getting off, as in speed cases the officer's word stands against the universe in Magistrate Jelf's opinion.

The regular meeting of the Police Commission was held yesterday afternoon. After inspecting the police force in their new uniforms adjournment was made to the committee room.

Letters were read from manufacturers of crossing signals. It was decided that the mayor and chief inspect a traffic signal sold by the Railway and Power Corporation at their warehouse in Toronto.

Telephone Extension.

H. Cook of the Bell Telephone Company waited on the Commission with regard to telephone service. He said that the one line at present installed was overloaded and he recommended a second line to central and an extension to the detectives 'office. The present charge is $4.72 a month and the higher charge would be $11.11.

The mayor is to interview Mr. McHardy with regard to this service.

Parking By-Law.

Leon Frazer of the Motor League asked if the Commission were considering any changes in the parking by-law. The parking by-law was passed by the city council and no action was taken by the Commission, but the mayor assured Mr. Frazer that representatives of the Council would meet representatives of the Motor League, with the Chief of Police for a thorough discussion of the matter.

NEW HEALTH FOR SUFFERING WOMEN

Aching Backs and Tired Limbs Need Not Be Endured.

Too many women endure suffering that casts a shadow over half her existence. An aching back, tired limbs, attacks of faintness, splitting headaches need not be part of womans' life. Such trials indicate plainly that the blood is thin and watery and that the sufferer needs the help of a real tonic such as Dr. Williams Pink Pills. Suffering women who have used this medicine speak of it in the highest terms. Among those who have been thus helped is Mrs. Ada L. Harman, Virden, Man., who writes:— "Following the birth of a still-born child a few years ago, I had a very serious time. I was so weak for months that I could not walk across the room without a feeling of faintness. I had scarcely strength enough to stand up, and when dressing would have to sit down two or three times. My face and lips were colorless, I had no appetite, and life did not seem worth living. A friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got six boxes. Before they were all gone I felt improved. My appetite was returning, color was coming into my face, and I was visibly stronger. I continued taking the pills and fully regained my former good health. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a blessing to weak women, and hope my experience will induce some other sufferer to try them."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NURSE KILLED BY INOCULATION

Anti-Toxin For Protection From Contagious Diseases Caused Death.

VICTIM OF ASTHMA.

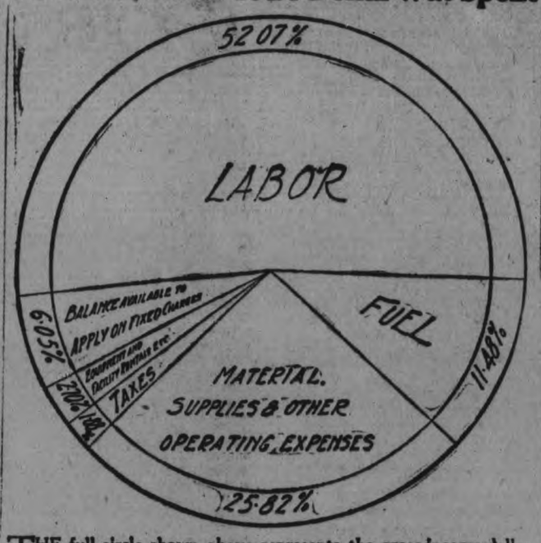
MONTREAL, May 2.—(Canadian Press).—Elsie McLeod, aged 23, of Dalkeith, Ontario, died Thursday in Alexandria Hospital, where she was a nurse-in-training, following an injection of anti-toxin against contagious diseases.

Her death became known yesterday afternoon when an inquest was held. Evidence was that Dr. Edward Murphy, superintendent of the hospital, had ordered that she be given the customary inoculation, unaware of the fact that she has been a victim of asthma. Miss McLeod died almost immediately after the injection.

SHOCK CHEATS SUICIDE.

HACKNEY, Eng., May 2.—A verdict of "death from shock during incomplete hanging," was recorded at the inquest of Rose Huckett, young typist. Doctors testified she died from shock while attempting to hang herself with a clothesline.

How the C.N.R. 1924 Dollar Was Spent



THE full circle shown above represents the gross income dollar of the Canadian National Railways in 1924. The circle is divided into a number of segments each of which represents the proportion into which the dollar was broken up for expenditure in the directions named.

The total amount spent on these items, in dollars and cents is as follows:

Labor	$127,216,017.40
Fuel	28,058,471.86
Materials, Supplies and other operating expenses	63,069,441.81
Taxes	4,588,593.56
Equipment and facility rentals, etc.	6,600,561.00
Balance available to apply on fixed charges	14,772,327.92
TOTAL	$244,305,413.55

This chart is interesting in that it is a guide to the part which the dollar of the Canadian National Railways plays in the business of the country as a whole. It is not an idle dollar. Nearly all of it remains in circulation and finds its way into every channel of industry and commerce.

As can be seen, wages paid to employees constitute, by far, the greater portion of expenditure. There are almost 100,000 employees who get their share of the company's revenues twice a month; and this money, therefore, circulates from one end of Canada to the other. None of it remains unproductive, but aids directly in the stimulation of trade and commerce in every centre where the distribution takes place. The greater part, of course, is immediately diverted into the channels of trade, but a considerable portion goes into savings banks, building and loan associations, insurance and other forms of investment. There are communities that are almost solely dependent upon the money which the System distributes in this way.

No enterprise in Canada is such a large purchaser of supplies as the Canadian National Railways. Wherever it is possible to do so, these supplies are purchased in Canada from products manufactured by the Canadian workman or grown or mined in Canadian territory. The store rooms of the company resemble a well-stocked department store. They contain thousands of separate items from elastic bands to pile drivers. The dining car commissariat is a steady customer of the Canadian farmer and fisherman. The enterprise is one that is intimately associated with every phase of industrial activity in the Dominion from the publisher of a newspaper to the builder of locomotives. The purchases of the Canadian National Railways stimulate every branch of commerce and industry and their service provides an adequate and dependable agency for the transportation of people and their goods from place to place.

BOOK REVIEW

Just forty years ago this fall the clang of a hammer in a remote fastness of the Rocky Mountains broke a silence which until a few months before had not been disturbed since the Dawn of Time. The wielder of the sledge was a vigorous, white bearded man. Around him were gathered a small crowd of lookers-on. As the echo of the last stroke died away, cheer after cheer burst from the crowd. Why? The scene in its details was common-place, except perhaps for the magnificence of the setting. Why should they cheer the driving of a mere spike? Because this was not a mere spike. It was the last spike in the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, driven home by the hands of Sir. Donald A. Smith (afterwards Lord Strathcona) bringing into fulfilment the dreams of generations, binding the far-flung provinces of British North America into one united Dominion, and finishing the British Empire 'all red route.' No wonder these men cheered. No wonder that within a few hours of the event called congratulations were flashing joyously Canada-ward from all parts of the world and from the Queen-Empress down.

Much has happened since that historic and tremendous day. Canada has grown to be a power upon the earth, in many fields a leader among nations and the Canadian Pacific Railway has developed from a desperately struggling road which its enemies said would never pay its way, into the world's greatest transportation system, with a net-work of steel covering the whole Dominion, with a mightly fleet of huge liners and freighters on both oceans, with a gigantic telegraph and cable auxiliary, a far-reaching associated express company, with docks, elevators, lands, a powerful colonization and development department, a huge irrigation plant, a chain of palatial hotels.

The Canadian Pacific will celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the driving of that last spike and it is fitting that the company should make 1925 a banner year. It is also fitting that in 1924 should appear a book which will serve to tell the whole story of the company in a manner that must thrill the blood of every reader. This is a copiously illustrated book, recently published by the Ryerson Press, Toronto, and written by R. G. MacBeth, and its name is 'The Romance of the Canadian Pacific Railway.'

Here we have an invaluable contribution to the history of this Dominion, penned by a man who knows his subject thoroughly, though he writes entirely independently of the Canadian Pacific itself, who has never served in its employ and therefore takes the impartial viewpoint. Mr. MacBeth was born and bred in that western country which has been the company's chief field, a descendant of the first old Selkirk settlers, and has lived in the West all his life. He has had the advantage of seeing the Canadian Pacific grow up from the beginning, of knowing large numbers of its officers and of being thoroughly au fait with this country's story in all its phases. To this he adds a rare literary ability, a tenacious memory for many interesting side lights on the matter in hand and a fine appreciation of the romance and splendour that underly the records of the Canadian Pacific, an organization advanced and made great in the face of terrible difficulties by the dauntless faith, unyielding courage and fierce, stern effort of a host of strong men.

RULES MODIFIED FOR PENSIONS

Will Pay Cases Where Woman Has Been Deserted For Three Years.

A RECENT CHANGE.

Since the inception of the provisions under which the Mothers' Allowance Commission operates, many cases of desertion of the wife and mother, by the husband, have been brought to the attention of local boards. While the desertion period had been reduced from the seven-year period, as prescribed by law to that of five years, many of these cases have had to be treated as out of bounds, so to speak. By a recent amendment, or alteration in the regulations there is now the possibility that such applications may be considered favorably, in cases where the circumstances, number of children and other warranty for assistance prevails. The advice note to local boards, reads as follows:

"At its meeting on April 17 last, the Commission resolved to recommend the payment of an allowance under section 5, clause 3a to applicants who apply on the ground of the husband's desertion, if the period since the husband has been heard of its from three to five years, provided the case is shown to be urgent and needy."

The usual condition that the applicant shall have two or more children in her care (children of her own) will apply, and other stipulations as to income, resources and lack of other forms of assistance will govern the case or cases.

Applications may be made to members of the local board for the City of Peterborough: Chairman, Sidney Whatley, 215 Murray Street phone 1480W); T. J. McMurray, 438 Mark Street, East City (phone 799W); Mrs. M. C. Hardie, 457 Murray Street (phone 1413J); Mrs. Jos. Knox, 481 Gilmour Street (phone 788W), or to the secretary, F. H. The Taxpayer Benefits by Concrete Roads

Woodstock—Ingersoll Concrete Provincial Highway

Road building programmes must be planned to lessen the taxpayer's burden rather than increase it. Permanence; freedom from costly maintenance; easy and economical traction are needed. Concrete provides them.

Concrete roads pay. They are every day proving their ability to carry the growing load of motor traffic without the need of costly upkeep. They last — and all the while provide a safe driving surface that saves gasoline, tires and repair bills.

We need more concrete roads. They save money for the taxpayer and aid prosperity generally by reducing haulage costs.

Voice Of The People

Editor, The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Life, as you have no doubt observed, is just one darned thing after another. Most disquieting and the fishing season for pickerel just opening.

Your excellent newspaper and non-political journal dispenses information really informative and which often prods a man to take thought. This time it is all on account of the radio.

I find in your columns, at least I didn't find it but someone did for me, the startling statement that if a man, (or woman) installs in his or her home a radio set and fails to notify the insurance company with which the house is embroiled, and the dwelling catches fire and burns to a limited or extensive extent, that the policy is punk. Honest. Of no value, to the man, only to the company. What right, nay I enquire, has a bloated, grasping and avaricious monopoly to scare the life, (and money) out of its clients in such way?

The possible complications that arise from the above contention are numerous. I feel it a public duty to call attention to several, the city council having, so far, overlooked the emergency. But to continue.

For instance. If a man have a son, the man owning the house, the son the radio, and a fire ensue from the kitchen stove or sparks from a locomotive, and the house go to the trouble of burning down, shall the man collect damages from the son. If he can't why then his name is Dennis. All that the son may own is the radio, one suit of inoffensive clothes and his job. So there you are. What is the remedy, if one there be Don't all speak at once.

Now this may happen, possibly has happened already. The radio bringing in a piece of exciting news, say same as the election of Old Man Hindenburg, the furnace in the cellar may catch the infection, get wonderfully perked up, put on some stunts and set fire to the house. Which is to blame, radio, furnace, or the person owning the same? Darned if I know. Ask Joe Wearing. Likely the city clerk knows, but he won't tell.

Then we have a situation that must presently compel earnest attention. Folks with radios in the house are getting the habit of staying home Sunday nights and listening in on evangelical orations, sent over the ether and on which not one cent of import duty has been paid. To this a rampant local clergy object. Of course the church member may say that he is paying his tithes already, and that what he can glean from abroad he is entitled to. It may be a feature of the United Church, when it gets down to business, to petition the government that some sort of impost be made on aerial sermons, diffused prayers, and general exhortations. That the home-grown product may have, at least, a fair show.

If it were not for the fact that thirty-nine members (at Ottawa) have spoken on the budget, already, and that fifty-four hope to speak, and goodness knows when the floor will be cleared, I would send this suggestion on to the House to take up and act upon. Quite as reasonable, it seems to me, as much that the gathering is discussing. Of course, Deputy Speaker Gordon might shove in a few words, ex officio as it were, and start the radio making noises that we don't want, never asked for and decline to accept. The whole thing is one of the Big National Issues that will have to adjudicated upon presently or sooner. Yours, in deep concern,

—Frank H. Dobbin.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: A few years ago some of the churches or denominations nearly went daft over the wickedness of theatrical plays and everything connected with the theatre or drama, and now those same denominations are flooding billboards with announcements of plays. Every church, big and little, here and everywhere, is headfirst into theatricals and all that we so bitterly condemned a few years ago. "Sister" is right about marbles. They are the children's milestones to gambling and to ruin of every kind. Dancing, cards, marbles, theatricals, all but 4.4 beer—we are a baby lot of people.

MRS. WRIGHT AND NATIVE WINES.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: Mrs. Gordon Wright, president of the Women's Prohibition League of Ontario said definitely on Monday night at the great prohibition meeting in George St. Methodist Church that native and home-made beverages over 2½ per cent had to go. Why were these wines ever allowed in the O. T. A.? They have been there from the first and were left in with the express consent of the Prohibition League of Ontario. Why? Because the wine-bibblers would thus lose interest in opposing the O. T. A., and would ensure the success of the prohibitionists against the others. When Rev. Dr. Chown was asked the other day by the Toronto Star why these wines (often running to 30 per cent alcoholic content) had been exempted from the O. T. A., one of the foremost of the original agitators answered that it was to encourage home industry he supposed. Selfish!

Then in order to save their face in case the charge of inconsistency were made against them the prohibitionists sent at various times quiet little executive deputations to the various governments asking for the elimination of these native wines which these very deputations had expressly permitted to remain in the O. T. A. The request or bluff was never granted and yet it was never urged upon the notice of the people. Think of that. It was all quietly passed over while a great shout has gone up over 4.4 beer. Just think of it! Millions of bottles of 30 per cent wine and all the vast array of the home-brew went safely by without even the bark of a dog while 4.4 raised a terrible clatter. To expose this miserable hypocrisy some of us began calling through the press for explanations and at last prohibitionist agents admit that native wines and home-brew must go. It is the first serious and public demand for the abolition of these wines, since prohibitionists left them deliberately in the O. T. A. when it was first drawn up. Not only 4.4 beer but all home-made and other wines, etc., over 2½ per cent must go. This will mean the loss of over half a million votes to the coercionist cause, but it will have been a long step in advance towards common honesty. It will clear the air of trickery.

—J. H. Burnham.

Dear Sir: We hear a lot lately about the white collar gent. on the question of daylight saving. All the world over it was ever thus, the white collar gentleman is placed in the Weary Willie class, never worked or never will. But let us have an analization of this individual. We will first take the man or men at the head of a big business. He sits in a chair all day, or perhaps walks around and looks wise, grows grey hairs on his head, and is even so generous as to develop a skating rink for flies on the top of his dome; this is all done by doing nothing. The big business looks after itself, that is, if we believe all that is said by some people.

But what is the real cause of those grey hairs and shiny dome? If we could only have a glimpse at that do-nothing's brain we might be surprised, and in the words of the poet Goldsmith, we might say,

"Still they gazed and still the wonder grew,
That one small head could carry all he knew."

Then we have the lower man another type of an advertisement for a tailor's establishment. He pours over a ledger all day juggling with figures. Sometimes he is looking at that white ground and black letters so long that the figures run into each other, and the net result in the evening is tired eyes, and a splitting headache, and in time, a pair of beautiful round shoulders.

I do not mean to insinuate that the man following the plow or sitting on the mower and shouting hee and haw is not doing hard work either; but I do say that the farmer could no more hold down the office man's job any more than the office man could hold down his. But of the two jobs the farmer has the best end of the deal as he has a variation in his work that the office man has not.

Then supposing these office men have a hobby, we will say walking, automobile riding, or even playing golf. There is not much satisfaction in going out in the dark to enjoy those hobbies, unless like one of of our aldermen, they have a taste for astronomy, or did he say he was looking for spooners. And from all accounts the golfer uses some adjectives that are not in the dictionary playing in the day time, it would not be very edifying to listen to him driving a ball in the dark. Then why in the name of common sense try and prohibit an extra hour of daylight to those tired business men to enjoy God's sunlight and fresh air.

Then what about our young men in the factories and young women also. What attractions have we to offer those people during the dark hours. Outside of a stuffy theatre or a parade from Brock to Charlotte street, or, worse still, the underground beer house kindly provided by our prohibition friends, we have nothing.

But on the other hand, what can we do in daylight? Our churches have provided tennis courts and bowling greens; the young men and women can utilize those. They can engage in baseball, football, and other games, and when darkness falls they are not in humor to parade George street or spend any time in bawdy houses, and we thereby develop a good moral type of men and women. Is it worth it? I should say yes.

Then we have the children. Children will run around in the heat of the day and play, and it is impossible to stop them. Would it not be better to get them to lie down for a couple of hours during the hot part of the day, even if they don't sleep, and let them play in the cool of the evening, instead of packing them off to bed perhaps to sleep in a hot room, and kids will play until they get tired anyway, and then fall asleep and not a minute sooner.

One last example of the white collar gent., or silk blouse missie—the shorthand writer and typist; the easiest job in an office. They only have to remember what has been said in dictation, form the shorthand letters for same, listen to and remember what has been said, form the letters in their brain box for that, and write down what has already been said. Try it; it's easy, especially if you keep it up for any length of time. What can we do with an hour in the morning? What can we hope to start and finish? The argument is foolish in the extreme.

—Yours for Daylight.

AN OLD MAN SPEAKS.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: My father is nearly ninety and is too tired to write to you, but he says that though he loves to see little children play and enjoy themselves he would not allow them to play with anything that has gain connected with it. If it was business and the usual profit that would be bad enough because children should grow up with fresh young minds, fresh and open for the beautiful things of life, but when marbles, which are far worse than cards, are put into their little hands they become little fiends in no time, and grow up without knowing what innocence and purity of soul are. Marbles is a way to hell if ever there was one. Where liquor and bad women have killed their thousands marbles have killed their tens of thousands. Gambling, above all things, like the love money hardens the heart and destroys the conscience.

—Daughter.

PROHIBITION AND POLITICS.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: Mrs. Gordon Wright said plainly in her address on prohibition the other evening that prohibition in Ontario from henceforth is to be all politics. No member who is not a prohibitionist is to be voted for by any loyal prohibitionist. This was the way it was thirty years ago and then the fanatics said, "O! We must get it out of politics or we will never do any good." Well! They got it out of politics and now they got it back again, and I can promise prohibitionists a lively time. Because they cannot have their own way they are going to put their heels on us and force us. Now I just want to ask you one question prohibitionists, "Do you think we are going to lie down and have bootleggers, home-brewers and crazy old men and women kick us as they go by?" Force breeds force and I see the day when women will be howling to save them. All this force will be paid back with interest and don't you forget it.

Dear Sir:

In reply to Sister's complaint of marbles would advise we start at the right angle and correct ourselves before complaining about the innocent children. Take the case of Campbellford high school board for instance renting the assembly room in the school for card playing and dancing, neither of which is classed as educational, yet the tax payers must spend $200,000.00 to build a school for that purpose whether they are in favor of cards or not. I think that is the place to start reform, not in so innocent a game as marbles while allowing the larger evils to exist.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

Ottawa, April 30th, 1925.

The Editor, The Examiner,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—In the issue of Friday, the 14th. of April, 1925, one of the Peterborough manufacturers is reported as giving statistics of importations of boots and shoes from Great Britain as increasing, and that the British Shoe Manufacturers were dumping into Canada; and that while Canada had been receiving these foreign goods, numbers of Canadian shoe manufacturers had been forced to close their factories.

Of course, very few will be prepared to say that goods manufactured in Britain are foreign, or the inference that the public desire to purchase material manufactured by alien hands, as this manufacturer so describes these products.

Let me say this, and I have the authority of the Bureau of Statistics of Canada, that for the past fiscal year, the value of the importations of boots and shoes into Canada is less than the year 1921; that in 1914 the importation of boots and shoes into Canada amounted in value to nearly four million dollars. In 1913, approximately, it amounted to three million, five hundred thousand dollars.

The importation of boots and shoes into Canada was larger during every year of the Conservative Administration ,from 1911 to 1921, than during the last four years of the present Federal Administration.

The production of boots and shoes in Canada for the fiscal year of 1923—which are the last figures available — amounted to $45,516,012.00; and there are now one hundred and eighty-six boot and shoe factories; so the suggestion made by the manufacturer that over-production and over-keen competition had something to do with the situation is probably the main reason for slackness in the boot and shoe industry.

However, with cheaper power in Canada than in the United States, and with the raw products available in Canada that enter into the manufacture of shoes, it might be said that the surplus stock could be profitably exported to the United States, where boots and shoes enter free of any duty.

Three million pairs of boots and shoes were imported into the United States last year, so it will be seen that the United States' importations are far in excess of the importations into Canada.

In order to improve the boot and shoe industry, and to reduce the cost of living, the sales tax on boots and shoes was reduced last year, and this year provision is made to remove the sales tax from the materials entering into the manufacture of boots and shoes.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

Modern Pavements Make Feet Tired

The miles and miles of hard surface roadways and side-walks are very wonderful, but, being hard, non-resilient, and excellent conductors of heat and cold, they torture our poor feet unmercifully.

It has been found that if tired, sore feet are bathed in warm water containing a few drops of Absorbine Jr. they will be delightfully cooled and refreshed.

But this is not the only use for Absorbine Jr. It is a liniment, antiseptic, and germicide in one—the handiest, most useful article in the family medicine cabinet.

Not only does it kill germs and prevent infection in open cuts and sores, hastening the healing—not only does it limber up to new freshness, tired, stiff muscles, but as a mouth wash, throat spray or gargle it protects you against wandering disease germs and leaves behind a pleasant, clean taste and odor. $1.25 a bottle at your druggist's.

This type of home adornment will appeal to all those especially who are obliged to make the best of a small space. Even the owner of quite a large property, however, can make use of them to supply color and add charm to the buildings.

As the names suggest, they should be placed at the edge of the verandah, on the verandah railing or on the window sills. Just how much of the verandah should be thus used or just how many windows should be fitted for boxes depends on the type of architecture and the taste of the owner. It is wise not to overdo their use and place them at every window up and down stairs but rather place them at strategic points and only as many as can be well looked after. They need a good deal of attention to look their best. At summer homes and those that are conspicuously bare of planting one can indulge more freely. The north sides of buildings will be a limiting factor also, though certain plants can be made to grow in such situations.

Their color, and that of the flowers in them should harmonize with the tones of the exterior of the house and the verandah furnishings. Also the material they are made of should be suitable for the type of architecture. White, wooden boxes look very well on a stucco house, or boxes made of the same material. More rustic boxes look very well on the shingled house of cottage type or the summer home. There are endless possibilities in their choice.

Size of Boxes, Soil, Etc.

Do not build too small a box or evaporation from the soil will be too rapid. Eight to ten inches wide and deep is the minimum.

Place a layer of some sort of drainage at the bottom of the box and fill with well enriched soil. Try mixing garden loam (using the bottom of the compost heap also) mixed with one-fourth to one-third of its bulk of well rotted cow manure or sheep manure. Add a little sand and the soil should be just about right. Or use two parts of garden loam, one part of leaf mold and one part of sand. To this mixture should be added well decayed manure (preferably cow manure) at the rate of one peck to two bushels of soil.

Filling Boxes With Plants.

Just whether a formal or an informal treatment should be used will depend on the taste of the owner. So much rather stiff and uninteresting planting is seen that the tendency towards more natural treatment is rather a relief.

A balanced designed is usually desirable for a formal treatment. For a central motif use the narrow leaved Dracaenas, small palms, Aspidistris, Crotons and Foliage Plants. In a long box, a central motif and two subsidiary and slightly smaller motifs may be used or three of the same size. The main planting may be rather regular, composed of larger plants at the back (though not as large as the motif) with smaller plants in front, finishing off the front edge with very low plants and vines that will trail down over the edge of the box and hang some distance below it. This last planting should be most carefully done, as it will make or mar the artistic effect. Here, again, the planting should not be overdone and the wall or verandah foundation covered.

For the formal balanced treatment use Geraniums (including Mme. Salerol), Begonias, Coleus, Paris Daisy, Lobelia, Sweet Alyssum, Fuchsias and Heliotrope.

The irregular more natural planting appeals to me more and is especially desirable as mentioned for the cottage type of house. It may be used also in houses (wooden especially) of quite formal outline, especiallyi f the boxes be long and few in number. In the latter case a low foundation planting should supplement them. Petunias, Antirrhinums, Sweet Alyssum, Phlox drummondi, Verbena, Nasturtiums (dwarf), Pansies, Salpiglossus, Stocks and Cigar Plants are especially desirable.

Good Plant Combinations.

Vinca or German Ivy, pink Petunias, Ageratum and Feverfew or Sweet Alyssum. Or try the same vines, a pink Begonia, blue Lobelia, double white Petunia. Do not attempt to crowd too many varieties into one box.

For a northern exposure use vigorous growing ferns as the Nephrolepsis, a few of the Pteris and perhaps the hardiest of the Adiantums, the Warrow leave Draecena, Grevillea, Rex Begonias, Lobelias and Pansies. The Wandering Jew and English or Gowan Ivy may be used for vines.

Care.

Keep picking off the dead leaves and blooms constantly, not only to present a good appearance but to increase the amount of bloom. Keep an old kitchen fork or a claw hand cultivator handy and frequently stir upthe soil in the boxes. Water them freely and sprinkle the foliage when necessary to wash off the dust. If possible apply liquid manure once or twice, especially when the season is somewhat advanced. Once a week will not be too often with a dilute solution. A light covering of bone meal is also good.

Do not use old geraniums from year to year, as they are usually rather bare and take some little time to recover from the severe cutting back.

When placing the boxes on the verandah or window sill insert cleats underneath them to allow for air and prevent rotting.

MONUMENTS OF INDIANS.

Anthropoligy is a formidable name but an interesting science. Briefly, it may be accepted as meaning the study of man in general. To that study no race has provided a more interesting problem than the North American Indian, whose origin is more or less surrounded in mystery.

Consider, for instance, the totem poles of the Indians of British Columbia. What relationship exists between these curious monuments to banners of the Chinese or the crude banners of the Cinese or the crude carved obelisks of the Egyptians? Perhaps none, but it is a fact that these totem poles constitute a distinct type of art which has such symmetry of color and design though first appearances may appear to be the contrary.

Totem poles are not the vague creations of idle men. They are carefully thought out and executed records of deeds well done and they provide an open book for those who have the knowledge to read.

Nowhere are finer examples of these totem poles to be found than in some of the Indian villages on the route of the Canadian National Railways between Jasper and Prince Rupert, a part of the famous Triangle Tour in British Columbia. At Jasper there is a fine specimen, brought from the Queen Charlotte Islands and erected intact beside the Jasper Station. But the greatest collection is located at Kitwanga on the Skeena River. This is one of the show places of northern British Columbia and trains stop to allow passengers to view the poles, and it is safe to say that, next to Niagara Falls, this little village is almost the most photographed spot in Canada. That in itself tells of the appeal these poles make to the imagination of the tourist. Another proof is the fact that it is almost impossible to get the train out of the village on time, because there are always some passengers who desire to linger longer with these striking monuments of an ancient race.

Critical Times in Woman's Life

Mrs. James Muir, Anten Mills, Ont., writes:—

"I suffered from nervousness and despondency, and at 65 lost all control of my limbs, so that for two years I was unable to walk. The doctors thought I would never get better at my age, but I read of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and bought and used a dozen boxes. In a short time I was able to walk again. I am now 79 years old and have enjoyed good health for the past fourteen years, thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

IN woman's life there are periods of excessive nervous strain. If she can safely pass these times the chances are good for happiness and long life.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is woman's best friend from childhood to old age because it comes to her aid during these critical periods.

Headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion, irritability, tendency to worry are the symptoms which tell of a failing nervous system.

Rest and the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most rational and most effective treatment for the building up of the nervous system. Many thousands of women willingly verify this statement.

RADIUM WINNING OUT OVER KNIFE

Great Strides Made by Mineral Shown at Manchester

CANCER ARRESTED

Expert Thinks "Cutting" Will Give Way to Newer Methods

Remarkable details as to the strides medical science is making in the treatment of cancer by means of radium, as opposed to surgical operators, were given at the annual meeting of the Radium Institute, Manchester. Sir William Milligan, secretary and treasurer of the Institute, said it had been found possible to arrest the disease for periods of five, six and seven years in cases which had been pronounced incurable and absolutely hopeless even as regards temporary relief.

"When we find we can definitely arrest the disease for such periods, we can definitely look forward with confidence to the results becoming still better within the next few years," said Sir William.

The report of the Institute, which has been in existence ten years, and owing to shortage of funds has only accommodation for twelve in-patients (eight of which beds are reserved for non-paying patients of the poorer classes), shows the number of cancerous patients receiving treatment was 775 and the percentage of immediate symptomatic cures last year was 16, a great improvement on previous figures. At the end of the year 183 patients out of 577 could be classed as "well" while 288 came under the heading of "improved." Cases of rodent ulcers treated numbered 101 last year, and of these fifty-three were now "well."

WORK IS ENCOURAGING.

Sir William Mulligan said results had thoroughly justified the establishment of the Institute, and he was convinced the work already done, and the work it looked forward to doing, would be a very definite milestone in the progress of the cure of cancer.

"We are probably a long way from the actual cure," he admitted, "but we are definitely arresting the disease."

The results shown by the Institute were all the more remarkable in that they were only treating inoperable and so-called incurable cases. "Many women are now going about Manchester, able to do their work, who would probably not have been living if it had not been for the Institute," said Sir William.

Quoting figures from an American medical journal which indicated radium treatment was capable of effecting as high a percentage of cure in inoperable cases as surgery was capable of showing in operable cases, Sir William said that so far radium had not been allowed an equal chance.

"The present feeling in the surgical profession," he said, "is that if the case is at all suitable the knife should be used, but I believe the day will come when, with improved technique and greater knowledge of its potentialities, radium will be used even in growths which can be removed successfully by surgery."

USES BOTTLED RADIUM.

Sir William contested the claim of the Middlesex Hospital, London, to be the originator of a new system of "bottling" radium, and contended the Manchester Radium Institute at which he had used this system. Dr. Arthur Burrows, radiologist at the Institute, also confirmed that he had been using "radium emanations" ten years ago, and that the main source of the Institute's supply has been in the form of small tubes of so-called "bottled" radium.

Further, six or seven years ago an official of the Memorial Hospital in New York told him they were using screened tubes for tumors, there, and within a week they were in actual use at the Manchester Institute. The Manchester Radium Institute was the only one in England which had habitually buried the unscreened tubes in tumors.

Dr. Burrows added that at present the Institute was in the process of changing its technique slightly, and that twelve months, possible he would have to say the same thing. Recently in Paris he had seen the practice of giving small doses of radium for a long time, and as it was having good results the same practice was started in Manchester.

In the search for new methods of utilizing radium for cancer cures he had visited America, Scandinavia, France, Belgium and elsewhere. Whenever anything practical had come to light it had been used in Manchester, hence the Radium Institute could claim to be one of the most up-to-date hospitals of its kind in the world.

SERVANT WANTS ALL INFORMATION

A woman living in a South Coast town recently advertised for a domestic servant, and a reply she received contained the following questions:

How many rooms have you?

Will my bedroom be large, with a hanging cupboard, and with what aspect?

Is yours a modern flat with bathroom, gas-cooker, and electric light?

What denomination are you?

Are you abstainers?

Do you live in a quiet or busy part, and are you near the sea, with any sea-view?

Would you object to my using the bathroom for my morning bath?

Would you require any cooking on Sundays?

Are you accustomed to a uniformed maid?

The washing all goes out, of course!

The applicant was not willing to accept the situation at less than £42 a year.

The death has taken place, at Tacoma, Washington, U.S.A., of Chaplain Robert S. Stubbs, a native of Scarborough, who, had he lived three months longer, would have been 102 years of age. He was a Congregationalist and a chaplain in the Union Navy during the Civil War.

Explosion Relic Of Civil War Kills 3 Soldiers

Three Free State soldiers have just been blown to death in the Barracks at Athlone while they were clearing away some of the remnants of the Civil War and apparently came on an unexploded land mine. No one saw the accident and all three men were dead when help arrived. Ireland is full of these dangerous relics of the fighting and fuses and bombs of all kinds are still concealed in the cellars of many houses mostly by women. Day by day the new force of plain clothes armed detectives are following up clues to these hiding places and big hauls have recently been made. A child was recently blown to death in the country by one of them.

AMATEUR GOLFER IN COMEDY OF ERRORS

News of Divorce Broadcast by Radio in England

NEVER MARRIED

Confusion With Canadian of Same Name Caused Trouble

Cyril Tolley, the famous British amateur golfer, has been the victim of an extraordinary comedy of errors.

The announcement appeared in a London newspaper that Mr. Tolley had been divorced in America following a flirtation with an unnamed pretty young woman, and had gone to visit a relation in Canada.

The real facts were announced when the B. B. C. stated by wireless that Mr. Tolley, the English golfer, had been confused with a Canadian golfer whose name is given as Cyril William Tolley.

After the English newspaper story there followed a Central News cable from New York to the same effect, adding that Mr. Tolley did not put in any defence.

Mr. Cyril Tolley said to a "Daily Express" representative: "I am not married, have no intention at present of getting married, and could not, therefore, I believe, be divorced.

"Really, I know nothing about a wife and how the divorce story arose. The thing is a complete mystery to me. The lady, I believe, was described in the B. B. C.'s broadcast as a young, pretty woman. My experience during my last summer's tour with the British team in the United States was that all America's women were young and pretty, which may account for the fact that I did not marry this particular one, whoever she is.

"While I was there it was stated that I had decided to remain in the States for good, but that idea had never entered my mind."

Mr. Tolley, who is staying in Birmingham for an exhibition match on the Moseley Golf Course, will partner Sir Ernest Holderness against James Braid and J. H. Taylor. "So you will know," Mr. Tolley added, "that if I go off my play I shall be thinking about that young, pretty woman."

Pikemen Unit is Formed by H.A.C. For Ceremonial Time

A company of pikemen, clad in the full armor and dress of the time of Charles I., has been formed by the Honorable Artillery Company for ceremonial occasions, and will be seen at the regiment's sports in July. The pikemen wear armor of sheet steel (breast-plate, tasses, thigh-piece and back-plate) over a brick-red cassock, trousers and stockings of the same color, a steel morion (helmet), shoes with rosettes, buff gauntlets and a crimson sash. The dress is copied from an etching by Hallar, dated 1643.

Let the pikemen march with a good grace, holding up his head gallantly, his pace full of gravity and state such is fit for his person. Let his body be straight, eyes always on their companions in front and keeping perfect distance. So shall they go just and even with a gallant and sumptious pace; for by doing so they shall be esteemed, honored and commended of the lookers-on, who shall take wonderful delight to behold them.

The "old English march of the foot," which will be used by the "drum-beaters," transcribed into modern notation, was of great antiquity in the time of Queen Elizabeth.

STONE AGE FLINT FOUND IN KENT

What is claimed to be the largest individual collection of Stone Age worked flints found in England has been discovered near Strood by W. H. Cook, of Snodland, Kent.

It appears to be the remains of a prehistoric "workshop," and is on a chalk cliff close to Frindsbury Church, within sight of Rochester Cathedral.

Mr. Cook found a clue to it when walking with another local geologist. A private fund was raised, and the excavation was watched by well-known scientists.

"After eight days' digging," Mr. Cook told a press representative, "we had unearthed some 4,000 flint weapons and tools.

"All the flints were found in heaps about 3 feet high, and there were 17 separate heaps exactly as they had been piled up when the workmen knocked off work — possibly 50,000 years ago.

"Everybody was greatly disappointed that no human bones were found.

"The men who chipped these flints were living in Britain when the woolly rhinoceros and the hairy elephant roamed the Medway Valley."

COST OF CRIME £20,000,000 YEAR

Tax of Ten Shillings Head on the Whole Population

BIG SWINDLES

Comparison Shows Cost Per Head Heavier in United States

Twenty million pounds sterling is the cash cost to the nation of all classes of crime committed in Great Britain in a single year.

Careful figures have been compiled by financial houses, assurance companies, and chambers of commerce which give that immense total as the annual toll exacted by all kinds of criminal procedure from bankruptcies, through embezzlements and forgeries down to burglaries and petty thefts.

This represents a tax of ten shillings a head on the population of England.

"Long-fraud frauds" and fraudulent bankruptcies by which manufacturers and agents are swindled by men who open businesses never meaning to pay for the goods they secure account for £10,000,000 of the total.

Forgeries, embezzlements, and fraudulent dealings in shares amount to another £2,500,000.

Burglary, house-breaking, and pocket-picking account for more than £2,000,000. Half a million pounds worth of property was stolen last year in London alone; and the proceeds of robberies in the ten largest cities of the country after the capital reach £750,000.

Vast sums of money are lost by railway pilfering and the stealing of goods in transit, although this class of crime is steadily decreasing owing to the efficiency of the railway police and detective services.

The balance-sheet of crime in the United States is far more adverse to the honest citizen than in this country. The cost is roughly £6 per head of the population of the United States in a year. The American Bankers' Association, an organization of 22,000 banks, estimates the total cost at not less than the astonishing sum of £600,000,000.

RECORD RUSH TO POLE THIS YEAR

Four Expeditions are Being Prepared for Exploration

There will be a record rush to the North Pole this year.

Four expeditions are being prepared and each one hopes to arrive there first. They are all relying on aeroplanes to make the final journey across the ice.

The Norwegian explorer, Captain Roald Amundsen, who made an unsuccessful attempt to fly to the Pole two years ago, will lead one expedition. His aeroplanes are now on their way to Norway. The start will be made in May. Captain Amundsen, reached the South Pole in 1911, a month ahead of Captain Scott, made his first Polar expedition twenty-eight years ago.

Lieutenant Jules de Payer, a French military aviator, and son of the leader of the Austrian expedition which discovered Franz-Joseph Land in 1873, is another contestant.

He intends to spend next winter with seventeen men in Franz-Joseph Land, where he will establish a wireless station. Two aeroplanes will be taken with this expedition. One will be used for reconnoitring and the other for the journey to the Pole.

The third expedition will be in charge of Grettir Algarsson, a young British Columbian, who is making his second attempt. Scout Marr, who was with Shackleton on his last voyage, will accompany him. A German expedition is also being prepared.

The North Pole was reached by Peary in 1909.

VISCOUNT PIRRIE LEAVES £322,022

The late Viscount Pirrie, chairman of the shipbuilding firm of Harland and Wolff, left net estate valued at £322,022, on which death duties, payable in Northern Ireland, will amount to about £20,000.

It has been anticipated that his estate would prove to be worth between £3,500,000 and £4,000,000.

Lord Pirrie's will makes provision for "My dear wife, in token not merely of the great love and affection I bore to her, and confidence in her discretion and wisdom in all things, but with feelings of the greatest gratitude for the help she gave me throughout my career."

The will, made three months before he died, leaves the bulk of his property to his widow. Lady Pirrie is to have the income from the property for life, and to her is bequeathed, free of all duties, all Lord Pirrie's pictures, drawings(etchings, books and household furniture. After her death the property passes to the holders of the Ordinary and "A" Preference shares in Harland and Wolff, Limited. Lord Pirrie expressed the wish that during Viscountess Pirrie's lifetime her name should stand first in the register of Harland and Wolff.

HOUSES MADE OF CORK THE LATEST

Houses, built of cork with a steel framework are the newest development of the builder's ingenuity.

Two working-men's homes are in course of erection on an exposed site at Betteshanger, near Deal, for Messrs. Pearson and Dorman Long's colliery. The skeleton is of steel, and the insulation core of the walls is formed of slabs of compressed cork. On the exterior the cork is enclosed in solid concrete to a depth of an inch and a half by a "cement gun," which applies the concrete under pressure.

The cork itself, having been pressed in a mould, will not swell and cannot be burnt. Calculations show that its insulation value saves 25 per cent. in heating costs.

Another advantage of the cork house is that it is sound-proof in comparison with the ordinary brick structure. As it can be built by unskilled labor under skilled direction its cost is low.

IRISH WOMAN RIDER DEFEATS MEN

NO CIVIC HOUSES FOR CAR OWNERS

The West Bromwich Town Council have decided that in future the letting of municipal houses will be restricted to persons in receipt of incomes not exceeding £400 a year.

Complaints have been made that many people living in the municipal houses own motor-cars, and are in a position to build their own houses.

HANG 34 PEOPLE IN 24 YEARS

Three hundred and thirty-five men and five women have been executed in England and Wales since January, 1901.

The number of death sentences passed in that period, ccording to Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the British Home Secretary, in a statement issued in reply to a parliamentary question, was 621—on 545 men and 76 women.

"THIRD GENTLEMAN" WAS A WOMAN

"I'll have the third gentleman from the right," said a prisoner at the Sheffield Quarter Sessions when offering a brief for his defence.

There was much laughter when it was pointed out that the "third gentleman from the right" was a woman barrister, the only one in court, Miss Horseman.

She accepted the brief.

DESPISED PEOPLE BACKBONE OF BRITAIN

The Rev. A. W. Orr, vicar of St. Paul's, Kingston Hill, Surrey, discussing in his parish magazine scandals in the courts, writes:

"Thank God for the heavily-taxed, despised, respectable, home-loving, middle-class people who cannot afford night clubs, jazz and cocktails because they are actually educating their children at their own expense. They are the salvation of the nation."

V.C. PEER FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

It is stated in London that Viscount Gort, V.C., has instituted divorce proceedings against his wife, Lady Gort.

He is thirty-nine years of age, and inherited the title from his father when he was a schoolboy at Harrow. Fourteen years ago Lord Gort married his second cousin, Miss Corinne Vereker.

Lord Gort won the Victoria Cross in France in September, 1918. He also won the D.S.O. with two bars and the M.C. He was more than once seriously wounded.

Another divorce suit to be heard shortly is brought by Lady Kitty Vincent against her husband, Brigadier-General Sir Berkeley Vincent, K.B.E. Lady Kitty Vincent, eldest daughter of the late Earl of Airlie, was married in 1906.

GALWAY WOMAN SHOT BY RAIDER

Mary O'Brien, aged forty, the mother of eight children, was shot dead at the door of her home at Knockdoe, Turlaughmare, Galway, by a man who had called at the house to ask for materials to repair a bicycle puncture.

The man, who was a stranger in the neighborhood, is alleged to have fired a revolver point blank at Mrs. O'Brien after he had overpowered one of her sons who had struggled with him. A daughter attempted to grab his coat when he was running away, but he eluded her and escaped on his bicycle.

When the man came to the door, Mrs. O'Brien called one of her sons, and when he went to the door the stranger pointed a revolver at him. After a struggle, in which the son was overpowered, the man stood up, and the next moment a shot rang out. Mrs. O'Brien shouted, "Oh, God! I'm shot!" and fell to the ground.

UNUSUAL WEDDING IN CAMBRIDGESHIRE

An unusual wedding took place at An unusual wedding took place at Gwing to the flooded Fens access to the house of the bride, Miss Rose Furness, of Adelaide, near Ely, except by river, was impossible.

It was, however, decided to have a river wedding, and at one o'clock a procession of decorated boats was formed, in the first of which were the bride, the bridegroom, Harry Saunders, the bride's father, and the bridesmaids, while in other boats were over 100 guests.

The party disembarked at Ely boathouse and were conveyed to the church by motor cars.

After the ceremony the procession of boats reformed and returned to the bride's house for the reception. An aeroplane hovered over the boats and dropped colored streamers on the way down the river.

JOHN AND SOPHIE ARE 200, NOT OUT

COUNTRY LIFE

Puts New Vigor Into Old Couple in Autumn of Days

"They couldn't have lived in London as long as they have," said the quiet man who was on a ladder in his garden lopping the superfluous twigs from the wooded arch.

"They" are his father, Mr. John and Mrs. Sophie Taylor.

Mr. Taylor is just 101; Mrs. Taylor's 100th birthday falls in August next.

There is a local belief that she is a centenarian.

But is there any other married pair whose years total 200?

We were standing near the crest of the hill overlooking Green Street Green, near Farnborough, and the birds were singing in the rich green of the Kentish fields around us.

"I brought them here 40 years ago," said Mr. Taylor. "You should have seen them then. But talk about health! If anything can restore people who find themselves failing in health in London, this is the place and this is the air.

"They would have passed away long since in town. But this put new life into both of them."

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, though, are naturally very much in the autumn of their days, just as the loveliness of spring is enriching the country round about them; and Mr. Taylor, the son, does not allow strange vistors to see them.

They do not talk about their old memories of London; yet Mr. Taylor, 101st birthday notwithstanding, takes his regular meals, his occasional smoke and his glass of beer; and as for Mrs. Taylor, she can knit and read without glasses.

Mr. Taylor is of London birth, was educated at Kennington Grammar School, and started earning his living when 12 years old.

He was a staircase carpenter, and worked at many London houses and hotels.

In his younger days he was very fond of Shakespeare in and out of the theatre.

ABLE SEAMEN TO RESCUE OF HORSES

On one side of the steeplechase course runs the River Irvine, and during the race for the Eglinton Hunt Cup two of the competitors, T. C. Dunlop's Crystal Gazer II. and A. R. Young's Lochinch, after falling, jumped into the river.

Lochinch swam to the opposite side of the river, but Crystal Gazer II. swam for some time in the middle of the stream.

Realizing Crystal Gazer II.'s difficulties, the two naval men quickly secured ropes, lasoced him, drew him to the bank, and assisted him on to the ground.

"KILMARNOCK" BURNS IS SOLD FOR £1,750

A copy of the "Kilmarnock" edition of Burns was sold at Sotheby's for £1,750 to Dr. Rosenbach, the well-known American book dealer.

This is the highest price ever paid for a "Kilmarnock" Burns, the next highest—£1,600—having been given, also by Dr. Rosenbach, at Sotheby's in July, 1923.

The book sold recently is entirely uncut, and is in the original wrappers. Only four or five copies in this state are known. It was the property of Mr. Alexander Miller.

Three shillings was the original price of a copy of Burns's "Poems, chiefly in the Scottish dialect," which was published at Kilmarnock by subscription in 1786, and limited to 600 copies. The poet, then entirely unknown, made a profit of £200 out of the entire edition. Ten years later he died in poverty.

During the past ten years copies of the "Kilmarnock" edition have been sold for sums approaching a total of nearly £10,000.

A first edition of Gray's "Elegy" was sold recently to Mr. Frank Sabin for £610.

Mr. and Mrs. David Ward, of Beseaby House, in the Vale of Belvoir, have just celebrated their golden wedding. Mr. Ward, who farms extensively on the Duke of Rutland's estate, has been a foxhunter all his life, and had many successes in steeple chase events.

LABOR GUARDIANS GAIN 121 SEATS

Labor has gained 121 seats at the Guardians' elections in London. Of a total of 726 seats they now hold 233. They have majorities on the following six boards:

Bermondsey, Greenwich, Poplar, Shoreditch, Stepney and Woolwich.

At Southwark the Labor membership is just half the Board, whilst at Camberwell it is almost half.

FINDS £1,000 PEARLS AMONG TOMBSTONES

A working man, walking among the tombstones in Winchester Cathedral grounds, found a pearl necklace, which he handed to the police.

Chief Constable Stratton is of opinion that it is the one lost by a Brampton (Oxfordshire) woman, who recently broke her journey to Southampton to visit the cathedral. She offered a reward of £85 at the time. She is believed to be on the Continent.

The necklace is worth about £1,000.

DERBY FAMILY IS IN GOOD FORTUNE

A family named Hough, living in Derwent row, Derby, have been advised that, under the will of James Baynon, who left Swansea for California fifty years ago, and amassed a fortune, they with other relatives will receive £30,000.

Miss Buckland, a niece, who has been blind since childhood, is to receive £10,000, nine members of the Hough family £10,000 between them, and another branch of the family in Derby a similar amount.

Other relatives in Swansea, Nottingham and Burton also benefit. Mr. Baynon died at the age of eighty-four.

HISTORIC ESTATES UNDER HAMMER

Lord Cromwell has decided to sell his well-known Sprotborough estate of 4,000 acres in Yorkshire, with which the Copley family have been identified for several centuries.

Lord Willoughby de Broke has sold outlying portions of his Warwickshire estates for just £25,000. Not long ago the owner sold his Compton Verney estate of over 5,000 acres near Kineton.

There is a danger of Bramall Hall being demolished, as the surrounding land is to be sold by auction for building purposes.

'PHONE GIRLS IN LONDON REVOLT

Over 2,000 women telephone operators attended a meeting in the Memorial Hall, Farringdon street, and protested against continuance of the experiment in "long and short" duties in the London telephone exchanges. The scheme, it was complained, would involve a ten-hour day in many instances.

A resolution was adopted demanding complete withdrawal of "long and short" attendances, and pledging the London telephonists to "use all means possible to that end."

STOCK EXCHANGE RAG IN LONDON

A warning against "horseplay" has been posted in the London Stock Exchange by the Committee, which states that it has recently received information of a revival of "this dangerous and disorderly conduct."

The warning is understood to have been prompted by some rough play, in which a respected member was unintentionally knocked over, the impact of his head with the floor being heard over a large area of the House and arousing much indignation.

There is no reason to believe that the Committee has taken official cognisance of the "rag" directed against a member who recently ventured to appear in the Stock Exchange in an exaggerated form of baggy trousers of the Oxford type. The offending garment has not since been seen in the House.

MOTHER STOPS HER SON'S WEDDING

Trouble arose over a marriage that was about to be celebrated in a North London registry office, and the marriage ceremony was stopped.

The trouble entered the office in the person of a determined mother as the young couple were standing before the registrar. According to the mother, the declaration given by her son, the bridegroom, to the registrar was inaccurate, as he was still a minor and unable to marry without his parents' consent.

Having brought the ceremony to a premature conclusion, the mother explained that she did not mind her son marrying and had even offered her consent, provided he married according to the family religion, which is Roman Catholic.

The bridegroom was anxious to marry before Easter, but found that no priest was willing to conduct the ceremony during Lent.

SPY SECRETS ARE NOW REVEALED

Scotland Yard's Net for German Agents Caught Many

POOR SELECTION

Stories Told by Sir Basil Thompson, Late Chief of Department

Intriguing revelations of the work of German spies in England during the war are made by Sir Basil Thomson, K.C.B., in the first of a series of crime stories written specially for a London paper.

Sir Basil Thomson was chief of the Criminal investigation Department for several years, at one time Governor of Dartmoor Convict Prison, and later Governor of Wormwood Scrubs. He was at Scotland Yard throughout the war.

During the war, he writes, the Germans seldom employed spies who undertook the work from motives of patriotism. They preferred the hireling, and they chose him very badly. There were artists, musicians, and even the lower sort of criminal—persons who were quite untrained for gathering information of any practical value.

One of the German criminals, who may have been liberated from prison for the purpose, was discovered by pure accident.

It happened that a postal official in Denmark had mis-sorted a letter addressed from Copenhagen to Berlin, and slipped it by mistake into the bag which was being made up for London. The letter was written in German by a man who said that he was on the point of sailing to England, where, in the guise of a commercial traveller in patent gaslighters, he intended to collect naval and military information.

The letter was already some weeks old. If the man had been travelling in wine or boots there would have been little chance of finding him, but gaslighters were so unusual a form of merchandise that there was just a hope that one of the officers stationed at the ports of entry might remember him. Telegrams were sent to every port, and a reply was received from Newcastle-on-Tyne that a young man named Rosenthal had made a tour of Scotland, booking orders for gaslighters, and was at that very moment on board a steamer—bound for Copenhagen—which had not yet left the port.

THE FIRST PRECAUTION.

Rosenthal was taken ashore and brought to London. He was a young man of excitable temperament, who spoke and wrote English very well, though he had a trace of a German accent. My first precaution was to make him give me a specimen of his handwriting ,which I saw was identical with that of the mis-sorted letter.

He declared that he was not a German, that he hated Germans; that he had never been to Copenhagen in his life. On the whole, he acted his part very well, but he did not know that I had the incriminating letter. It was growing dusk when I took out the letter and the specimen of his handwriting.

"Now," I said, "I want you to listen very carefully to what I am going to read to you." The electric light had not been switched on, and I had to bend over the letter to read it aloud. I had read half-way through when I heard the click of heels.

I looked up and saw Rosenthal standing rigidly to attention in front of the armchair in which he had been sitting. "I confess everything," he said; "I am a German soldier." It was the sudden impulse of a man of sensitive nerves, but it was an histrionic impulse, for he had never been a soldier at all.

He was tried and sentenced to death at the Central Criminal Court. After his conviction he made two unsuccessful attempts to committ suicide in prison. Unlike the other spies who had been executed, he was sentenced to be hanged, and he was executed on July 5, 1915.

IRISH CONVICT IN ENGLISH PRISON

Judge Alludes to "Revival of System of Transportation"

Is it lawful to transfer an Irishman sentenced to penal servitude in Northern Ireland, to a gaol in the United Kingdom?

This is the point to be decided in the High Court next sittings, when a rule nisi in the nature of a writ of habeas corpus, directed to the Governor of Maidstone Gaol, with notice to the Home Secretary, calling upon him to show why Joseph John Maguire should not be released, is returnable.

Sir Henry Slesser, K.C., M.P., who applied for the writ, said that at no time had Maguire—who was sentenced to four years' penal servitude at Belfast for carrying explosive substances—consented to his removal to England.

Replying to the Lord Chief Justice, Sir Henry quoted a reply in the Commons by the Home Secretary to the effect that owing to lack of accommodation in Northern Ireland arrangements were made in 1923 for the reception of some prisoners in England and Wales.

The Lord Chief Justice: It seems in effect a revival of the system of transportation.

Sir Henry Slesser later said that the matter was placed definitely under the Penal Servitude Acts, and he could submit strong reasons for saying that the Home Secretary had no authority in Ireland under those Acts.

ENVIABLE RECORD OF ENGINE DRIVER

To have driven his engine 1,460,000 miles without an accident is the proud record of John Healas, engine-driver on the L. N. E. R. at Selby, Yorkshire.

He has just completed 50 years' service, over 40 years as driver, during which he has driven on an average 100 miles a day.

Recently when the Badsworth Hounds were hunting in the Selby country they got on the main Selby to Leeds line between Hambleton and Selby, the veteran driver pulled up amongst the hounds, and although some of them were underneath the train, not a single hound was injured. junior, of Shirvan.

LONDON HELPLESS IN NEXT AIR RAID

Liberal M.P. Thinks Money Wasted on Building Airdromes

FAVORS AIRFLEET

New Bombs Can Maim 9,000 Daily, He Says

The possibility of the British Government being compelled to move from London to Glasgow or Belfast in the next war and a grisly picture of London's famous thoroughfare Piccadilly being destroyed by a single bomb are elaborated on in a magazine article written by Lieut. Commander the Hon. J. M. Kenworthy, M.P.

Kenworthy is a pronounced "Left Wing" Liberal in politics and is a Parliamentary thorn in the side of Conservative and Labor Governments alike, as well as a caustic critic of his own party leaders, but he is a capable naval officer and expert on aerial warfare and served with distinction in the Great War. He is son and heir of Lord Stravolgi.

Deprecating the expenditure of huge sums on the construction of airdromes and allied aerial defenses for London, Kenworthy insists that London is tactically indefensible against air attacks and should not even be seriously defended against a foe operating from a nearby cross-Channel base. "The fact of the matter is there is no defense except counter-attack," he says. "This fact may as well be recognized at once."

CITES ATTACK ON CITY.

"Take only the example of the late war," he goes on. "At Whitsun, 1918, the Germans delivered their last great airplane attack on London. Only thirty-three machines took part, manned by less than 100 men. The defending forces had 800 guns, 400 searchlights, and in the south of England there were about 100 fighting airplanes for defensive purposes.

"To man these weapons we were using nearly a division of troops badly needed in France. The night was favorable to the defenders, yet only six of the attacking airplanes were brought down, three by the guns and three by the defending airplanes. By the end of the attack the guns had nearly exhausted their ammunition and the defending airplanes their petrol.

"We talk of bombing the enemy airplanes, but the French whom we have perforce to consider as a possible —though of course, improbable— enemy, are building airplanes with underground hangars heavily armored and concreted. What we will do is to hit at the most vulnerable parts of the enemy, whether they are large towns, railway centres, engineering works or what not, and questions of humanity will not enter into the struggle for existence any more than they did in the last war."

He expresses the hope that the Government will spend no more money on the provision of air dromes and air bases in the south of England, which would quickly become untenable, but will concentrate on air stations well to the north, and have only landing grounds and fuelling stations which can be readily shifted, in the south.

NEW BOMBS POWERFUL.

"Even if London could be defended against airplanes," he says, "including planes operated by wireless and without crews, the city could be bombarded by long-range guns from the French coast. I believe it will be necessary to move the seat of Government, finance, etc., to Glasgow or Belfast immediately war becomes inevitable with the strongest air power in the world. For consider the destructiveness of the latest bombs.

"In the last war the greatest weight of bombs dropped in any one month was twelve tons. The United States is manufacturing bombs of 4,300 lbs., with a bursting effect that displaces 1,000 cubic yards of hard sand. Such a bomb dropped in Piccadilly would wipe out the whole street. The French today can in one raid drop 120 tons of bombs."

Kenworthy quotes and indorses a statement made in Parliament last year by Gen. J. E. B. Seely, a former Minister for Air, that London might expect 12,000 casualties in the first raid, 10,000 in the second and 8,000 to 9,000 "certain and inevitable casualties daily for an indefinite period. He say,. "it is obvious that we cannot live on suffrance, even from our good friend France. Our greatest danger is from the air, and too much money is being spent, comparatively, on the army and navy. A strong Ministry of Defense is needed to apportion the expenditure of the available money in the proper way."

Kenworthy emphasizes that £12,000,000 is being spent on the two new dreadnoughts Rodney and Nelson, which, he says, may never be used. "This money could put us very nearly on an air equality with France, instead of a present inferiority of one in three."

More airplanes is Kenworthy's slogan .

Durham Man Won Fame and Fortune From Three Fowls

The romance of a fortune made from three Cochin-China fowls bought for £50 is recalled by the death at Durham of Alderman George S. Procter, who was twice Mayor of Durham.

He started fifty years ago by buying, with half of a legacy of £100, a prize cockerel and two prize pullets. He bred from them so successfully that he soon won a world-wide reputation for Cochins and Orpingtons, and carried off more than 10,000 prizes in the United Kingdom.

It was his boast that he could cover the walls and ceilings of his home, Flass House, with the special and first prize tickets that he had gained as an exhibitor. He won five times at the Crystal Palace the twenty-guinea challenge cup awarded for the best hen in the show.

The Scottish Pipers' Society, of which the Prince of Wales is Patron, has held its annual competition in Piobaireachd—the classical music of the Highland pipe—which lasted just over three hours, and produced a higher standard of playing than ever before.

The silver challenge cup was awarded to the Rev. Neil Ross, minister of Laggan, Strathspey, the second prize to Seton Gordon, of Aviemore, and the third prize to Graham Campbell, junior, of Shirvan.

IMPOSITION OF NEW DUTY ON SILK JUSTIFIED

Churchill Takes His Argument Direct to the Voters of London.

LUXURY TAXES.

Says Philip Snowden Shamefully and Wantonly Threw Duties Away.

LONDON, May 2. — (Canadian Press).—Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, escaping for a time from the Labor howls that drowned out his budget exposition in the House of Commons Thursday night, took his argument direct to the voters yesterday in addressing a meeting of the Conservative Primrose League at Albert Hall. He made a spirited defence of the national balance sheet. British women, Churchill said, would not hesitate to pay the proposed tax on silk if they were convinced it was for their country's good.

Justifying the restoration of the McKenna duties on automobiles and foreign manufactures considered luxuries, Churchill accused Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Ramsay MacDonald Labor Government, of having "shamefully and wantonly" thrown these duties away.

Churchill outlined the Baldwin Government's foreign policy as one of peace abroad. "The peace of the world depends upon the faithful cooperation of the two groups of the greatest nations of to-day," he said.

"In the new world the Washington agreements brought together Great Britain, the United States and Japan, the three leading naval powers, in a bond of friendship that should preserve for many generations the peace and freedom of the seas."

In the old world Mr. Churchill declared that Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain was endeavoring to bring about an association for mutual protection and security of the four greatest nations of Europe: Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy. "That is the policy he is pursuing and one he will persevere in year after year with faithful integrity."

Press Attacks Churchill

LONDON, May 2 (Canadian Press).—Winston Churchcill, chancellor of the exchequer, now is confonted with a massed press attack for his action in restoring Great Britain to the gold standard.

The leading weeklies, Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, and Lord Rothemere's Daily Mail, representing the industrialists, and The Daily Herald, the Labor organ, yesterday denounced Churchill's gold policy. The weeklies in reasoned terms and the dailies in sensational and alarmist tones.

BRITISH ARMY ADDS CLASSES

30,000 RECRUITS

The strength of the British army on October 1, 1924 was 447,089; 19,624 officers and 427,465 men, according to information just received. There were 215,343 officers and men in the regular army, 88,942 in the army reserve, and 142,804 in the territorial army. The new recruits received during the year amounted to 30,508. Northern Ireland continues to be the most fruitful recruiting field, and next, London and Birmingham.

With the object of providing for the requirements of certain arms and branches of the regular army, for which the army reserve does not provide, the army council during the year completed arrangements for the formation of a supplementary reserve. One category of this reserve consists of men who, although they will be employed at their own trades in mobilization, are required to perform a certain amount of training in peace in order that they may acquire a knowledge of military methods and equipments. This category is recruited and administered by territorial army associations.

The other category consists of men, who are not required to perform any training in peace in view of the fact that their employment on mobilization will be identical with their civil employment. This category is recruited by

They Hardly Knew Him When He Returned

So Says Quebec Lady of Her Son.

Mr. Comtois suffered from a stitch in his side and rheumatic pains in his legs.

St. Jean de Matha, Que., May 1. —(Special).—"I have been waiting for my son to return from the lumber camp to know the result of your Dodd's Kidney Pills. He is a young man 17 years old, and at the age of 14 he used to have a stitch in his side and pains in his legs which we believed to be rheumatism. He took 3 boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and felt much better. The following year he took another 3 boxes and after the autumn he was engaged lumbering. I sent him 3 more boxes, and I can certify in all sincerity, that they have done him a great good. He has done the work of a man and returned home quite fat. People who knew him hardly believe that he is only 17 years old. He now weighs 150 lbs."

This statement comes from Madame B. Comtois, well-known resident of this place.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Even though you may be forced to draw on your bank account very heavily, never wipe it out entirely.

* * *

At first blush it sounds rather foolish to advocate leaving a small sum like $1.00 in a bank when you have drawn out many hundreds, or perhaps thousands, to meet some demand. It is not foolish to leave this one dollar nest egg still intact, however.

The great value of this one dollar is its psychological value. When a bank account is closed out the owner of that account is likely to feel reluctant about starting a new one and "blow in" what should be set aside as savings. The one dollar still in the bank acts as a mental anchor for most men and helps to hold them on the savings course—gives them a desire to build up the account again with that one lone, measley dollar as a foundation.

When you draw heavily on your account do not forget to keep the dollar anchor to the windward.

BUTTER IS UP IN 62 YEARS

T. D. Chamberlain of Otonabee Finds Old Newspaper That Tells.

FROM 20 CENTS TO 40

"What price is butter to-day?" "Sixteen and twenty cents a pound!" This was the answer a prospective buyer would receive back in 1863. Quite a different answer one receives to-day when one is informed that butter is thirty-eight and forty cents the pound.

The information was obtained from a copy of The Toronto Weekly Globe discovered by T. D. Chamberlain, of Otonabee, who came across the time-worn paper sandwiched in between a picture and the back of the frame. The paper is dated March 27th, 1863 and The Examiner is informed that William Chamberlain, then of Otonabee, was the subscriber.

In comparing the market prices with those in The Examiner of to-day, it is found that eggs then sold for 15 cents, whereas one must hand 25 cents across the counter, but the people of 1925 fare better when it comes to buying potatoes and apples. In 1863 apples were $1.00 the peck and to-day good apples can be had for 90 cents. The year 1863 must have been very poor for potatoes since they were selling at 15 cents the peck and to-day 12 cents is all they bring. A remarkable change has taken place in the price of wheat during the last sixty-two years. Fall wheat then sold at 85 cents a bushel, while to-day one must pay $1.20 a bushel. The same is noted in the price of spring wheat, since 62 years ago, 75 cents was all that it brought to the seller, while to-day he receives $1.15. Barley sold at 90 cents a bushel. To-day it brings only 70 cents.

On looking over the paper, a very interesting article two columns long is noted on the American Civil War which began around 1860 and ended in 1865. Such historic names as Generals Lee, Burnside, Johnson, Sherman and Banks are mentioned.

RECORD BREAKING DEMAND FOR CARS

The Maxwell-Chrysler Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd., report sales of Maxwell and Chrysler Six cars in Canada for the first six months of 1925 will more than equal those for the entire year of 1924 or 1923, John D. Mansfield, president and general manager of the Maxwell-Chrysler Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd., said yesterday. Growth in sales is now progressing even more rapidly than during the last half of 1924, he added, when the company registered a greater sales gain than any other manufacturer in the Dominion.

Shipments of cars from the factory in Windsor for the first three months of this year were 211 per cent. higher than for the similar period a year ago, and 168 per cent. higher than the first three months of 1923. March shipments were 66 per cent. higher than those for March, 1924, he reports.

"We are finding a record-breaking demand for our cars in Ontario and Quebec, with steady sales being reported in the Prairie Provinces," Mr. Mansfield said. Increased buying of motor cars in the western agricultural sections evidently is being delayed until the size and prices of crops are determined more definitely.

"Maxwell-Chrysler now is able to offer its owners and prospective owners the benefits of one of the strongest dealer organizations in Canada. We have more than tripled our field service organization these last 12 months. We now have sales and service facilities in practically every trading centre throughout the entire Dominion.

"From recent surveys made by our own organization, coupled with reports of our distributors and dealers, we anticipate a continuance of this record increase in demand for both cars throughout the balance of the year. The possibilities for Maxwell-Chrysler in Canada were never the equal of what they are to-day.—(Advt.)

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAY EARNINGS

Operating results for the month of March, 1925, issued to-day by the Canadian National Railway show a decrease of $2,435,675 or11.78 per cent in gross earnings as compared with March, 1924. Operating expenses over the same period were reduced by $1,778,332 or 9.68 per cent, leaving a decrease in net earnings of $657,343 or 28.67 per cent as compared with March of last year.

The figures giving the results of operations for the first three months of 1925 show that there was a decrease in gross revenues of $5,346,174 or 9.42 per cent but that operating expenses during the same period were reduced by $5,310,982 or 9.79 per cent. Net earnings for the first three months of 1925 as compared with the corresponding period of last year show a decrease of $35,192 or 1.38 per cent.

Gross earnings, operating expenses and net earnings for the month of March and for the three months' period in both years, are as follows:

GOOD SUPPLIES TODAY'S MARKET

Butter is 38 Cents a Pound and Eggs From 25 to 28.

CHICKENS SCARCE.

There was a good crowd at the farmers' market this morning, and supplies in the basket section were depleted at an early hour. Butter and eggs were fairly plentiful. Butter was selling at 38 cents a pound and eggs anywhere from 25 to 28 cents a dozen. Chickens were scarce, the available supply selling for 30 and 32 cents a pound. A big turkey, weighing 12¾ pounds, was priced at $3.00.

Home-made mayonnaise dressing in bottles was 25 cents.

Tiny yellow chicks in a big box were a centre of interest, with a quotation of 20 cents a piece on their fluffy soft heads.

In the open section, fresh things for the table and various roots and slips were on many carts. Bright red radishes were 3 bunches for 25 cents, asparagus was 15 cents a bunch, and rhubarb 10 cents..

Asparagus roots were selling at 100 for $1.50, and raspberry canes 5 cents each. One small boy vendor had maple syrup at 70 cents a quart. Cabbage plants in boxes were 20 cents for the lot.

A family of good-looking bantams in a little crated box were $3 for the trio.

Veal on one cart was priced at 12 and 15 cents a pound and little squealing pigs, a couple making a protesting entry into a large sack held by a prospective customer, were $7 each.

TWO TENNIS COURTS FOR KNOX CHURCH

Young People Held Meeting To Elect Officers to Manage Sports.

A meeting of the Young People's Society was held on Friday evening for the purpose of electing officers and planning the campaign of activities for the coming season. Andrew MacKenzie occupied the chair.

After some discussion it was decided that two tennis courts be operated instead of one and in addition to this a monthly outing was planned, the nature of each being decided by the committee in charge.

The election of officers resulted in the following appointments: President, Stan. Hunter; first vice-president, Vera Brock; second vice-president, Kathaleen Benson; treasurer, Ian McRae; Managers of Tennis Courts, Ian McKenzie and William Watt.

It was ecided that a meeting of the new executive would be held on Monay night for the purpose of making further plans and arranging the various activities.

SPRING TONIC FOR GOLFERS

As Prescribed by Wilfred Reid

One of the big faults in iron club play is holding the club too loosely. When a difficult approach shot must be made, tighten up your fingers in their grip on the club. That is where the control comes from.

It is not a bad practice to put the right hand over a little bit, which gives the fingers a better grip. As I have said, control is the big thing to be had in iron play, whether the shot is a long one or not.

Many amateurs have a weakness with the mashie and it has been my observation that a diffidence about taking a strangle hold on the club is responsible for most of it.

A firm grip is necessary because the club may strike the ground hard enough to twist the club in the hands. And the feet may be a little farther apart than usual, the left foot some 15 inches in advance of the right.

The weight should be distributed nearly equally with perhaps slightly more on the right foot than on the left.

In addition to their eyelids, owls have a screen that they draw sideways across their eyes while they sleep in the daytime.

WON BRIGHTON WALK.

S. Ayles First in Hike From London.

LONDON, May 1 (Canadian Press Cable).—S. Ayles today won the London to Brighton walk, his time for the distance, 51 miles, 7 furlong, and 67 yards, being eight hours, fifty-one minutes and fifty-two 2-5 seconds. The record is 8 hours, 11 minutes, made in 1909 by H. V. Ross. T. Mullins was second in 9 hours, 22 minutes, and J. Chambers third, 9 hours, 38 minutes.

The race is from the clock tower, Westminster, to the Aquarium in Brighton, and first took place in 1886.

TRUNKS BOAST FOUR HEAVERS

Ouellet, Keone, Goyer and Jeffrey Working Out in Belleville.

(From Belleville "Ontario")

The Belleville Grand Trunks will be in the fight in the C.O.B.L. from the first game to the last and that doesn't mean "maybe," if the "prospects" that turned out last night continue to improve on the performance shown. The old regulars took a back pew for the time being, while the spectators gave the newer ones the once over and the talent came away convinced that the team will be stronger off offensively than "at any time in its history" and that's quite a few.

Nearly every year the team has had to be content with the old guard and worry along and don't think for one minute that old bunch could not play ball for every team in the group will tell you that Belleville was the toughest team to beat in these parts but many games went into the other fellow's bat bag that would have been wins for the Trunks had they had the material to inject pep at the right time; and all this will be with the team this season. There are plenty of players for nearly every position but the greatest strength goes to the outfield, when O'Donoghue and Grey get into action along with Casey and Ross. That will make some quartette with plenty of hitting stored in the bludgeons and sure-handed boys who make all the chances look easy. It was a pleasure to watch them work in the outer garden and Uncle Walter Gerow is wearing a smile that won't come off.

For the infield Dr. Rutherford caverted around the middle bag and he handles himself in real style. He is much improved over his form shown with the Petes and, if his hitting comes through, the team will have plenty of strength in the centre. Harry Mills has not put in an appearance yet and neither has John Williams, but both are expected out on Friday night and the Uncle Walter's worrying will be over.

On the hurling heap Belleville will be well fortified with four ready to answer the call: Goyer, Keon and Jeffrey were tossing them over and all ready ready to go at least six innings right now. These boys will all be used more this summer than ever, and the fans will not have to depend on one hurler for all their wins. Ouellet will be the mainstay, of course, and the big boy should have his very best season.

The practice consisted of base running, hitting and infield work and it was surprising the way the boys handled themselves in the first real practice. The diamond will receive a real grooming today or tomorrow and then the season can start "as soon as it likes" The fans are flocking to the standard and Belleville again this season will have a team that will be knocking at the door. It is expected that a meeting of the league will soon be called to get the umpire situation straightened out; also the executive will soon be called to pass on certificates. It looks like one of the biggest years in the history of the C.O.B.L. hereabouts. Wait and see.

Billy Evans Says

DRASTIC RULE.

After many years of discussion pro and con, golf appears about ready to pass out of the picture as a part of the life of a big league ball player.

Three managers have already placed an absolute ban on the game, Playing golf on any day except when no game is scheduled will call for a heavy fine on some clubs.

I am inclined to think that within a year—two at the most—all the managers will be stringing along with Huggins, McGraw, Hendricks and others.

About a year ago I asked Rogers Hornsby, premier batter of the majors, what he thought about golf.

"I like the game—was making pretty good strides as a player, but I have given it up for the time being. I am convinced there is nothing in common between the golf and baseball swing, that it can only act as a detriment to the ball player."

Hornsby says his swing is more natural and there is greater power to his baseball drive when he doesn't combine it with golf.

* * *

However, there is another angle that golf plays in the routine of the ball player that has as much to do with the ban that several managers have placed on the game as the harmful golf swing.

* * *

GOLF GOSSIP.

It is the talking of golf to the exclusion of baseball. It is a matter of record, baseball precedent, that all the great teams past and present talked as well as played baseball.

The fighting spirit, the will to win, much of the strategy of the game, is often founded on the attitude of the players off the ball field. If they talk and live baseball in the dressing room and the hotel, it invariably makes for better play.

It is said that McGraw's stand on the golf question was caused by what he overheard one day in the dressing room of the Giants at Sarasota, Fla.

A number of players, not knowing of McGraw's* presence, were fondling their golf sticks instead of rubbing up their bats, and were telling how many strokes they played the first 18 holes in rather than boasting how many hits they had made the day previous.

McGraw wants his ball players to live and talk baseball from the time the season opens until it ends. His great success as a manager would make it appear that he knows what is best.

* * *

Anyway the golf ban is on with the New York Giants, the Yanks, and Cincinnati Reds. It is said five or six other managers are on the verge of clamping on the lid.

* * *

CADDY CRAZE.

The popularity of golf has in no way affected baseball patronage, all arguments to the contrary.

Golf has come strongest in the last five years. In that same time baseball has enjoyed its greatest prosperity.

Golf is not a game for the spectator. Its greatest appeal is to the active player who gets exercise with his amusement. Golf has no gate power.

However, I do think that golf is cutting in on the baseball material of our country. Many youngsters hie to the golf links to work as caddies because of the compensation rather than play ball for mere amusement. It is only natural they should fuss around with golf when idle.

* * *

I have no doubt but that many likely ball players among the youngsters are passing up their baseball chance because the duties of caddy call for liberal pay. The standard, not the patronage, is suffering if golf is making any inroads on the game.

This Your BIRTHDAY

SATURDAY, MAY 2—Persons born this day are inclined to be "Bohemian." They like queer things. They look down on almost everybody else in the world. They think they know all about art, when in reality they know very little about it. This trait is a great hindrance to their business success. In their minds men and women who have achieved success have been smiled on by the Goddess of Luck. They do not realize the part hard work plays in any success. The chances are that you will not marry young.

The Referee

How many times have Mickey Walker and Dave Shade fought and what were the results?—F. T. R.

They have met twice, both times in 1921, one being a 12-round, no-decision affair, and the other going to Walker in a kayo in the eighth session.

Did Brookes and Patterson, the Australian stars, ever win the national doubles title in tennis?—W. A. C.

Yes, in 1919.

What was the highest Elmer Smith batted in the major leagues?—S. S. F.

Smith's best hitting mark was made in 1920, when he clouted .316'

DEMPSEY IN TWO FIGHTS SINCE 1921

Since Jack Dempsey whipped Georges Carpentier in the "battle of the century" in 1921, the heavyweight king has had but two fights. One was the 15-round affair with Tommy Gibbons and the other the two-session serenade with Luis Firpo. Both of these clashes were staged in 1923.

KOPPISCH STARS IN TWO SPORTS.

Columbia University boasts a great athlete in Walter Koppisch. For, besides being one of the best football players the Blue and White has ever had, he's also a speedy chap on the Koppisch's specialty is the quarter-mile, where he is a consistent 49-second performer. He was entered in the Penn relay games at Philadelphia, which was staged on April 24-25.

TRACK PROSPECTS GOOD AT CHICAGO.

Track and field prospects at the University of Chicago are exceptionally bright this season. Fact is, the material available looms as the best in quite a stretch. In Justin Russell, high jumper, the Marooons have one of the greatest leapers since Harold Osborne's days. And that's saying more than a little.

FISH AND GAME

What do you know about surf casting and channel bass fishing?

I presume the method, outfit, location and time for catching channel bass is less known to the average fisherman than any other phase of American angling.

Channel bass were formerly caught exclusively by still-fishing from a boat. Not many years ago New York anglers invented a surf-casting rod, that the channel bass might be caught from shore, by casting out into the surf.

As a matter of fact two rods were devised. One, for casting from a boat, is made of bethabara or bamboo. This rod is 6 feet long, weighs 10 ounces and has a butt piece of 24 to 28 inches. The surf rod is 6 feet 3 inches to 6 feet 6 inches in length, made of second-growth hickory, with a butt piece of 34 inches. Both hands are used in wielding the rods.

The average cast from a boat is 75 to 100 feet. To get results from the beach a cast of 200 to 250 feet is necessary. A large "throw-off," or free running reel, is required. This reel should hold at least 600 feet of 15-thread cuttyhunk linen line. This 15-thread line is used in casting either from boat or shore.

The rest of the rig includes a piano wire leader of 2½ to 3 feet, 9-0 hooks, without snells, a 4-ounce pyramid sinker, swivels (from line to sinker and line to leader), an adamant ring for line to play through (this is known as the "fish finder"), and a piece of rawhide 3 inches long by 3-8 of an inch wide, to which the line is tied above, and the swiveled leader below.

The ringed sinker rests on the bottom and the line plays through the ring, when a fish takes the bait.

Channel bass caught from Corson's Inlet (Cape May, N. J.) down to Okracke, N. C. Wachapreagu, Va., off Cedar, Paramores and Hog Islands, are regarded as the "best bet" of the day.

The best time is the last week of May and the first week of June. Quid and mullet are used for bait.

THE MARKETS.

rel. A moderate trade was done.

A feature of the butter trade was the announcement of the stock in store here which was place at 13,787 packags of Creamery butter and it showed a decrease of 18,369 packages, as compared with April first, and a decrease of 281 packages from a year ago, while the stock of Dairy butter on the first of the month was 215 packages larger than the previous month, and 598 packages in excess of 1924.

Butter Receipts

The receipts of butter in Montreal today were 826 packages, as compared with 446 for the same day last week, and 984 for the corresponding day a year ago. The total receipts from May 1, 1924, to April 30, 1925, were 648,742 packages, as against 494,486 for the previous year, showing an increase of 154,256 packages.

There was no further change in prices, but the undertone to the market was easy at the recent decline noted and it is expected that they will reach a lower level in the near future. The demand showed no improvement from any source and the volume of business was small.

The stock of cheese in Montreal on the first of the month was 100,879 boxes which showed an increase of 57,399 boxes, as compared with that of April first, and an increase of 43,074 boxes with a year ago. The stock of Canadian cheese in the principal English markets on May 1, 1925, showed a decrease of 9,500 boxes with the previous month, and a decrease of 900 boxes with a year ago.

Cheese Production Up

The receipts of cheese in Montreal were 13,603 boxes as against 853 for the same day last week, and 1,187 for the corresponding day a year ago. Of the above quantity for Friday there were 12,038 boxes of New Zealand cheese. The total receipts of cheese in Montreal from May 1, 1924 to April 30, 1925, were 1,589,266 boxes, as compared with 1,357,400 boxes last year, showing an increase of 231,866 boxes.

An easier feeling prevailed in the market and prices were lower. There was some demand on spot for export account and a moderate amount of business was done with sales of Western No. 1 Colored at 18⅛c to 18¼c per lb., No. 1 White at 18⅛c to 18⅛c per lb., while Eastern No. 1 White sold at 17¾c to 18c per lb. and No. 1 Colored at 17¾c to 17¾c per lb. with No. 2 grades 1c per lb. less.

CELEBRATE TWO YEARS' SUCCESS

All Saints' A. A. Held Banquet to Commemorate Their Anniversary.

HELPFUL SPEECHES

All Saints' Athletic Association celebrated their second anniversary last night with a banquet in the Parish Hall, at which Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton of Norwood, Rural Dean, and His Worship Mayor Turner were the principal speakers.

The President, H. E. Ashmore, acted as chairman, and there were about sixty present. After the inner man had been satisfied, Mr. Ashmore introduced the speakers.

Mayor Turner was the first speaker, and his subject was "The Daily Dozen." These were: The pleasure of work, the value of time, the wisdom of economy, the sense of duty, the success of perseverance, patience, worth of character, the dignity of simplicity, the influence of kindness, the importance of talent, the joy of originating, and reflection. He said that in his position of Mayor he met men of importance and found that the proper appreciation of these twelve points was the foundation of true success.

The Rev. O'Conor-Fenton spoke on "The Newness of Life." He urged upon his hearers the necessity of caring for the body and mind and having development and newness all through life. He told them to live according to the catechism, which tells one's duty towards God and duty towards one's fellowmen. He congratulated the President and members on the great strides made by the association since its beginning and expressed hope that its success might continue.

The rector, Rev. J. D. Paterson, said that the work of the club was a great benefit to the church.

A short speech was made by B. Graham of St. John's, thanking the club for their hospitality in asking the boys of St. John's to be represented at the banquet.

Short speeches were made by members of the clubs and their fathers, including L. G. Dobbin, Linden Richardson, J. Thomas, A. Hope, Roy Lewis, Melville McNeeley. Gordon Dobbin and Ted Rye.

Votes of thanks were moved and tendered to the speakers and ladies for their kindness.

PICTURE SHOPPING

Among you who patronize theatres are many who read the "reviews" in magazines devoted to motion pictures. All who do so have experienced disappointment at one time or another upon seeing pictures that have been recommended by the critics and have immensely enjoyed in other instances pictures which the critics have announced mediocre. As a result, the critic has come to be almost a negligible factor in picture shopping. His word, once regarded as law, has dwindled to its proper status as one man's opinion. In selecting pictures for exhibition, the Capitol Theatre has a selection board of nine men and women who review all pictures when made and either reject or buy what they think the best. Before being presented in Peterboro the majority of the pictures selected are shown at the Hippodrome, Regent or Pantages theatres in Toronto. Then a censors of opinion is taken from the patrons and if the picture is highly recommended, you will find it at the Capitol theatre, Peterboro. The only difference in attending the Capitol to see the very best productions, is the admission prices charge. These are lower than any other first class theatre in the Dominion.

EAST PETERBORO' LEAGUE OFFICERS

C. S. Tanner, of Lakefield, is President—Operate Two Sections.

C. S. Tanner of Lakefield was re-elected president of the East Peterborough Baseball League at the annual meeting held last night, and the organization decided to operate two sections—one for rural teams and one for city teams, the winners to meet in a championship series for the Wright trophy. The champions will enter the O.B.A.A. semi-finals. Keene, Lakefield and Curve Lake and a fourth club, possibly Norwood or Zion will make up the rural loop. Several applications from teams were received and there appeared to be good prospects of organizing a well-balanced city group.

Profiting from the experience of last season, when players from other leagues took part in East Peterborough League games, a ruling was made to prohibit similar migration this season. This rule means that a ball player will perform in the league in which he signs a certificate and will not be permitted to hop into the E.P.L. circuit with the season well advanced and a winner in sight.

The Executive of the League will be: President, C. S. Tanner; vice-presidents, W. Fletcher and Ed. Wright; secretary, C. E. Curtis, and a representative from each club.

A vote of appreciation was extended to the secretary for his work in the interest of the League.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Let's see, now, what was the name of that vice president who was going to be so different?

Cozy Dolan's favorite springtime ditty is "You made me what I am today."....It is dedicated to Judge Rocky Mountain Landis.

A dramatic critic writes there are more good comedies in New York this year than ever before . . We suppose this includes the state boxing commission.

Gloria Swanson has returned from France with a real live marquis, and One Punch O'Goofty, being a fisherman, wonders whether she used live bait or a net in landing him.

June is little less than a half-mashie away and with it will come news of the 57 varieties of swimmers who failed to cross the English Channel.

We do not know who holds the chinning championship of this country, but it is probably claimed by some bird who got the Fiji Islands on a home-made radio set.

OTTAWA, May 2. — (Canadian Press).—From present indication the banquet to be held at the Chateau Laurier on Wednesday evening next by the Liberal-Conservative Association, at which Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, will be speakers, will surpass the banquet given by this association last year.

INSPECTION OF SCHOOL CADETS

Peterborough Public School Boys Will Show Work on Friday.

OPEN INVITATION.

The annual inspection of the Peterborough Public School Cadet Battalion has been fixed for Friday, June 5th, at 2.45 p.m., in Central Park.

The details of the inspection are in charge of Sergt.-Major Instructor T. Thomas, of National Defence Instruction Staff, who expects nearly six hundred cadets in line for the occasion.

Good work and very keen interest are the keyword amongs all six Peterborough companies concerned, all of whom intend to win if possible the "Denne" Cup, for general efficiency and drill. This cup is now held by "C" Co'y, Central school.

An innovation this year will be a physical training demonstration by each company.

It is expected that Lt.-Col. Hill, Director of Physical Training and Cadet Services, will conduct the inspection accompanied by Captain V. W. S. Heron, District Cadet Officer. An official invitation is extended to the President and members of each Home and School Association to attend in a body, also the members of the Board of Education, school pupils and general public.

Complete details and programme will be published at a later date.

DELICATESSEN WIFE CAUSE OF DIVORCE

Women Who Enjoy Themselves to the Last Moment and Buy Store Food.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 2.—"The delicatessan wife," in the opinion of Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is the cause of divorce.

Speaking here she said that she had no patience with the women who enjoy themselves away from home and rush back at the last minute before the husband arrived, to buy their dinner at a delicatessen store.

"No wonder that divorces have increased," she said.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(Canadian Press).—Senator Norris, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, said he would go to Canada in about two weeks to study the Ontario Hydro-Electric system. SPRING MEETING OF SHRINERS IN TORONTO HALL

MANY VISITORS.

Potentates and Officers From Montreal and London Temple Were Present.

Yonge Street Masonic Temple Assembly Hall, Toronto, was turned into a desert Wednesday night. Lighting effects imitated the tropical sun and the walls were hung with tapestry depicting desert vistas, palms, an oasis and a caravan. The realistic effect was heightened by a carpet resembling Sahara sand. Strange men, garbed in multi-colored turbans and uniforms, reclined on rugs under awnings. There was a great crowd, who were delighted with the picturesque character of the gathering and left only "when the sands of the desert grew cold."

Guests at the function said it was the spring ceremonial of Rameses Temple of Mystic Shriners, during which a caravan was formed for a journey over the Sahara.

Gus L. Hay, of Peterborough, the Illustrious Potentate, conducted the ceremony. In his Divan were the following officers and members of the Council: N. E. Gillen, Chief Rabban, Chas. Soady, Assistant Rabban, W. H. Shaw, Past Potentate, F. E. Walker, Past Potentate, W. G. Gallow, Past Potentate, D. W. H. Wright, Past Potentate, Jas. D. Todd, a Macoomb, John J. Jones, Dr. Foster, J. A. Montgomery, J. A. Calvert, Ross Sheppard, Bert Neal, J. T. Lester and H. J. Pritchard.

The Potentate and officers of Karnack Temple, Montreal, Mocha Temple, London, and other visiting Nobles were escorted to the Temple meeting by the Patrol at the formal introduction and were received and welcomed by the Illustrious Potentate.

Nobles the Hon. Jos. E. Thompson, Speaker of the Legislature, and Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Public Works, were in attendance to witness their colleague, the Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, admitted into the Order.

The Patrol decided to attend in a body at the dedication of the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children at Montreal on May 16th.

Gus L. Hay, F. E. Walker, W. G. Gallow and T. G. Soole will represent Rameses Temple at the Imperial Council in Los Angeles the first week in June.

"THE SPANIARD" PLEASING STORY OF SPANISH LOVE

The Paramount picture, "The Spaniard," which will be shown on Monday next at the Capitol Theatre, is a story of a bull-fighter, hero of Spain, and an English society girl, a born coquette, always looking for new hearts to conquer. She meets and fascinates The Spaniard, who, however, warns her that he does not intend to be just another of her victims and that he is going to conquer her.

Dolores pays a visit to relatives in Seville and while there attends a bull fight, where she recognizes the matador as The Spaniard, Don Pedro, and congratulates herself that she did not accept a common bull-fighter as a husband.

An excursion to a Moorish castle in the mountains near Seville proves a trap. Dolores, seeking shelter from a storm, walks hight into a castle, the owner of which proves to be Don Pedro. He holds her a prisoner in the hopes of making her change her mind about marrying him, but it only tends to make the girl more furious.

The Spaniard is a firm believer in cave man tactics in taming his women, but he finds they don't work with Dolores. He undergoes a change of heart and consents to take the girl out horseback riding. Dolores makes use of this opportunity to escape by slashing The Spaniard's horse across the flank and dashing madly cross-country, right into a bandit hangout.

How she fares with the cut-threats, how The Spaniard finally effects her rescue and wins her love, makes "The Spaniard" one of the season's most highly entertaining productions.

VAUDEVILLE AT CAPITOL MONDAY.

Misses Farnum and Johnston, a team of very clever young ladies, have been booked as an added attraction at the Capitol Theatre for Monday. These two young ladies, who are now touring Canada, are known as the Two Maids and a Piano, offering vocal and instrumental numbers. This act comes highly recommended and is bound to please the music loving people of Peterborough.

AT THE ROYAL, MONDAY

AT THE ROYAL

COLLEEN MOOHE AS STAGE VAMP.

Popular Actress Coming Here Soon in "Flirting With Love," a Theatrical Romance.

Colleen Moore, the "Flaming Youth Girl," the acknowledged perfect flapper of the screen, has turned her back on hoydenish flapper roles for the time being. In "Flirting With Love," the comedy drama of stage life, coming to the Royal Theatre next Monday, she demonstrates that she is just as much at home in parts calling for emotional dramatic acting as she is in roles of lighter vein.

Miss Moore enacts the role of a highly temperamental actress, a star in musical comedies the success of which has been based on the risque nature of their plot. Her new show is closed through the instrumentality of a stage reformer, a part played by Mr. Tearle. The actress pretends to lose her memory and wanders into the home of the reformer, who also is a student of psychology, planning to deceive him into believing that she is a subject for psychological study and then to ridicule him publicly.

POWERFUL CAST IN NEW PARAMOUNT PRODUCTION

An unusually strong combination of talent has been assembled by Paramount for the Victor Fleming production, "Code of the Sea," which comes to the Royal Theatre next Thursday to remain for three days.

Rod La Rocque and Jacqueline Logan are featured in the principal roles.

La Rocque, because of his signal successes in Cecil B. De' Mille's "The Ten Commandments," "Triumph," is regarded on all sides as having "arrived." Miss Logan likewise has received popular approbation for her work in such photoplays as "The Light That Failed." "The Dawn of a To-morrow." Both of these were George Melford productions.

These two artists personify all of the romance and fire of youth and hope. In this production the combination of their abilities results in new triumphs for both.

Besides these two luminaries, the cast of "Code of the Sea" includes Maurice Flynn, George Fawcett, Luke Cosgrave, Lillian Leighton and Sam Appell.

Byron Morgan, author of many of the stories, which starred the late Wallace Reid, wrote "Code of the Sea" especially for Paramount production and it was scenarized by Bertram Millhauser.

That heavy tired feeling, no pep, muddy complexion, no appetite, foul breath, biliousness, headaches, constipation and rheumatism, are all sure signs that your liver is clogging your whole system. Calomel is the only drug known that acts upon the liver. Start tonight, take two tablets of tanol calomel and in the morning drink plenty of hot water to wash from the system all the poisons and toxins before more food is taken in. TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

Man does not possess a soul. Man is a soul. "Soul" means a being that breathes and can think, whether man or beast. Numbers 31:28; Gen. 1:20-30. "Margin." God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life (filled his lungs with air) and man became (as a result of beginning to breathe) a living soul. Gen. 2:7. It would not be necessary to keep repeating the above were it not that the teaching of theologians has been such that the "immortal soul" idea is woven into our very beings. We were born with it; we were nursed and fed upon it. Man is a soul while he is alive, when he is dead he is not a soul. Psalms 146:4; Ezek. 18:4. As all of Adam's race has been redeemed from death, the penalty of sin in this age in the resurrection all dead souls shall live again. Ps. 49:7., 15; I Cor. 15, 36 to 40. — M. T. Katherine Coughlin Struck When on Way From School Yesterday.

SEVERELY HURT.

On Friday, at 12 o'clock, as the children were hurrying from King Edward School, little 8-year-old Katherine Coughlin, 165 Princess Street, was struck down by a motor car driven by Albert Le Fabe, and suffered severe injuries about the head. Beatrice Chouinard, who was with Katherine, was also injured slightly.

Katherine and Beatrice were running across the corner of Romaine and George when the car bore down upon them and hurled them to the pavement. The force of the blow is shown by the fact that the fender was badly bent and the lamp broken.

The front wheel ran over Beatrice's leg, but she jumped up and ran over to the sidewalk; Katherine, however, lay where she fell and was unconscious for the remainder of the afternoon.

The doctor in attendance fears there may be internal injuries, although the little girl appears bright even while suffering intense pain.

The father, John Coughlin, is greatly worried, and says that cars should be driven with great discretion in localities near schools. He also says that signs of warning should be conspicuously.

PLOT AGAINST BULGARIAN KING OFFICIALLY DENIED BY SOFIA; COMMUNISTS HAD ARMED FORCE

Story of Subterranean Passage Discovered Under Royal Palace Was False—Some of Staff Arrested, But Liberated.

CATHEDRAL CUSTODIAN BRIBED

"Reds" Were Prepared for Attempt to Set Up Revolutionary Government After Bombing the Sofia Cathedral.

SOFIA, May 4. — (Canadian Press).—Further investigations yesterday of the report of a plot to blow up the Royal Palace adduced the following statement from a quarter that may be accepted as reliable:

Immediately after the recent bomb outrage in the cathedral here many wild rumors concerning the mining of the palace and of the Ministerial building gained currency. A strict investigation was made of the personnel of the palace staff and three or four persons were arrested but later liberated.

The story of the discovery of a subterranean passage under the Palace was false. A canal, or rather a drain, exists there, and an investigation was made to ascertain whether it might be used by persons seeking to blow up the Palace. It was found to be too narrow for a human being to enter it.

Since the recent happenings in Sofia extra precautions have been taken for the safety of the King, but official quarters definitely and categorically deny the discovery of any attempt to blow up any of the Royal residences.

BERLIN, May 4.—Despatches received here from Sofia say that at the court-martial trial Saturday of persons accused of responsibility for the recent bombing outrages, Peter Zadgorski, formerly custodian of the Sveti Kral Cathedral, confessed that he had been bribed by Communists to co-operate in placing the bombs that killed 160 persons in the cathedral.

Zadgorski testified, this despatch said, that the Communists had 4,000 armed men in Sofia ready to attempt the establishment of a revolutionary Government after the cathedral explosion. He said he had hoped to escape to Russia after the plot failed.

Sofia despatches give a revised list of the defendants in which the names differ considerably from those previously used. In addition to Zadgorski, the new list names as the principal defendants Maroo Friedman, a lawyer; Colonel Koef, and two men named Kambouloff and Daskaloff.

A Sofia despatch also says that the wife of a former Premier, whose name is withheld, is believed by the Bulgarian authorities to have been implicated in the cathedral explosion.

It is reported in these despatches that the Government finds that Communist ideas have penetrated the official educational circles. Many teachers and employees in the educational departments have been dismissed for alleged Communist tendencies, it is said.

The Bulgarian Legation here denied that there have been any further evidences of unrest or criminal attempts in Bulgaria.

SOFIA, May 4. — Traces of the Communist conspiracy in Bulgaria have led to the Tcheropitch monastery, 38 miles from Sofia, where the authorities charge that secret meetings were held. The Attorney-General has ordered the arrest of the monks implicated.

POLA NEGRI IN CUSTOMS NET

Failed to Declare Jewelry and Had Sixteen Bottles of Liquor.

MUCH DISTRESSED.

NEW YORK, May 4. — Pola Negri, the screen star, who arrived here Friday night on the Berengaria from a trip to Europe, was detained shotly after disembarking by the customs authorities for neglecting to declare three pieces for jewelry valued at 300,000 francs ($15,000) it was learned yesterday.

Miss Negri, after a brief questioning, was allowed to go to her suite in the Hotel Ambassador after giving assurance that she would appear at the Custom House to-day, and pay whatever fine may be assessed. In the meantime the customs authorities are appraising the jewels.

The actress also will have to appear before officials of the legal department in the Custom House to explain why the jewels were not declared.

Miss Negri was very much distressed over the matter. She said that she had made several previous trips to and from Europe and had never before been questioned by the officials about her jewelry. She, being an alien, had never been obliged to declare heretofore, she said. Her last return from Europe, before Friday, however, was two and a half years ago, and since that time she had taken out her first naturalization papers and had established her permanent residence in Hollywood, Cal.

Lost Her Duty Exemption.

These two facts, she learned to her consternation, had changed her status and had also done away with her duty exemptions. The jewelry, she said, consisted of one large diamond bracelet, a twelve-carat emerald ring and a huge unset emerald of ninety-six carats which was once the property of a King of Prussia. She had exchanged several old pieces of jewelry for the three pieces which were seized Friday night.

The jewelry episode was not the only one which caused the actress no end of annoyance when the Berengaria docked. At that time the authorities discovered sixteen bottles of liquor in Miss Negri's trunks. As she looked on the forbidden bottles were seized and ruthless hands struck them against the pier. Champagne, whiskey and other choice beverages trickled into the sea. She was then fined $5 for each bottle.

MOORS ATTACK FRENCH FRONT

Capture of Fez Appears to be the Object of Abd-el Krim's Tribesmen.

SPAIN IS WEARY.

FEZ, Morocco, May 4.—Moroccan tribesmen operating under the orders of Abd-el-Krim, the rebel leader, are attacking the French zone over a front of sixty miles. At some points they have surrounded French posts, where small detachments are defending themselves in blockhouses.

The French military authorities here are of the opinion that the rebel leader has a vast project in his mind, with Fez as the principal objective. The direction of the attacks thus far made by the tribes in their offensive indicates a plan for a converging movement upon this city.

There is no serious apprehension for the isolated posts, which are provided with machine guns and three-inch pieces. With this equipment, it is felt, the garrisons should be able to keep the tribesmen at a distance. It will be necessary, however, to provision them with water within a short time.

The French forces in the zone of activity number about 12,000 men, divided into three columns, each commanded by a colonel. Reinforcements now on the way will bring the total to 20,000.

FRANCO-SPANISH ATTACK PLANNED.

PARIS, May 4.—A combined Franco-Spanish operation to smash Abdel Krim's revolution in Morocco is rapidly developing and a dual offensive is expected to be launched in a fortnight.

The French Government is understood to have authorized Marshal Lyautey's plan, which would send heavy contingents to the South border against the French instead of being able to concentrate all his available troops against the Spanish.

Political trouble over the Franco-Spanish campaign has already been started, with Italy objecting strenuously to such action unless she is allowed to participate and get a share of the spoils. Both the Paris and Madrid Governments declare, however, that no outsiders can interfere, insisting that French troops will not cross the border into the Spanish protectorate.

Despite these declarations, Premier Mussolini—reported backed by London—has sent a strong memorandum to the Quai d'Orsay reiterating out Italy's aspirations and stressing the Allies' refusal to invite the Rome Government to take part in the settlement of the Tangier regime.

E. G. M'KEELEY FUNERAL DREW TOKENS ESTEEM

"I Have Fought a Good Fight," Was the Message He Left.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

Rev. M. C. Mackinnon and Rev. David McKee Conducted Burial.

The funeral of Ernest McKeeley, late city editor of The Examiner, on Saturday, testified to the high esteem in which the deceased was held in the community. The Kiwanis Club and the employees of The Examiner attended in a body and many other friends gathered to pay their tribute of respect to one who had earned the regard of all with whom he came into contact.

The impressive service at the family residence, 21 Benson Avenue, was conducted by Rev. M. C. Mackinnon, pastor of Knox Church, assisted by Rev. David McKee of Truth Mission.

In his address Rev. Mr. Mackinnon said that the message that Mr. McKeeley would leave was like that of St. Paul: "I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith."

The pall bearers were Mr. Charles Cook, president, Dr. J. J. Craig and Mr. F. H. Dawson representing the Kiwanis Club, and Messrs. J. R. Heron, H. T. Theobald and Stroyan Leith, representing The Examiner.

Interment was made at Little Lake Cemetery, a long string of motor cars forming the funeral cortege. The service at the cemetery was conducted by Rev. M. C. Mackinnon.

There were many beautiful floral tokens, showing the high regard of fellow employees, friends and business associates, including the staff of Canadian Press, Toronto.

Nearly Half a Million Injured in Motor Accidents in 1924.

NEW YORK, May 4 (United News) — Automobiles killed 19,000 persons and injured 450,000 on the highways of the United States in 1924. Of the dead 5,700 were children.

The victims of automobile accidents numbered nearly twice as many men as were killed and wounded in the American army during the war, it is pointed out by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters which has made these figures public.

The daily average of motor casualties was 52 killed and 1,180 injured.

HOOSIER STATE DRY LAW JAILS 250 IN A WEEK

Enforcement is Denounced as Reign of Terror Worse Than Siberia.

"FRAMING" IS EASY

INDIANAPOLIS, May 4.— The close of the first week of the enforcement of the Wright "bone-dry" law in Indiana, regarded the most drastic liquor law in the United States, finds many persons in jail in Hoosierdom, facing trials which carry prison sentences, others feraful that information of even a modest supply maintained in the home may leak out and bring about a raid and some already serving time.

There has been a scramble of the wealthier citizens "to cover up" their stocks, even though these may have been acquired in pre-prohibition time. Under the interpretation of R. C. Minton, Assistant Prohibition Director for Indiana, the new law eliminates the old defense of wealthy men who had liquor in the cellar. In the past, raids in which liquor was confiscated failed to bring about conviction when it was proved that the supply was bought before prohibition.

Minton holds that the new law strikes out any possible defense along that line. Mere possession of liquor, no matter how small in quantity, unless it is for sacramental purposes or is pure grain alcohol, and no matter when it was acquired, even though bought under a physician's prescription, is now a violation of the law and carries with it a jail sentence.

Called Worse Than Siberia.

It is estimated that fully 250 persons were caught by at least some tecehnical violation of the law during its first week of operation.

Anti-saloon and prohibition exponents are jubilant. The liberal element declares that neither Siberia nor any country in the world ever saw a more drastic infringement of the rights of the home.

Some of the newspapers of the State are backing the new law, while other are assailing it as vicious and opening a new reign of terror. One makes this editorial comment:

"Indiana now has gone to the extreme in prohibition laws. If there is any future movement it must be in the direction of more moisture. Certainly, we cannot approach much nearer to legal aridity.

"Under the new law it is dangerous even to think about taking a drink. It is a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment, to accept one.

"This new law should go a long way toward determining the question of whether prohibition really can prohibit. It is much more stringent than the Federal laws or any law of its kind ever before enacted in Indiana.

"Apparently there are few legal loopholes for the thirsty citizen or for the bootlegger. Under the Wright bill the whole problem seems to have simmered down to the question of getting the evidence and presenting it in court.

'How thoroughly this law will be enforced or can be enforced is hard to tell. Complete enforcement and the consequent disappearance of the stuff that cheers is more than can be expected.

"The immediate result probably will be an increase in the price of hooch and feverish activity on the part of the owners of private stocks in disposing of their wet goods."

One of the glaring faults pointed out by enemies of the new law is that under its terms it is easy to "frame" an enemy by "planting" a small quantity of liquor in his home and then instigating a raid.

The present code makes it harder for those who make, sell or use intoxicants to violate the law but enables officials to obtain convictions with ease. The purchaser of liquor is equally guilty with the seller. The fine for purchasing, selling, transporting, making or possessing is not less than $100, to which is added imprisonment running from thirty days to six months. A third conviction means prison for from one to two years, and the court cannot suspend sentence.

PETERBORO HAS HELPED SUPPLY RUSSIAN ORDER

Local Branch of Maple Leaf Milling Co. Complete Record Floor Shipment.

158 TRAIN LOADS

MONTREAL, May 4.—Peterborough has had the honor of supplying a portion of the world's record flour export order, shipment of which has just been made to Soviet Russia. Execution of the Maple Leaf Milling Company's great Russian flour order was completed and payment of the final cheque for $300,000 was made to the Amtorg Trading Company, Soviet Russia New York commercial agency.

This marks the conclusion of the largest milling transaction in the history of the world. A contract covering the actual shipment of $16,395,000 worth of high grade flour, the order was booked on December 17 by D. A. Campbell, general manager of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, and W. C. Duncan, manager of the company's export department with Zieff, president of the Amtorg Company, which is a subsidiary of the Artos Bank, Soviet Russia's financial agency in Britain. Deliveries were to be made at the Atlantic seaport into ships chartered by the Russian government, and payments made at New York as fast as the flour was loaded.

Mr. Campbell stated Saturday that this arrangement had been carried out without a hitch. The flour was loaded at New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Portland and Halifax, and as fast as bills of lading for the cargoes were received by the Maple Leaf Company they were presented at the Artorg Company's bankers in New York, who paid in cash for the flour they represented. In a single day $1,500,000 was paid over in this way. The flour was carried chiefly in British vessel to Batum and Leningrad for the consumption of the Russian populace. Nine of the Maple Leaf Company's mills situated at Peterborough West, Toronto, Thorold, Port Colborne, Kenora, Brandon and Medicine Hat have been kept busy night and day since the grinding of the order commenced and in view of the urgency with which it was required other mills at Moose Jaw, St. Boniface, Midland, Stratford, St. Thomas and Montreal were also called into service.

The total product of flour shipped to Russia during four months was 2,629,000 bags of 140 pounds each, this means 158 train loads or enough flour loaded on the railway cars to reach from Toronto to Hamilton. Thirty-four vessel were required to carry it across the Atlantic. The amount of wheat consumed in grinding this order was 9,500,000 bushels or an average crop off 475,000 acres of prairie land. It was the unrivalled quality of Canadian flour, and the fact that the Maple Leaf is one of the three largest producing milling companies in the world that was chiefly instrumental in bringing the order to the Dominion. The Russian Government wanted the highest grade of flour and wanted it at short notice. Canada won the order in competition with the world.

WEATHER

Sunday morning showed that the temperature had been down to 24 degrees, or 8 degrees of frost, during the night. Ice as thick as heavy window glass was seen, and altogether it was a severe frost for May. On looking up records I only found two occasions when the thermometer had sunk lower in May. The florists say that May 20th is about the earliest that the amateur gardener can safely transplant his tender green stuff and even that date is none too safe. Some years ago on May 27th, we had ice, but that was an exception. The old settlers were wont to tell of June frosts, which at times put a blight on their roseate dreams of good crops. In this section, however, June frosts have ceased to trouble, but in the northern part of this and adjoining counties, they are still a possibility to be looked forward to with dread. This morning had a temperature of 43 degrees, with showers in prospect.—W.P.

TWO CANADIANS SMUGGLED DOPE INTO ROTTERDAM

Montreal Men Arrested by Dutch Authorities Who Withholding Names.

TON OF DRUGS

Narcotics Valued at $90,000 Concealed in Shipment of Picture Frames.

ROTTERDAM, Holland, May 4.—(Canadian Press cable, via Reuter's)—The police authorities of this city have refused to divulge the names of the two Canadians who have been placed under arrest here on a charge of smuggling narcotics into the country, but it is known that one is a former book-maker and the other a commission agent, and that both belong to Montreal. They are said to have stated that they were acting for a Canadian living in Tampico, Mexico.

The drugs, which include cocaine, morphine and heroin, and weigh considerably more than one ton at a value of about $90,000, were purchased in Germany, transported to Switzerland and handed over to the Canadians who then consigned them to Rotterdam for further transport. The narcotics were concealed in a shipment of picture frames. Close inspection by the Rotterdam Customs authorities following the receipt of information that an attempt was being made to ship drugs through Holland, led to the seizure of the narcotics.

A Swiss clerk from Zurich is also held in custody with the Canadians, pending further investigation into an alleged international traffic in narcotics.

BALLOON RACE ENDED SUNDAY

The "Goodyear III." Landed at Reform, Alabama, Covering 580 Miles.

FROM MISSOURI

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 4—(Canadian Press).—W. T. Van Orman, piloting Goodyear III., covered the greatest distance in the national balloon race, which ended Sunday when the last two bags came to earth.

Van Norman landed at Reform, Ala., out-stripping the veteran, Captain H. E. Honeywell, by about 40 miles. Captain Honeywell brought the "St. Joseph" down at Aberdeen, Miss., at one o'clock yesterday morning.

Van Orman and Captain Honeywell were the only contestants to remain in the air until Sunday.

In a message to the press reporting his landing, Van Orman estimated the distance he covered at 580 miles; rough measurement by map showed the distance to be approximately 600 miles.

The race started here late Friday.

Captain Honeywell was disqualified by Referee A. B. Lambert for delaying his start, but action on the decision had not been announced last night by the local committee. Herbert V. Thaden, another pilot, also was disqualified on the same grounds.

'SAND SUCKER' CAPSIZED BY RUSH OF WATER INTO HOLD, DROWNING NINE OF CREW OFF POINT PELEE

The "Kelley Island" of Sandusky Had Finished Loading Cargo When Two Waves Washed Over the Boat in Lake Erie—Seven Survived.

DECKHAND RESCUED THREE MEN

Swam Through Heavy Seas With Rope and Four Were Pulled on to Upturned Bottom.

DETROIT, Mich., May 4. — The body of William G. Stockford, Sandusky, Ohio, captain of the sand sucker Kelly Isand, which overturned and drowned nine men on Saturday off Point Pelee, was recovered yesterday by life savers and fishermen, battling a rough sea which threatened to break up the ill-fated craft.

Captain Stackford had remained in the deckhouse as the ship sank, it was indicated by severe gashes on his body, caused by the deckhouse bars, as he was hurled against them. The body was found after hours of search by two boats, dragging grappling irons, which patrolled the waters surrounding the wreck. Search for the remaining bodies was continued.

The hulk of the Kelly Island, 200 feet long is lying two miles off Pt. Pelee, the southernmost extremity of Ontario, in 25 feet of water. It is anchored by its loading gear, which adds to the danger of its breaking up in the high seas running around the point.

Cargo Shifted.

The boat had almost completed gathering its load of sand when Capt. Stackford started to return to Sandusky. Two waves broke over it as the sand hose was withdrawn, the water rushing through the aperature and filling the hold, causing the cargo to shift. Most of the trapped men were in the sleeping quarters.

The dead:

Captain William G. Stackford, Frederick Holder, of Oak Harbor, who was the chief engineer; Paul Everett, fireman, of Oak Harbor; Oscar Dill, deck hand, address unknown; Everett Martin deck hand; Rolland Wills, deckhand; Olly Kriss, first mate; William Myers, deckhand, all of Sandusky; Tom My, address unknown, deckhand.

Captain Stockford's home is here.

Heroic Deckha

h. courage and heroism of a deck hand. Curtis Brown of Sandusky caused the rescue of three members of the crew, according to William Loveridge, a wheelsman.

Loveridge was at the Point Pelee Lighthouse, where he and the other six survivors were quartered after being landed there by the Flossie B., a Canadian fishing boat, which came to their rescue two hours after the wreck occurred.

"I was asleep in my bunk at the time the ship first began to sink," Loveridge said. "The warning whistle awoke me and I barely had time to get out of my bunk when the ship overturned completely. Two other men who also were asleep at the time, Mick Renard, an engineer of Toledo, and Morton Everett, a fireman of Oak Harbor, also were awakened, and we found ourselves swimming about in the icy waters practically before we had a chance to awaken."

"Brown, Andrew Krause, a watchman of Sandusky, Everett Martin, a deckhand of Sandusky, and Frederick Holder, the chief engineer, of Oak Harbor, were in the hold trying to stop the flow of water, when the ship turned completely over. Brown and Krause managed to fight their way clear of the wreck, and Krause caught hold of the propeller and stayed afloat.

Safety on Keel.

"Brown, Renard and myself swam around for 45 minutes in that icy water, when Brown saw a two inch rope and securing it swam 15 feet through the heavy seas to Krause to whom he gave the rope, and who in turn handed it to the two men on top of the wreck. These men Verne Bloomstrom, a wheelsman, of Sandusky, and Morton Everett, pulled Krause on to the bottom of the boat. Scotty Peterbridge, who was in the fire hold at the time of the capsizing was next pulled out of the water, and then Renard, Brown and myself.

"I think that we fellows who are left will try and get the company to do something for Brown. If it had not been for him I guess that at least three of us would be dead this minute for I know that we couldn't have swam around in the icy, heavy seas for more than a few minutes longer than we did."

WALES' ADDRESS EPOCHAL EVENT FOR CAPE TOWN

Prince's Speech in African Language Aroused Tremendous Enthusiasm.

HISTORIC SUCCESS

Tact and Diplomacy of King's Son Made Great Impression on Assemblage.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, May 4. — The private dinner given the Prince of Wales in Parliament Building Saturday night not only was the occasion for a demonstration of enthusiastic loyalty but is being hailed as a historic success owing to the Prince's tact and diplomacy. Many Nationalist members of Parliament declared yesterday it had brought a new era to South Africa.

Not the least contribution to the success of the function was the fact that the Prince delivered part of his speech in the African language, which stirred the assemblage to tremendous enthusiasm. The Prince stood by the old speaker's chair which had been brought there especially for the occasion, and cordially shook hands with all the guests.

The speaker of the House, who presided at the dinner, in his address of welcome, started the demonstration by declaring that the banquet, held in the presence of the future King of the British commonwealth, would eliminate every trace of bitterness; that the two white races were united and that the Prince's visit had strengthened the spirit of co-operation and optimism. Then lightly reviewing the history of South Africa since the Boer War and "the wise statesmanship shown by Great Britain," he wished long life and prosperity to the guest of the evening.

Workers in Norway and Sweden are demanding increased wages, asserting that the cost of living has increased.

BOY KILLED.

Struck By Automobile While Crossing Main Street, Petrolea.

PETROLIA, May 4 (Canadian Press) — John Bunyan, the 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bunyan of Petrolia, died in the hospital here yesterday morning as a result of injuries sustained when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Main street on Saturday night.

James Burnes, believed to be the driver of the car, was later arrested.

YOUR GARDEN

OBSERVING BULBS.

Next fall, when it is time to plant bulbs outdoors, will you know exactly what you want or will you trust to the catalogue description or the dealer's say so as to varieties? If you are wise you will keep your eyes open now and ask the name of any variety that takes your fancy as being particularly desirable. Attend your local tulip show, for instance, and there you will usually find the newer varieties anyway, labelled, or some enthusiast will be only too glad to give you the desired information. Make a list and put it carefully away with your garden books, clippings, etc., for future reference.

Make notes, also of any particular location where you notice bulbs growing that strike you as particularly fitting and pleasing. Seek to emulate such a planting or go one better. If you have an area, for instance, just a little wild, where bulbs can be left undisturbed until fully matured, look around and observe where some neighbor or other home owner has naturalized a few or many bulbs, and have a try at getting a similar effect. Criticize the planting you are observing from the standpoint of naturalness and in this connection observe wild flowers or ferns in the woods. Notice how in nature the flowers are displayed in large and small groups of varying outline, with occasional single specimens scattered about to add variety and connect up the groups, as it were. Observe this type of planting closely, as when well done it is possibly the best way to display narcissi of all kinds. Some of the smaller bulbs, such as Scillas, Grape Hyacinths, Snowdrops and Crocuses, lend themselves very well to naturalizing in the open lawn.

Park plantings are worth observing for color combinations, but not with the idea of attempting a number of such formal beds in the home grounds. Rather, it is better to use bulbs in the perennial border, in borders of naturally grouped clumps in front of shrubbery, limiting only formal beds to areas quite close to the buildings.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE NORWOOD ROAD

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—All work stopped in 1924 on Rd. 8b or Norwood Road, according to Mr. Sam. Armstrong of Otonabee.

What are the real facts? Upon looking the matter up I find the following to be the case and the public should know the same.

Mr. Armstrong addressed the County Council at the January session 1924. He also attended a meeting of the County Council and Sub-Area Commission on February 8, 1924, when the chief engineer of municipal roads attended following Mr. Anderson's resolution to request his attendance.

The chief engineer stated to the council, with Mr. Armstrong also present: "The Norwood Road or North Road is the road we favor, Mr. Anderson," and that "The work of the Commission in Peterboro County is commendable and that the Commission has the sympathy of the minister."

After the engineer took the train to Toronto, Mr. Anderson made an attempt to again inflict Mr. Armstrong on the Council and was politely told by his colleagues that "We have had enough of that." A few days after Mr. Anderson again accompanied Mr. Armstrong to the highway department to further press his scheme for the Block Road as against the Norwood Road.

At the council session, January, 1925, when a member of the council referred to the unthinkable scheme of Mr. Armstrong with regard to the Block Road, Mr. Anderson interrupted, making the statement with a hearty laugh, "That's a dream."

Now, Mr. Anderson knowing the same to be a "dream" why did he trot to Toronto and trot to caucus meetings and encourage Mr. Armstrong to display his eloquence at various corporation meetings? It savors of Mr. Anderson's stunts or games.

I would recommend that Mr. Anderson take Mr. Armstrong to the umpire at the home plate and have him explain the real way to play ball. I find that the city and government have paid their part of such expenditures on the Norwood Road and the Sub-Area Commission for 1925 surfacing the same road.

—County Ratepayer.

THE GREAT TAKU GLACIER

There are many notable sights to be seen by the tourist who has the opportunity to visit Alaska, but none more impressive than the famous Taku Glacier which lies between Wrangell and Juneau. This is one of the largest ice fields in the world. Where the ice breaks off in great bergs that fall into the sea with a roar like a peal of thunder, the glacier is one mile wide and from there it extends ninety miles back into the heart of the mountains that girdle this rich and beautiful land. It is one of the few great advancing glaciers left in North America and it is a sight which impresses itself deeply upon those who are privileged to view it. That number will be greatly increased this summer by the inauguration of a steamship service by the Canadian National Railways from Vancouver and Prince Rupert as far north as Skagway, Alaska, with ports of call en route at Ketchika, a typical Alaskan town built at the foot of the mountains; Wrangell, a city where jewelled ladies of the Russian court danced in rustling silks when other belles were threading the mazes of the minuet in towns on the Atlantic coast; Juneau, the modern and attractive capital of this northern outpost of the United States, and Skagway, the portal to the famous White Horse Pass, whose name is linked forever with the great gold rushes where men gambled their lives for the sake of hidden gold.

Alaska in summer is a land of surpassing beauty and great richness of color. It is a land where a holiday is an adventure and whose memory will linger long after others have faded away. Ask any agent of the Canadian National Railways for illustrated literature.

FIFTY-TWO APPLY FOR POLICE JOB

Campbellford Commission Flooded With Applications—Assistant to Chief Brown.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4.—Reeve Davidson, chairman of the police committee has received 52 applications for the position of assistant to Police Chief Brown and these will be considered at the regular meeting of the town council tonight. Police work apparently does not appeal to the men of Campbellford, as up to date there has been only one local application received; the balance coming from experienced men in Toronto, Montreal and other large towns and cities all over the Dominion.

Another important matter to be dealt with at the council meeting tonight is the proposed new schedule of salaries for the members of the fire brigade.

Change in Trade.

It is only a few years since, according to trade statistics an average of 10,000 horses were shipped every year from Ontario to the Western Provinces. Now the current of traffic has set in in the opposite direction until it is said that at least 20,000 horses are brought from the West to this province.

Gordon Longmuir, a former resident of Seymour, arrived here recently with 20 horses which he brought from Oren, Alberta. He had no difficulty in disposing them to farmers at good prices.

To Stay in Town.

Charles Battman, who is offering his household goods for sale, denies the rumor that he proposes to leave town. He intends to remain here and is only changing his mode of living.

ANTI-UNIONISTS MILLBROOK MEET

Centreville and Millbrook Unite Under One Leadership—Lively Discussion.

MILLBROOK, May 4. — A well-attended meeting representative of the non-concurring members and adherents of the Presbyterian church, Centreville, and of Grace Presbyterian church, Millbrook, was held in the Sunday school hall, Centreville, on Thursday evening. Mr. David N. Dodds, presiding.

The meeting was opened with the hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds" followed with prayer by the chairman.

On motion Harold Tate and C. Thorndyke were appointed secretaries, representing the two congregations respectively.

Addresses by Messrs. W. T. A. Deyell of Millbrook, and James C. Campbell of South Monaghan, were listened to with close attention. The subject matter dealt with the present situation regarding Union both as it affects the local churches and in its Dominion-wide aspect as well.

After a lively discussion in which the majority of those present took part, it was moved by Mr. J. D. Armstrong, seconded by Mr. J. E. Eakins —That the congregations of Millbrook and Centreville unite under one leadership.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. J. Lancashire, seconded by Mr. O. Larmer, That the basis of union be 40 per cent. for Millbrook, and 60 per cent. for Centreville, for the upkeep of the united churches—Carried.

The action taken on Thursday evening followed preliminary meetings of both congregations when committees were appointed to confer together, and arrive at some definite conclusions in the interests of the non-concurrent members and adherents, which are in a decided majority both at Centreville and Millbrook.

The chairman dismissed the gathering with the benediction.

Among those from Millbrook attending were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Mrs R. J. McKnight, Mrs. W. J. E. Gillott, Mrs. John Miller, Messrs. Charles Thorndyke, J. Steele, J. H. Paul; J. Lancashire, H. J. Armstrong, J. D. Armstrong, G. Coulter, S. E. Eakins.

MOORS ATTACK

SPAIN TIRED OF MOROCCO

MADRID, May 4.—With regard to the future of the Spanish zone in Morocco General de Rivera, President of the Directory, is reported to have made the following outspoken statements at the Mercantile Club at Seville, where he was entertained Saturday:

"If the efforts of the Spanish nation in Morocco had any prospects of bringing in some return, even at a distant date, the blood and treasure which we spend, which the world spends, would be spent in the interest of future generations.

"But the fact cannot be disguised —and I make the statement with a full consciousness of my responsibility as head of the Government—that neither now nor ever will we find adequate economic compensation in Morocco. Therefore, it would be folly to squander our gold and the lives of our children any longer."

The cost of transportation on Ben Holliday's famous stage from St. Joseph, Mo., to California in 1861 was $225.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

Campbellford Congregation Hears Toronto Preacher on Sunday.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4.—The Sacrament of The Lord's Supper was observed at the morning service in St. Andrew's yesterday, the preacher for the day being Rev. D. I. Ellison of Toronto. There was a large turnout of members. In a brief prologue to his evening discourse, Mr. Ellison expressed the pleasure that had derived from his first visit to Eastern Ontario and thanked the people for the kindly reception which they had given him. He advised them not to worry over the crisis through which the Church is passing, assuring them that everything was progressing favorably and that all would yet be well.

E. C. Dolman presided at the organ at both services; Mr. Pearson, the regular organist having gone to Montreal to meet his wife who is coming from England. In the evening the choir sang as an anthem, "Sun of My Soul," Mrs. Thomas H. Chaplin taking the solo parts.

Miss Emma Meiklejohn, who is pursuing her musical studies in Toronto, spent the week-end at her home here and was in her accustomed place in the choir. At the evening service she rendered as a solo the familiar hymn, "I heard the Voice of Jesus Say." In a manner which drew from the preacher the comment, that he hoped that the lesson taught in the sacred song that had been so beautifully sung, would not be lost upon the congregation.

The call which the congregation have extended to Rev. James Grier of Montreal was signed unanimously yesterday by the members and adherents who attended the services.

Rev. Arthur J. Sinclair of Chesterville, near Ottawa, will be the preacher at St. Andrew's next Sunday.

Must Be Greater Cohesion on Progressive Policy or He Will Resign.

CAUCUS TUESDAY.

OTTAWA, May 4 (Canadian Press).—Important developments in the organization and policy of the Progressive party in the House of Commons are the probable outcome of the Progressive caucus which has been called for Tuesday next. It is reported that Robert Forke, the Progressive leader, intends to submit to the caucus what practically amounts to an ultimatum—an ultimatum that there must be greater cohesion as to the Progressive policy or he will resign the leadership and make public his reasons for so doing. He intimated, however, that he might have an important announcement to make

OBJECTIONS MAY CAUSE CHANGES

Churchill May Drop Silk Tax But Will Keep Great Pension Scheme.

LONDON, May 4 (Canadian Press)—Agitation against some features of Winston Churchills budget continues in many quarters and appears so strong that the Conservative Government probably will make considerable changes.

Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, may drop the plan for a taxation of silk and artificial silk, but will hold on to the great pensions scheme, despite the heavy fire to which it is subjected.

ANNUAL SUCKER HUNT AT WESTWOOD

Three Hundred People Present and Hundreds of Fish Taken.

WESTWOOD, May 4—The annual sucker hunt at Welbeck farm, the home of William Breckenridge, was held on Friday morning. Although the weather was not pleasant for the onlookers, it seemed to lend enthusiasm to those who were wading and plunging in the river with their sucker nets and forks. Over three hundred people were present, and a large number of suckers was taken away, some taking as many as seven sacks.

Carloads of men, eager for the hunt, came from Peterboro, Hastings, Warsaw, Indian River, Norwood, Trent River, Douro and Cottesloe.

Hugh Kelly, of Cottesloe, found in one of the bags of suckers which he secured, a fine speckled trout, which measured about twelve inches in length.

A few of the prominent sucker hunters of twenty-five years ago who were missed by the older persons present were the late Messrs. Squire, Breckenridge, Richard Girven, John Lang, John Fitzpatrick, Thomas Blizzard, Samuel Scott, Richard Barrens, John Baskin and Michael Walsh.

Mrs. George Renwick was in Peterboro on Tuesday.

Mrs. Herbert Wessels was in the village on Thursday, visiting her uncle, Richard Faux, and other friends.

James White and son Fred passed through the village on Friday. Fred is home for the summer vacation, having attended Queen's University, Kingston, during the past term, completing his third year.

OBITUARY.

ROBERT HANBIDGE

The death occurred on Sunday morning, May 3rd, of Robert Hanbidge at his late residence, Otonabee. The funeral will take place Tuesday, May 5th, at 2.30 p.m. Interment in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. JOHN INGRAM

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4—Rose Ann Meagher, wife of John Ingram, a well know farmer on the Seventh Concession of East Seymour, died at her home on Saturday morning, aged 57 years. One week ago she was stricken with paralysis while working alone in the house and never recovered the power of speech.

The late Mrs. Ingram was born near Springbrook in Rawdon Township and 38 years ago was married to Mr. Ingram. Their first home was the farm on which she died but they sold this property about 20 years ago to William Diamond of Campbellford and removed to another farm near Warkworth where they resided for five years. They were, however, unable to accustom themselves to their new surroundings and finally bought back their old home. The place is known as one of the finest and best cared for farm properties in the township.

Besides her husband, the late Mrs. Ingram is survived by a family of seven children, six sons and a daughter. The latter is Mrs. John Donohue who resides at Sine. The sons are Elmo of the Wilson Settlement, James of Codrington, William at home, Harry of the Union Bank staff, Campbellford, Robert, employed by the Campbellford Cloth Company, and Fred who is attending school in town. Another daughter died some time ago at the age of seven years.

Other relatives are Mrs. William Milton of Toronto, Miss Julia Meagher of Rawdon, Mrs. Fred Gibson of Toronto, Mrs. Joseph Paiquett Miss Ella Meagher of that city, all of whom are sisters of the deceased, and James Meagher, a brother, whose home is in Rawdon. A number of relatives from a distance were with the deceased when she passed away.

The funeral was held at 10 o'clock Monday morning to St. Mary's Church and Cemetery.

PARK CONCERTS.

The concert by the band of the Peterboro Rangers in Victoria Park yesterday afternoon demonstrated the fact—although it did not need to be demonstrated—that a large number of citizens find much enjoyment in concerts of that nature.

It suggests, too, that the City Council should endeavour, so far as the funds at its disposal are available, to provide the people with what they want.

The Examiner is firmly convinced that were it possible to arrange for two concerts every week during the summer—in different sections of the city, if it could be so arranged—the plan would meet with popular approval.

Not much of the revenue collected from the taxpayers is expended upon entertainment, perhaps not enough.

Music in the parks is one form of entertainment that has a popular appeal, for it means an outing for every member of the family; young and old enjoy the programme, and there is nothing that can be provided by the city in the way of amusement that is appreciated by more people than the summer concerts.

Bands cannot be kept up without funds, and under present-day conditions it is impossible for such organizations to be self-sustaining.

In other words, if the city fathers appreciate the fact that a large percentage of the people whose representatives they are want music in the city parks, they must also realize that their wishes cannot be fulfilled unless there is a fairly substantial appropriation made to cover the overhead.

HINDERING THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Although the collision in which one of the motor trucks of the Fire Department was badly damaged last week appears to have been one of those accidents for which no one in particular was to blame, the affair calls attention to the fact that every care should be given to seeing that the fire fighters are given a clear right-of-way when answering an alarm.

Many motorists apparently have yet to learn that when the siren heralds the approach of the fire apparatus the duty of the drivers of all other vehicles that may be on the street is to pull into the curb and remain there until the department has passed.

It should be obvious that to require the drivers of the fire trucks to dodge through traffic at thirty miles an hour is to subject the firemen to too great a risk of serious accident or death.

They should be given a clear road, and the law of the land and of common sense both agree on that point.

There are too many drivers who endeavour to race the department to the scene or who fall in behind the first truck and thus impede the passage of other apparatus, while the firemen are often hampered in their duties at fires by reason of the number of cars congregating in the vicinity.

The men of the department take risks enough under the most favourable conditions, and they should be given every chance while en route to a fire or while at work after reaching the scene.

THE FARM HELP PROBLEM.

The usual paradox of unemployed in the cities being fed in bread-lines while the rural districts are unable to get as much help as they could absorb, is being presented in Ontario and has given rise to the suggestion that a training school for young city men, temporarily unemployed, be established where the theory of farming and some elementary experience could be learned.

The scheme might have good results—but many people are sceptical.

Farm labour obtained from those who have been brought up and have always lived in the large centres is as a rule never satisfactory and rarely permanent.

Such men seldom remain long on the farm; the first opportunity that offers itself for city employment is eagerly taken.

Even with the suggested training it is doubtful if the situation would be greatly changed—the farmers would still find themselves short of help.

The real solution of the problem, as it appears to the Examiner, is to be found elsewhere—but how to make it effective is another question.

In every large city there are thousands of farm-trained men who are the very class the rural districts are searching for, enough of them to meet all demands from the country for help.

Many of these men are occupying industrial positions, while other men who could do the work on which they are employed but who would be useless on the farm are walking the streets.

The obvious solution would be to send the farm-trained industrial workers back to the land and replace them with the urban unemployed.

Simple enough, isn't it?

It would be save for one drawback; nobody can think of any plan to get the men who know the farming game out of the factories, off the street cars, from the seats of delivery wagons, etc., back to the farm.

The individual who could solve that problem would have a statute of himself erected at every rural crossroad.

Alas, he may never turn up!

DECREES AGAINST FEMALE FASHIONS.

The new and increasing predilection of the feminine sex for short hair is apparently receiving the attention of august ecclesiastical personages, says the Ottawa Journal. Not long ago the Archbishop of Guadalijara, one of the largest cities of Mexico, issued a pastoral in which he denounced the practice of bobbing and shingling as subversive of good morals, and threatened to refuse communion to such feminine members of his congregation as had wantonly discarded their tresses.

Now word comes that certain clerical authorities in France have begun to question the possibility of the reconciliation of short hair on a feminine head with a true devotional spirit. Both the scriptures and the pronouncements of the early fathers are being sternly banned from pulpits.

On the other side it is pointed out that at one time the Fathers of the Church took an entirely different view of the spiritual effect of coiffures and reserved their strictures for the diminution rather than the addition of hair. In the Middle Ages the Council of Tours threatened with excommunication those who curled their hair by artificial means and even went so far as to call down the penalty of baldness upon "those who enlarged their heads by foreign matter." And immersion in eternal flames was predicted as the certain destiny of rash ladies who practised the unseemly art of dyeing their hair.

It is not recorded, however, that the vigorous crusades of the clergy of several countries against low necks and bare arms met with any marked success and any veto upon the bob and shingle is unlikely to be more effective. The truth is that strangely uniform results have followed from all sumptuary laws and decrees directed against the fashions of the female sex—they have simply invited them to greater extravagance.

TOMFOOL LAWS.

There are often times when Canadians believe that they are more oppressed by freak laws and tomfool legislation than any people in the world.

We have plenty of laws—nobody would venture to deny that assertion—but we have to thank our stars that in the matter of foolish legislation there are States across the line that make us look like novices in this regard.

The resolution of the Pennsylvania Legislature making it illegal to alter the time of public clocks for daylight saving purposes is a sample.

If the people of the cities of Pennsylvania want the benefits of daylight saving—and apparently they do—making it an offence to tamper with public clocks will not stop them.

All they have to do is to leave the clocks as they are and start work an hour earlier than usual.

In fact, that is just what they are doing at the present time, theatres, for example, advertising the commencement of their evening performance at 7.15 o'clock instead of the usual hour.

Still more ridiculous is a bill before the Florida Legislature proposing to forbid the application of the name "flapper" to any girl in the State.

There is no particular reason why any one should want to call a girl a "flapper," but at the same time it is surely going beyond the limit to make the use of the term an offence.

In fact, "flapper" was used in England to designate a girl of the 'teen age long before it was adopted into American slang and given a more offensive meaning.

BRITAIN'S BUDGET.

The Rt. Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill has restored the gold basis to Great Britain. Also, he has restored the McKenna duties on automobiles, and the British preference on other lines; has provided for an estimated surplus in the next year of £36,830,000; has arranged to obtain $300,000,000 credit in the United States; has set by a "dollar reserve" of $166,000,000 for this year's payments in refunding the debt to America's and last, but far from least, has reduced the income tax by sixpence in the pound.

The budget is an important one for Canada. It is important for the county of Essex, because of the McKenna duties on automobiles, and the higher preference rate on Canadian tobacco. Sugar is restored to the preference list, and native wines also benefit. Particularly interesting is the revived schedule on automobiles. The McKenna tariffs, which were abrogated by the Labor Government, provide a preferred rate from the Dominions over other countries, on automobiles, and some other so-called luxuries such as watches, clocks and moving picture films. Canada leads the Dominions in exports of automobiles, and the Border Cities, Oshawa and Toronto are the principal points in this country to be affected.

The preference rate on tobacco is raised from one-sixth to one-quarter. That, coming at a time when Dominion efforts are being made to establish the Canadian tobacco growing industry on a more solid basis, is opportune and encouraging.

From an Empire and world point of view, the return to a gold basis is the important feature, more so because the whole Empire is in line with this policy. Canada was already on a gold basis, South Africa reverts to it on July 1, while Australia and New Zealand will follow suit in the near future. Great Britain has an accumulated gold reserve of £153,000,000, and will now draw on the vast stored up resources of the Bank of England by permitting export of bullion.

The amazing features of the budget are these: Britain reduced her accumulated debt from £7,680,000,000 to £7,646,000,000 during the year. In the same period she reduced the interest on the debt by £70,000,000. The total budget expenditure is increased by £9,400,000 to £799,400,000, yet the existing basis of taxation alone provides a surplus of £26,000,000, while with the new schedules the total surplus will be nearly 37 millions. In the face of all this, Mr. Churchill finds it possible to reduce the income tax by sixpence in the pound. He does so by raising the death duties and distributing taxes over a few other lines that can better afford to pay them than the public could pay the income tax.

All this is real financing. It is a brave way to tackle a big problem. The people of Great Britain asked relief in some measure, and they got it. They have real statesmen over there. The people of Canada also asked for relief, bombarding Ottawa for months before the budget was brought down, but they got little if anything for their pains. Great Britain knows the importance of giving tax relief, but she builds on no hopes of reparations or of Allied debt payments. The budget of Mr. Churchill is too courageous to depend on what may come; that astute Minister depends only on what will come, and the rest will be "velvet," a softer lining in the people's hearts when they hear his next financial statement, a year hence.

Today the British monetary and economic system is the greatest thing of its kind in the world. In years to come, men will also marvel at its resiliency. Confidence of the world in that system is shown in the rise of the pound sterling to within three cents of parity on the day the budget was presented, and in the fact that Britain, already owing two billion pounds to the United States, easily arranges an additional credit of $300,000,000 "if, and, when required." Mr. Churchill does not expect to need it. How many Governments, able to borrow $300,000,000, would say "we don't think we will need it," and let it lie? It is easy to name the other kind.—Border Cities Star.

A THOUGHT.

TAKE CARE OF ME.

Perhaps you dont' think much of me at times, but if you were to wake up some morning and realize you did not have me, you would start that day with an uneasy feeling.

From me you get food, clothing, shelter and such luxuries as you enjoy.

But I am exacting; I am a jealous mistress. Sometimes you appear hardly to appreciate me at all. In fact, you make slighting remarks about me at times and neglect me. Considering the fact that you need me not only for the material things of life, but spiritually, as well, I wonder, sometimes, that you neglect me as you do. What if I should get away from you? Your happiness would flee, for a time at least, and your friends would worry, and your bank account dwindle. So, after

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, May 3.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here on Saturday as follows:
Sterling demand $4.84.
Sterling cables $4.84 3-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 2—New upturns in the price of wheat today failed to hold in the face of heavy selling to realize profits. Reports pointing to adverse crop prospects for domestic winter wheat led to aggressive buying at times, but were more or less offset by opinions that big advances in the last few days had fully discounted the crop situation for at least the time being. Wheat closed irregular at 1-2 cent net lower to an equal advance; May $1.59 to $1.59 1-2, and July $1.49 3-4 to $1.50; with corn 1 1-4 to 2 1-2 cents down; oats unchanged to 1-2 cent higher, and provisions ranging from 7 to 10 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 3.—The demand for coarse grains from foreign buyers here on Saturday was fairly good and cables were stronger on oats at an advance of 1 1-2d. to 3d. per quarter, which resulted in some business being done for May shipment, but the volume was not large as the further advance in prices at Winnipeg checked exporters from accepting orders they had on hand. There was a steady demand for oats in the domestic market, and sales of No. 2 feed grade were made at 1 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f.

A little business was done in car lots with local and country buyers and at the close of the Winnipeg session, prices here were advanced another cent per bushel.

Owing to the continued strength in the Canadian cash wheat situation at Winnipeg, a stronger feeling developed in the local market for spring wheat grades of flour, and millers generally marked up prices 20 cents per barrel, which is the first change that has been made for two weeks. There was no further change in the condition of the winter wheat flour market, but the undertone was firm at the late advance in prices noted owing to the strength in wheat and small offerings of flour from Ontario millers.

Egg Receipts Off.

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 2,867 cases, as against 4,779 cases for the same day last week, and 5,592 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending May 2, 1925, were 16,473, as compared with 22,648 cases for the previous week, and 22,719 cases for the same week last year. The receipts from May 1 to date were 5,015 cases, as against 13,531 cases for the first three days in May last year. The receipts last week showed a decrease of 6,175 cases, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 5,246 cases with the same week last year, and for the month of May to date they are 8,516 cases below a year ago.

Generally speaking the egg situation showed little change during the past week. A careful survey of conditions show a divided opinion in trade circles as to the future. Some dealers believe prices are too high for safety, while others believe values are reasonable and are taking eggs freely for storage purposes. What is noticeable this season, is the absence of agreements among dealers as to buying prices, and each one seems to be acting upon his own initiative. The local market seems to be pretty well established for the present and fluctuations in prices will likely be narrow for the next few weeks. The quality of arrivals were never better and the demand for immediate consumption continues heavy.

Butter Production.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending May 2, 1925, were 4,325 packages which show a decrease of 1,017 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 4,352 packages with the same week last year, while total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 3,051 packages less than a year ago.

The trade in butter during the past week was somewhat of a limited character, the demand being quiet from all sources which indicated that buyers in most cases had sufficient stock on hand to meet their immediate requirements. Stocks on spot of held creamery are not large, but receipts of fresh made goods are steadily increasing and will continue to do so from now on, therefore supplies have been more than ample to satisfy all wants and an easier feeling developed in the market with the result that prices closed lower than a week ago.

More Cheese Offering.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending May 2, 1925, were 23,029 boxes, which show an increase of 15,857 boxes, as compawer with the previous week, and an increase of 17,448 boxes with the same week last year, and the total arrivals for May, 1925 to date have been 12,049 boxes in excess of three days' receipts for May, 1924. Of the above quantity received this week 12,048 boxes were from New Zealand for manufacturing purposes, and it is reported that further lots from the same source are on the way here, and the opinion of some in the trade is that this will tend to curtail the local demand for fresh made Canadian cheese to some extent.

Can the corporation report of a corporation be safely used as a basis for making investments?

* * *

In many cases corporation reports can be taken as pretty good indicators as to the condition of a corporation, but this is very often untrue. Take for example a portion of a report which was distinctly misleading — the report of a certain manufacturing company for 1922.

For the quarter ending March 31st, 1922, this company reported a surplus, after preferred dividends, of $126,000; the second quarter showed a surplus of $438 368; the third quarter showed a surplus of $950,000. This would make the expected surplus for the year amount to $1,250,000. The actual surplus, after preferred dividends, was only $272,744. This is a typical example of a report which failed to report accurately. Persons who bought the stock of this company for investment suffered a rude shock which might have been saved if the corporation report had been more accurate or if the investors had consulted a good banker.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

"If I sell my own car, I'll make enough on the sale to pay down something on the new one for you," Dick said. "I don't suppose I really need that old speedster of mine. It would probably do me good to walk to the office once in a while."

"You do look pale, Dick," Glory said, "and I'm not saying that just because I want you to sell your car. . . . You really don't look well."

But as the days went by Glory thought that Dick had forgotten all about the little blue car.

On the morning of her twenty-first birthday Dick was gone when she opened her eyes, after a night of deep, dreamless sleep.

"Did Mr. Gregory take his car this morning?" she asked Ranghild when she brought up her breakfast tray.

"He did, ma'am," Ranghild answered. "And an hour ago a man drove a new car into our driveway. It's standing there now."

Glory leaped from bed. She ran downstairs in her bare feet and looked out of the sunroom window . . .

There it was, with the sunshine striking its polished sides . . . her little blue Winged Victory! Her very own! Glory thrilled with happiness as she stood looking at it.

While she was dressing the telephone rang.

"This is Miss Briggs speaking," came a cool, low voice over the wire. "Mr. Gregory asked me to tell you that an instructor would be out about twelve to teach you to drive the new automobile."

"Thanks," Glory said shortly. She hung up the receiver with a bang.

What right had Dick to give Miss Briggs a message like that for her?

Why should Miss Briggs have to know that she didn't know how to run an automobile . . . that her family had never owned one?

And why hadn't Dick telephoned himself, to wish her a happy birthday? . . . There had been a time only a few short weeks ago when he had called her up three or four times a day just to hear the sound of her voice.

Oh, well, that was the way marriage changed a man! As soon as he had you he stopped caring for you, evidently. Or, at any rate, he didn't care half so much for you as he had. . . .

* * *

The demonstrator arrived a little before twelve, and drove Glory to Jackson Park. As they bowled along he explained the mechanism of the car to her.

Around and around the park they drove. And at last he let Glory take the wheel for a few minutes.

"To-morrow I'll be out at the same time, and I'll let you drive," the demonstrator told Glory as they drove back to the house. He jotted down some instructions for Glory.

After he had gone Glory stood on the front steps. It was only three o'clock. She hadn't seen her mother for more than a week.

She decided to walk the long mile to her old home.

Mrs. Gordon saw Glory coming up the street, from her arm chair in the bay window. She came out on the porch to welcome her.

"Well, I thought you'd forgotten that you had a mother, dearie," she said, her eyes shining with tears, her lips smiling. With arms linked, they went into the house.

"Well, I've had the busiest time of my life so far," Glory explained. "First of all, I gave a house-warming and then I spent a whole day shopping and I've been picking out a new automobile! . . . And to-day I got it. Dick gave it to me for a birthday present. . . . You forgot that to-day was my birthday, didn't you, motherkin?"

Mrs. Gordon bridled.

"Indeed I did not!" she said. "I called up this morning to ask you and Dick to come here for supper to-night. The maid said you were still asleep. Then I called again a few minutes ago, and she said you were out. . . . But I went right ahead and baked your birthday cake, anyway."

She led Glory out into the little kitchen that was more like a sitting room than anything else.

There was a rocking chair with a red calico cushion in one corner, and the table was set ready for a meal. The family always ate breakfast there.

Glory went into the dark pantry. On the shelf was a brown crock, half filled with baked beans.

"Yum, yum, my favorite food!" Glory smacked her lips greedily.

Mrs. Gordon took a plate out of the cupboard. She put a large helping of beans on it, and a slice of cold roast beef.

"There, dearie, while you're eating that, I'll call up Dick and ask him to come here to supper," Mrs. Gordon said.

In a few minutes she came back into the kitchen.

"All right, he's coming," she told Glory. "Now I'll sit right down here and peel these potatoes, while you finish your snack."

"You don't seem a bit excited about my having an automobile, Mother, Glory complained. "I thought you'd be tickled to death."

"Well, I am," her mother said placidly, "but I'm getting used to seeing you get everything you want. Glory, since you married Dick. After you came home with that new fur coat I was ready for anything. I could see then that Dick was going to spoil you . . . by giving you everything that you wanted, or thought you wanted. You're a lucky woman, Glory. He's a man in a million."

* * *

Glory laughed knowingly.

"He is not!" she said." It's like pulling teeth to make him spend a nickel! . . . But I've just told him that if he wants me to live with him, he's got to come across with the things that other men give their wives!"

"Gloria Gordon! That's a terrible way to talk!" her mother said in a shocked voice. "And you only married a few weeks!"

"What has that to do with it?" Glory asked, folding her napkin. "I'm going to start out the right way. Dick has got to know right from the beginning that he can't make a dishmop of me. Look at yourself, Mother! All your life you've worked your fingers to the bone for Dad, and what have you got out of it? Not a thing that I can see!"

Mrs. Gordon peeled potatoes silently for a few minutes.

"Well, you may not be able to see it, but I have a lot of happiness, Gloria," she said, quietly. "Your Dad and I get along pretty well, together. I care more for him to-day, when he's old and broken-down, than I ever did before in my life, I guess. . . . And we're contented, owning this little house of ours. It's paid for, at last, after thirteen years!"

Glory shook her head. Her mother was beyond her comprehension. She had so little, and yet she was happy. Anyone could see that she was happy . . . with the smile that always lurked in her spectacled blue eyes, and the upward twist of her humorous mouth.

"I'll go out and buy some flowers for your table to-night," Glory said.

"You needn't," Mrs. Gordon answered. "I've nine geraniums in bloom in the front windows. You can go and cut the blossoms from them if you will, for me. . . . And I've bought little red candles to go on the cake."

Glory went into the dining-room to set the table.

The sideboard drawers were filled with snowy linen. Much of it was darned, but the mended placed looked like bits of embroidery done by some expert needlewoman . . . as, indeed, her mother was.

* * *

At six o'clock Glory heard footsteps on the front porch. She ran to open the door for her father.

He held her away from him, and looked at her.

"Well, my fine lady!" he said, proudly. "Your old Dad never thought he'd have a princess like this!"

A lump rose in Glory's throat. He was so little and old . . . her Dad! His whole life had been a disappointment. He had spent years writing a history of the world. And after he had finished it no one would publish it. There were two or three hat boxes up in the attic filled with the manuscript of that life-work that no one would ever see.

. . . And now he was working for a printer on George Street, for a tiny salary.

As they stood there under the gaslight in the hall, Dick rang the front doorbell. Mr. Gordon let him in.

"How do you do, sir?" asked Dick, towering above the old man. "How's business, these days, with you?"

"Fine as silk," answered Glory's father, as he helped Dick off with his coat. That had been his answer always. Life and his business . . . everything about him . . . were always "fine as silk." He would have no one's sympathy, and no one's pity. He was as proud as Lucifer.

Mrs. Gordon bustled in.

"We can sit right down to supper as soon as I make the gravy," she said, when she had kissed Dick. "Glory, you light your birthday candles, please."

Dick followed his wife into the dining-room.

"Did you like your car?" he asked.

"Adored it," Glory answered, throwing her arms around his neck. "But why didn't you call me up to tell me the instructor was coming, instead of letting Miss Briggs know all your business?"

"She knows it all, anyway," Dick replied. "A man's secretary has to know his business. . . . And she's a regular clam, anyway. Never opens her mouth to a soul!"

"Did you have to sell your old car?" Glory asked. "Ranghild said you drove away in it this morning."

"Sure I sold it," Dick answered. "Where did you think I got the money for the payment on your car . . . stole it?"

"Well, I thought you might have used the money for my car instead of buying that old telephone stock," she said.

Dick put a warning finger to his lips. The kitchen door opened and Mrs. Gordon came into the room with a tray of soup-plates.

DO THIS AFTER SEVERE ILLNESS

How to Speedily Gain Strength and Put on Needed Weight.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines in Cod Liver Oil to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

But no body wants to take the ill-smelling, horrible tasting, stomach upsetting oil itself, so nowadays, up to date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after a severe illness and especially after the Grippe or a stubborn cough or cold.

Ask Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, or any other regular druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They cost but little, are sugar coated and as pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 pounds or more in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist will return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 Tablets—60 cents.

The board feels that there are too many 'monuments' on the street, and that it is high time to protect the city as the pumps are regarded as an obstruction on the streets.

YOUNG PEOPLE HAD SUCCESSFUL DANCE

Lakefield House Was Thronged With Merry-makers.

LAKEFIELD, May 4. — The dance given by a group of young people of St. John's church in the Lakefield House on Thursday evening was an unqualified success, both in point of numbers and from the financial standpoint. It also achieved what is rare at a dance where more than one hundred are present, namely a home atmosphere and the onlooker might easily mistake the festive scene for a private party. The young people largely predominated and the music, which was supplied by "The Grove" four-piece orchestra, assisted by G. G. Connell was exceedingly good. The rotunda and dining room were used for dancing and artistic hands had transformed the writing room into a cosy sitting out room where one might also play cards if one chose, which a few did. The Chinese lanterns placed over the lights were effective. The supper, which was generous and dainty, consisted of chicken salad, bread and butter and delicious home made cake and coffee, and was served by the young men. A number of young people were present from Peterborough, and a couple of motor car loads from Young's point. This was the initial effort of the young people and its success has inspired them to repeat it on June 4.

A novel feature of the program was a lucky number dance in which Miss Angela Osborne and C. E. Christmas were winners. There were several tag dances on the program, which was generous in length and the popular "Paul Jones" which has always been a valuable "ice-breaker', provided lots of fun. This was one of the jolliest of the season's dances.

MINNEDOSA LANDS MANY IMMIGRANTS

Several Specially Conducted Parties of British Settlers Are Included.

QUEBEC, Que., May 4 — There was a great deal of bustle in the local immigration building shortly after one o'clock on Friday with the arrival here of the Canadian Pacific liner Minnedosa, on her first trip of the season to Quebec and Montreal from Antwerp, Southampton and Cherbourg.

With the total of 1,114 passengers in her cabin and third class accommodation, the Minnedosa easily tops the list of steamer quotas this week. Her third class also included several specially conducted parties of British intending settlers, the large majority of whom have previous farming experience and who, to judge from their pleasing appearance, will make splendid citizens for the Dominion.

There were 91 third class passengers on the steamer and these were disembarked, inspected by the immigration authorities and placed aboard special C.P.R. trains for their final destinations in Canada within ninety minutes after the steamer docked. This is really fast work and speaks volumes for the smoothness with which immigrants handled by the Department of Immigration authorities and officials of the various transportation companies on their arrival at Quebec.

ED. COVENEY BURIED

Funeral of Campbellford Resident Took Place on Saturday.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4.—The funeral of the Late Edward Coveney was held Saturday morning from the residence of his son, H. C. Coveney at the Queen's Hotel, to St. Mary's church, where mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Phelan. There was a large turnout of friends and relatives to honor the memory of one who was among the oldest, if not the very oldest residents of the Parish, a man who helped build the first church ever erected by the congregation and who for upwards of 70 years had been a devoted member.

Taking as his text the 29th verse of the second chapter of St. Luke, "Lord now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace according to Thy word," Rev. Father Phelan preached an eloquent sermon, in which he admonished his hearers to be faithful to their Creator, to their neighbors and themselves. Another old parishioner, he said, had passed away, one who had lived in the vicinity for years, who was familiar with all the incidents in the history of the parish and who had striven to do his duty to his church and to his neighbors.

The pallbearers were D. J. Lynch, P. J. Corkery, Richard Cook, P. J. Anderson, Richard Mahoney and James O'Briei.

"The Love that Never Dies"

Hindenburg Casts Shadow of War Over All Europe Says M. Bronner

Hindenburg is Caretaker Until Wilhelm or His Sons Come Back.

SQUARE WITH FRANCE

Strong Arm in France Seen as Answer to Mailed Fist.

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Special Correspondent.
(Special Cable to The Examiner)

LONDON, May 4.—General war in war-torn, impoverished Europe!

Germany versus France and Poland.

Russia versus Poland and Rumania.

Hungary versus Rumania and Yugoslavia.

Bulgaria versus Yugoslavia and Greece.

That's the grim shadow that the bulky figure of old General von Hindenburg has suddenly cast across world politics by his election as president of Germany.

For Hindenburg means a victory for the monarchists, reactionaries and militarists of old Germany. Hindenburg means a caretaker in Wilhelmstrasse until the kaiser or one of his sons comes back. Hindenburg means a return of all the monocled officers thirsting for revenge upon France. Hindenburg means repudiation of the Dawes plan under which Germany is pledged to pay reparations for the last war.

President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany.

You can't get responsible English and French statesmen to say this for publication, but it's reflected in their private talk and in the journals they control or influence. And this fear is based upon something more than rattled nerves.

It's easy to learn the spirit that animates the German Junkers. The last time I was in Germany I visited one in the rich Brandenberg plains northeast of Berlin. Said he:

"If you Americans and England kept hands off, we would soon settle accounts with France."

"And what about Poland and its army?" I queried.

"Those vermin!" he snorted in contempt. "One Prussian army corps would beat their whole army. Even the Bolshies came to the doors of Warsaw."

The Germans have been making ready. They have millions of men still young who served in the last war. There are tens of thousands of younger men who have been training. There are small arms and machine guns concealed all over Germany. The huge manufacturing plants could soon be converted into factories for making guns and munitions. All over Europe it is whispered the Germans have marvelous surprises in the way of poison gases and new inventions in airplanes.

The mere candidacy of Hindenburg had a big political effect in France. In the election of last May France swung to the Left. She gave a majority to the parties which wanted peace and which wanted to come to some sort of peaceful arrangement with Germany.

They were the parties which realized France would never get from Germany all the money Lloyd George and Clemenceau promised would be hers. Therefore they prepared to tax their own citizens. And the French Senate—stronghold of big business—overthrew the Herriot government. No other government, supported by the Left and proposing similar taxes, will have much chance of lasting.

Chaos is already the result. The French franc is plunging downward. The men who want to treat Germany "rough" are planning to force another election. Hindenburg's election will help them come back into power.

The strong arm in France will be the answer to the strong arm in Germany.

This means:

France will not leave the Ruhr and the Rhine.

France will double her legions there.

France will send her huge air force to strategic positions.

France will make no effort to pay America what she owes.

France will spend all her available funds on increased armaments.

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany

President Doumergue of France

And the nervousness in France will be more than echoed in eastern Europe where all the wars of the past 30 years have started. Poland will be the first to take fright. She is wedged between nations that bitterly hate her. Germany wants back Dantzig and the Polish corridor. She wants back the good grain country that Poland got away from her. And she wants the rich Bessarabian provinces that the powers handed over to Rumania. The moment Germany moved, Russia, by agreement, would probably spring, too.

This would be the signal for a general blaze in the Balkans where the war has left more scars than anywhere else. The first to strike out would probably be the proud Magyars of Hungary. On the north of her are the lands of Slovakia which were given to the republic of Czecholslovakia. To the south are the rich grain fields of Slavonia which were given to Yugoslavia. To the east are the rich lands of Transylvania which were handed to Rumania. Hungary wants them back. She will fight for them as soon as she can. Ever since the armistice there have been patriotic leagues teaching the children not to forget the lands that were stolen from them.

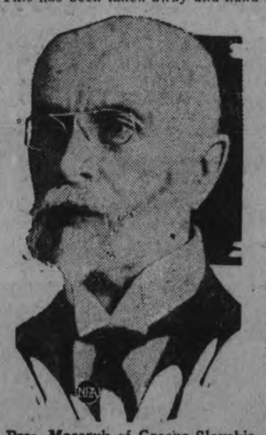
Bulgaria is a prospective ally. She, too, was cut down by the war. To the west she lost to the Serbs. But her greatest loss was to the south. Once upon a time she had territory clear down to te Aegean sea, which gave her the important commercial maritime outlet to Mediterranean. This has been taken away and handed to Greece. So the only Bulgarian ports are on the semi-locked Black Sea.



Pres. Masaryk of Czecho-Slovakia

Nor is external war the only danger that threatens Europe. Bolshevik agents have never ceased to busy themselves in the Balkans. The Communists are strong in Bulgaria. They are so powerful in Yugoslavia that the government won the election by repressive measures. Tens of thousands of Reds in Hungary still dream of restoring the Communist regime to Bela Kun which Admiral Horthy overthrew by aid of Rumania. Surrounded on all sides by wars' conflagration, the artificial little state of Austria would once more be up against starvation. And that would mean Bolshevik excesses.

WHOLE CABINET BEHIND SCHEME FOR INSURANCE

This Proposal in Churchill Budget Likely to be Focus of Attention.

INDUSTRIAL PEACE

Preference to Dominions Expected to Have Good Effect Overseas, Paper Says.

LONDON, May 4. — (Canadian Press Cable.)— Opinion seems to be general that the real domestic battle on the budget will arise over the industrial insurance proposals to which every member of the Baldwin Cabinet is entirely committed. Silk stockings and their fiscal implications probably will come a good second. The return to the gold standard is hardly a matter upon which the ordinary man can venture a technical opinion, but the prospect which the industrial insurance proposals seem to offer in the eventual abolition of the wasteful poor law system and the establishment of a true and lasting peace basis between employers and employed, naturally strikes the imagination of every dweller in the United Kingdom.

Not much more has been elucidated upon the question of preference to the British Dominions, although it is notable that The Spectator in a review of the general principles of free trade, refuses to become excited at comparatively small matters like these. The newspaper merely says that these preferences will do some practical good and that their moral effect in the Dominions will do more good. As to the revival of the McKenna duties the Observer remarks that it is grotesque to call them protectionist or to make any fuss about them. It is like quarrelling over farthings.

May Reduce Silk Tax.

Opponents of the taxes on silk are confident that these will be considerably whittled down. The taxes undoubtedly have raised considerable hostility in the textile districts where even the supporters of the government are uneasy. The Yorkshire Post for example, while admitting that the Parisian gown certainly has increased in price, says that the tax here is a luxury tax.

"Mr. Churchill, the Chancellor of the Exchequer," it declares, "has not seriously affected the garments of the working girl nor has he threatened to place silk stockings out of the reach of those now wearing them. It may be perfectly true to say that artificial silk is no longer a luxury, but even if the tax does fall upon a necessity it falls over such a wide field that it practically will not be felt by the myriads who contribute."

With regard to the rebate on exports which the Treasury suggests may be arranged, the textile traders are not convinced that such a rebate would prove workable. It is alleged that the same duties also will impose fresh handicaps to the worsted clothing and tailoring industries.

HOME SCIENCE PUT BEFORE DEGREES

Head Mistress of English School Favors Domestic Teaching.

LONDON, May 4.— (Associated Press).—Girls who cannot cook, sew, iron and wash clothing are not well educated even though they hold the degrees of all the universities under the sun, in the opinion of Miss. C. J. H. Cowdroy, head mistress of Crouch End High School and College. Some educationalists want girls to be trained like boys with an eye to their future careers, but since ten out of every women could marry and about that proportion of girls did marry, that fact ought surely to be considered when talking of careers, Miss. Cowdroy contended in the course of a recent lecture.

"I deprecate the view some educationalists hold that a woman can posses far higher qualities than those which go to make a wise wife and mother," said the head mistress. "Some think the clever girls too good for that, the dullards being good enough to continue the race. I understanr that in some British schools for girls the pupils are divided into two sections, the clever half studying sciences and the dead lenguages, while the duller girls give their time to cookery and house wifery. I understand the second set refer to the first as the "brainy old maids,' so perhaps they are not so dul after all. A girl should be proud she can cook and sew, iron, and wash and that she can save some money wisely and well. I hold that a girl who cannot do all these things is not well educated, although she may have been awarded the degrees of all the universities in the world."

MANY THINGS TO BE HAD FREE BY PEOPLE OF PETERBOROUGH

Mercantile Service and Advertising Furnish the Lesser Commodities.

ART AND EDUCATION.

Spring and Blossoming of 4.4 Revive Hopes For Free Lunches.

Probably few people know the number of free things there are in Peterboro, some thrust upon the citizens, and some sought by the wise, the needy, or the adventurous. Some are given under the modern business slogan "service," some are presented as appetizers that will induce the purchase of more of their kind, and some are supplied through the beneficence of individuals or societies.

In the first category are the free air stations that have come to be looked upon as the usual adjunct of motor garages, and are to be found at every second corner in the business section of the city. In the second class are the tiny samples of foods distributed from door to door or handed over the counters of stores with other purchases. Parks, such as those given by the late Charlotte Nicholls, comprise the third class of free service.

The free air stations, that raised a crop of infantile jests a few years ago, are only the more obvious of the free-given efforts of merchants to garner trade by "service." They are being followed by "free water," and "free oil service" in this particular line, and even cyclists are served by air pumps and bicycle racks. Free parking space has been provided in larger cities by firms catering to a certain class of trade, and a similar move may be made in Peterboro if the present furore about parking continues.

Free Lunch Gone.

Only a few years ago a free lunch was every man's prerogative, but that has gone the way of the marble counter on which it rested. Yet this is the season when young, hopeful shoots of green emerge in a weary world, and some have been heard to say that one of the lustiest young plants expected to appear about May 20, will blossom forth with the sandwich that became historic as the concomitant of strong waters.

Once in a long while the Peterboro woman shopper can boast a free lunch—if she is lucky enough to enter the store where some demonstrator is telling and showing the virtues of a brand of tea, cocoa, or coffee. The woman who is a connoisseur of these free tidbits would need a calendar and a map of the city to make it worth her while.

Fair time is the sampler's gala week, when everything from free guesses to free bags in which to carry away free samples are forced upon visitors to the Peterboro Industrial. Here is a new kind of candy and attendants cannot keep up with the demand for their product.

Over in another corner are tins of a beverage preparation that go even faster. And not far away the possibly baleful effects of sweet and beverage alike are counteracted by free pills that are not so much in demand.

Other Kinds.

Some have free gifts thrust upon them and some must use initiative. The house-to-house brush salesman presents a sample brush with his card; but she who would stock the family with free toothpaste must make an organized assault upon the drug stores.

Last year a woman sat on one of the city dams, knitting. Now and then she glanced at the water without missing a stitch. From her side ran a fishing line. All afternoon she knitted, pausing only once or twice to pull in a fish—and she had remarkable luck. At dusk, she walked off with a handbag full of yarn and dinner—the latter free.

Since Peterborough has such practical adventurers, who can say that it is the automobiles which decimated the squirrels in Central and Victoria Parks? And there are always the Market Square pigeons.

Having eaten himself—or herself—ill on samples of crackers, patent soups, tea, cocoa, coffee, chocolate, chewing gum, jelly and what-not, and made himself well on free pills and potions, the modern citizen of Peterborough can walk down to Charlotte Street and get himself a job through the Employment Bureau—conducted free.

If, then, he has learned his lesson and sets about shunning free things and becoming a new man, again the city's store of gratuitous service is his. In place of samples of soup and soap he can have, for the taking, samples of education and a wealth of art and music. These are the things given lavishly, the things of the mind and spirit. Under the general esthetic head there are slight contributions—the magnified radio emanating from George Street or Charlotte Street stores—the free use of magazines and newspapers in tea rooms—the free playing over of records in music stores—free news, hot off the wires, on The Examiner bulletin board—and free seats in the parks where nature study may be indulged.

But there are big things, too. Does the beneficiary know nothing of how to take them? Then, if he does not go straight to the things themselves, he may learn without cost, not merely from books lent or nothing, but from a hundred lecturers in the season. He may attend free lectures in the Library Hall, the Collegiate Institute Hall, and a dozen other places, on everything from education in the abstract to the problems of the League of Nations. He may watch his opportunities and learn from others something of the etchings of Meryon, if those interest him; or of the geological formation of the Cordilleras or the defensive mechanism of Echinocereus polyacanthus. In the museum he may browse among ancient weapons and curiosities. Band concerts in the park are an institution honored by time, and the crowds that throng the vicinity of Victoria Park show that this form of free entertainment is appreciated.

Peterborough offers less free bread than Rome, but more of other things that to some people—and among them many who could not pay—are more than bread.

INTERVIEW WITH CHAMPION COW

P. A. A. A. Record Holder Gives Views on Important Public Questions.

VERY CHARMING.

The world champion two-year-old cow is "Pretty Pansy," of Otonabee, with an official P.A.A.A. record of a year's milk production of nine tons.

Interviewed in her luxurious stall by an Examiner representative, Mr. Reginald Xavier McSwift, who is, as you've probably surmised, none other than one of the McSwift boys, Miss Pansy had much to say, being, as it developed, of American ancestry.

Miss Pansy admitted to Mr. McSwift that the subject of milk production was not an altogether easy one to discuss, considering Mr. McSwift's admitted unfamiliarity with the proposition.

It was obvious from Mr. McSwift's make-up, which included fawn-colored spats and gloves to match, that he was something, but Miss Pansy, accustomed to meeting sundry curiosities, knew at a glance that whoever he was, he was not a member of the cow family. At least not a member of any of the known and duly catalogued cow families with which Miss Pansy was on speaking terms.

But Miss Pansy, possessing all the charms of graciousness that accompany genuine talent, accepted the situation as it existed, and replied to Mr. McSwift's interrogations to the best of her rural and pastural ability.

She admitted declining an offer of $3,000 a week to go into vaudeville. "There are enough cows on the stage already," commented the champion, as she nudged a gad fly off her left ear.

Looks Backward.

Miss Pansy was not so sure that Ford's experiment with commercial aviation would get anywhere. She reminded her interviewer that nothing practical was gained by a somewhat similar experiment ages ago, when her ancestor of legendary note jumped over the moon.

The champion attributes her present exalted position to clean living and rigorous training. Miss Pansy has never smoked a cigarette in her life. "I get all the hay I want with my meals as it is," she explains.

Politics proved to be a sore spot with the champion, who disavowed all the leading parties. Her evident hostility to the King administration at Ottawa and the Ferguson regime at Toronto remained a mystery to Mr. McSwift until he learned that the economy programmes of both leaders include the exclusive use for table purposes of condensed milk.

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN.

In the morning the sermon subject was "God's Gospel in the Green Leaf," and dealt with the meaning of the unfolding foliage of spring. Life, health, purity, comfort and safety come to us from the green leaf. It is a libel on the Creator to say that Nature is red in tooth and claw and forget that she is green in blessings untold. Far truer are we to God when we think with Sidney Laurier of our Master going into the woods, "and the little grey leaves were kind to Him, etc." The little green leaves whisper to all of us of the kindliness of God.

The evening sermon was on the sin that is eternal. It was a message of comfort to troubled hearts and of warning to those who carelessly lose their capacity for appreciating God and the things of God in the same manner in which Darwin lost his taste for poetry, music and art. Unconcern, rather than concern, is an indication of danger. To-day if you hear His voice harden not your hearts.

ST. ANDREW'S PRESBYTERIAN.

"Repent" was the text chosen for last night by the Rev. Professor Richard Davidson, PhD., of Knox College, Toronto, at the anniversary services of St. Andrew's Church. He said this was an old subject as God had raised up men to preach it from the days of Noah. But the message was still needed.

Repentance, as seen in a child who has done something wrong, is one of the most simple acts between God and man. Faith and repentance are essential to right living. Jesus preached repentance in His first sermon and in His last.

Faith and repentance have been at the bottom of every great religious movement. The speaker quoted the Shorter Catechism of the Presbyterian Church, which grew out of one of these movements and which says: Repentance springs out of a new sense of sin and a new vision of the mercy of God through Christ. After quoting this passage Professor Davidson took it for his text instead of the single word.

There are different standards to live up to. There is the standard of the law of the land which forbids many things and guarantees a man's property, life and liberty. Then there is the standard of the approval of decent people. This is a higher standard. There is a higher standard than this in that set by a good living man.

There are many people who say that there is no sense of sin in these days. This said the speaker, is because people have not come face to face with Christ. When people see Him they see what they ought to be, and never want for a sense of sin. When Peter denied his Lord he was in a crowd, and when he met the Master after his sin smote him. He saw what he was like and what the Master was like.

When the man with the palsy was lowered through the roof Jesus understood that his condition was the result of his sin, and saw what was in the man's heart. Instead of telling him to take up his bed and walk, He told him his sins were forgiven and the man was healed.

There can be no repentance without a changed life, said Professor Davidson. The repentance preached by John the Bantist was a practical repentance as he told the people what they should do to show their change of heart. Repentance is not a mere feeling but must be accompanied by works.

Appropriate music was rendered by the choir, including one anthem which was unaccompanied.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Yesterday was "Adoration Sunday" at St. Peter's Cathedral, and the congregations at the various Masses were exhorted to receive frequent communion during the month of May, just commencing.

Taking his text from Luke 1:28, Rev. P. Costello based yesterday morning's sermon on the text: "Hail, full of grace. The Lord is with thee. Blessed art thou amongst women."

Particularly appropriate to Mary's month of May is a consideration of the attributes of the Mother of God.

An unquestioned faith in the Divine maternity of Mary, as the Mother of the Saviour, was held in the early church, until about four hundred years after the birth of Christ, when, in 421, the Council of Ephesus was compelled to condemn a heresy which had sprung up, denying the divinity of Christ and Mary's position as His mother. In 451 and in 552, other councils repeated their condemnation of like heresies.

The Angel Gabriel addressed Mary as "Hail, full of grace," and Mary answered: "Behold the handmaid of the Lord, be it done unto me according to thy word." In like manner, Elizabeth said: "Blessed art thou amongst women," and Mary, in the sublime words of the Magnificat, said: "My soul doth magnify the Lord."

In the Apostles' Creed is reiterated also the doctrine of the Divinity of Christ and the Divine maternity of Mary, His mother. The Catholic Church sets aside the month of May as one of special honor to the Blessed Virgin Mary. When God chose her as the mother of His son, she must have been one of the holiest of creatures. She towers above all other saints in heaven. Satan never for a moment held sway over her soul, and, although the church does not offer her the worship which is the attribute of God alone, it honors her above all other living creatures and seeks for her intercession at the throne of her Divine Son.

"Our constant help in life and our refuge at the last moments, we ask her constantly to 'pray for us sinners, now and at the hour of our death.'"

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST.

Rev. C. W. Rose, D.D., selected as a basis for his discussion, I Cor. 14-12: Even so ye and for as much as ye are zealous of spiritual gifts seek that ye may excel to the edifying of the church.

Dr. Rose said that Paul was a character of great spiritual powers. His spirit however was not in himself alone but manifested in the work he did in building the church.

To "ediy," Dr. Rose said, was to build and in order to build there must be union, there must be a brotherhood moved by a single-minded purpose, fearing and loving God and loving one another. Love, he said, was the most wonderful thing in the world and gifts presented without that spirit behind them were worthless.

Dr. Rose said, "I would like to walk along the street and see on the churche tablets bearing the inscription, 'Christian Church,' and possibly having underneath the particular kind of Christian Church. Then it would be indicated that Christianity was indeed a religion of a brotherhood."

The form of church worship is the expression of a people's faith. When the minister prays from the pulpit he is the mouthpiece of the congregation interceding for mercy and blessing. When he reads the Bible he is reading God's Word to the people. In these days few read the Bible in the home but if they were to attend church regularly and listen to the readings they would soon have a knowledge of Bible truths.

The offering is also an important feature in worship and is an indication of love prompting generosity. Accordingly unless the gift is presented freely it is valueless. The Lord, D Rose said, is not pressed for money and the benefit is to the people, not to the Lord.

The congregation singing together aids in unifying the spirit. Song is always a medium to purity of thought and should be joined in willingly as it helps to lift one from mundane things to a higher consciousness.

Working together, however, does more to unite people than all else. One person with an unloving spirit can thwart the intentions of a whole congregation.

By united effort alone can the Lord's work be done. God has a purpose in his work—a purpose which will run throug the ages. We are equipped with faculties to aid in this work and we must labor unremittingly, said Dr. Rose.

The singing of the choir was a feature worthy of mention and under the direction of Dr. Graham this was very effective.

The Lord's Supper concluded the services for the evening.

MARK STREET BAPTIST.

"He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna and will give him a white stone and in the stone a new name written which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it."—Rev. 2-17.

The above was the subject which the Rev. R. Bamforth, B.A., chose for his discourse at the morning service. The message, he said, was written in a period of great religious unrest when the churches were suffering daily martyrdom and naturally those of the greatest courage would survive the affliction.

Mr. Bamforth said, "One cannot know the joys of triumph and victory until he has experienced adversity and opposition. 'Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.'"

All life is a swiftly moving stream of reality. At first we are shielded and protected as we embark upon it but as time goes on we must learn to depend upon our own efforts. Accordingly the earlier years should be spent in preparation. Indulgence of personal desire is not the kind of preparation which will strengthen one for the battle of life.

"Life," Mr. Bamforth said, "reveals the ups and down of the current. Some will struggle and fight and will succeed in forcing a way upward while others will passively choose the course of least resistance and float down to ultimate destruction. It would be money in a man's pocket to be born poor for there is then some impetus to drive one to success.

"The nations of a northern climate seldom experience famine," declared Mr. Bamforth, "because they are aware of the exigencies of the situation and are prepared to cope with cold and know that beforehand preparation must be made. To be passive spells failure. The greatest evil of the eastern nations is inertia."

Canada was cleared by a magnificent will power and England now speaks of our country as the fairest gem in the crown.

Mr. Bamforth disagreed with those who stated that religion was one thing and business another. Business and religion, he said, were one and the same. Each was incorporated in the other.

A thought was left with the congregation when the minister said, "Take the student and the loafer—which has true freedom?"

At the conclusion of the regular service Communion was dispensed.

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

"For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Christ Jesus."

These words, found in the First Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians, third chapter, verse eleven, were taken as the text of the discourse of Rev. J. Grier, of Montreal, the preacher at both services in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church yesterday, with large congregations of eager listeners.

Rev. Mr. Grier, at the outset, mentioned he had taken the liberty to change the subject for one which was most topical in Church life at the present time. Paul had heard the people of his day, when referring to the source of their conversion or belief, say they were of Paul, or Apollos, or some other apostle, and holding that their respective teachers were nearest to the religion of every true follower then. This led Paul to pen the letter to the people Ephesus, wherein he asked, "Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man?"

The fact that these men were teaching the gospel of his own day was no reason why they should hold the upper place in the minds of the listeners. Rather did Paul give the honor to God, who is the sure foundation of all faith in good works. This was unity—all things on one foundation. Our Church building organizations and activities on Christ Jesus, not on creeds and doctrines which were devoid of the fundamentals of religion. These apostles were transient—they would pass away; others would spring up as the years rolled by and preach the same doctrine of spiritual life in Christ Jesus. But the One who would continue for ever was God Himself; on Him alone must we build our tabernacle, the foundation of which would never crumble or decay.

The speaker remarked on the Gospel which had come down from these apostolic days, which Gospel could never be changed. Our fathers had taken it to heart, and passed it on through these generations until we now embraced that same faith. They had necant it to remain as they had received it, and why should we wish to cast it aside for other beliefs, which would not supply the spiritual nourishment we so much required. New creeds were being forced on us, which lacked the binding qualities of our Westminster Confession of Faith: but for his part, said Mr. Greer, he would stand for the old law intact, along with the Shorter Catechism and reading of the Bible by everyone, old and young.

Mr. Grier drew a picture of the four walls of the Church, the external appearance as most people viewed the Church these days. One wall, he said, was buttressed by the faithful followers, who held strong views on the definitions and theories of their doctrine, who believed that what had been handed down from our ancestors should be honored and carried out as being what we also needed to keep us in the path of righteousness.

The second wall was likened to the arguments of those who would lead us along devious ways, and who are looked upon as rulers, though often their views are far from those of the apostolic times. This wall could be termed the hierarchy.

The third wall was founded upon the Sacraments; and these had caused some thoughts to crop up, that they were no more sacred parts of our church worship, and were not recognized as reverently as they once were. Referring to baptism, Mr. Grier said this was one of the most beautiful ceremonies of our Church, and pointed out the great responsibility and duty of a young couple, for instance, bringing their first-born to have the words of this holy institution bestowed upon them and it. This, with the Lord's Supper, were our most sacred possessions, without which our Church would be poor indeed.

The fourth wall was the people who had the study of the sacred Book nearest their hearts who thought the Bible infallible, and put their whole faith in its words. This, the preacher said, was a worthy part of our present-day life which should be encouraged more than ever; there should be a deeper study of the Word, especially in the home and the school. As Burns had so well written, referring to the worship at the close of the day's toil, when the husband, calling his family around the table, asked his wife to "hand him the Bible," slowly reading a passage of Scripture before retiring.

These walls, said Mr. Grier, were all necessary in the building up of our faith and Church; but without the foundation of Christ Jesus, we cannot long hope to maintain our faith. Paul knew this, and as he had written to the Ephesians of that day, so was this applicable to our day and generation. Let us have this foundation on the rock of our salvation.

BENGALIS CONDEMN RULERS AND REBELS

Methods of Government and of Nationalists in India Are Extreme.

CALCUTTA, India, May 4. — (Canadian Press.) — The Bengal Provincial Congress at Euridspur to-day unanimously adopted resolutions condemning both revolutionary methods by the natives in India and also repressive measures of the British authorities, under the so-called Benegal ordiances. These resolutions were adoptel after Mohandas Ghandi, leader of the Indian Nationalists, announced that C. R. Das, Swarajist or home rule leader, who offered conciliatory resolutions had adjusted all differences with the faction of the provincial congress which opposed conciliation. The Benegal ordinance was proclaimed October 25, 1924, by the Earl of Reading, Vice-Roy of India to supplement the ordinary criminal laws in Bengal in order to give the authorities power to suppress crimes which it was declared, were part of a deep seated and dangerous anarchial movement.

MODEL BOAT MADE ITS INITIAL RUN

Rona M. Made Good Showing, But Needs Slight Improvements.

The initial run of the Rona M, the tiny model steam speed boat, which took place near Rye's landing on Saturday afternoon, while not the unqualified success expected by the inventor, still gave considerable promise of latent ability.

The weather conditions were most unfavorable, as there was a strong wind blowing, which cut the water surface into choppy waves. Even considering this, the tiny craft made good headway upstream on the first trial.

One of the pipes leading to the boiler developed a leak, which allowed the water to escape, and resulted in the stalling of the motor; added to this was the fact that the wind made the heating inconsistent, as it blew the torch flame about.

Mr. McLarnon is certain that after suitable re-adjustments, his boat will travel according to specifications. There were a number of interested spectators who, if they were slightly disappointed, should remember that few new things are perfect; only after trial can faults be discovered and remedied.

BAND CONCERT GOOD DESPITE NASTY DAY

Band Made a Good Showing, Showing Hard Practice and Good Training.

The Band of the Peterborough Rangers presented a very interesting programme on Sunday at 3.30 p.m. to an appreciative audience.

The Aldermen of the city were personally invited to be present that they might be reminded of the fact that Peterborough still has a splendid musical organization under the name of the Rangers.

The concert Sunday was slightly curtailed owing to the uncertainties of the weather but the former part of it was as announced. Selections played were: God Save the King; March, Panama Guard (Cresswell); Overture, Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna (Suppe); Selection, Cloches de Corneville (Planquette); Mazurka, Amoroso (Navarro); Revere Selection, Joyland (Darewski); Concert Waltz, Luna, Fincke.

The band has been practicing assiduously throughout the winter and of late the rehearsals have assumed a more strenuous nature, there having been three last week and an equal number the week before. It might be pointed out that a number of those playing in the Rangers Band are also incorporated in the Symphony Orchestra.

In some respects there are notable improvements as the reed section has been added to as well as the cornet section.

The weather was rather inclement for the first concert but there was every indication of future profitable enjoyment to be obtained at Victoria Park.

CONFERENCE OPENS ON ARMS TRAFFIC

Cannot Be Considered Merely Commercial Affair, Says Belgian.

GENEVA, May 4. — (Canadian Press).—Traffic in arms cannot be considered merely a commercial matter and escape international regulation, declared Count Henri Carton di Wiert, former Belgian Premier, in formally opening, this afternoon, the international conference for the control of the traffic in arms called by the League of Nations. Referring to the presence of the United States delegation, Count Carton di Wiert said its official participation had a new and precious significance for "America, being an important manufacturing country," he added, "her signature and ratification are indispensable for the success of our task."

He also welcomed the presence of Germany and the Argentine, saying the presence of the latter, if merely as an observer, was a happy omen.

DIRECTOR IS NOT A BANK MANAGER

N. W. Rowell, K.C., Claims He Is Not Required to Investigate Details.

TORONTO, May 4. — (Canadian Press).—A bank director is entitled to accept as true the statements furnished him by the bank's general manager, and has no duty imposed on him to inform himself on the affairs of the bank beyond transactions at the board meetings except in the case of a request being made for special information, it was argued this morning by N. W. Rowell, K.C., in seeking of the First Divisional Court a reversal of the conviction by Judge Coatsworth of J. F. M. Stewart, director of the Home Bank, for negligence in concurring in a false report. There was no duty on the director, Mr. Rowell claimed, to manage or investigate the details of the bank's business, but only to exercise general control. It was not what was true that was important, he argued, but what he believed to be true, in determining the director's liability. In the Stewart case, said Mr. Rowell, the Judge had imputed knowledge from the fact that Stewart was a director.

Y. W. PAGEANT SECOND NIGHT

Crowded House Showed Full Appreciation of Splendid Exhibition.

HONOR INSTRUCTRESS.

The second performance of the big Gymnasium Pageant of the Young Women's Christian Association was given at the Grand Opera House on Saturday night, before a crowded house, that applauded every number with enthusiasm. The manner in which Miss Littlefield produces these pageants, the military precision, and swiftness which characterizes the presentation of the various different drills and dances, is admirable, and was very apparent on the second evening. All the numbers were heartily encored, the beautiful Dance of Victory, the French Flame Dance, getting a great deal of applause.

A large number of floral tributes were received by Miss Littlefield on Saturday night. These were presented by members of Senior and Intermediate dancing classes, the advanced class and the senior school girls. Members of the different classes also presented the pianistes, the Misses Gwen Donley and Madeline Willis, with bouquets. Tiny tots who made a pretty picture, carrying up the beautiful bouquets of roses and carnations were Audrey Roberts, Margaret Cotton, Maudie Heron, Margaret Jackson and Kathleen Lawrence.

After the performance a flashlight picture of the entire group was taken on the stage by C. D. Mathias.

PETER ROBINSON CHAPTER MEETING

I. O. D. E. To Co-operate in Tag Day For Blind Next Saturday.

A meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. was held on Saturday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association, with a good attendance. The Regent, Mrs. F. Hooper, was in the chair.

Arrangements for tag day on May 9th, in aid of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, in which the three city chapters of the I.O.D.E. will co-operate, were discussed. A committee from the Peter Robinson Chapter is composed of Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. F. C. Webber and Miss Geraldine Glover.

The Chapter decided to take charge of the dance at the Made-in-Peterboro Fair in June. Miss Gladys Patterson will act as convenor, assisted by Mrs. N. Birks, Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. J. McNabb, Mrs. F. C. Webber and Mrs. J. K. Hughes.

An interesting report of the recent conference in Hamilton was given by the Regent, Mrs. Hooper. A strong recommendation made at this meeting for support of the War Memorial Fund caused the Chapter to vote the sum of $50 towards the project.

Mrs. Hooper and Mrs. J. McNabb were appointed delegates to the National Conference of the I.O.D.E. which will be held in Ottawa in June.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, afternoon tea was served. Mrs. J. McNabb was in charge, assisted by the Misses Rose Mulholland and Geraldine Glover. Mrs. F. C. Webber poured tea at a table prettily decorated with sweet peas.

TRAINING YOUR DOG

This is the eighth of a series of articles telling how to train dogs to do tricks.

To teach a dog the front foot balance sit on the floor.

At the start of this trick we have the dog sitting up on your right hand. Extend your left hand so that he can place his front feet on your left hand.

Then slowly raise your left hand, tiping the dog up so that his hind quarters are above his head, until you place him in the position of standing on his front feet on your left hand.

Noy you will have to teach him to throw out his chest and hold his head correctly to maintain his balance. With your left knee gently push his nose upward which will move his head into a graceful position.

After you have taught the dog to do this trick with ease and confidence practice it while you are standing up. Beware of tiring the dog, and by all means do not let him fall.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

LOSE WEIGHT.

One large orange, 1 cup clam broth 7 ounces broiled weakfish, 1 baked stuffed green pepper, 1 cup cabbage salad, 2 gluten puffs, ½ cup prepared bran, 2 thin slices gluten bread, 4 tablespoons pigeapple water-ice, 2 lady fingers or small piece sponge cake, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Gluten Puffs.

One cup gluten flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup cold water.

Add water slowly to flour, beating with a dover beater. Add salt and continue beating vigorously for ten minutes. Turn into sizzling hot buttered iron gem pans and bake half-an-hour in a hot oven. The more you beat, the better the "puffs" will be. And they really are very good even if they don't sound reasonable.

The recipe will make 12 small puffs.

The peppers are stuffed with mushrooms, a little cooked macaroni and about 1 tablespoon canned tomato with a sprinkling of grated cheese over the top.

GAIN WEIGHT.

One large orange, 1 cup cooked wheat cereal, 3 ounces ham omelet, 1 cup clam broth, 1 large swiss cheese and rye bread sandwich, 6 ripe olives, 7 ounces broiled weakfish with 2 tablespoons lemon butter, 4 tablespoons baked squash, 4 tablespoons mashed potato, 1 baked stuffed green pepper, 1 cup cabbage salad with cream dressing, 4 tablespoons pineapple water ice with large piece sponge cake, 1-6 raisin pie, 2 cornmeal muffins, 3 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons maple syrup, 2 tablespoons croutons, 2 Parker House rolls, 1 pint whole milk, ½ cup cream.

The raisin pie adds iron as well as sugar to the diet.

During the maple syrup season the person who would gain may enjoy the fresh syrup to the utmost.

The squash should be well seasoned with butter.

The foods for the gaining diet are planned to be simply cooked in order to preserve the mineral salts as much as possible and provide easily digested nourishment.

As squash is rich in carbohydrate, the reducing member should not indulge.

PLANNING DINNERS

If you are having guests for dinner and have no maid to assist you be sure to plan your dinner so there will be no dessert to make when dinner time comes.

BABY'S STOCKINGS

Baby's stockings should be washed carefully in lukewarm water and suds and dried on a wooden form.

BOUDOIR CAP OF RIBBON.

This very attractive boudoir cap is made of rose-colored ribbon, cream colored lace and a narrow banding of French flowers. It is less suggestive of the boudoir than the very lacey models, and for that reason is preferred by many women who like more tailored effects.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

USE STEEL WOOL.

Steel wool moistened with linseed oil is excellent for keeping an iron sink smooth and clean.

IN CEDAR BAGS.

Pack away your winter clothes in paper bags that have been treated with cedar. Those that open at the side are more accessible and easier to use than those opening at the top.

TO CLEAN COPPER.

Rottenstone and oil is the best possible cleaner for copper. Then polish with a flannel cloth or a chamois.

KEEPING GROCERIES.

All dry groceries and cereals should be kept in glass, pottery or metal containers and be kept in a cool, dry place.

BRIGHTER RUBBERS.

Clean up dingy looking overshoes by washing with ammonia water and then giving a coat of liquid shoe dressing.

IN JOINING LACE.

When joining lace take a very small seam, then buttonhole back over the edges the depth of the seam. It is less bulky than the French seam.

OLD CEMETERY PUTS ON MANTLE OF GREEN TO HIDE ITS MISERY

Burying Ground on Hilliard Street is Now an Unsightly Ruin.

PIONEERS THERE.

Stones Lie Broken and Lovers Scribble Names on Monuments.

Perhaps in this neglected spot is laid
Some heart once pregnant with celestial fire;
Hands, that the rod of Empire might have sway'd
Or waked to ecstasy the living lyre.

—Gray.

A forgotten city of the dead is to be found within the city limits of Peterborough, surrounded by houses, passed by the railroad and within the sight of clanging trolley cars. Before the eyes of those who lie there the doors of the forest opened on the wild fastnesses of the country which they conquered and made fit for the whizzing wheels of ponderous machinery that supports the city— the city that forgets.

The din of factory and workshop reaches the lonely hillside strewn with stones, and into its heart men are drilling for the sand that goes to make the needs of modern life—plebian pipe and massive monumental vaults— menacing the last narrow holdings of the bold pioneers who opened the wonders of a new world and rolled back the forest to make a fit habitation for their grandchildren—who forget.

Life, delightful life, spins mermily past; the perennial stream of youth flows on. The old cemetery wistfully bids it cast back a loving thought into the past, a little gift for the old laborers who worked so diligently in the forgotten hours till the weary failing hands laid down the tools with which they had subdued the wilderness and soon lay silent in the dust of the hillside.

And now the cemetery lies neglected, a dishonor to the dead, a reproach on the past and a disgrace to the living generation. It was opened during the time of the disputes about church lands, and its maintenance vested in a board of trustees of George street Methodist church, now probably the largest and most influential congregation in the city. The burying place was on the "back road" on the northern outskirts of the town, and some bodies from the Central cemetery, closed by order of the council, were removed to it. The armouries and the Collegiate now stand where the Central cemetery was located.

Prominent Men.

Of the twelve members on the original board appointed to manage the cemetery two are interred within its bounds, Joseph Stalker and Walter Sheridan. The latter was described as "a man much respected for his large knowledge of town and county affairs" and he was so highly esteemed by his church that the congregation erected the most pretentious monument in the cemetery over his grave—a monument composed of wood and stone that time and abuse have disintegrated. Mr. Sheridan was a public figure in his day and enjoyed the distinction of being the first clerk of the united counties of Peterborough and Victoria in 1850, when his yearly salary was £100. He held that office until the separation of the counties in 1858, when he became the first clerk of the county of Peterborough. He was also a member for several years of the school board, and held the position of secretary of the board charged with the administration of the cemetery where he lies. He came to Canada from Ireland, where he was born in County Carlow in 1796, and was laid to rest beside his wife, Martha, in December 1875.

A few paces away from this big monument is the grave of Rev. John S. Marsden, a Wesleyan missionary, who died in 1845 in the prime of his manhood. Of him nothing is known, and no record appears in Methodist church history in Peterborough. His tombstone is fallen from its pedestal and lies askew on the grave of the man who must have been one of the first ministers of the gospel to brave the hardships of pioneering in this district.

John Cobb, who died on November 27, 1842, eighteen years after the solitude of the town site was disturbed by the first immigration, is buried here. Was he artizan or clerk, soldier or baker? No one knows. To-day his weathered tombstone lies shattered on his rude couch. A few paces away is the last resting place of Thomas Bell, a native of Donegal, Ireland, who immigrated to Peterborough in 1830 and died 26 years later. In his lot, which has been robbed of its surrounding chain, are buried many of his family.

Eighty-four graves bear decipherable stones, and as many more have shattered stones, or monuments fallen face down, or are unmarked. There is no fence around the cemetery, and the whole area is littered with broken crockery, old tins, cast-out utensils, weeds, briars rank undergrowth and garbage. Boys have carried away headstones for use as bases for their ball diamonds and their elders have removed others to make rustic seats. Iron fences that were erected by loving hands to guard the sacred soil where beloved ones lay have been ruthlessly torn from their foundations and wantonly cast aside. A joker whose sense of humor savors of blasphemy, has turned a tombstone upside down so that the pointing hand with its legend "Gone Home" points downward instead of heavenward. And mooning couples, making a rendezvous of the city of the dead, have scribbled their names in entwined hearts on the stones that bear the deep-cut records of parents' love and anguish.

In 1890 the cemetery was notorious as the meeting place of the evil characters of the neighborhood. It was even then neglected and had been closed as a burying place under an order of the town council. In 1888 an effort had been made to lease it to Nicholls Hospital, which it adjoins, as a park for patients. A nominal rental of $1 a year was asked, but evidently the hospital authorities did not relish the task of repairing the ravages that had been done and maintaining the cemetery in respectability, and the contract was not at that time consummated. In 1891 a meeting of the plot holders enquired into their rights, some who had looked forward to sleeping there with their families objected to its closing and others wished it kept in decency. James Stevenson, then the only surviving member of the original board, made an explanation of the circumstances, and the question was referred to the trustee board of George street church.

Maurauders Denounced

D. W. Dumble, then an attorney and now retired police magistrate of the city, scathingly denounced the bad characters who desecrated the place of the dead with their vile carousals. "Blackguards were playing card over the graves of their grandfathers," he declared. The hospital patients were annoyed by the noise of the vagrants who sat on the tombstones to conduct their nightly revels, and someone had started a horse ring in the centre of the lot.

In the thirty-three years that have elapsed since that indignation meeting nothing has been done to repair the devastation except the kindly ministration of nature who has thrust up around the desecrated graves and mutilated stones a bounteous growth of shrubs and weeds that cover the damage and contemptuous generation wrought. Years ago the Indians buried their dead and left their graves untended because they were driven away by advancing civilization, but in the Hilliard street cemetery the graves of pioneers neglected by superior race, forgotten by those who reap the fruits of their toil. The Indians who plied their canoes on the Seebee river in 1825 and the mental aborigines who have harnessed the Otonabee river in 1925 altogether much less than nothing before the invincible march of death. And young men who had no part in the glories or conquests of their race play cards on the tombstones of their grandfathers.

Spirit of the Age

The spirit of the age in which they lived is reflected in some of the epitaphs on the earliest pioneer graves. George Coles inscribes above his wife, Jane, "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like hers." The daughter of Josiah Smith and Betsy Huntoon, who died sixty years ago, was called by her sorrowing parents "Little Birdie," and on her tombstone they wrote:

"This lovely bud so young and fair
Call'd off by early doom
Just came to show how sweet a flower
In Paradise could bloom."

"Gone to your father," and "There is rest in Heaven," are common expressions of the sentiments with which these pioneers regarded the great adventure, and "Suffer the little children to come unto Me" is an oft-met phrase.

A particularly brazen desecration and one of the most pathetic, is indicated by a stone on the outskirts of the cemetery. Joseph and Mary Ann Sawdye erected the monument over the graves of their two children, aged eight years and one year respectively, and on it they wrote:

"These lovely buds, how sweet they were
Call'd to a early doom
But now at rest in Jesus breast
In Paradise to bloom."

No. 3 Old cemetery

And this tombstone, erected by sorrowing parents, is now split in two, and while one part is used to prop up a seat the other has been set against a tree many yards away and used as a target for air-rifle shooting. Where the bodies of the children lie no one knows, and apparently there is no one to care.

Throughout the cemetery are fallen stones half buried with moss and leaves, that unexpectedly stub the wandering foot, and gaping holes appear here and there where thoughtful relatives removed bodies from the profaned place two decades ago to re-inter them in Little Lake cemetery, now one of the prettiest in the province. Other oblong holes, six inches to a foot deep, show where the earth fell in on crumbling caskets—dust to dust.

Eighty-two years ago there died the first man whose body lies in the forgotten cemetrey, and 82 years hence the people who now neglect that resting place will be with those who sleep beneath the weeds and tumbled stones. Their children and their children's grandchildren—how will they respect and treat the graves in the now beautiful Little Lake cemetrey?

To-day the sun flares red behind newly leafed elms and maples and bathes the old cemetery in a benignant glow that shades the harshness of its ugliness, and in a few days more the broken stones and sunken mounds will be completely hidden in foliage and the forgotten dead will slumber through another summer.

And so they rest, these pioneers of a new land, while the clocks tick out the days and years, and in the evening the bright home lights twinkle all around their uncared for sepulchres and the streets are thronged with alert, forgetful, great-great children, while overhead, above all the stir and murmur of life and the peacefulness of death, hang in the dark sky the unchanging stars.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

DISCUSION ON DAYLIGHT SAVI; HAS BROUGHT FARM LAORER MUCH PROMINENCE

The discussion o light saving as it affects farmers brought the farm laborer, or hired as he is more popularly known, itominence again and he has been certain hard knocks both from rnd urban writers on this topic. t unfortunate functionary, the hihan, is blamed for nearly every agural ill of the present day and it gued that the farmer's life would elieved of its heaviest burden if tan who takes his bread and butter money would only play the game

A Decadent ation.

There was a tim in the easy recollection of the liv when the hired man was regarded institution. Now he is looked upchaps all too generally, as a drag the wheel of progress, an infliction the owner of more land than he to work by his own labor.

Working on a farm wages was, less than half a centur an occupation by itself. But thipation has lost its brightest and blowers and another human institu as become decadent.

Half a century ago the man was as much or rather m a skilled laborer than the ma of wage earners in the town ans. It was nothing unusual then able to secure, for fair compen, a man who was skilled in everartment of farm work. PRECAUTIONS AGAINST CHICK CROWDING

URBANA, Ill., May 4.—Proper temperature for the breeder house, day and night, is the main precaution to avoid crowding of chicks and resultant losses.

Stretching fine wire or putting boards around the hover to confine the chicks to a small area will also help wipe out such losses.

Another precaution is nailing boards across the corners of the house so the chicks can not crowd into them.

CARE REQUIRED PRUNING TREES

Breakage in Maturity Caused by Pruning Young Trees Improperly.

TOO MANY LIMBS

ITHACA, N. Y., May 4. — Young apple orchards have been pruned too much up to the time they are from 10 to 12 years old.

Much of the breakage in trees reaching maturity could be avoided by proper pruning at planting time and during the year or two following, it is said.

When four or five main limbs are allowed to start from the trunk within a space of eight to twelve inches, the tree is almost sure to be crowded and weakened as it reaches the full bearing age. The top main limb or modified central leader will often be seriously dwarfed, for, as the lower branches increase in size, they are apt to cut off its sap flow.

Prune Heavily.

The two-year-old tree coming directly from the nursery will usually require considerable pruning. It will be necessary to cut away entire limbs to avoid crowding later.

Bad crotch conditions should have careful attention. It will often be desirable to cut one limb away entirely.

In selecting limbs for the framework, it is desirable that they be spaced as far apart on the trunk as is possible. Main limbs on the young tree spaced eight or ten inches apart is none too far; a greater distance is preferable.

Branches starting opposite, or nearly opposite each other, on the main trunk may be left. They are not apt to make bad crotches or to crowd each other as the tree matures.

Allow Room.

If, however, one limb is allowed to grow directly above another, or nearly so, or to start at any point for a quarter of the distance from it around the trunk, a vertical space of at least eight inches, and preferable more, is necessary to insure against weakness when the tree reaches maturity.

Limbs which are left to form the main branches of the tree need little if any heading back, if their late growth in the ends has been well matured in the nursery.

When the framework of the young tree has been well established, there is need for only light corrective pruning until it reaches the age of 10 or 12 years. The roots of the young tree need practically no pruning before it is set.

There is no objection to shortening unduly long roots or cutting away dead or seriously broken parts. Beyond this, however, the more roots there are left on the young tree the better.

BURNBRAE FARM WORK DELAYED

Farmers on Low Land Are Still Held Up Because of Snow.

BURNBRAE, May 4—The spring seeding, which was greatly delayed by the young winter, is now in full swing again. The farmer with the high land is getting ahead faster this spring than his neighbor in the low land due to the large amount of snow moisture, which has made the low parts very sticky.

The snow, which delayed seeding, has, however, been of great value to the clover and wheat, protecting the young plants from quite severe frost. The new seeding of clover, especially alfalfa, is looking splendid following a week of sunshine, and with the proverbial rainy May the hay crop should be abundant.

A great deal of sickness seems to be prevalent among dairy cattle this spring. Udder trouble, accidental and otherwise, together with indigestion and various stomach troubles, have combined to make the past few weeks a period of continual worry for the owners of dairy herds. This does not help the flow of milk any so that the factories in some cases will run a little lighter for a while than is usually the case.

Prices seem to have taken a slump lately. Veal calves are now selling at 5 and 6 cents, hogs at 12 cents, eggs 25 cents per dozen, and while no local cheese has been sold as yet, the prospects are around 18 cents or perhaps a little lower for the start.

The warm weather of the past week was hard on milk, and the cheese-makers report some over-ripe stuff with very fast vats. One local maker's curd remained in the whey only one hour and fifteen minutes, about half the usual time.

FARMERS WON'T LIMIT ACREAGE SOWN TO WHEAT

Sowing This Year is Largest in History of Saskatchewan.

13,000,000 ACRES

They Refuse to Follow "Ca-Canny" Policy Despite Warnings.

REGINA.—Saskatchewan is sowing the largest wheat acreage in the history of the province. More than thirteen million acres will be sown to wheat this year of a total acreage which is expected to exceed twenty million acres in all grains. Already the wheat pool has protested against the glowing reports of "abundance of moisture" and "record acreage," which it fears may be used to further depress the wild and bucking grain market.

Hints have been thrown out that with one of the lightest crops in years in 1924, the returns to the farmer were on the whole more satisfactory than in the bumper year preceding when the wheat crop of Saskatchewan alone according to the latest estimates exceeded Canada's entire wheat crop in 1924. Why then should the farmer try to make more money by growing more wheat when he actually made more last year by growing less?

The following is the "Ca' canny" letter of advice, sent out from the wheat pool office, suggesting a decreased acreage:

The average price that the farmers of Western Canada will get for their wheat this year will be more than equal to what they received for twice the amount sold last year.

One very good reason under the present system of marketing is that the 1924 crop of production was only some 60 per cent of the wheat output in 1923.

What will be the outcome?

On Saturday, April 11, there appeared in The Regina Leader a story on crop conditions, headed "Acreage Will Be Greater Than in 1924 is Report."

Every year the same thing happens. Those crop reports are sent ringing round the world and the speculator prepares to bid at lower prices for the new crop almost before the snow is off the ground.

At the same time, the average farmer, with last year's prices in mind, prepares to make a killing next year, forgetting that, by increased production, he cannot hope to reap the same returns per bushel. He is always one year behind in his mental operations; the speculator is a year ahead—and the speculator stands to win.

The world demand for wheat is steadily spreading, but there is always a limit to the amount that can be absorbed.

A consistent production, within the limits of climatic and other quantity reducing conditions is necessary to a consistent world price.

This year, watch your step. You cannot sell next year's wheat on last year's prices.

The western farmer is constitutionally unable to practice the "Ca' canny" policy which a certain faction of organized labor in the Old Country has been advocating and practising for years, with rather disastrous results, and as an editorial in a Saskatchewan farm paper pointed out so long as there are millions hungry in Europe, and wheat continues to be in demand, the western farmer will put in every acre that he can, regardless of warnings to go slow from the American secretary of agriculture or anybody else. Even if the farmers on one side of the line deliberately reduced their acreage and slowed down production, it would only encourage their neighbor across the line to more frenzied effort in strenuous spring rush.

Conditions Unusually Favorable.

The present spring is not only the earliest in years, the snow disappearing with startling rapidity, but there is a greater acreage of land for the seed drill and the drag harrow than has been the case in any previous spring, for owing to the crop failures in many districts last year and the light crop over the greater part of the province which was quickly threshed and got out of the way, there was a great deal of summer-fallow and fall plowing as well as a substantial amount of new breaking. It is estimated that fully eight and a half million acres in the form of new breaking, summer-fallow and fall plowing was practically ready for seeding this spring, requiring only a few strokes of the harrow to be ready for seeding.

There is plenty of moisture in the ground and the weather is ideal for seeding. Farmers and business men alike, are hoping for a good crop. The West could do with it, but the West does not bank on a crop to-day simply because the ground is full of moisture in the spring. Every crop looks good in June. Hail, frost, drouth, grass-hoppers, wheat-stem-saw-fly, cut worms, wire-worms, gophers, rust and smut and a dozen minor pests and plagues will take toll of the crop before the farmer gets it safely threshed and into the elevator or the box car. All that can be said is that the wheat crop of 1925 is off to a good start.

Apples Are Scarce So Farmers Plant Trees

BONAR LAW, May 4—A lot of farmers are planting young fruit trees this spring. A lot of the older orchards have been killed out and the supply of apples has been very scarce in the last few years.

DEVELOP BACON TRADE THROUGH LOAN OF BOARS

Department of Agriculture Has 150 Pure-Bred Boars in Use.

POPULAR POLICY

Is Putting Ontario in Lead as Pork-Producing Province.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

One hundred and fifty pure-bred boars of bacon type have been doing their share to push Ontario over the top as a bacon producing province. These boars have bred during the past year over 7,500 sows, and the progeny are now being marketed. Loaned by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, they have been placed with farmers' clubs in twenty-eight counties of the province.

This work which was started a little over two years ago has gone ahead by leaps and bounds. In order that a community may obtain the use of one of these boars, at least ten farmers owning twenty or more breeding sows must organize themselves into a club. They then appoint a caretaker for the boar at a salary agreeable to all parties, and set a service fee to be charged out of which the caretaker receives his pay. Upon making application to the Ontario Live Stock Branch, and with the approval of the Minister of Agriculture, a bacon type boar of the breed desired by the club, is supplied free of charge.

Age of Boar for Service.

The age at which a young boar may be first used depends largely upon his development. Some boars may be used to a few sows when not more than seven months old without apparent injury. As a rule, it is safer not to use a boar before he is eight months old, and to use him as sparingly as possible until he is a year old. No hard and fast rule can be laid down, and the owner must use his judgment in the matter. Excessive use when young is likely to shorten the period of a boar's usefulness and since a boar will usually leave the best pigs after he reaches maturity, the importance of saving him while he is young, will be readily appreciated. Some good breeders will not allow more than one service a day with intervals of one or two days a week without being used in the case of valuable boars. This is a matter which can be regulated better in large herds, where several stock boars are kept, than it can where only one boar is kept and where outside sows are admitted. The owner of a boar under the last-named conditions will require to exercise all his ingenuity to prevent his boar from being used too freely during certain seasons of the year. In no case should more than one service to a sow be permitted, and the boar should not be allowed to run with sows to which he is to be bred. Excessive use is likely to result in small weaker litters, and the aim should be to save the boar as much as possible. It is not good to use a boar immediately after he has been fed.

If the boar is shipped some distance and arrives excited and tired, he should be fed very lightly at first, and not used for several weeks after his arrival.

Importance of Exercise.

Probably nothing is more essential to the health and vigor of an animal than exercise. In summer it is usually a comparatively simle matter to provide exercise in a paddock or pasture lot, but in winter it is more difficult. A roomy pen should be provided with a sheltered outside yard. When practicable, it is a good plan to feed the boar outdoors at some distance from his sleeping quarters, thus compelling him to take exercise in walking back and forth between his pen and feeding place. Icy ground is the greatest drawback to this method, but this can be overcome by littering the walk with some strawy horse manure. Sometimes the boar can be fed in a well-littered barnyard, which makes a very good arrangement when practicable.

Feeding the Service Boar.

It requires good judgment to keep a boar in the best possible condition. Extremes are to be avoided. The over-fat boar does not make a satisfactory sire as a rule, and a half-starved boar cannot transmit vigor and constitution to his progeny, to the same degree that he would if properly managed. To get the best results the boar should be in fair flesh. A reasonable amount of fat on his bones will do him no harm if he gets sufficient exercise.

An exclusive meal ration will not give good results, especially if the ration is made up of corn. It is true that corn can be fed to a boar without injuring him, but it must be fed in the right way. Corn is fattening, but its exclusive use is debilitating, and the feeder must combine something with it to get good results. Equal parts ground oats and wheat middlings make a first-class meal ration when corn is not used. It gives sufficient bulk, and is nutritious without being heating or too fattening. Ground sufficient bulk, and is nutritious without oats, middlings, or bran may be used singly to dilute corn or other heavy meal; in fact, a very great variety of grains may be fed so long as the feeder used judgment.

Supplemental Feeds.

But a boar needs something besides grain and meal to be in his best condition. Skim milk and buttermilk are excellent, and will give good results with meal even if nothing else is used. In winter roots of any kind are much relished. They have a cooling, laxative effect, preventing constipation and keeping the animal thrifty and vigorous. If roots are not available, alfalfa hay of fine quality or even red clover may be used to give bulk to the ration. Some feed the alfalfa hay dry in racks, and others prefer to cut it.

BEGIN BATTLE AGAINST WHEAT RUST SHORTLY

Specialists Decide on Division of Work for Efficiency in Fight.

100 VARIETIES

Submitted for Test as Result of Experiments for Rust-proof Wheat.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 4—The battle against cereal rust will shortly begin in earnest as a result of the division of work decided upon at a conference here attended by the most eminent specialists of Canada and the United States. Among those present were, Dr. L. E. Newman, Dominion cerealists, President Walter C. Murray, University of Saskatchewan, Dr. W. P. Thompson, Dr. J. B. Harrington, both of Saskatchewan, Dr. D. L. Bailey, Dominion pathological laboratory, P. A. C., Prof. W. T. G. Wienert, Manitoba Agricultural College, and Cyril Goulden of St. Paul, Minn.

More than 100 varieties of wheat and hybrids were submitted at the conference as the basis of work of breeding a rust-resistant wheat. Professor Wienert and Professor Harrison of the M. A. C. will submit further varieties, while each member of the committee will specialize in crossing certain types to determine rust-resisting qualities.

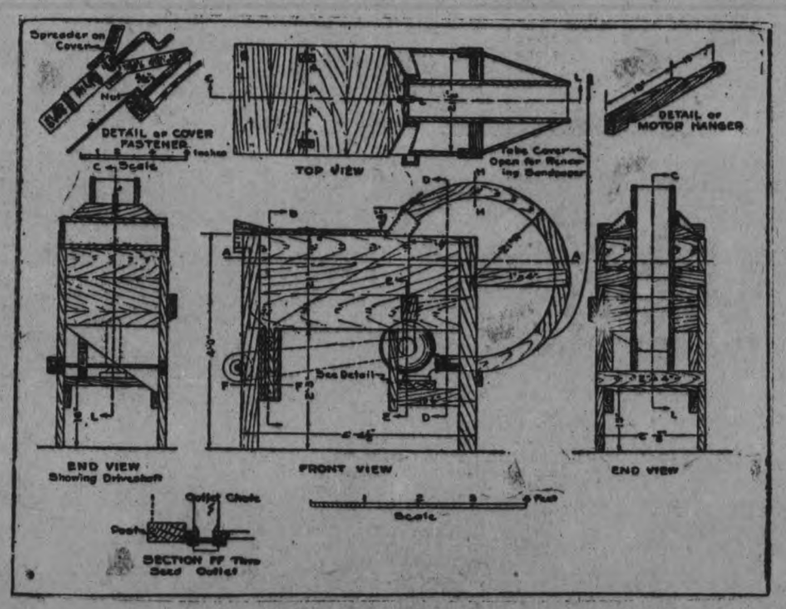
Breeding experiments at the St. Vital rust laboratory, will be conducted by Mr. Goulden. Dr. Bailey will supervise the pathological work and Dr. Thompson will continue his experiments at Saskatoon.

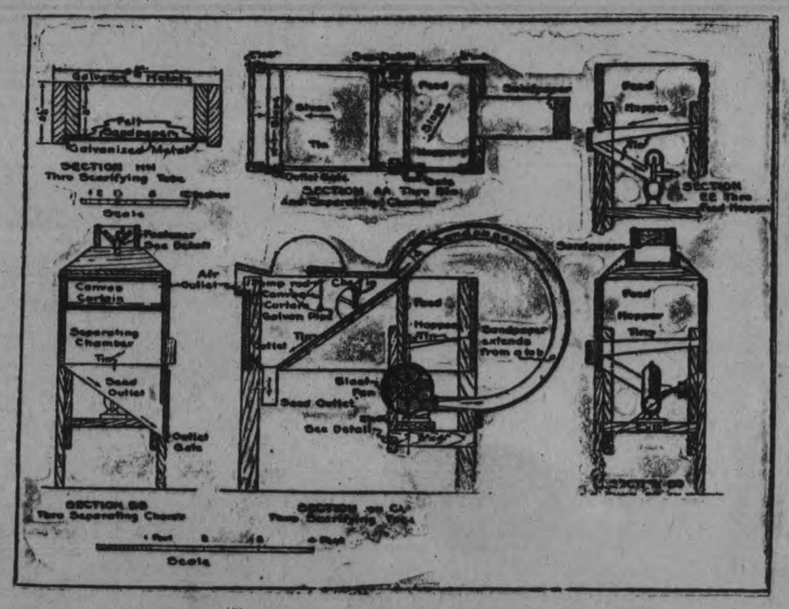
At the Manitoba Agricultural College rust laboratory, stem rust will be artificially propagated for infection on wheat whose ability to resist rust is to be tested. While details are not yet complete, Dr. Newman states that progress will be made as soon as the growing season opens.

WASTEFUL SEPARATOR.

The so-called water dilution separator is considered more wasteful than the centrifugal type. It is said to leave from 10 to 15 times as much butterfat in the skim milk as the centrifugal separator.

HOW TO BUILD A SPLENDID SEED SCARIFIER





GENERAL PLANS AND DETAILS OF THE SCARIFIER.

AMES, Ia., May 4th—The scarifier is used to scratch the hard seed coats of clover, alfalfa and legumes so that the seeds will readily absorb water and grow more easily. The Ames huller and scarifier is easy and cheap to operate. Its capacity is 30 to 40 bushels an hour of unhulled sweet clover seed, and 20 bushels an hour of hulled seed.

The parts of this machine may be made of any suitable materials, and the relative sizes and proportions, as well as the general design of the mechanism, may be varied to a considerable extent without decreasing the efficiency of the machine. As constructed the machine measures approximately 5 feet long, 4 feet high and 2 feet wide.

Operation.

The seed is conveyed downward from the feed hopper through a gate into a chute which leads into open side of a blast fan. The fan is journalled within the case on a horizontal axis and is adapted to be operated by a direct connected motor or through belt to motor or engine. A one-half horsepower electric motor furnishes sufficient power.

The outlet of fan is connected to the scarifying chamber. The inner surface of outer wall of this tube is covered from 'a' to 'b' by a rough material such as emery cloth, sand stone or sandpaper. Experiments have shown that a No. 2½ garnet paper does the work satisfactorily.

The sandpaper should not extend below point 'a' since it is not desirable that the seeds be thrown directly against this surface. The seeds are thrown against a hard smooth surface and are then carried over the rough surface and in immediate contact with it by the centrifugal force and air current from fan. As the hardness of the seed coat varies with different seed, it is sometimes necessary to substitute a smooth surface over a portion of the distance 'a' to 'b,' or reduce the speed of the fan.

At the upper end of the scarifying tube, the seeds are delivered into a compartment with a sloping bottom as indicated on the CL section of drawing. The force of the air blast is greatly reduced in this compartment and makes its exit, carrying a portion of the chalf and waste particles with it.

An adjustable baffle board stops the seed, causing the heavy seeds to fall to the floor and flow to the chute which delivers the seed to the measure or bag. A second baffle is made of either a board similar to the first board or it may be a canvas curtain.

Speed Varies.

When treating sweet clover seed the blower should usually be run at from 2800 to 3000 revolutions a minute. This speed should be secured by utilizing proper size of pulleys.

The severity of the scarifying process depends upon the speed at which the blower is run, the extent of the scarifying surface over which the seeds are carried; the roughness of the scarifying surface, and the kind and hardness of the legume seed being treated.

For seed with softer coats than sweet clover seed the rate of speed must be reduced, and a smooth surface may be substituted over a portion of the distance from 'a' to 'b.'

The amount of seed being scarified can be determined fairly well by allowing a portion of the treated seed to run through the fingers of the hand and noting the amount of finely broken seed coats remaining on the fingers. Also run a weighed amount of seed, and determine the actual loss in finely broken seed and hulls.

One lot of sandpaper should treat 50 bushels or more. In renewing sandpaper, open fastener, thus loosening cover. The sandpaper is usually cut in three strips to allow a portion of it to be inverted if necessary. The strips are lapped in such a manner so as not to retard the seed.

Unhulled sweet clover is run through the scarifier once to remove the outer hull, then run through a fanning mill to clean it and then run through the scarifier again to scratch it. Not all of the seed will be freed from the outer hull with the first operation. The percentage depends upon the toughness and dryness of the outer hull.

Do not run the seed into the blower so fast as to clog it up.

Specifications.

All materials should be good white pine or equal, free from checks and knots. This material is easily worked and makes a light weight machine which may be easily handled. The legs and other members of frame are made of 2" x 4" S4S. The sides, ends, top, partition, etc., are made from good white pine boards which should be matched to make close fitting joints.

The metal—cover of scarifying tube, hopper, floor, chutes, etc.—should be new No. 28 gauge galvanized metal.

The blower may be obtained direct from a manufacturer of blast fans for forges. A blower with 10-inch diameter fan is used on the original scarifier and has given excellent service for all purposes.

The miscellaneous hardware is obtainable from any hardware store and the forgings may be made by any blacksmith or in the farm shop.

Workmanship.

The panels or sides are set into continuous mortises in posts and glued into place. A few brads should also be used to supplement the glue. Well-seasoned, matched boards are desirable so no cracks are present for seed to lodge in, causing foreign seed to mix with pure seed.

The members of frame are fastened together by either nailing, bolts or wood screws. It is advisable to strengthen corners by using small metal braces in corners of hopper and separating chamber; also to strengthen legs by placing a brace near bottom of each pair.

Use a six or seven penny box nail for nailing top and floors in place. Nail metal into place by using large head short nails.

The baffle board is pivoted on long wood screws and held in place by chain which hooks on opened screw eye or screw hook. The canvas curtain is made of six to ten ounce canvas with hem as used in window shade at both top and bottom. The top hem slips over ⅜" rod or pump rod for support and the curtain is held in place by a piece of galvanized pipe.

The size of pipe will depend upon the speed of fan. A little experimenting will determine this size.

NEW BASEBALL LEAGUE

Harwood, Coldsprings and Baltimore Organize for Summer Sport.

COBOURG, May 4.—Northumberland county has a new baseball league, which saw its inception at a meeting held in the hotel at Harwood on Monday evening, when a number of enthusiastic baseball fans assembled. Harwood had a team in 1923 in the Northumberland County League, but dropped out last year. That village has now united with Coldsprings and Baltimore, which will give them a much shorter range than the Northumberland League would. The following officers were elected:
President—F. Ball, Baltimore.
Vice-President — N. McIntosh, Coldsprings.
Secretary-Treasurer—W. Harvey, Harwood.
The opening game will be played at Harwood on May 25, between the team at that place and Baltimore. A schedule for the season was arranged as follows:
May 25—Baltimore at Harwood.
May 30—Harwood at Coldsprings.
June 3—Coldsprings at Baltimore.
June 10—Harwood at Baltimore.
June 20—Coldsprings at Harwood.
June 24 — Baltimore at Coldsprings.
Another schedule will be arranged, it is expected, for the second half of the season.

SPRING TONIC FOR GOLFERS

As Prescribed by George Duncan.

Theories differ as to how long a golfer should stare at the ground after the ball has been started on its ride.

It has always seemed to me that it is time wasted when a player stands looking at the ground after the shot has been made. Not only that, but keeping the head down tends to hold the shoulders in such a way that it spoils a long follow through.

Of course, the head must not be lifted too fast. That will completely ruin the shot, because raising the head invariably means that the arms will be lifted, which will result in topping the ball.

That, of course, is to be avoided. But there is no necessity for keeping the head down as long as some players do. It takes the club head a mere fraction of a second to travel two feet after the ball has been hit and the head already should begin to turn, allowing the shoulders some freedom and permitting a follow through.

RUTH UNLIKELY TO JOIN YANKS BEFORE JUNE 15

"Indigestion Stuff Real Bunk," Says Bambino—Has Had It Ten Years.

BLAMES THE FLU

Anxious to Play, But is Still Weak—Has Suffered Pain.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The stricken King held an audience at St. Vincent's Hospital Saturday afternoon. Flanked on each side by huge bunches of roses and clad in plain white pajamas as his reception robes, Babe Ruth, the Yankee ruler of the home-run hitters, greeted a delegation of newspaper men, the first visitors to see him since he was carried to the hospital unconscious on his return from the Spring training trip.

The Babe looked almost like his old self, although a little pale, but he said he was "weak as a kitten" and that he felt "like a featherweight." However, the diet which was forced on him when he collapsed has produced results and the great slugger is in as good condition as can be expected for a man who has been flat on his back for more than three weeks.

Asked when he thought he would be able to rejoin the Yankees and play baseball again, the Babe said:

"Well, I figure it will be a week after they let me out of this place. I don't know how long they are going to keep me here, but I don't think it will be very long now."

It was suggested that he might be able to join the club when it gets back from the West.

"Yes, I guess about then," the Babe answered. Then he added: "When do they get back?"

"On May 28."

"Oh, I'll be out before then," the Babe exclaimed, alarmed at the thought that he might be forced to spend almost four more weeks in the hospital.

"What was the real trouble with you, influenza or indigestion?" was the next question.

Says Influenza Downed Him.

"Influenza," replied the Babe positively. "I've had it every spring for the last four years. I thought I was going to escape it when I got out of Hot Springs without having an attack, but I guess it was bound to get me sooner or later. Anyway, that indigestion stuff is a lot of bunk! Every time anything happens to a fellow they say he's overeating. Why, I don't eat more than two-thirds of the club. I don't mean two-thirds of them put together either; I mean man to man. I've had indigestion for ten years. What do they want to start picking on that now for, anyway?"

The Babe was almost mad about it.

"I never knew what pain was until I got in here this time, though," the Babe went on. "I haven't been able to do anything but lie here on my back, just like you see me now, and think. I've read a couple of books but that's about all."

Asked what he thought about the home run situation in general and Charlie Hartnett, the sensational slugger of the Chicago Clubs, in particular, the Babe said he wasn't afraid of his record or his supremacy.

"I guess that Hartnett is a sweet hitter at that, but look at the park he's got to hit in. It must be a lot of fun to play in that league with its short fences. But I'm not worrying about that. It'll catch up to all of them if they don't keep me in this hospital too long."

Just a Slump He Says of Yanks.

"I guess the Yanks are just in a slump for a while," said the big fellow when asked what he thought was the matter with his teammates. "They don't seem to be hitting at the right time and they've been up against a couple of tough teams. Nobody need worry about the Yankees this year. They'll be up there all right."

The Babe looked out the window through which the sun of a bright May day was streaming. The Babe had the same longing expression on his face as a schoolboy has during the spring when he peers through the schoolroom window and dreams. Unmistakably he was homesick for the game that has made him famous; the only game that he knows.

His room is situated on the second floor of St. Vincent's Hospital. It is snacious and has a large, comfortable bed, which, however, gives the appearance of being rather small in comparison to the huge frame of its occupant. On a chair beside the bed, within reach of the ailing athlete and as if he had just tossed it aside, was a newspaper, opened to the sporting page.

While Ruth seemed optimistic about his chances of getting out of the hospital and back in the line-up within a few weeks, those who have been in attendance on the Yankee star were not so sure that he would be able to play before next month. It also was fairly obvious to those who were numbered among the Babe's first visitors Saturday that it would take him more than a week to get in condition after he leaves the hospital. The hardships he has suffered has sapped his strength and his frame is greatly weakened from inactivity. Perhaps he will be able to swing into his stride by the middle of June. Hardly before.

SOCCER SEASON WOUND UP WITH SATURDAY PLAY

Huddersfield Town Won First Division With Several Points to Spare.

A FINE RECORD

West Bromwich Albion Second and Bolton Wanderers Third.

LONDON, May 4 (Canadian Press Cable)—Marked by intense excitement right up to the last moment, English League football made its exit on Saturday and the 1924-1925 playing season was written off the books. All problems of promotion, of relegation and of championships were solved and it is noteworthy that for once these were decided without any complications arising out of clubs aggregating the same number of points, but their fate resting on goal-averages.

In all divisions, the leaders won by a clear margin. Huddersfield Town in the senior string acquired their laurels by a definite couple of points over the runners-up, West Bromwich Albion. In the intermediate department Leicester City finished in no uncertain fashion and enjoyed the same "pointage" over Manchester United. Darlington in the Northern section of the third division, ended with a five point lead over Nelson, while in the southern section, Swansea Town on Saturday obtained the two points that were necessary in order to give them the edge over Plymouth.

Leicester City have the best goal average of the whole league, being nearly three to one in their favor, while with 90 goals scored in their forty-two games they enjoy the added honors of having been the heaviest scorers of the three divisions.

Yorkshire Honors

Playing consistently good football to the very last sound of the whistle, Huddersfield Town deserve their medals. Their series of misfortunes in mid-season were well-calculated to discourage any team, but the Town hung grimly on, little by little overcoming their disadvantages, and when West Bromwich Albion loomed as a possible winner of the league, it served only to spur the Yorkshire team on to greater effort. Whether West Bromwich could have won the league title is a question that is likely to be widely debated between now and the opening of another season. The fact remains that at the time when added "pep" was required to get every point obtainable, the Albion fell away badly. Their series of drawn games lately did them little good. Perhaps they were unfortunate; most likely they were careless and certainly there were many games when they plainly underestimated their opposition—a fatal mistake towards the end of the season.

Bolton Wanderers, who finish third to West Bromich and Huddersfield Town, were in a good way to come into the position of runners-up had they been able to manage a win Saturday. But West Bromwich were making a final hard effort and Bolton could manage only to draw.

Preston Relegated

At the other end of the table, Preston North put up a surprising fight against Cardiff City, getting a division of points from the cup-finalists. Preston, however, were long ago ear-marked for relegation and they go down to the second division next season, in company with Nottingham Forest. The Forest ran true to form in being taken into camp by Aston Villa. Their own particular distinction this year lies in the fact that they have scored the smallest number of goals of any club in the English League—20.

The second division saw Manchester United wind-up in second place to Leicester City, when they drew with Barnsley, a result which enables them to go up to the first division next year along with Leicester. Derby County ran in hard luck. They went stale at a most critical moment after having played splendid football for the greater part of the season and looking many times as if they had the championship salted away. Once more they finish third in the table.

Disappointing to Londoners is the spectacle of seeing one more of their clubs go out from senior to junior company. Crystal Palace, on their own ground, and after having had the better of the game throughout the entire playing period, were defeated in their most critical match of the season by Oldham Athletic. The result of this encounter enabled Oldham to stay in the second division, but it shoved the Palace down into the third, accompanied by Coventry City.

Swansea Came Through

The most exciting game Saturday was that between Swansea Town and Exeter City. It was exciting in that the Wesh Club were compelled to win if they had to get the sectional champion. A draw would have seen the title go to Plymouth Argyle. But Swansea "delivered" the goods and sent Exeter back with a two to one trimming. Thus, while the Welsh Club move up to the second division, Plymouth Argyle finished second in the southern table for the fourth year in succession.

The team "elected" to apply for re-admission to the league next season is Merthyr Town who succumbed in their 29th defeat Saturday to Newport County.

In the Northern section, which saw Darlington move into the second division, the Club that is being automaticaly dismissed is Rotherham County, who suffered their 28th trimming when Chesterfield took them into camp by three to one.

WOOLLENS GAIN SOCCER POINTS FROM THISTLE

Mitchell Converted From a Corner Kick in the First Moiety.

LAY SPASMODIC

Thistle Confined Play to the Woollens' Area Without Success.

A very large crowd witnessed the Canadian Woollens gain the full points from the Thistle in a league game at King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon, in very unfavorable weather. J. C. Russell handled the whistle very satisfactorily.

Features Of the Play.

The Woollens played with a stiff breeze at their backs, but Thistle started well, only to be stopped by Chambers punting clear, Mann transferred to the other end where Edgar smartly cleared the situation very timely. A change took place when two unsuccessful corners for the Woollens did not materialize with Anderson and Wade keeping the elusive opponent forwards outside shooting distance.

Mitchell's Only Counter.

'Twas pleasant to witness the sportsmanship shown by all participants. From an opening from his partner, Clark penetrated the defense of the Thistle to make an accurate centre that was checked by Carmichael for a corner-kick. This brought forth success to his club when Mitchell converted from the flag-kick. Both teams showed more energy now—Woollens with a one goal lead and Thistle making desperate attacks to try and even up the score.

Griffines Smart Action.

Two throw-ins near Woollens' area caused some excitement when the Thistles' forwards had unproductive shots. In fact, the shout of "Oh", when Williams missed a grand opening from close range, was followed by "Pete" Hutton when his parting shot was diverted for a corner-kick that was fruitless. Also a foul against Woollens' taken by Wade, compelled Griffine to concede another flag-kick. Play was again at Edgar's goal, just before half-time, where Woollen forwards initiated some nice combination that was countered against by Thistle half-backs. Woollens 1, Thistle 0.

HALF-TIME.

On resuming, the Woollens' took up the attack from where they left off. Clark's short-lived raid was nullified by Anderson on an offside decision. Then the Thistle's right made progress, though the pressure was very weak through unmethodical tactics when near goal.

Open Goal Missed.

The Thistle's best chance to even up the game was when Richmond broke in between the opposing defense to tap the ball back to Williams, who was lying unmarked, but his action was sky-high. At this period of the tussel, it was a splendid defense that frustrated the everlasting attacks of the Thistle that was countered by an occasional raid from Woollens' forwards. Although Burgess got the better of the argument when Wade's anticipated clearance twirled against him, the snappy left wing picking up the ball in midair that landed inside cross-bar, for Edgar to make a splendid clearance. Down in Woollens' area, next minute, Wade sent a stinging drive into a sea of legs in front of goal. Then Richmond with two left-foot drives missed the desired area by niches as Griffine watched on. Till the end, The Thistle did most of the pressing but their shooting was erratic, thereby giving Woollens full points for a very poor game. Woollens 1, Thistle 0.

Thistle—Edgar, goal; Wade and Anderson, backs; Carmichael, Wade and Docherty, half-backs; Brown Hutton, Richmond, Williams and Wilson, forwards.

Woollens—Griffine, goal; Cridland and Chambers, backs; Boyle, Mann and Blowers, half-backs; Clark, Gaskill, Mitchell, Wilson and Burgess, forwards.

Referee—J. C. Russell.

The head need not be held rigidly still during the golf swing at all. The beginner usually is told to keep it fixed and still, and that is good practice for the new player because he will let his body sway back and forth too much if he lets his head move about. We have a new school in golf, however, that encourages quite a little head movement. These players let the head roll to the right in the back swing until they see the ball only from the corner of the left eye. Then, in the forward swing, they let the head roll with the shoulders. I don't care so much for the back roll of the head, but to let the head go forward with the shoulders at the instant of hitting is a good thing. Try it, but be careful not to let the head go until the clubhead is on the ball.

MOORS ATTACK FRENCH FORCES

Abd-el Krim Taking Advantage of Fanatic Spirit During Ramadan Fast.

PARIS, May 4 (Canadian Press) —Abd-El-Krim, Riff leader, who has been fighting the Spaniards in Morocco has turned loose an attack across French Morocco, directed at Fez, so Marechal Lyautey, resident general of Morocco, has informed Paris.

His purpose is to break down the French authority and he is taking advantage of the fanatic spirit engendered by the Moslem feast of Ramadan to rouse Morocco, tranquilized for many years, into revolt against the French occupation. Half a dozen frontier posts, which were advanced last year a dozen kilometers north of the River Ouergha, about 35 miles north of Fez, are cut off at present.

Lyautey has opened an attack by encircling cavalry movements.

FEZ, Riffin, May 4—The tribesmen's invasion of the French zone of Morocco is assuming serious proportions and Marshall Lyautey, governor of the territory, has come here to be nearer active operatives.

REDS BEATEN IN MUNICIPAL VOTE

Communists Snowed Under in French Municipal Elections Yesterday.

ELECT SENATORS.

By A. L. Bradford
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, May 4.—The first returns from yesterday's municipal elections which were held throughout France, indicated that the Communist candidates were completely snowed under by ballots divided about equally between the Socialists and Radicals on the one hand and the Conservatives on the other. More than 400,000 councillors were to be elected.

In Paris 49 districts returned 26 Conservatives, 21 Radicals and Socialists and two Communists.

The municipal elections are important politically : a barometer of public opinion and because the councillors elected will form a departmental congress which will elect one-third of the French Senate in 1927.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

VAUDEVILLE AND BIG FEATURED CAST IN "THE SPANIARD."

Ricardo Cortez, Jetta Goudal, Noah Beery in New Film.

Ricardo Cortez, Jetta Goudal, Noah Beery are featured in the leading roles of the new Raoul Walsh production for Paramount, "The Spaniard," due at the Capitol Theatre to-night. The picture, based on the novel of the same name by Juanita Savage, brings Cortez to the screen in the role of a bull-fighter, who turns out to be a grandee of Spain.

The story has to do with the taming of a beautiful English society girl, a born flirt, by The Spaniard. Cortez has not only the appearance and dramatic ability, but he is endowed with that appealing personality so necessary to put across this role. He is said to have put everything he has into the role of Don Pedro—and, judging from his characterizations in "The Swan" and others, he has plenty.

As the English girl, Dolores, Miss Goudal has the finest role of her screen career. She's a real French beauty and has every opportunity to make use of her charms in this production.

Beery plays the bandit chief, Gomez. At the beginning of the picture he is a servant in Cortez's employ, but is thrown out of the castle when he attempts to assist Miss Goudal to escape.

Others in the cast of the production include Emily Fitzroy, Renzo De Gardi, Mathilda Brundage, Bernard Seigel and Florence Renart.

As an added attraction the Misses Farnum and Johnston, who are known throughout the Dominion as two maids and a piano, will offer vocal and instrumental numbers. These young ladies are possessors of very fine voices, and should prove a welcome addition to a real delightful picture programme.

Mr. A. G. Crowe, manager of the Capitol Theatre, received word today that "Miss David," the pedigreed Shetland pony that forms the prize in the Capitol's pony contest, is being shipped from Hudson Heights, Quebec, to-day. "Miss David" will make a tour of Peterboro streets during the time intervening before the close of the contest, on May 15th.

Those interested in the contest should endeavor to get all votes in as soon as possible. The pony, which will make a wonderful prize for some little boy or girl, comes from the well-known Mount Victoria Farms, at Hudson Heights, Quebec.

AT THE ROYAL

"FLIRTING WITH LOVE," WITH COLLEEN MOORE AND CONWAY TEARL, ONE OF BEST TEN MADE IN 1924 AT ROYAL.

Comes the Winsome, Charming Colleen Moore, the Girl You Loved in "Flaming Youth" and "Perfect Flapper"—She's Back Again at the Royal to Captivate Every Heart in a New, More Fascinating Role Than Ever.

What type of screen actress would you call Colleen Moore?

One would naturally suppose that in the motion picture business, where players are catalogued as certain types and must forever be identified as such, that Colleen Moore would have her classification. But she hasn't.

Despite the fact that Mr. So-and-so, who made his first success with a beard, must continue to wear a beard to be successful, and, despite the fact that Miss Whatever-Her-Name is doomed to play vampire roles, Colleen Moore has risen to the top untraditionally.

As a matter of record, Colleen Moore has never played one type of role consistently. The producers have found her a composite of many types and she has played them all successfully.

Most prominent during the past year or more in comedy she has achieved the reputation as the screen's leading comedienne. In "Flirting With Love," showing now at the Royal Theatre, she is portraying a difficult dual personality role, a part calling for both comedy and emotional interpretation.

COUNTRY STORE NITE AT ROYAL TONIGHT

The novelty Country Store Nite will be repeated again tonight at the Royal. Two bags of flour, one ham and numerous worth while prizes will be given away and a lot of laughs thrown in for good measure.

WHERE, OH WHERE?

Where do story plots come from? "Sometimes from a ten word thought," says Byron Morgan, author of Paramount's "Code of the Sea," in which Rod La Rocque and Jacqueline Logan are featured.

In substantiation of his assertion Morgan has presented LaRocque a piece of worn sail cloth on which is jotted what appears to be a brief memorandum. In reality it is the first thematic thought on the ultimate absorbing plot of "Code of the Sea."

"More than two years ago," Morgan says, "I was cruising with a friend off the shore of San Francisco. We were in a tiny fishing smack. One night after dinner my friends and I were perched on deck smoking in silence. I can't say that I was thinking anything in particular, when an idea hit me. I had a pencil but no paper, so I wrought the story thought on a piece of sail cloth which was a remnant from a patching job.

"Six months later I started to work writing the first manuscript. Additional details and a great climax came constantly crowding to the support of the first slender inspiration. And eventually I had the story fabric completed.

George Fawcett, Maurice Flynn, Luke Cosgrave and others just as well known play in the supporting cast of "Code of the Sea," which opens a run of three days at the Royal on Thursday.

AT THE REGENT

WILLIAM FOX PICKS A CAST OF STARS FOR "THE DANCERS."

George O'Brien in the Role of Tony Achieves Some New Honors. PICTURE PRETENTIOUS.

Alma Rubens and Madge Bellamy Are Co-Featured With Popular Star.

William Fox personally selected the cast which appears in his latest production, "The Dancers," adapted from the famous stage play of the same name and directed by Emmett Flynn, which comes to the Regent Theatre to-day.

The first selection of the cast of "The Dancers" was George O'Brien, the youthful giant who made his cinematic debut with two great successes appearing on Broadway simultaneously, "The Iron Horse" and "The Man Who Came Back."

The next selection was Alma Rubens, the beautiful lady of the screen, whose lot it has been to grace the silver sheet as the idealization of gracious, gorgeous, striking women of the upper social strata and who is remembered as the stately "Hermione" in the William Fox version of "Gerald Cranston's Lady."

In "The Dancers" she plays the vivacious spirited girl of the dance hall, a role which is calculated to bring out all the depth and fire of Miss Ruben's Latin personality. Mr. Fox proves that Miss Rubens is a very versatile actress of great emotional possibilities.

The third featured player of the cast is Madge Bellamy, who takes the part of Una, the dance-mad girl who forgets her childhood lover and succumbs to the perils of error. Miss Bellamy played opposite George O'Brien in the role of Miriam in "The Iron Horse."

O'Brien and Alma Rubens make an ideal pair on the screen. Miss Rubens has the exquisite beauty and flaming personality required of the role of Maxine while O'Brien is the rugged man of the great outdoors who has a powerful personality and a dramatic depth, the surface of which has only been scratched.

The Best Always! All Ways the Best!!

BRIGHTON NEWS

BRIGHTON, Ont., May 4— The very favorable weather during the greater part of the month farmers have been busy on the land.

The season locally is at least two weeks earlier and all prospects are very favorable. Fall wheat, clover and hay look exceptionally well and spring sowing of oats, wheat, some barley and peas and early potatoes is already done. The acreage of potatoes is smaller this year owing to the low prices of last fall and winter and about three hundred per cent more alfalfa is being sown than ever previously which is largely owing to the present high price of red clover seed. If this venture is successful it will mean a considerably less hay acreage in future allowing more ground for other crops.

Owing to the increased canner's prices to growers at least twice as much acreage for tomatoes is under contract for this year.

Apple trees came through the winter well and although little bloom is visible as yet the outlook for this crop is considered promising and preparations for more thorough spraying than for years is in evidence and more general orchard work.

SEASON'S FIRST GAME SATURDAY

Cobourg D. and O. Team to Clash With Central Leaguers.

Ball fans will be glad to know that if the weather conditions permit they will have an opportunity on Saturday of seeing the 1925 Peterboro Central Ontario Leaguers in action against the Cobourg Durham and Ontario League crew, reinforced by some of the Port Hope ball tossers. The game will give Manager Johnston a chance to try out his talent and the fans a chance to look over the new material.

Frank Whitehouse will make his Senior debut in this fixture. The Lakeview left-hander, who beat the Toronto McCormicks twice and held them to a 3-3 seveneteen innings tie in a four game series last fall, should be a big help to the Petes this season in view of the fact that Irish Rasson, who was out-pitched by Whitehouse in the Junior finals, pitched a no-hit, no-run game in his first Senior start in the Pit League on Saturday.

Young material is being given every chance by Manager Johnston this year and the benefit of developing young players kill be demonstrated.

Jimmy Hare, who made his debut last year, is still young enough for the Junior ranks and other "kid" players are making a big bid for promotions. Among them is Johnny Marchen, Lakeview's second baseman last year, who is going "good" in the short field position.

ROTARIANS SAY GOOD-BYE TO DR. ALLAN M'NAIR

Faithful Member of Club Leaves Shortly For Vancouver.

HAS DONE FINE WORK.

Delegates to Hamilton Report on the Proceedings There.

Saying farewell to Rotarian Dr. Allan McNair, Provincial bacteriologist, who is leaving shortly for Vancouver, and the reception of reports from Rotarians Lou Potvin and Jas. Hamilton in regard to the 27th District Conference at Hamilton, occupied the chief place in the programme at to-day's weekly luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club.

Rotarian Dr. A. W. McPherson expressed the regret of the members of Rotary in losing Dr. McNair, to whose many good qualities he paid an eloquent tribute. Dr. McNair had been a splendid Rotarian, not only in what he had contributed to the success of the club's activities, the summer carnival, the crippled children's work, etc., but in his relations with the medical profession and his fine service on behalf of St. Joseph's and Nicholls' Hospitals. Dr. McPherson pointed out that his departure for Vancouver meant promotion for Dr. McNair, and he felt sure that all Rotarians would wish him every success on the Coast.

Dr. McNair, in saying farewell, declared he had heartily enjoyed his association with the Peterboro Rotary Club, and any contribution he had made to Rotary service. He wished the club the best of luck in its activities.

Rotarian Lou Potvin gave a detailed report of the crippled children's work as it had been dealt with at the Hamilton gathering. He told of the reports presented by the Woodstock and Stratford clubs, as to their work in this department and touched on points that might be of service to the local organization. The speaker also dealt with the proposed Ontario Crippled Children's Association, which was intended to function along the lines of the New York State organization.

Rotarian Jas. Hamilton took up the Boy's Week idea, and explained its objects and related the programme that had been sucessfully carried out by many Rotarian clubs. He hoped that next year the Peterboro club would be able to arrange a Boys' Week programme.

President Seels named Rotarians A. L. Killaly, Jas. Hamilton and Harry Thompson as a committee to co-operate with the Kiwanis club in arranging entertainment features for the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition in aid of the Health Association.

Children Of Lake Prove Love Stronger Than Paris.

"I was a child and she was a child,
In the Kingdom by the seas;
"But we loved with a love that was more than a love,
I and my Annabel Lee."

MR. AND MRS. RALPH THOMPSON.

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 4.—Flickering moon beams on the waters of Lake Michigan carry a message of love to a little cottage near the shore.

Wherein waits a 16-year-old wife, an expectant mother, living a sequel to Poe's immortal "Annabel Lee."

And the moon never beams without bringing her dreams. Dreams of her 20-year-old husband, Ralph Thompson, who has been convicted of a perjury charge in connection with his obtaining the marriage license which united them in wedlock.

They were married more than a year ago when his wife was barely 15. Then a brief honeymoon in a cottage under the very shadow of the coast guard tower, where Thompson, a coast guard, was on duty.

Then Thompson was arrested. It appears that he had sworn that his wife was 16 when the marriage license was issued.

His wife's mother, standing beside him, had listened without objection. The girl had told him she was 16.

But upon the testimony of the Muskegon County Clerk, who testified Thompson had given the girl's age over th etelephone as 14 years and then secured the license without him being recognized as the same man that had telephoned, Thompson was convicted.

Thompson has distinguished himself as a member of the coast guard and is in line for promotion. He was awarded a State bonus for his work as a guard, having saved four persons from drowning at the risk of his own life.

A little home is soon to be his own. But if the Supreme Court rules against him he will lose all.

"If they send you to prison, dear, I will be waiting for you no matter how many years it takes," his child-wife has promised again and again.

Both Thompson and his wife have been children of the lake. His father was a commercial fisherman on South Manitou Island, where he spent his boyhood.

His wife also is the daughter of a fisherman, having been rocked in a boat at the cradle age.

Thompson, the descendant of the ancient Vikings, takes his trouble philosophically. "Did you ever read "Annabel Lee?" he asks, then quotes:

"I was a child and she was a child,
In the Kingdom by the sea;
But we loved with a love that was more than a love,
I and my Annabel Lee;
With a love that the winged seraphs of Heaven
Coveted her and me."

AID FROM STATES MAY SOON CEASE

U. S. Ambassador Fears Cessation Unless Peace Based on Good Will.

LONDON, May 4. — The new United States Ambassador, Alanson B. Houghton, speaking to-night before a distinguished audience here which included the premier of Great Britain, declared that unless peace based on good will were re-established in Europe, he feared the assistance of the United States in the reconstruction of Europe must cease. He referred not only to moral but monetary aid.

Special significance was attached to the fact that his statement comes at a time when considerable suspicion and distruct of Germany is being expressed in various parts of Europee, particularly in France, because of the election to the presidency of Field Marshall Hindenburg who is said in some quarters to represent the reactionary forces.

As guest of honor of the Pilgrim's club, Mr. Houghton was making his maiden speech as the new Ambassador.

COMPLETION OF THE HUDSON BAY RAILWAY AS GRAIN ROUTE TO SEA DEMANDED BY WESTERN MEMBERS

Natural Outlet of the Middle West Declares Progressive In Pressing Appeal.

FAITH TO SETTLERS.

Four-fifths of Work Already Done, the Argument of R. A. Hoey.

OTTAWA, May 5. — (Canadian Press).—Andrew Knox (Progressive, Prince Albert) introduced in the House of Commons Monday his resolution asking that "more effective consideration and recognition be given" to the "priority of the Hudson Bay Railway with reference to other transportation projects started subsequently."

The Hudson Bay Railway, said Mr. Knox, had been under consideration in the House on more than one occasion, but with a number of other Western members, he felt that no apology need be made for introducing the matter again. They represented a large body of people who believed in the justice and reasonableness of the Hudson Bay route, who believed that the Hudson Bay "was placed where it is by an all-wise Creator for the purpose of being the agricultural outlet of the Middle West."

Mr. Knox said that many very exaggerated reports had been circulated regarding the effect of climatic conditions on the work performed some years ago on the Hudson Bay Railway. The harbor works at Fort Nelson had not been as severely damaged by ice conditions as rumor would have it. In fact, his enquiries of men on the spot had elicited the information that the harbor works were bearing up very well.

The amount of $413,000 only had been spent during 1923 and 1924, stated Mr. Knox, for the rehabilitation of that portion of the Hudson Bay Railway line over which the train runs; whereas $22,800,000 had been expended on the Welland Canal project during that period.

Distrust in the West.

"Is there any wonder that there is a feeling of distrust, and suspicion in the Prairie Provinces in regard to this matter?" asked Mr. Knox. Settlers had gone into the country with the understanding that the Hudson Bay Railway would be completed, and people already there had increased their investments on the strength of this promise. He suggested that half of this year's appropriation for the Welland Canal should be applied to the Hudson Bay project.

R. A. Hoey (Progressive, Springfield) gave the House impressions of a trip which he had made to Fort Nelson last August. They had travelled 332 miles by open gasoline-driven car. The first 214 miles of the railway were in splendid condition for traffic. The remainder of the road was not in ideal condition, but was travelled over at the rate of 30 miles an hour without inconvenience.

Mr. Hoey described the port of Nelson, where ships could lie safe behind an artificial island.

MOSCOW DIRECTING WORLD-WIDE PLOT

Joynson Hicks Says Britain Is Prepared to Combat It.

LONDON, May 5—Moscow is directing a world-wide plot to enforce Communism in every country, by violence if necessary and the British Government is prepared to fight the Red menace with every weapon, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, declared in a special statement to the Sunday Times.

"I am satisfied of the existence in Europe of a definite effort to enforce Communistic ideas and propaganda in every country, even by riot if necessary," said Sir William. "I might have said by revolution, but that is too strong a word at the moment, yet ultimately that is precisely what the Bolshevists intend. It is clearly the aim of the Communists in this country to subvert the existing order of hings. This definite object on the part of the political party, however, shall carefully be considered by the Government and myself.

"Almost daily I receive and consider reports on the Communist activities here. I feel if more people read Bolshevist literature they would be more alive to the real aim of these people. The Government is fully cognizant of the present state of affairs and will take the steps necessary for protection."

This statement from a Cabinet Minister is regarded here as an official confirmation of the Red activities and the British challenge to them.

STORY OF FRAUD TOLD IN COURT

Treasurer of Calgary Farm Journal Alleged to Have Fixed Accounts.

$4,494.19 MISSING.

CALGARY, May 5. — (Canadian Press).—How George D. R. Bond, treasurer of the Farm and Ranch Review, is alleged to have fraudulently adjusted accounts in order to steal from his employers the sum of $4,494.19 was told in police court Monday by John Renton, secretary of the company, when Bond was committed for trial at the close of the preliminary hearing on a charge of theft. The bail of $200 will stand until the defendant comes before the higher court for trial.

According to the witness, cheques were received from customers of the company in payment of advertising accounts, and these cheques were withheld from deposit in the bank, a duty which devolved upon Bond as treasurer of the company. Payments submitted to the company in cash were turned over to accused, according to witness, and he issued a memorandum to the bookkeeper to credit the accounts. He said that the cash deposits showed a shortage of $166.01, while the Crawford-Harris Advertising Agency account was shown on the books to have been indebted to the company for $3,421.08.

Witness also stated that Bond issued express money orders to himself for $660.25, and of this latter sum $150 was taken the night before he left Calgary for Winnipeg on January 31.

GOLD STANDARD PASSES HOUSE WITHOUT A VOTE

The Second Reading Went Through With Very Brief Debate.

BILL EXPLAINED.

Method of Protecting Gold Reserve by United States Credits Pointed Out.

LONDON, May 5 (Canadian Press).—The House of Commons, after a comparatively brief debate and without division, last night passed the second reading of the gold standard bill and agreed to the necessary money resolution for putting into force the Government's arrangements for restoring the gold standard.

The House had been extremely anxious to learn the details of the terms of the Government's agreement for United States credits to protect the Bank of England's gold reserve; hence the explanation of the bill given by the Right Hon. Walter Guinness, financial secretary to the treasury, showing that the country would not be liable for any interest payments unless it became necessary to utilize the United States credits, was received with great satisfaction.

These credits are for $300,000,000, the first amount to $200,000,000, being arranged with the Federal Reserve Bank, and the second, with the house of Morgan, amounting to $100,000,000. In each case the arrangement is for two years.

FARCICAL SCHEME.

To Confine Proposed Co-operative Agreement to the Passenger Service.

LONDON, May 5 (Canadian Press Cable).—The Financial News, a morning paper, Independent, alluding to suggestions made by Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, for co-operation between the government-owned railways in Canada and the Canadian Pacific Railway with a view to eliminating some of the unnecessary and costly competition between the two line, says it is plain that any such action, if it led to any material saving in expenditure, would be much more beneficial to Canadian Pacific Railway, "which the stockholders of the latter may be pardoned for regarding as a one-sided proposition."

The Financial News says further: "In this connection it is significant that a well-informed section of the Canadian public is coming round to the opinion that the government contemplates something in the nature of freezing out the Canadian Pacific Railway. The suggestion to embrace only the passenger traffic in the co-operation scheme strikes the Financial News as farcical, since there is more room for economy in the freight department."

With regard to the proposed writing down of the capital of the National Railways to the extent of the capital originally provided by the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways, the Financial Times says it is essential that the Government should come into the open with an unambiguous statement of policy. The Times refers to the treatment meted out to the junior Grand Trunk shareholders by the Government, and says if unification is decided upon, common honesty demands equitable treatment for the Canadian Pacific Railway stockholders.

NO SILVER MONEY MINTED SINCE 1923

Only Bronze and Nickel Coins Being Turned Out.

OTTAWA, May 5 (Canadian Press).—No Canadian silver coins have been minted in Ottawa since 1923. In answer to a series of questions of the Conservative member from the Yukon, in the House of Commons Monday, Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, stated that a large quantity of silver had been minted during the war and demobilization periods. There had been a sufficient supply to last until the present time.

The Mint, said Mr. Robb, had been engaged on bronze and nickel coinage and the refining of gold.

"Why is the large amount of United States silver coin now in circulation in Canada not shipped our of the country and replaced by Canadian silver coin?" asked Mr. Black.

"Trade returns for the last year show that $957,684 of silver coin was shipped out of Canada to the United States," the minister replied.

ECLIPSE SUICIDE FOUND

OTTAWA, May 5.—A body believed to be that of William J. Pirie, who committed suicide by jumping from Pooley's Bridge during the total eclispe of the sun on January 26 last, was found Monday by a boatman at Gatineau Point, three miles from the bridge.

FATHER IN PRISON ON GIRL'S PERJURY

Daughter's Falsehood Convicted Him For Cruelty of Housekeeper.

MONCTON, N.B., May 5.—(Canadian Press). — Word has been received here from Ottawa to the effect that Earl Ashe, of Painseo Junction, sentenced by Judge Crockett at Dorcester in June, 1922, to seventeen years in the penitentiary, with thirty lashes, after being convicted of cruelty, beating his young daughter, has had his sentence reduced to seven years and granted temporary ticket-of-leave. The lashes were remitted soon after the conviction, as the result of representations made by Ashe's counsel and subsequent admission of the daughter that she had lied at the trial, admitting she had been beaten by the housekeeper and not her father. The case aroused much interest at the time of the trial in consequence of the marks borne by the girl evidencing great cruelty.

OTTER ROYALTY INCREASED.

QUEBEC, May 5. — (Canadian Press.)— Royalties on otter skins have been raised from $1.50 to $2.00 per skin through an order-in-council passed at the last meeting of the cabinet. Last year the dues were raised to the first mentioned figure but on the advice of officers in charge of fish and game a further rise has been recommended and granted.

Automobile Wrecked But Three Occupants Unhurt

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I., May 5.—(Canadian Press).—Dan McDonald, of Summerside, George Andrews and Ray Andrews, both of St. Eleanor's, near here, had a miraculous escape from death Monday when a freight train crashed into an automobile in which they were driving, dragged it for about fifty yards, and smashed it into pieces. Beyond a few bruises, the three men escaped injury.

GHANDI URGES INDIAN UNITY

Only Way to Freedom—Revolutionary Methods Condemned at Bengal Congress.

DISPUTE SETTLED.

CALCUTTA, India, May 5.—(Canadian Press, via Reuter's).—Differences which arose at the Bengal Provincial Congress Sunday between C. R. Das, leader of the Swarajists (home rulers) and some delegates at the congress while in committee on resolutions were composed Monday through the good offices of M. Ghandi, the former Swarajist leader. The trouble was in connection with conciliatory resolutions proposed by Das and which is thought to have been the outcome of his presidential address on May 1.

Das, in his presidential address, urged conditional co-operation with the Government of India. He coupled with his proposal a threat that if the Swarajists' offer of settlement were not responded to they must continue to make the work of the administration impossible and be prepared for ultimate disobedience.

Ghandi yesterday alluded to Das' speech and said Das could not hurl defiance at the British Throne. They had to admit, Ghandi said, the present incapacity of the Swarajists to govern. He added that freedom could be attained only by Hindu-Moslem unity, the removal of the "untouchability" of caste, and the adoption of the spinning wheel.

The congress ultimately adopted resolutions condemning revolutionary methods.

HEAVY VOTE AT ST. CATHARINES

New Alderman Doubled the Vote of Any Other Candidate.

JACOB SMITH MAYOR.

ST. CATHARINES, May 5 (Canadian Press).—Balloting at the special election yesterday, made necessary by the recent investigation into the election last December, was heavier than at any previous municipal contest in St. Catharines' history, the feature being the vote accorded A. B. Coombs, former principal of the Collegiate Institute, who more than doubled the vote of any other candidate. He is the only alderman elected without previous experience. Dr. McMahon and H. M. Gadsby, two of the aldermen elected last December, against whom proceedings were threatened prior to the investigation, were defeatd. Aldermen re-elected were F. C. McCordick, R. B. Johnston, Charles Taylor, Frank Wilson, Walter Westwood and J. D. Wright.

The other two elected, W. D. Hills and James Dakers, served in the council in 1924. Jacob Smith's majority over Joseph Rodgins for mayor was 809.

FORTY PER CENT. OF WHEAT SOWN, SOME SPROUTED

Progress Considerably Ahead of Last Year in Prairie Provinces, C.P.R. Reports.

RETARDED BY RAIN.

Seeding Completed in Manitoba Except on Low-Lying, Wet Land.

WINNIPEG, May 5 (By Canadian Press) — Approximately forty per cent of wheat seeding has been completed throughout the prairie provinces and while rains and unsettled weather conditions have somewhat retarded work on the land, the headway already made is considerably in advance of last year, according to the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway Agricultural Department, issued Monday.

Seeding of coarse grains has progressed less favorably with an average for the three provices, placed at fifteen per cent of the total acreage.

A number of points report early sown wheat from two to three inches above the ground. With the soil in excellent condition, considerable breaking is in progress. Substantial increase in acreage under sweet clover is expected in all the provinces, while corn and sunflower will be more extensively grown in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

In many districts throughout Manitoba, seeding is entirely completed but in low-lying areas, the ground still is too moist to permit resumption of operations. Winter rye, sown on plowed land was almost a total failure, while that which was drilled in on stubble after cutting came through the winter practically unharmed.

Rye Suffered

With abundant moisture reported from all points in Saskatchewan there has been no soil drifting this year. Like elsewhere on the prairies work has principally been confined to high land. Considerable winter killing of rye is reported from the central parts of the province.

Favorable progress has been made with seeding in southern and central Alberta. In the north, cold weather has delayed work. The land, however, everywhere is in splendid shape. Wire worms have made their appearance in the Empress district, on heavy land that has been seeded and where the crop is above the ground.

Seeding operations have been resumed at a number of points along the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway and will be general over the whole territory this week.

Frost On Coast

Despite nightly frosts, damage to the fruit crop in British Columbia has been slight, although some damage to fruit trees is reported from the Creston district. Fall crops are looking well with the exceptions of scattered points, where the wheat was winter killed. In some instances the farmers lost their entire crop.

"DUMB" BEGGAR TALKS.

Had Permits to Beg From Many Ontario Towns.

CALGARY, May 5. — (Canadian Press).—"I guess you have me boys." These were the first words spoken in the city by Albert Sells, when Inspector Richardson interrupted his application for a beggar's card at police headquarters here on Monday on the plea that he had been deaf and dumb for two years. Sells held beggar cards issued by practically every town in Ontario and throughout the West.

WEATHER

Lowest temperature last night, 33 degrees; very close to the freezing point. Apparently the open season for straw hats is not yet here, and overcoats are still in daily use. However human nature is never satisfied and probably soon we will hear the remark "How dreadfully warm it is!" "What an awful hot day!" and memory will wander back to the present cool days, with an appreciation then that is not exhibited now.—W.P.

NOTED SWIMMER COMES TO CITY

George H. Corson Will Instruct Boys of Peterborough in Art.

AT Y.M.C.A.

The local branch of the Y.M.C.A. is inaugurating a "Learn to Swim Week" during the week, commencing May 18 and to make the plan successful has secured the services of Captain George H. Corsan as instructor.

George H. Corsan is the world's greatest swimming instructor. He is the author of "At Home in the Water," recognized as the finest test book on swimming yet written. He is the swimming instructor for the International committee of the Y.M.C.A. He trained the St. Louis and Chicago life guards and has taught over 250,000 men, women and children to swim. His work has extended to Great Britain and the continent.

Captain Corsan will teach the following stroke: Crawl stroke, side stroke (underarm), side stroke (overarm), breast stroke, flutter kick on back, sculling, frog kick, and crawl on back. These are the most popular strokes with the average swimmer and this repertoire insures him absolute safety under almost any condition that may arise while in the water.

Captain Corsan believes that everyone can learn who still have the use of their arms and legs, and he works on that principle, but he has also taught returned soldiers minus a leg or an arm, the useful art. This instructor holds that the fundamentals of swimming are based entirely on the breathing and when one has mastered this exercise success and confidence is assured.

The list of the schedule of the classes at the Y.M.C.A. will be published later. The officials at the "Y" plan to not only teach their members how to swim, but also nonmembers. Classes for this purpose will be arranged. They are also trying to make it possible that the youngsters of the Public schools will be able to take full advantage of the benefit of such fine instructing as Captain Corsan will give.

The officials at the "Y" say: "Learn to swim while Captain Corsan is here; it will be your one great opportunity and it will be your own fault if you don't."

NEW RECORD FOR A KILMARNOCK BURNS

An American Pays $8,750 for Uncut Copy of Edition.

A superb and entirely uncut copy of the Kilmarnock edition of Burns' ("Poems Chiefly in the Scottish Dialect"), printed by John Wilson, of Kilmarnock, Scotland, in 1786, realized $8,750, the highest sum yet recorded, at the famous salerooms of Messrs. Southeby in London, England. In original blue-grey wrappers, a condition in which only four or five copies are known, this copy, which rivals the splendid impression in the Burns Cottage Museum, Alloway—it cost the authorities $5,000—belonged to a Mr. Alexander Miller, who travelled south to witness what proved to be a keen and fruitful competition.

Mr. Sabin, son of the dealer who in 1898 fared to Edinburgh and at the then unheard-of price of 545 guineas secured the A. C. Lamb copy of the Kilmarnock volume in pristine state, started the bidding at $1,500. Moreover, it was he who made the penultimate offer of $8,500 which preceded Dr. Rosenbach's conquering one of $8,550, at which figure the precious volume goes to America.

A Wise Purchase.

It seems to be generally conceded that this copy was more to be desired than some others that had come under the hammer in the past. An expert, writing on the subject, however, remarks that few of the experts appear to have handled the magnificent Veitch copy, bought, wisely as after events have abundantly proved, by the Trustees of the Cottage Museum at Alloway, at $5,000 in 1903.

Of the Kilmarnock edition of the "Poems" 612 copies were printed for publication at 75 cents each. Of these, 350 were subscribed for before publication, and by August 28, 1786, about a month later, only 13 copies remained. Burns thereupon received $100. In the 50's an uncut copy in original wrappers was picked up by James Stillie for 25 cents. He was more fortunate than Payne Collier, who in 1832 failed on first passing Cornish's shop in Lincoln's Inn to pick up at 43 cents a fine copy in pristine state. On returning from his walk he found to his chagrin that it had disappeared.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL SAT THROUGH FOUR HOUR SESSION

Engaged Assistant Policeman and Purchased a New Road Roller.

BIG GALLERY.

New Signs at Town Limits Will Be Up To Date and Grammatical.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4.—Sitting in regular session for four straight hours last night, the town council passed two important measures—the engaging of an assistant policeman at a salary of $1,000 a year and the purchase of a combined road roller and scraper at a cost of $5,920. Public order is to be maintained in Campbellford, and at last something is to be done to improve the streets of the town. The interest taken by the citizens in both these questions was evidenced by the fact that a large gathering of spectators sat throughout the entire proceedings until the council adjourned at midnight.

A. V. Light, of Dorland, was the choice of the council for the position of night watchman, or assistant policeman, out of a list of nearly sixty applicants. The police committee, of which Reeve Davidson is chairman, had out of this list selected eight of the most likely candidates and the applications of these were read by Clerk McGregor. Among them was one from a local man, Hilton J. White, who asked a salary of $75 a month. The figures submitted by the others ranged from $1,000 to $1,500 a year and all except White have had police experience in the old country. Some of the applicants gave their physical dimensions and weight, the heaviest man in the bunch owning up to 275 pounds avordupois.

Two Members Absent.

Mayor Meyers was away, and Reeve Davidson presided. The seat of Councillor Moore was also vacant. Both of these had put themselves on record at a former meeting as opposed to engaging another policeman, so that at the session last night, Councillor Cole stood alone in opposition to further outlay. There was no debate to speak of. As soon as the eight applications had been read it looked as if Light was the favorite, and Councillor Kingston and Deputy Reeve Palliser moved that he be given the position. The motion was supported by the mover and seconder and by Councillors Wiggins, Southworth and Abernethy. Reeve Davidson, without calling for the negatives, declared the motion carried, but Councillor Cole stated after the meeting that he was opposed to the appointment of Light or any other man.

The New Policeman.

A. V. Light, according to the description of himself given in his application, was nine years on police duty in England. He resigned on the breaking out of the Great War and enlisted, serving four years at the front. Upon his discharge he was appointed custodian of some Government works, and held this position until the property was sold. He settled in this country on June 6th last. He is six feet one inch in height, is married, and has three children.

To Report June 1st.

The new officer will be required to report for duty on June 1st. A. J. Beavis, who was appointed about a year ago to collect the poll and dog tax, and to see that the town by-laws were enforced, will retire from that position, and Chief Brown will now take over these duties. The abolition of these offices will mean a saving of about $40 a month, so that the new policeman will really not cost the taxpayers more than $516 a year, or less than half a mill on their assessments.

Buying a Roller.

The greater part of the session was given up to hearing salesmen for various types of road machinery and new kinds of paving material. D. W. Douglas introduced a representative of the Wehr Company of Toronto, who sell a scarifier that is drawn by a Ford tractor for which Mr. Douglas is the local agent. The price of this combination is $2092 and the company offered to give a demonstration before asking the town to purchase it.

William Taylor spoke on behalf of Amesite paving, and A. H. Alfsen manager of the Toronto branch of the J. I. Case Company, made a long address advertising the merits of the roller and scarifier manufactured by that company. He claimed that a scarifier was of little benefit without a roller and that the latter was essential in case any paving were done.

Mr. Douglas contended that a scarifier was needed every year while a roller could be used whenever required. However he was in favor of paving even if taking up that work meant to him the loss of the sale of a machine.

Committee's Report.

Councillors Cole and Abernethy of the committee on roads and bridges who went to Toronto last week to ascertain on what terms road machinery could be secured reported that they had seen a demonstration of the Case outfit and that the work done was entirely satisfactory.

Councillor Cole moved and Councillor Abernethy seconded a motion to purchase a Case roller and scarifier and A. J. Wood, who was in the audience, speaking from his experience as an engineer, said that a roller was required if any paving work was to be undertaken.

Purchase Is Legal

The price of the machine is $5920, the price of the scarfier alone being $900. Town Solicitor Lynch said he had looked into the law and gave it as his opinion that the Council could issue five year debentures to pay for the outfit. It would not be necessary to submit the question to a vote of the taxpayers but the approval of the municipal and railway board of the debenture issue would be necessary to make the issue legal.

Councillors Southworth and Wiggins moved in amendment that the purchase of a roller be left in abeyance until the return of Mayor Meyers who could call a special meeting to take the matter up.

The amendment was lost, the mover and seconder only supporting it and the purchase of the roller was decided upon, Deputy Reeve Palliser, Councillors Kingston, Cole and Abernethy voting in the affirmative.

The new machine is a 10 ton affair and its working weight is 25,500 pounds. Mr. Alfsen stated that it could be loaded today so that its delivery in Campbellford will soon be made and the work of improving the streets will be begun in earnest.

The Playgrounds.

Deputy-Reeve Palliser submitted the report of the special committee recommending that the lot in the rear of the Jail be filled up as a playground for children and that some swings and benches be provided.

It had also been proposed to fit up a playground in the rear of the Armories for the children of the west side, but the Deputy-Reeve regretted to say that Major J. M. Bygott was opposed to this, as he thought the location was not a proper place for children, although he had no objection to having the grounds at the Armories used as a public park for older people. The report was adopted.

D. A. McCook asked that the Council build the bridge across the creek at Inkerman and Simpson Street; a work that had been promised over two years ago. Reeve Davidson informed him that the bridge would have been put up last summer but for unforeseen expenditures that could not be avoided.

New Auto Signs.

Deputy-Reeve Palliser made a plea for new signs at the town limits on the roads leading into the town. The signs now up carry the legend, "Go slow; speed limit 15 miles." Auto tourists have no idea of the name of the town through which they are passing, but they must imagine a place dead if it insisted that 15 miles was the speed limit when everybody knew it was 20 miles.

Councillor Kingston's academic instincts were harrowed by the grammatical error in the request, "Go slow," and said that strangers reading it would never think there was a good High School in Campbellford.

Deputy-Reeve Palliser, Councillors Wiggins and Southworth were appointed a committee to prepare new signs.

WHAT THE COUNBIL DID

Engaged an assistant policeman for night duty at a salary of $1,000 a year.

Purchased a J. I. Case combined road roller and scarifier at a cost of $5,920.

Agreed to extend the sidewalk on Maple Street to a new house belonging to Henry Redden, and referred to Town Solicitor Lynch Mr. Redden's offer to put in a sewer at his own expense if the town provided the necessary pipe.

Adopted report of special committee recommending that the lot in the rear of the town jail be converted into a playground for children, swings to be put up and benches provided.

Appointed special committee to secure new signs to be placed at the town limits on the various roads leading into Campbellford as a guide to auto tourists.

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

COMPLETION OF THE HUDSON BAY RAILROAD ETC.

were not asking for the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway, they were asking that 92 miles of rails and ties be laid from Kettle Rapids to Nelson, over which line grading was already done. Mr. Hoey would not advocate the spending of any considerable sum on the harbor. He would invite the tramp steamers of the world to come there on the promise of an unlimited amount of trade, if they could prove the navigability of the straits, and, as trade developed, the harbor itself would develop. The Paterson Company of Fort William was prepared to construct an elevator at Nelson on the completion of the line. "I look upon the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway as the challenge of the northland for due recognition," said Mr. Hoey.

If the Hudson Bay Railway project was being launched to-day, stated Mr. Hoey, he might hesitate to endorse it in view of Canada's position. But since four-fifths of this work had been completed, he considered that it should be completed.

The people of Canada were not prepared to leave this matter in abeyance while $100,000 a year was being spent on golf courses, and expenditures were being effected for the construction of a bridge across the St. Lawrence at Montreal. There were a few men in Parliament in which he still had faith, notwithstanding the "demoralizing experience through which we have passed during the last few days." One of these was the Minister of Railways and Canals, to whose announcement he looked forward with considerable confidence.

Great Economic Issue.

W. J. Ward (Progressive, Dauphin) said the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway scheme was "the greatest economic and financial issue facing Western Canada." He considered that if a plebiscite was taken in Western Canada to-day, there were whole sections "where sixty or seventy per cent. of the people would vote for secession." He regretted the defeat of the reciprocity agreement in 1911, and the stopping of work on the Hudson Bay line by the former Government. Mr. Ward wondered if Eastern members appreciated the extent to which the solvency of Western Canada depended to-day on the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway.

Mr. Ward was reading a quotation when he was interrupted by A. R. MacMaster (Liberal, Brome) who enquired for the name of the gentleman whose remarks were being read to the House. Mr. Ward replied that he was quoting a speech made some years ago by Hon. Frank Oliver, former Minister of Interior in the Laurier administration.

"That was a good Government," remarked Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals.

"They have been living on their reputation ever since," interjected Robert Forke, Progressive leader.

If wheat could be gotten to European markets two weeks earlier, stated Mr. Ward, it would assist the Western farmer. He considered the statement that the Hudson Straits were only navigable for three months of the year, was preposterous.

Save Money For West.

The Minister of Railways might have foregone the expenditure on the Welland Canal this year and spent the money on the Hudson Bay Railway, said Mr. Ward. It could be proved that Western Canada lost from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 a year because the Hudson Bay Railway was not completed. The expenditures made by the Government on harbors last year were unjustified in view of the demand of Western Canada for the 90c outlet for grain. If the Prime Minister had the interests of Confederation at heart, he would have something in the supplementary estimates this year for work on the Hudson Bay Railway.

W. J. Lovie (Progressive, MacDonald) advocated the early construction of the Hudson Bay Railway. He did not believe that Port Nelson "had been put in the heart of the American Continent by the Almighty for nothing." The carrying out of this work would provide a shorter haul for wheat to Europe, and would be of immense value to the farmers of the Western Provinces.

Competes With St. Lawrence.

G. W. Stewart (Progressive, Humboldt) declared that the people of the Prairie Provinces expected that a reasonable amount of money expended in public works would be apportioned to the Hudson Bay project. He pointed out that the St. Lawrence route had cost millions of dollars, and had taken a great many years to develop. Shortly after Confederation, he stated, the route was considered a "perilous highway," according to an official report. It had been the use of modern navigation aids, contended Mr. Stewart, that had made the St. Lawrence route a safe highway, and he believed that the utilization of similar means would place the Hudson Bay route in a very favorable condition to compete with the St. Lawrence.

A. R. MacMaster (Liberal, Brome) said he would like to know before considering a proposal to spend a great deal more money on the Hudson Bay route just how many weeks in the year the Hudson Strait was safe for navigation, and how much it would cost annually to dredge out the silt at Port Nelson to keep the harbor navigable. He had been told that the season of navigation was sometimes only six weeks, and was never more than three months.

W. Duff, of Lunenburg, interjected that it was not three days.

A Political Football.

Mr. MacMaster presumed that the Hudson Bay project was a political football; it had been kicked about by both the old parties, and now the Progressives were kicking it.

Economy should be the first consideration of Parliament, and rather than seeking new outlets to the eastward, the proper thing to do was to increase the facilities for moving grain through Pacific ports.

L. P. Bancroft (Progressive, Selkirk) reviewed the progress of the work on the Hudson Bay Railway up to 1918, when operations were mysteriously stopped and orders were even given to tear up the rails. It was the general impression in the West that certain big interests, fearing the completion of the Hudson Bay route, had brought pressure to have the work called off. Since that time there had been a campaign of false and misleading articles carried on in newspapers of Eastern Canada for the purpose of destroying confidence in the project. Other expenditures made last year on harbors and canals might well have been devoted to the Hudson Bay route with great advantage to Canada. Mr. Bancroft quoted numerous authorities on the feasibility of the route.

Western Sentiment Solid.

The people of Western Canada were practically a unit, stated Mr. Bancroft, in supporting the completion of this railway. Boards of Trade and other organizations of the Western Provinces had also passed resolutions, pressing for the completion of this enterprise.

J. J. Hughes (Liberal, Kings) believed that the scheme was "commercially speaking, impracticable." The sand formation, he stated, at the mouth of the Nelson River was very similar to that at the mouth of the Mersey. It took three dredges, working 24 hours a day, to keep the channel clear leading to the Mersey River, and it would take many more to keep the mouth of the Nelson River clear for navigation.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

CROSSING TO STATES.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: I have read in your paper of May 1st the article re the quota law of the United States. I think it is a splendid idea to have it printed so that it may come from the proper authorities. As for one I did not know who to ask. What has been said as far as I can see is only for those who are British-born, who want to take up residence in the States. But if a person who is British-born and has lived in Canada all his life, has relatives living in Detroit, who wishes to spend a month's vacation, returning to Canada, will he be debarred from so doing?

I know one case where a man is in a good business; he has relatives in Detroit; his intentions were to spend a few weeks with them this summer. But by birth he is an Englishman, although he has lived here all his life.

Now, will he be stopped at the line under this new law? As there is no doubt whatever but that he will return to his business what papers will he have to have to be able to satisfy the officer at the line?

If this question were answered I think it would add much more to the benefit of the public. Thanking you.

A Reader of your Paper.

A letter from the Mayor or Alderman, or some person of recognized authority, together with the birth certificate, should be sufficient in crossing to the States for a short stay.

BOUQUET FOR COUNCIL

Editor of Examiner,—Please allow me to say a few words on Daylight Saving. I notice by your account in Examiner that there was a majority of 511 against the measure by the individual votes cast in the Examiner ballot box. As the factory votes were taken separately and previous to the other votes I don't see why they should be included in the straw vote. I hope our worthy City Council will think well before they put this measure in force. I also noted that 274 farmers have said decidedly that they would cease dealing in Peterboro if the measure came in force. I think it is a great mistake for merchants to drive the country trade from Peterboro.

I have every confidnce in our aldermen and hope they will leave this measure alone this year and give the people a chance to vote on it next January.

A legal vote taken on Daylight Saving will satisfy all the people and nothing short of this will prove satisfactory.

Yours truly
AGAINST.

The sale of home cooking was in charge of Misses Agnes Moore, and Beatrice Baker; candy, Misses Dorothy Peckett, Evelyn Pettifer and Eva Moore; sewing, Misses Ivy Ray, Lillian Poulton; autograph quilt booth, Misses Florence Lambert and Frances Pettifer.

A most interesting part of the sale was the exhibit of some of the work being done by the children, including a beautiful quilt done in red and white, a beautiful design being embroidered on each white block. This, with other work, will be sent to the annual meeting of the Diocesan Women's Auxiliary to be held in Toronto on May 11.

The result of the sale reflects much credit upon the superintendents, Mrs. (Rev.) G. Clark, and Mrs. Harry Moore, who devote so much of their time to the training of the girls whose ages range between seven and fourteen years.

MADE-IN-PETERBORO.

Those fine service organizations, the Rotary and Kiwanis, are rallying to the Peterboro Health Association's standard, assuming the responsibility for providing the entertainment features in connection with the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition.

That is a guarantee that the public can look forward to something original and amusing in the programmes that will be offered.

Gratifying it is, too, to be able to state that the manufacturers of the city are co-operating enthusiastically in planning for the event.

A made-in-Peterboro exhibition has always been a hobby with the Examiner.

We have never been able to shake off the impression that our people do not know nearly enough about our industries and the products they turn out.

One of our flour mills has had the honour of taking part in the biggest flour transaction on record.

In fact, our industries are always doing that sort of thing, and we fail as a community to interest ourselves in their exploits.

We want to let the idea sink in that the finest canoes and alarm clocks and rolled oats and flour and carpets and electrical appliances and brake linings and fine paper and cream separators in the world, and a hundred other articles, are made right here at home.

Perhaps this Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition will arouse us and make us see just what a big toad we are in the industrial puddle.

4.4 AND LOCAL OPTION.

The Township Council of North Gorner in Carleton County has passed an unanimous resolution calling upon the representative of the riding in the Legislature to use all his influence to prevent the sale of 4.4 beer within the township.

There should be no need of such resolutions.

In every riding there are districts that have long been under local option.

Members of the Legislature, if the matter is left to their judgment, as apparently it is, are not likely to recommend that permits for the sale of beer in such districts should be granted.

No matter how the stronger beer experiment turns out, there is no necessity for selling the beverage at every cross-road.

It would be far better kept out of sections that have been bone dry for years, inasmuch as its sale there would be an affront to many people, while others more thirstily inclined would not be seriously handicapped if local option conditions were continued as the beer would be available for home consumption in any case.

The whole thing is but a test, and it should be given an opportunity under the most favourable conditions to prove that it is, as its originators claim, an improvement over the Ontario Temperance Act.

The member who views his responsibilities seriously will see that such conditions are provided.

GASOLINE PUMPS.

The Kingston Aldermen have decided that no more permits will be issued for the erection of gasoline pumps on the streets, and that an annual tax of $20 be charged for each pump now in use.

More power to them!

Similar action is very badly needed in Peterboro.

There are too many gasoline pumps here, even the business section having been invaded.

The city fathers worked for years to get telephone and telegraph poles off the principal streets, and finally succeeded.

Now the thoroughfares are becoming cluttered up with pumps, a little more ornamental perhaps than the wooden poles, but just about as much of a nuisance and an obstruction.

They may be a convenience to some people, of course, but so would a lot of other things that we do not allow on the street.

Kingston has adopted the right plan of refusing to allow any more pumps to be erected and of clapping a tax on those in existence.

Better still, of course, both in Kingston and everywhere else, would have been a firm attitude from the start that the streets had to be kept free from such obstructions.

THE MOTOR'S TOLL.

There were 19,000 people killed by automobiles in the United States last year, and the injured list from the same cause totalled 450,000.

The motor car is fast becoming as menacing as war in the casualties it causes, and the figures of last year's accidents across the border should bring drivers everywhere up with a round turn.

The automobiling season is beginning to reach its heighth—what can be done by motorists individually and motor organizations to stop this awful toll of death and suffering?

The week-end list is appalling.

Here are a few headings taken at random from a daily of yesterday:

"Party of dancers run down by auto."
"Touring car plunged over bridge."
"Two boys killed in auto accident."
"Four people hurt in Sunday traffic."
"Automobile driver takes wild course."
"Motor cars figure in minor accident."

There were others, doubtless, but these are enough to show how necessary it is that motorists at all times, of course, but especially on Sundays when the roads are black with motor traffic, should exercise care and judgment in the handling of their machines.

Half a million people were killed or maimed last year—the majority as a result of carelessness either on their part or of somebody else.

It is too big a price to pay even for the pleasure there is in automobiling, and unless the motorists themselves remedy the conditions the problem will have to be faced with more and more drastic regulations.

The pickerel season introduces the man who rocks the boat. And the worse of it is that the water is still at winter temperature.

THE PRINCE WINS.

The sun that burst through the mists at Capetown to shine upon the landing of the Prince of Wales was the happiest augury that could have been desired, says the Montreal Star. There had been ugly whispers from time to time during his progress through West Africa that plans were afoot for antagonistic demonstrations in the South. Political talk in which the word "secession" played a wholly exaggerated part tended to accentuate the uneasiness some people felt. But those who know the magic of the Prince's personality were confident all the time that the shadow would never be seen.

The event proved the optimists correct. Capetown, staid city of a hundred silences, outdid itself in the demonstrative character of the welcome it gave to this slim young man who will one day wear the crown of his ancestors and sit in the place of Kings. It seems almost as if our Prince carries with him some mysterious power of appeal that makes all men willingly his champions. Whatever the truth—and that his winning personal manner, his all-comprehending courtesy, and his unfailing graciousness play no small part it would be idle to deny—the fact remains that the Prince has won Capetown, as he won Montreal, as he won New York, as he has won every big capital he has visited since he came to young manhood.

And these demonstrations are not ephemeral only. There is behind them a solid foundation of loyalty. The welcome of these citizens to the Prince is a manifestation of the most pleasing and heartening significance, coming at a time when their Premier has just given voice to a frank declaration concerning the mischievousness of secession talk. It seems the Prince of Wales is still the Empire's most potent Ambassador for all that makes for solidarity and for faith in its future. Long may he continue to walk abroad among the peoples of that Empire and continue his invaluable work. With Prince's luck at Capetown, where is there any shadow in the sky today?

FACTS ARE FACTS AND TAXES ARE TAXES.

Sir Henry Thornton, appearing before a gathering of newspaper men in Toronto this week, advocated a policy of co-operation between the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways, with the aim of eliminating waste and improving the financial condition of both systems. This was the alternative to amalgamation, as offered by the President of the Canadian National. Sir Henry said:

"The policy of the C. N. R. is that some steps should be taken toward the elimination of the deficits and meeting the fixed charges and it seems to me that it is within the mind of man to imagine that some middle course may be taken, through co-ordination, which will achieve the object toward which we are working."

The newspaper report of Sir Henry's speech adds:

"So far as the present was concerned, Sir Henry made it plain that attention must be centred upon the co-operation which was now under way between the C. N. R. and the C. P. R. with the view of eliminating waste lines and waste service. But, at the same time, he also made it plain that while E. W. Beatty, President of the C. P. R., and he were both anxious to work out some system by which the waste would be cut out, there was no hope that either system would rush into anything overnight."

The Border Cities Star has a great admiration for Sir Henry Thornton, as an able man, as a railway executive, as a good citizen. There is no person for whom this paper has a higher regard. But—and it is a large but—the Star finds itself unable to agree with Sir Henry in his latest statement regarding the solution of Canada's railway problem. Facts are facts and taxes are taxes. Deficits are real or they aren't deficits. Deficits cost real money—the money of the taxpayers of Canada.

"Co-operation for the elimination of waste" sounds agreeable, but in this case it doesn't mean much. As long as we have the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific running as separate and competitive roads, we are going to have a deficit. The only thing that will stop the latter is a tremendous rush of newcomers to this country and an equally tremendous increase of business for the railroads. And even the most optimistic are unable to see any great influx of newcomers and capital in the near future. There will be a growth but not enough to materially affect the Canadian National situation.

The report of Sir Henry's Toronto speech says further:

"He (Sir Henry) went on to point out that the position of the Nationals was no different from that of every one of the United States lines west of the Mississippi during the period after the Civil War. For there was not a line in that territory that did not pass through the hands of one, or two, or three receivers. Those lines, he stated, went through the stage which the Canadian lines were now experiencing and he felt the end must be the same. They succeeded in the end, when population and trade increased; and so must the Nationals."

But, may we ask Sir Henry, who made up the losses when these Western American lines were in the doldrums? Did the Government of the United States collect an income tax and sink the whole amount—plus other millions—in the paying of these railway deficits?

If you pay income tax—and if you weren't late—you sent or handed your cheque to the Government yesterday. It may have been a large amount or it may have been small, but did you stop to consider that every five-cent piece represented in that bit of paper went to pay the deficit on the Canadian National for last year and that all the nickels and dimes and dollars represented in all the cheques turned in yesterday will be used for the same purpose, and that the total amount likely to be collected will not be sufficient to meet that deficit? And did you stop to think, also, that your cash and your neighbor's cash and the cash of everyone else, as paid in income tax, is thus practically wasted because it brings no definite improvement to the country? It is simply good money sent after bad and it will continue to be that way unless our public men are courageous enough to take a stand and say that the drain on our nation must be stopped.

Think of it! The Canadian National's loss is estimated at $147,945 a day, or more than $6,000 an hour! Canada cannot afford it.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The entire Province of Quebec has officially adopted daylight saving this year—for the first time on a general basis. Evidently the rural opposition is not so strong in the lower Province.

Attorney-General Nickle evidently meant what he said when he declared that the new beer was going to be put in the front window.

It looks as if the W. C. T. U. is going to be foiled. Grocers are not applying for beer permits, so there will be no boycotting to be done.

A THOUGHT.

IN EXILE.

Who would have thought a little field,
A patch of green where skies are wide,
A steep lane up a valley, and Smoke curling upward from beside
Five lonely trees in that steep part,
Could stir much sadness in the heart?

Who would have thought a little field,
A far-off road, a far-off lane,
A far-off cottage, could in time
Wake far-off thoughts with so much pain:
Wake far-off thoughts so hard to stem,
A man might fear to think of them?

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 4.—Something hit the cattle market this morning. The first crack was at the heavy export cattle, in a telegram from New York, the Schomberg interests, advising their buying agents here to "buy light," "no space," or words to that effect. The result was, of course, that the export buy was "light," about 200 or 300 cattle, and prices 25 cents lower. Quotations on the heavy cattle were, in fact, $7.50 to $8, but only one or two loads at the higher figure. On top of it all there was a very heavy run of over 5,600 cattle, besides 500 billed through. For the rest, trade opened very slow, and a big holdover was in view. A few choicest butcher sold about steady, top at $7.75. Baby beeves were steady. Medium butcher easier and lower.

Calves, 50c to $1 lower.

Sheep and lambs steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 4.—Decided upturns in the value of wheat took place today largely on account of sharp curtailment of the United States visible supply total and of the amount of wheat on ocean passage. At the same time there was somewhat of a flurry in rye. May delivery advancing 11 1-2 cents. The wheat market closed firm, 2 to 3 3-4 cents net higher, May $1.61 1-2 to $1.62, and July $1.53 1-4 to $1.53 1-2, with corn ranging from 5-8 cent decline to 1-2 cent advance; oats 1-4 to 3-4 cent up, and provisions at 22 to 25 cents gain.

Nearly 7,000,000 bushels falling off was apparent in the ocean aggregate of wheat afloat. As a result, for the first time in some months, the supplies on ocean passage are smaller than at the corresponding period last year, and this circumstance, together with an unexpected rise in wheat quotations at Liverpool gave the market here an upward slant as soon as trading began. It soon grew evident also that the domestic visible supply would show a good sized decrease. Besides, there were complaints of dry weather in the spring wheat states northwest.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 4.—Owing to the sharp advance in prices recorded at Winnipeg on Saturday and the fact that exporters were obliged to raise their asking prices, the trade in cash grain in the Montreal market today was of a very limited character, there being little demand either from exporters or local buyers for supplies, but the undertone was strong and the prospects were that prices will go higher tomorrow on account of the strength that prevailed at Chicago today. There was no change in prices for car lots of oats.

There were no new developments in the local egg situation, prices for all grades being well maintained which is attributed to the fact that the competition for all offerings at producing centres continues fairly keen for storing purposes and therefore all surplus supplies over the daily consumptive requirements are being well taken care of. The demand from grocers and other dealers for small lots to meet actual wants was good and a fairly active trade was done in a wholesale jobbing way. The receipts were 2,119 cases, as compared with 1,739 for the same day last week, and 2,169 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Potato Trade Dull.

The trade in potatoes was reported dull, there being little demand from any source for supplies of which the offerings continues to be fairly liberal, but as prices are already very low there was no further change announced, and car lots of No. 1 Green Mountains were quoted at 60 cents per bag, and Quebec varieties at 50 cents per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk, ex-track.

The receipts of butter were 364 packages, as compared with 434 for the same day last week, and 1,296 for the corresponding day a year ago. The first exports from Montreal for the season 1925 were made last week, which consisted of 400 packages to Liverpool as against nil for the same week last year.

The feature of the trade was the weaker feeling that developed in the market and prices scored a decline of 1 cent per lb. which was attributed to the continued limited demand for supplies from all sources and the prospects for increased receipts in the near future. The volume of business was small. Held No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at 32 1-2 cents per lb., No. 1 creamery at 31 1-2 cents per lb., and No. 2 creamery at 30 1-2 cents per lb.

Cheese Receipts.

The receipt of cheese were 927 boxes, as against 849 for the same day last week, and 1,459 for the corresponding day a year ago. The first exports of cheese from the Port of Montreal for the season 1925 were 13,029 boxes which show an increase of 2,349 boxes, as compared with the same week last year.

In sympathy with the lower prices that prevailed at the boards throughout the country last week, and the somewhat discouraging cable advices a weaker feeling developed in the local market yesterday and prices for Western grades were reduced 3-8 cent to 1-2 cent per lb. with No. 1 white offering at 18 cents per lb., and No. 1 colored at 17 3-4 cents per lb., and No. 2 grades at 1 cent per lb. less.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

After dinner, Glory's father got up from the table and went upstairs.

Presently he came down with a dusty bottle in his hands.

"Port wine," he said, looking at ick. "I've had that bottle put away for fifteen or eighteen years. Shall we drink the bride's health . . . or her birthday, I should say?"

"This, I suppose." Dick said, before he emptied his tiny glass, "is the moment to give my wife her birthday present!"

He handed Glory a folded sheet of thick white paper.

Glory took the folded sheet of paper that Dick held out to her.

"Birthday present?" she repeated. "Why, I thought my darling little car was all the birthday present I was going to get!"

Dick laughed indulgently.

"Well, I thought I'd better give you two presents this year. Next birthday I may be too poor to give you even one," he said. "Aren't you going to take a look at my gift, Littlest?"

Glory unforded the thick crackling sheet. It was a certificate for ten shares of telephone stock. She handed it across the table to her father.

"Isn't that nice?" she asked. "The dividends from it ought to buy me a hat once in a while, don't you think?"

Mrs. Gordon looked ruefully at Dick.

"That girl and her hats!" she exclaimed. "Do you know, Dick, after Glory was married, I was looking through her clothes closet. And I found eight hats that she'd left on the closet shelf: Eight of them! Not old hats, either, but new fall ones! I fixed two of them over for myself, and gave the rest of them to the neighbors. Half the street is wearing Glory's cast-off hats this winter!"

"Well, now, Mother," Glory's father interrupted, "that was all right. You can't blame a girl for fixing herself up for her beau, can you? Dick thought he was courting Glory, but she was really courting him . . . with her hats. She was like a bird preening its feathers in mating time, that's all."

"She goes right on preening, sir," Dick said humorously. "She's bought a half dozen hats since we've been married."

"I have not!" Glory contradicted furiously. "I've had only three!"

* * *

"Dick, you make me tired with all this talk of yours on economy anyhow!" Glory reopened the subject on the way home. "All you do is preach to me that we're too poor to afford a maid, or a machine, or a few decent clothes! . . . And then you turn right 'round and buy a thousand dollars' worth of telephone stock that means absolutely nothing in my life! . . . What I want to know is how you could afford to do it if we're as poor as you say we are?"

Dick walked on in silence for several minutes.

"As a matter of fact, I couldn't afford to do it. I nearly broke my neck trying to pay for that stock," he said at last. "I borrowed part of the money from Dad. And you know I had to sell my roadster to buy you your car . . ."

"That's right, rub it in! Make me feel like a selfish pig!" Glory interrupted; "just because I want a car like every other woman in town, your own precious mother included! . . . I swear I'll never ride in the thing! You can send it back . . ."

* * *

She stood still in the street and began to cry.

"I don't believe I deserve this outburst from you, Glory," Dick said. "In fact, I know I don't. And if you want to stand here and cry . . . go ahead and do it! I'm going home. . . ."

But he didn't move. Glory knew he wouldn't.

She went on crying. Then she felt Dick's arms around her. She put her head down on his shoulder.

"You're so mean to me," she sobbed. They walked on.

"I'm so sorry you think so, sweetheart," Dick said quietly. "I suppose I shouldn't worry you about money matters, but I've been running behind lately. . . . Gosh, I hadn't figured on married life being as expensive as it is! . . . I wonder how people get along who have two or three children to feed and clothe. . . ."

"Well, that's one thing you needn't worry about . . . babies," Glory said, "because we aren't going to have any, ever!"

"Not ever?" Dick asked gravely. His hand tightened on her arm. "What's the big idea? Don't you really want children, Glory? . . . Why, you'd be the sweetest little mother in the world! . . . Why, sure, you want babies, honey!"

In the darkness Glory's eyes were hard, her lips set stubbornly.

"Don't kid yourself!" she said firmly. "Children are the very last things in the world that I want, Dick."

"You'll feel differently about it later on . . . in a year or two," he assured her. "Every woman wants a family."

"I never will!" Glory told herself, as they turned into their own street.

Aloud she said, "Let's run out to the garage and see that my car is safe and all right, before we go into the house, will you?"

She could hardly wait for Dick to open the garage doors and switch on the light. Glory walked all around the little blue car with its burnished brass trimmings shining in the electric light.

"Oh, you cute thing! I never thought I'd own anything like you!" she cried, patting the mudguards with her little gloved hands, lovingly.

* * *

By the end of the week Glory had learned to drive the car. She went Christmas shopping in it, bringing it home loaded with beribboned packages.

"You'll just perfectly kill me, Dick, when the bills come in!" Glory said one morning. "So don't buy me a Christmas present . . . just pay my bills instead, like a good sport! They aren't so awfully big."

But when the bills came in the first week in January, they were very big . . . much larger than Glory had expected. She was sure that the stores had made a mistake in them, somewhere.

She went over them again and again, with the same result. She owed exactly six hundred dollars . . . two hundred of it for Christmas gifts! Glory kept the bills in the top drawer of her desk for two days.

On th t hird day she screwed up her courage to show them to Dick.

She would take them to him at his office.

Miss Briggs would be there, of course. And Dick couldn't scold and rave about the bills in front of Miss Briggs!

. . . Glory dressed herself with great care. On the way downtown she stopped at the florist's and bought an orchid for her coat.

The windshield mirror told her that she was looking unusually lovely.

It would be much harder for Dick to quarrel with a beautiful wife who had run up $600 worth of bills, than with a plain unattractive one.

It was nice to be beautiful. It made things so much simpler!

* * *

There was no one at Miss Brigg's desk in Dick's outer office.

From the inner room came the sound of voices.

Glory sat down in Miss Briggs' swivel chair to wait.

The office was warm. After a while Glory took off her coat, and then her hat. The tight crown had left a red band on her forehead. She rubbed it gently with her finger-tips. . . .

"—and I told him that Mother and I could take care of the two older children. But I guess it's going to be too much for Mother. She's not so very well."

Miss Briggs' voice!

And what was she talking about? . . . Glory listened.

Silence for a long moment. Then Dick's voice:

"Would it help you any if I gave you a little raise—say, about $5 more a week?" he was saying. "Then you could hire a woman to help your mother out with the children."

"Of course, it would help . . . but I think you're paying me all I'm worth now, Mr. Gregory," Miss Briggs' soft voice answered. Her shadow appeared on the frosted glass pane of the door between the two offices.

Glory rose. She gathered her bills in one hand and opened the door.

Miss Briggs nodded to her, and slipped out.

"Hello, there, Rikky-Tikky-Tavy!" Glory greeted Dick cheerfully. She perched herself on the corner of Dick's desk. "You'll pardon me for breaking in on your interesting conversation with Miss Briggs . . .but I got tired waiting while she vamped some more salary from you!"

"Hush!" Dick said. He walked over and tried the handle of the door to see that it was shut tight. "She'll hear you."

"It's a good thing I caught you in this generous mood," Gloria went on with sarcasm in her voice, "because I'm calling on money matters myself!"

She laid the bills down on Dick's desk. He didn't touch them.

"I want to explain to you about Miss Briggs," he said, taking both of his wife's hands in his. "A month or two ago her sister died, leaving three little children . . . and an invalid husband. Miss Briggs and her mother took two of the children to bring up. And Miss Briggs finds they can't do it on her present salary. . . . She's a good woman, Glory . . . a fine woman!"

Glory laughed. She tossed back her bright hair.

"All homely women are good," she said. "It's only the pretty ones like May Seymour and me who run up bills and gad all day, and worry their husbands into an early grave, isn't it? . . . I know that's what you're thinking, so I'll say it for you!"

* * *

Dick picked up the bills.

"Gadzooks!" he exclaimed. Six hundred smackets!"

He opened the top drawer of his desk and took out his check book.

"Take a look at the stubs in that!" he said abruptly. "They'll give you an idea of what we're spending!"

Glory flung the little book down on the desk.

"Why should I look at your old checkbook?" she asked, hotly. "Your job is to support me . . . not to everlastingly tell me that you can't! . . ."

Two bright spots of color burned like danger signals in her cheeks.

"Other women's husbands buy them things that they want!" she stormed. "Are they so much smarter than you? Why is it that their wives can have clothes and things without fighting for them the way I have to? And then you give that Briggs woman a big raise the minute she asks you for it! . . . Oh, what's the use talking about it? There are the bills. And you'll have to pay them, that's all!"

GOOD PLAY PUT ON HAVELOCK PEOPLE

Comedy in Three Acts Drew Large Audience to the Town Hall.

HAVELOCK, May 4.—The three-act comedy play, "Back to the Country Store," which was held on Wednesday evening in the town hall under the auspices of the Young People of St. John's Anglican Church, was a very humorous entertainment. The characters taking part were exceptionally good and the large crowd which taxed the seating capacity of the hall to the limit, seemed to enjoy the comedy to the utmost.

The cast of characters is as follows: Abimelech Quigley Higginbotham, J. Smith; Mrs. Jerusha Higginbotham, Miss M. Curtis; Amariah Higginbotham, T. W. Quinn; Dudley Weatherwax, W. Bush; Miss Marguerite Van Buren, Miss M. Post; Miss Maria Judkins, Miss D. Curtis; Hiram Huckleton, Robt. Post; Mrs. Garlinger, Miss J. Anderson; Mrs. Timless, Mrs. R. Jones.

The first and third scenes were in the sitting room of the Higginbotham home and the second the interior of Huckleton's grocery store.

The leading character was Quigley Higginbotham, known as Quig, a clerk in Huckleton's grocery, who aspired to be a great singer and author. In order that his dreams might be realized he decided to go to New York to seek fame and fortune, hoping to return in a few years and win Marguerite Van Buren as his bride. After spending a year in the city he was forced to return to his home a failure. However, he was given a surprise party by his young associates who wished to welcome him back to their midst and is also offered a partnership in the country store. During the party he proposes to Miss Van Buren and is accepted.

Several selections were rendered by the Board Walk orchestra before the play commenced, and the waits between acts were made very pleasant by musical selections, consisting of piano solos and piano duets. Those taking part were: Misses J. McMaster, B. Williams, J. Anderson, M. Waymark, B. Watson, E. Anderson and Mrs. R. Brooks.

During the surprise party in the last act a short programme was also given as follows: Vocal solo, Miss M. Post; reading, Miss Leta Sanders; vocal solo, Robt. Post; recitation, Isaac Anderson; vocal solo, W. Bush; vocal solo, Miss M. Post.

SAYS ECONOMY WAS MISPLACED

Mayor Turner Thinks Little of Vaunted Fire Truck Business.

NOT RIGHT CHASSIS

Mayor Turner put the skids under Alderman Crowe's ideas of economy last night, declaring that the building of the much vaunted small fire truck was a mistake. It was alright as long as the truck went straight ahead but just as soon as it had to turn quickly the wheel fell to pieces, he said. It was not intended to stand the hard usage demanded.

A heated passage at arms between the Mayor and Alderman Crowe ended in a prognostication by each that the other would make mistakes.

The truck, which was to relieve the large apparatus in cases of chimney fires, and to replace the horse drawn hose wagon, was built by the firemen at a cost of $875. The chassis was purchased second hand.

It was the pride of the department until mortally wounded in an accident last week.

NOTES ON BOOKS

It is refreshing to note that there is a large percentage of readers in our library who are interested in books of travel. For those who find delight in this class of reading our library offers as fine facilities as can be found in any of the smaller cities of Ontario. One of the chattiest and most informing of such books is Wonders of the Himalaya, written by Sir Francis Younghusband, one of three very well-known soldier brothers, all three of whom were educated at Clifton College and rose to high positions in the military service. At the present time, the eldest brother, Sir George Younghusband is Keeper of the Jewel House, Tower of London. Whilst the memory is still fresh in our minds of the gallant attempts to scale Mt. Everest, the loftiest peak in the world, it is not out of place to mention this book as giving a vivid description of that range of mountains beyond whose confines lies the mysterious region of Thibet. Well may Sir Francis say, "Of all mountain ranges the most wonderful is the Himalaya." Those who read this book, written by one who has travelled its passes and scaled its fastnesses for forty years, will not be disappointed.

The Awakening of Italy, by Luigi Villari, deals with the rise of Fascist power in that country. It is history, pure and simple, and endeavors to make clear the causes that gave an impetus to the movement. As such it may not appeal to the lover of thrills but for the student every page will be fraught with interest as providing an insight into the workings of one of the strongest political upheavals caused by the late war. One will get a very fair knowledge also of the character of Benito Mussolino, the great dictator, one of the most interesting personalities of our time.

Adventures in Journalism, by Sir Philip Gibbs, is a very readable book and is filled with accounts of his work in Fleet Street and in the broader areas covered by his labors as a war correspondent. Gibbs was one of the most famous correspondents that the late war produced and the reader may be assured that every page of this book is worth perusal. The Saturday Review said of it: "The general impression he conveys is of the glamor and adventure of journalism. . . . We have enjoyed every page of this volume of reminiscences." After the war Gibbs spent four years in Europe studying the problems created by it. He also visited Asia Minor and America and lectured in many cities. This present book contains matter dealing with various phases of his wanderings.—F.M.D.

E. G. M'KEELEY FUNERAL DREW TOKENS ESTEEM

"I Have Fought a Good Fight," Was the Message He Left.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

Rev. M. C. Mackinnon and Rev. David McKee Conducted Burial.

The funeral of Ernest McKeeley, late city editor of The Examiner, on Saturday, testified to the high esteem in which the deceased was held in the community. The Kiwanis Club and the employees of The Examiner attended in a body and many other friends gathered to pay their tribute of respect to one who had earned the regard of all with whom he came into contact.

The impressive service at the family residence, 21 Benson Avenue, was conducted by Rev. M. C. Mackinnon, pastor of Knox Church, assisted by Rev. David McKee of Truth Mission.

In his address Rev. Mr. Mackinnon said that the message that Mr. McKeeley would leave was like that of St. Paul: "I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith."

The pall bearers were Mr. Charles Cook, president, Dr. J. J. Craig and Mr. F. H. Dawson representing the Kiwanis Club, and Messrs. J. R. Heron, H. T. Theobald and Stroyan Leith, representing The Examiner.

Interment was made at Little Lake Cemetery, a long string of motor cars forming the funeral cortege. The service at the cemetery was conducted by Rev. M. C. Mackinnon.

There were many beautiful floral tokens, showing the high regard of fellow employees, friends and business associates, including the staff of Canadian Press, Toronto.

AUTOMOBILES KILL THOUSANDS IN YEAR

Nearly Half a Million Injured in Motor Accidents in 1924.

NEW YORK, May 4 (United News) — Automobiles killed 19,000 persons and injured 450,000 on the highways of the United States in 1924. Of the dead 5,700 were children.

The victims of automobile accidents numbered nearly twice as many men as were killed and wounded in the American army during the war, it is pointed out by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters which has made these figures public.

The daily average of motor casualties was 52 killed and 1,180 injured.

BLAME GIRLS FOR TIE-UPS

Smiling Groups at Street Corners Attract Motormen in Evening.

HAPPY CITY

Tangled traffic is not all that keeps the street cars on George street minutes behind schedule as thy force their way through the weaving traffic at Brock, Hunter, Simcoe, and Charlotte streets when the factory whistles are shrilling a raucous requiem for another business day. Winsome smiles and ingratiating glances retard their progress.

This facial friendliness is not directed at the street cars. They merely happen to bask in the borders of it, but they stop because the motormen are on the lookout for the slightest suspicion of a signal to stop. It happens that often private and not public owned conveyance are the moving targets of these smiles and glances. There are enough Lorelei's along George street arching thir eyebrows to wreck all the traffic regulations the City Council, the Police Commission and Chief Newhall can frame.

And they are just carrying out the maxim of the Safety League—"It takes 64 muscles of the face to make a frown and only 13 to make a smile—why work overtime?" These girls have worked eight hours or more in factory, store or office—and they certainly won't work overtime. Bubbling with good spirits they gather at street corners awaiting friends or gossping—and look like prospective fares to motormen.

To a motorist or motorman going north or south on George street at five o'clock any spring day, Peterborough must appear the happiest city in the world.

TRIALS OF RIGHT TO PEERAGES REVEAL MANY DEVIOUS PLOTS

Ship's Log Figured in Recent Contest for Dukedom of Somerset.

BABY BORROWED

Sackville-West Case Was a Famous One in British Annals.

By R. LE CLERC PHILLIPS.

Every now and again there appears before the tribunal of the British House of Lords a man who, rightly or wrongly, conceives himself to be entitled to sit in that august assembly and whose presentation of his claims unveils family secrets or romantic episodes of a nature that is frankly astounding, ceding nothing to modern movie stories in villainy, heroism or love interest.

A case in point is that of Sir Edward Hamilton Seymour, who has been officially declared to be the sixteenth Duke of Somerset in succession to his kinsman who died in 1923. The sixteenth Duke had to prove and has succeeded in proving legitimacy and establishing that his ancestor, Colonel Francis Seymour, did legally marry in 1787 one Leonora Hudson, the widow of a seaman named Hudson, who had died in Calcutta the previous year. The parties contesting his claim asserted that Leonora Hudson was not a widow at the time of her marriage to Colonel Seymour. The production of a ship's log and the books of the East India Company bore out the present Duke's assertions.

This peerage case made less of a sensation, however, than the Sackville-West incident, which filled the London newspapers in 1903 and again, in a lesser degree, in 1908, in 1908 after the death of the third Lord Sackville. This peer, who had been in the diplomatic service—he had been Minister in this country from 1881 to 1888 and had been handed his passports by Mr. Cleveland because he intimated in a letter to a former British subject that Cleveland's re-election to the Presidency would be regarded with satisfaction by England—had, while Secretary to the British Embassy in Paris [illegible] a form of marriage in [illegible] three witnesses. One was her [illegible] another was [illegible] the lady everywhere being known as Mme. Sackville-West, her husband having at that period no title. Of the six children born of this union, the third, Ernest Henri Jean Baptiste Sackville-West, made claim to the title of Baron Sackville and to the family seat at Knole in Kent, thus unveiling one of the romances of the British peerage.

Ernest did not claim to be the eldest son; his counsel admitted that one son and one daughter had been born to the couple before their marriage in 1863; but he did claim to be the eldest legitimate child, born at Arcashon on June 24, 1869, and registered as the son of Lionel Sackville-West, the certificate being signed by his father.

Now the claimant, as well as his younger brothers and sisters, had always been treated by their father as his legitimate offspring; but in 1881, the year that Sir Lionel, as he had become, was sent to Washington, he roundly declared that all his children were illegitimate. In 1888, the year of his dismissal by Mr. Cleveland, Sir Lionel succeeded to the Sackville peerage, and from that time until his death in 1908 lived at the family place in Kent, all the while maintaining the illegitimate status of his children.

The whole question of their legitimacy hinged on the status of "Madame Sackville-West" at the moment of her "marriage" to the future Lord Sackville. Was she or was she not already married to a Spaniard named Juan Antonio de la Oliva at the time she went through a wedding ceremony with Sackville-West? The British courts in 1903 decided tha she already had been married; the Spanish courts in 1908, when trying three men—one the nephew of "Madame Sackville-West" herself — charged with having altered the church registers proving the marriage, discharged all three prisoners, being unable to come to anh conclusion in face of the conflicting evidence.

After Josephine Duran de Ortega had been dead for ten years Sir Lionel ha repudiated the marriage. Why? One can only conclude that, realizing hi position as that of a man who would in all probability leave behind him a British peerage—as a matter of fact he succeeded to it some seven years after the repudiation of his marriage—pride of race stepped in and forbade him to hand it down to a son not born in legal wedlock. Therefore the peer who today owns beautiful Knole is not Ernest Henri Jean Baptiste Sackville-West, but Major Lionel Edward Sackville-West, who is only the newphe of his predecessor.

Trickery and Plots.

The notorious Wicklow peerage case of 1869 perhaps exceeds all others for sheer impudence. The network of trickery, plots and counterplots which the lawsuit revealed was unrelieved by a single glimmer of honest romance or genuine passion.

Briefly, the story is this: In 1869 the fourth Earl of Wicklow died without children. He had always regarded as his heir his young nephew Charles Francis Howard, the son of his deceased brother by a second wife. This dead brother, the Hon. Francis Howard, had had three children by his first wife, but all of them had bdied efore the death of the Earl of Wicklow in 1869, and there was no evidence at all that any of them had left children. Therefore, it was quite clear that the heir to the peerage could be none other than young Charles Francis Howard, fourth son of the dead brother of the Earl of Wicklow.

Imagine, then, the general surprise of the Howard family when, on the death of Lord Wicklow, a woman came forward claiming the peerage for her son, a boy of five, and asserting that she was the widow of William George Howard, the elder half-brother of Charles Francis, whom every one regarded as the fifth Earl of Wicklow.

A few years before the death of the fourth Lord Wicklow, his eldest nephew, William George Howard, in order to escape the attention of creditors, took refuge in some low London slum. He was of thoroughly unsavory character and long before this had been repudiated by his family. While in hiding he fell in with Ellen Richardson, daughter of a coachman. He married her, but kept the knowledge of his action a secret from his family. Not long afterward this aristocratic reprobate passed to another world.

Claimed Another's Baby.

His widow now declared that a son had been born to her and her late husband at 27 Burton Street, Eaton Square, London. In support of her assertion she [illegible] three witnesses. One was her [illegible] another was [illegible] whole the House of [illegible] created an immense stir, the because being that the child in question was not the son of Mrs. William George Howard at all, but of a Liverpool servant girl. Mrs. Howard, it was contended, obtained it from the poorhouse hospital in that city, where it had been born. In support of this contention, Sir Roundell Palmer, counsel of young Charles Francis Howard, whom old Lord Wicklow had regarded as his heir, produced a letter written by Mrs. Howard four days before the alleged birth of her child in which she applied for a position as governess to a family in Devonshire, giving as her status that of a single woman.

At about the time the letter was written, it appears that her worthless husband had written to her that he was at the end of his resources and that for the future she must shift for herself. The application to the House of Lords was Mrs. Howard's reaction of her husband's information.

It was proved that the servant at 27 Burton Street at the time of the alleged birth had never even heard of the existence of any baby in the house, much less seen one. And to cap this evidence, Sir Roundell Palmer stated that he was able to produce in court Mary Best, the girl who was actually the mother of the child who was now put forth as heir to the fourth Earl of Wicklow.

The case proceeded on its amazing way. Two trained nurses from Liverpool testified that in 1864 two women had called at the poorhouse infirmary and asked for a baby for adoption. Mrs. Howard was identified as one of them, and the baby she had obtained was the child of Mary Best, the servant girl.

A new turn was given when Mary Best, under cross-examination, admitted that when she left the hospital she took with her a baby, which she swore was not her own, hers having already gone to Mrs. Howard.

"It was not my own, but I took it as I didn't want to be lonely," was the reply of this witness. Her statement was confirmed by a comparison of the coloring of the two babies.

The verdict of the House of Lords declared Charles Francis Howard to be the fifth Earl of Wicklow, and Mrs. Howard and her witnesses were accused of perjury. Soon afterward, having obtained a full measure of that unpleasant notoriety which so frequently seems to lead a woman to the altar, Mrs. Howard contracted a second marriage and passed the rest of her life in comfortable obscurity.

Gardner Peerage Case.

The great Gardner peerage case is simple of plot construction as compared with the intricacies of the Wicklow case, but here a strong love interest is introduced. In 1796 a naval officer named Alan Gardner, the son of Lord Gardner, married a Miss Maria Adderley. One night Captain and Mrs. Gardner were on their way to a party at Lord Strathmore's house when word came to Captain Gardner that his presence was required at one of the Government offices. Mrs. Gardner accordingly arrived at Lord Strathmore's alone. There she met a man named Henry Jadis, who appears to have made on her an immediate impression. Jadis thereafter became a regular visitor to the Gardner house in London. When Captain Gardner was ordered to rejoin his ship, restraint was thrown to the winds and the pair became acknowledged lovers.

Gardner went to sea on February 7—this date is an important feature of the case. On July 10 he returned unexpectedly to London, still ignorant of his wife's relations with Jadis. On being informed of them he flatly refused to believe the news. The following December Mrs. Gardner secretly gave birth to a boy baby, of whose existence her husband was not informed. Meantime Captain Gardner was convinced that the gossip about his wife and Jadis was only too true. He divorced his wife, and two years after the birth of her child Henry Jadis mraried her. The c[illegible] henceforth was known as Henry Fenton Jadis.

A Peerage Without Property.

A few years later old Lord Gardner died and Captain Gardner succeeded to the title. He married as his second wife the daughter of Lord Carrington, and in due time an heir was born. But seven years after his second marriage the new Lord Gardner died. His little boy, Alan Legge Gardner, aged 6, now became Lord Gardner, his maternal grandfather, Lord Carrington, being appointed his guardian.

Nine years later the former Mrs. Alan Gardner's son, now known by the name of Jadis, suddenly asserted that his real name was Henry Fenton Gardner and that he intended to press his claim to the Gardner peerage, basing it on the statement that he was the elder son of the late Lord Gardner, the first husband of his mother.

The case hinged chiefly on the point that Henry Fenton Jadis was born eleven months after Captain Gardner left his wife to rejoin his ship. This, coupled with the fact that the former Mrs. Gafdner had carefully concealed his birth, obtained a verdict in favor of Alan Legge Gardner, the son of the previous Lord Gardner's second marriage.

But the victor in this famous contest died in 1883, leaving no heir. More or less remote descendants of the family have pressed their claims to the peerage; but have never been able to substantiate them with any satisfaction to the authorities of the House of Lords. The Gardner peerage is consequently dormant, although it is probable that somewhere exists the man who is the rightful Lord Gardner.

Picturesque Woman Claimant.

An amusing and audacious claim to a British peerage was that made in 1868 by a woman who suddenly descended on the peaceful countryside of Durham and asserted herself to be the rightful Countess of Derwentwater, great-granddaughter of the third Earl of Derwentwater, who was executed for his Jacobite sympathies. What added picturesqueness to the claim was that the woman arrived dressed in an Austrian uniform, wearing a sword and accompanied by a guard of Polish and Austrian retainers, and calmly directed the cottagers and farmers to pay their rents to her.

The woman, Amelia Radcliffe, hailed from Austria, or Austria Poland, claiming that her father, the grandson of the last Earl of Derwentwater, had married a Polish lady and settled in that country. She took possession of the ruins of the old Derwentwater castle, and, although it was roofless when she was ejected, she camped by the roadside, gypsy fashion. She succeeded in causing considerable disorder in the district, the Government at length being forced to intervene an declare her claims to the peerage of Derewntwater to be entirely frivolous.

A Person To Enforce The Dog Bylaw Is Being Sought By The City Council

Alderman Joseph Crowe is of the opinion that the title 'Dog Catcher' is not suffuciently highsounding for an official of the City of Peterborough so he suggested that some other title, such as 'Humane Inspector' be conferred on the man who looks after the citizens' canine pets when they stray from the family doorstep. He felt that more applicants would come forward, seeking the office, if it were known by another name and the dogs would doubtless prefer to be caught by a humane inspector than by a common, ordinary, garden variety of dog catcher. The description given by City Clerk Armstrong in the resolution to cover the appointing of such an official by whatever title he might be called covered the position admirably: 'A person to enforce the dog by-law.' The description in itself, besides opening up the possibilities of many titles, could be used as the title. The holder of the position would see his name in the paper with his initial after it; A.P.T.E.T.D.B.L. It would look like the title of a college professor who dealt in the most abstruse subjects. Then, besides the Alderman's suggestion, there are others. Canine canabler, for example; puppy pursuer is another; hound hunter would also fill the bill; but there are dozens to choose from so it may be left to Alderman Phelan who was empowered by the resolution to engage a "person to enforce the dog by-law." He will appoint the official; let him also confer the title upon him.

While he was dealing with the subject of dogs Alderman Crowe stressed the point that the official, whoever he may be and whatever he may be called, must not be permitted to shoot dogs in front of houses and proceed inside and collect the fee of 1.00 without touching the animal or conveying it to the pound. Alderman Phelan added to his colleague's limitation a clause forbidding the pursuing of the reluctant canine upon the verandah or other property of his owner or enticing the pup out on the streets by any means.

All these points will be left to the city's finance chairman, Alderman Phelan, who was given entire jurisdiction over the dogs and their nemesis by the rest of the Aldermen.

You see how an innocent dish like rhubarb tapioca brings up the carbohydrate calories! But even so, a balanced diet of sorts must be provided.

Leaf lettuce is in market at its best now and should be used freely. The Department of Agriculture tells us that leaf lettuce is richer in vitamins than head and means more in our general diet.

The tender tops of spring onions are quite as acceptable in salads as just the white part.

The toast is planned for the soup at noon time. The rolled oats furnish a "hearty" breakfast. Skimmed milk and no sugar should be served with the oats. Try heating the milk. You may like it better.

COUNCIL HELD IN WASHINGTON

FOUR LANGUAGES.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (Canadian Press).—Addresses in the four official languages of the convention —English, French, German and Spanish—were heard at the formal opening last night of the seventh quinquennial session of the International Council of Women. The formal opening at which Secretary Hoover delivered the address of greeting, and Lady Aberdeen, as president of the council, presented her message, followed a day of activity in committee meeting for the delegates representing the component organizations in forty-two countries.

Lady Aberdeen declared the organization's true strength lay in its constitutional inhibition against dealing with controversal, poltical and religious issues between nations.

"Our special power as women," she said, "lies in the formation of that public opinion in favor of mutual aid and international co-operation based on a fuller knowledge and intercourse between the nations and their component parts.

Asserting that the council must strike to gather up all the war worn peoples of the earth, "in the arms of an enveloping motherhood, and to sooth away all their fears of one another and of an unknown future,"

Lady Aberdeen continued:

"We see struggling for mastery a new hope for the world in international co-operation brought about through the League of Nations."

BARN DESTROYED.

Sixty chickens were burned to death in a fire that this morning destroyed the barn owned by Richard Heeley, 328 Euclid Avenue. The loss, which included all the contents of the building, is partly covered by insurance.

The blaze broke out at 4 o'clock, and had progessed so far that the fire department was unable to halt its progress. Besides the chickens, the owner lost a ton and a half of hay.

There is only one genuine Sheathed Wire Element

THE phenomenal success of sheathed-wire has resulted in the introduction of elements with cast iron surfaces so constructed as to resemble the patented Hotpoint element.

The sheathed-wire element is the result of continuous research and experimental work extending over a period of 15 years. Each feature is covered by patents.

There is nothing "just as good" as sheathed-wire. It is a Hotpoint innovation which has revolutionised electric range construction, and rendered obsolete all previous types of elements.

Linking To-day With Confederation

Centenary of D'Arcy McGee's Birthday to be Observed. What He Visioned as the Result of United Canada. His Message of Good-will.

An Irishman and a great Canadian was Thomas D'Arcy McGee. A martyr of Confederation, the bullet of the assassin was fired too late; its victim had lived to see the dearest wish of his heart fulfilled in the consummation of the movement for a united Canada. His last public words expressed confidence in a greater Dominion to be.

Born in County Louth, Ireland, April 13, 1825, slain on April 7, 1868, he was buried in Montreal on April 13 in the latter year. The forty odd years of his life were crowded with adventure, travel, romance, political experiences and literary work. Only eleven of them were lived as a citizen of the Dominion, but they were full and fruitful. He gave of his genius and his strength to the utmost to this new country for which he developed a passionate attachment.

Plans are under way to commemorate in Ottawa on April 13 next, the one hundredth anniversary of his birth. In their inception, while international in scope, they were to be especially arranged for distinguished Irishmen and people of Irish descent in Canada and abroad, and those sympathetic with Ireland and its people. The plans are expanding. McGee, with all that Ireland and his fellow countrymen meant to him, will be remembered for what he did for Canada—and not for the role he filled in the land of his birth or in the United States. Few think of the Fathers of Confederation as of Scottish, Irish, English or French ancestry. As Canadians they laid the foundations of this unit of Empire, in trust and hope. Courage and faith were the elements they used to cement them. McGee was no exception. Canadians whatever the stock that produced them, honor him as one of the originals of the nation builders.

There is food for reflection in the prospective ceremonies. Canada has gone a long way since the Act of Union became effective in 1867. Its people are busily engaged in the important tasks of the present and great plans for the future. But there is a growing realization that the country has a history as colorful as that of many others which celebrate their natal days with almost universal pageant and display. Here, along with the renewed academic integrest in matters that pertain to our past, we are in danger of forgetting Dominion Day except as a holiday devoted entirely to sports and recreation. In some sections there is still a recognition of the more meaningful side of the day, and it is given a place on the program with the lighter events. There is no reason why a happy combination of patriotic exercises and sports should not be carried out on a wide scale. Apart from the fragmentary attention they must pay to it in their history course, a great body of young Canadians is growing up with no other thought of July 1 than that it is a general holiday. That is neither fair to them as individuals, nor to the community or the country as a whole.

His Prophetic Vision

McGee would not have had it so; nor would any other of the seers among the Fathers of Confederation. Like him their outlook was prescribed, in a sense, by what was then known of the country in which they lived. Today, with all its amazing facilities of travel and communication by air, land and water routes, there are thousands who have little knowledge of Canada except that part in which they stand or move. The men of the sixties saw much in imagination at any rate: all credit to them. McGee saw more than a number of others, for he travelled a good deal in Canada and abroad. And because he was blessed with more imagination than most people, he was able to draw in his musical, persuasive voice this word picture:

"I see in the not remote distance one great nationality, bound like the shield of Achilles, by the blue rim of ocean. I see it quartered into many communities, each disposing of its internal affairs, but all bound together by free institutions, free intercourse and free commerce. I see within the round of that shield the peaks of the western mountains and the crests of the eastern waves, the winding Assiniboine; the five-fold lakes, the St. Lawrence, the Ottawa, the Saguenay, the St. John and the Basin of the Minas. By all these flowing waters, in the valleys they fertilize, in all the cities they visit in their courses, I see a generation of industrious, contented, moral men, free in name and in fact—men capable of maintaining in peace and in war a constitution worthy of such a country."

He pictured also "a great new northern nation," a "United British America." And in another reference to Confederation he said that one of its motives "is that it will strengthen rather than weaken the connection with the Empire, so essential to these rising provinces."

Wonderful pictures these to be drawn by a man who had taken part in the Irish uprising of 1848, and later as a journalist in the United States, had made an instantaneous hit with certain elements by his vitrolic speeches and writings against Britain.

Thomas D'Arcy McGee, poet, orator and seer, was a Father of Confederation

His Early Years

McGee's first acquaintance with this continent was as a youth of seventeen, when he went from Ireland to Boston, Mass. A few days later says, M. O. Hammond in a sketch of his life, his fiery anti-British Fourth of July oration attracted notice and he secured employment on a weekly Catholic paper of which he soon became editor. When he was twenty years of age Daniel O'Connell called him back to Ireland to take the editorship of the Freeman's Journal in Dublin. O'Connell was "too Conservative for his ardent spirit, and he soon withdrew to join the Young Ireland party, where he became intimate with Charles Gavan Duffy in the publication of the Dublin Nation, a journal which gave free play to his anti-British ideas." His part in the '48 finally resulted in a flight which led him back to the United States, where for some years he followed journalism, and subsequently took to the lecture platform. A gradual moderation of his views was noticeable from that time on, "and," says the biographer quoted, "he resolved to elevate the Irish people by teaching them to make the best of their fate instead of depending on schemes of revolution. By 1852 he was able to write to Thomas Francis Meagher, an old friend, of the change he had undergone, showing that peace and good will had become his motto. He removed his base to Buffalo, but business not being satisfactory, he yielded to an impulse and the request of friends in Canada, whom he had met on vacation tours, and settled in Montreal in 1857."

In Canadian Public Life

From that time forward McGee was all Canadian. His abilities as a writer, poet and orator, his charm and wide experiences won many friends. He even studied law and was called to the bar in 1861, but practised little. There were vicissitudes and troubles not a few, but when he eventually joined up with John A., afterwards Sir John A. Macdonald, he entered a political partnership that ended only with his death. A lecture which he delivered at St. John in 1863, had much to do with the entry of the Maritime provinces into the Union. Throughout this time McGee lectured widely on the union of the Canadian provinces, dealing with it from a dozen angles, and emphasising commercial and defence benefits. He was obsessed in the opinion of many who had little of his intimate knowledge, by danger from the Fenians in particular, and from other foes in the United States declaring in an address at Halifax in 1864: "Rest assured that if we remain longer as fragments, we shall be lost; but let us be united and we shall be as a rock which, unmoved itself, flings back the waves that may be dashed against it by the storm." The Fenian invasion of '65 and subsequent disturbances justified his utterances.

The Tragic End

If many patriotic and courageous people in Canada took McGee to their hearts, the Fenians on this continent and in Ireland never forgave him. He was condemned for his change in attitude toward Britain and the Empire, and fuel was added to the flames of hate when on a visit to Ireland in 1866 he dared to deliver at Wexford a message against separation from Britain. In the latter country he pleaded for better treatment for Ireland. There was a reaction in Montreal, where he represented a riding, to his Wexford speech, and his majority in the election of 1867 was greatly reduced. His very last speech during the session of Parliament in 1868, had to do with the agitation in Nova Scotia for repeal of the union. "We will compel them to come in and accept the union," he concluded, "we will compel them by our fairness, our kindness, our love, to be one with us, in this common and this great national work."

As he reached the door of his lodgings in the early hours of the morning of April 7, 1868, a skulking assassin shot him through the head and he died instantly. His funeral took place in Montreal, April 13, 1868, his birthday. Several arrests were made on the charge of murder and one Thomas Whalen, was convicted and executed in the following year.

Canada has had other immigrants whose attitude toward the country itself and the British Empire, was like that which once possessed the soul of D'Arcy McGee. In his case the reformation was begun before he became a Canadian, and the seed was planted by his own introspection. The fruit was a service to Canada and the Empire, crammed into a few years, that can never be truly appraised. Nor, of course, could a value be placed on the services of Macdonald, Brown and others whose sacrifices and efforts were also made with the single objective of creating and developing a united Canada.

As Canada won the affections of Thomas D'Arcy McGee, so must it win the hearts of all who come to it, if it is to attain the ideals and inspirations of the Fathers of Confederation.

They visioned it a free country: freer still because it was part of the British Empire. That is a complex lesson that men from alien lands do not readily grasp. It was emphasized in Parliament a few weeks ago when the right of Canada to amend its constitution—the British North America Act, without consulting Britain was discussed openly, freely and without regard to party lines, but in a true spirit of loyalty to the Empire. In portions of the discussion it might almost appear that the time was a year or two before Confederation and union the theme. A pro-Confederate orator might have used the words of one of the present day ministers, "The Dominion is the child of the Provinces, not their father. . . . Confederation is a pact, an agreement, the terms of which cannot be amended without the consent of the parties to that agreement."

There is the whole principle underlying the superstructure of the Canada of today; the Canada which the Fathers of Confederation believed in and worked for.

It is a strange fact that only a week or two ago a Boer, C. Pienaar, South Africa's Commissioner for Commerce in Europe, in speaking at Rotterdam, described the Empire as "the British Imperial League of Nations, each enjoying absolute freedom of action." Pienaar belongs to a family that fought bitterly and cleverly against Britain to the last day of the South African war. Yet at Rotterdam he not only spoke proudly of the Empire, but he described it as the greatest safeguard for world peace. So free and elastic were the bonds between the constituent Dominions, he said, that one could conceive of a progressive development by which at some future date, any other country might be able to join the British League without the loss of its national dignity or independence.

The Lesson for Each

This is supposedly an age of speed and action. But it turns once in a while to the story of the men of a by-gone day to marvel anew at their indomitable courage and achievements, and to read in them lessons for the present. Every Canadian who does it might paraphrase, according to his own racial origin, these words from an address by Thomas D'Arcy McGee:—

"We Irishmen, Protestant and Catholic, born and bred in a land of religious controversy, should never forget that we now live and act in a land of the fullest religious and civil liberty. All we have to do is, each for himself, to keep down dissensions which can only weaken, impoverish and keep back the country; each for himself to do all he can to increase its wealth, its strength and its reputation; each for himself to welcome every talent, to hail every invention, to cherish every gem of art, to foster every gleam of authorship, to honor every acquirement and every natural gift, to lift ourselves to the level of our destinies, to rise above all low limitations and narrow circumscriptions, to cultivate that true catholicity of spirit which embraces all creeds, all classes and all races, in order to make our boundless province, so rich in known and unknown resources, a great new northern nation."

SAVING GRACE OF HUMOUR

Interesting Tests in School—Girls More Introspective.

ENGLISH AND YANKEES

A study of laughter at different stages in childhood was recently made on both sides of the Atlantic by Dr. C. W. Kimmins, who placed the results of his serious study before the British Association at its last meeting in Toronto.

The sense of humor in children, said Dr. Kimmins, was such a fascinating study that after carrying out an investigation of the subject with a very large number of London children he decided to extend the inquiry to children in France and Germany. Then last year, while lecturing in America, he observed the humorous capacity of the children there, by putting to them the same questions on jokes and stories as he had done to the children in Europe.

The plan Dr. Kimmins worked on was to submit to the school-children of England and America the following questionnaire—(1) Give an account of the funniest story you have ever read or heard. (2) Of all the jokes that you can remember, give an account of the one which made you laugh the most.

For children too young to give written answers, oral methods were adopted by careful observers.

The result of his investigations on the priceless possession of humor in children at different ages may be summed up as follows:—

At the age of seven Dr. Kimmins's records show, there occurs a transition from a purely visual type of humorous situations to an elementary playing with words. At this stage the difference between boys and girls is marked.

Girls More Introspective.

The stories the boys remember are mainly cinema and fairy tales. Their jokes are based largely on the misfortune of others. The stories of the girls are almost exclusively fairy tales. They are much more introspective than boys, and like riddles and plays upon words which boys ignore.

At eight years, misfortunes of others and fairy tales, including those about talking animals, are common to both sexes. The boys begin to take an interest in riddles and plays on words, though not as much as the girls, and the sense of superiority makes its appearance in accounts of the mistakes of younger children.

"The girls here, as at other ages," remarked Dr. Kimmins, "associate stupidity with the boys in their stories, but there is no reciprocal action in the case of the boys."

At nine years occurs a change, he declared. Intelligent children are then becoming vivacious readers, with marked interest in funny stories and jokes. The feeling of superiority is increasing, and stories and jokes of the amusing mistakes of younger children are very popular.

Comparing English with American children, and in the altter group comparing white and colored children, he found many differences revealed by the collected jokes and stories.

It takes nerve for a young spruce tree to grow up knowing it may become paper for a cheap novel.

The chances are you wish you were in some other person's shoes, and if you were they would hurt.

WOULD YOU DO IT FOR $15 A WEEK?

At Beck and Call of Public All Day and Half Night.

What citizen wants the job of pleasing 21,726 people, night and day, for a year or two years or more—at a salary of $15 a week? There is one man who goes one better. He has an average of a dozen calls a day, dozens of letters a week, and a quiet walk is impossible for him. Someone is always buttonholing him to ask about this or that work to be done.

After a rain or snow storm his work is particularly arduous—two weeks ago on Sunday his telephone rang incessantly from 7 a.m. until 10 a.m. and he was badgered unmercifully by folk who said they had to walk through snow ankle deep.

The East City oil tanks gave him a great deal of worry, and other troubles are always piling on his shoulders.

If he got $15 a week he would be well off.

REMEDIES BAD BREADTH

Teaspoonful of Sulphate of Soda Before Breakfast is Good.

Bad breath is due to either of three things, decayed teeth, disordered stomach or catarrh.

Many remedies for bad breath or halitosis, as it sometimes is called, are widely advertised.

A simple remedy, when the bad breath is caused from the stomach, is a teaspoonful of sulphate of soda in a glass of water about one hour before breakfast every morning.

Licorice is an excellent sweetener of breath, and it possesses the advantage of having but little odor of its own.

Licorice may be chipped into small pieces and kept on the dresser table for occasional use.

It is said, too, that a bit of myrrh or burnt alum, taken at night will answer the same purpose. Charcoal tablets also are good.

A dentist should be consulted when bad teeth is the cause, and a physician also might be able to remove the cause when the breath is from the stomach, or from catarrh.

Heavy smokers often have bad breath. Most persons who chew tobacco have a tobacco breath.

The chewer probably could remedy his breath if he would rinse his mouth out after every chew.

WITH DRESS CLOTHES

Some Thumb-Nail Sketches of Mexico, Where There is Beauty Galore.

By ANNA PEPPARD.

Coming into Mexico City at dawn, cultivated fields border the railroad tracks, great patches of alfalfa growing green. There are rows and rows of cactus-looking plants, with tiny figures of men by many of the plants; they carry huge bags made of skins and are busy syphoning off the juice, which is the national drink of Mexico. Pulque is more popular in Mexico than beer in Germany. Small, moth-eaten donkeys trudge along the rock roads, almost tottering under their tremendous loads, with their lean masters following. And by the clear irrigation ditches the women kneel and wash their clothes against slabs of stone. The women are forever washing. It began after crossing the border; there were groups of them on the banks of the Rio Grande scrubbing. It's a continual picture all the way, women rubbing their rags, and yet they never look really clean.

The spotless ones are the little girls all dressed in starched white with a wreath of white blossoms in their hair. For this is the month of May. The time when little girls make their offerings of flowers to the shrine of the Virgin and dress up like doll brides, wearing white veils and carrying bouquets.

The train whisks by a toy town which looks like Sunday school cards of Palestine. Adobe houses, white as sheets, all square and squat in shape, often several houses, walled around with a common courtyard. The goats play around the open doorways; there's usually a pig, too, and trim chickens. The fighting roosters are always tied with a cord, chained up, as it were, while yellow dogs wander around. Every dog has a tail and there is no special breed, just friendly thin cur dogs with continual curls in their tails.

Bundles and Babies.

The peasants are consistent in their native dress—never a hat on a woman, only shawls, and the men have their sombreros and mantles, which they drape long on one shoulder and swing high up on the other. Every woman covers her head with a long, narrow, black shawl; it is tossed back over their left shoulder, the ends brought low under the arm and used to hold bundles. Sometimes this piece of the head shawl is made into a sort of swinging cradle, where bundles and babies bounce along together. It is startling to see a brakeman walking up and down the top of a moving box car, with great dignity, wrapped in a striped blanket and wearing a sombrero.

Mexico City! Take the palaces of Venice, the cathedrals of Spain, the boulevards and Bois of Paris, add the lure of the Far East, barefooted women and tinkling bells, wall all this exotic beauty around with giant snow-topped mountains, and it is Mexico City.

In the Chapultepec Park two Mexicans dash by on their galloping steeds. The horses have long, flopping manes and tails, curved necks, trim feet — they might have come from the Arabian stables of Cortez, their harness sparkling with silver studs. And the riders are picturesque, too, with their long, twinkling silver spurs, their corduroy riding suits, with tight trousers and short coats covered with silver embroidery. They wear large, flowing Buster Brown ties and top the whole costume with giant sombreros. It's a mystery in the law of balance how they keep this umbrella headpiece on.

The police have flutelike whistles which they use at night, calling one to the other, like the old town criers. At certain times the notes are heard near by, then far off they are answered; it sounds like an echo. They toss their musical signals back and forth over the city.

It's near revolutionary days, not so long ago, and yet money is carried in the street; sacks of gold go from one bank to another, and no steel cars with ultra-civilized machine guns are used in the transportation. The native trimmings for men's suits are cartridges; the Indians wear them often across from shoulder to waistline, Sam Browne style. The middle class, those that wear shoes, have cartridges around their waists; the silhouette of the right hip always bulges where the pistol sits. And even at theatres a cartridge belt is not only proper but popular with dress clothes.

The Art of Serenading.

Serenading is not quite so chic as it used to be, and yet one young Mexican girl told how she was awakened on her birthday, before dawn, by a piano under her window. The enamoured one had hired a Ford truck and carried his piano right under her window, so that he could sing about the dawn star of his love, at the exact moment the morning star was vanishing, accompanying this timely song upon his own piano.

Also another suitor rode his horse around her house in the dusk of evening. He tried this for a month, all dressed in his Charro costume, which is worn by the ranchmen, and is adopted as the smart city riding costume, consisting of long tight leather trousers with silver buttons up the side and a short jacket embroidered in silver thread. There's a gay vest, round white collar and a flowing tie, with a tremendous sombrero hat. For one month he made a dashing figure as he galloped by, but she never came to the great iron gates to peek out at him. He was distressed and, remembering that she had lived in New York, he decided to try the American and English riding equipment. So the long, thick tail of his horse was trimmed off to resemble a hunter; then he dressed in conventional Central Park riding costume, snug boots, tan whipcord riding trousers, tweed coat and a stiff hat. The story is young still, she hasn't come yet to the garden gates, but he continues to ride by stiffly now, for he's learning to pose and usually goes at a jogging trot, rising in unrhythmetic jerks from his flat saddle.

Vacations for Beggars

Beggars are usually around the church doors. It is gossiped that when foreign officials come to town the beggars are gathered together and sent to the country for a vacation.

It is rumored that Obregon does not live in the Presidential castle because superstition whispers that whoever lives there loses his head. Obregon's own excuse is that his many active children would not improve the furniture and old relics housed there. His boys go to the American school.

Mexico is one country where mothers do not say to their young sons: "Now, Johnny, if you're a very good and smart boy you'll grow up to be President of Mexico some day." Presidents have a way of dying with their neckties on.

On the streets the Indians are carrying things. An oldish man comes down a dusty street with a black coffin roped on his back, and within the same block a young girl carries her bathtub home in the same manner. A barefooted, tattered old man leans forward as he goes along with ten live turkeys swinging by strings from his shoulders, all the fowls looking rather dejected. In the country, men trot along steep mountain roads in sandaled feet with layers of thick logs strapped on their backs. And they go to to market strung with pottery, mahogany-colored crude dishes and bowls and pitchers with two spouts on each way.

Polished hard coal is used by a German jeweler in place of jet.

APPROACHING EXAMINATIONS MAKE PARENTS ASK WHETHER THEY COULD "PASS" AGAIN

Questions Set in Previous Tests Here Are Given for Review.

AMUSING ANSWERS

Off-Hand Way in Which Questions Are Asked Hides the Sting.

Could you pass if you sat for your entrance today? Could you tell what part Sir Robert Walpole played in British history? Or write an account of the first reform bill 1832? Or tell the story of Sir Guy Carleton?

Could you tell offhand through what waters a ship would pass en route from Calcutta to London and of what its cargo would probably consist?

These are a few of the questions set as the tests in Peterborough at a recent entrance examination. Could you pass if you went to school again? Or would you hand in answers like the boy who said, "Letters in sloping print are hysterics"? "In India," another boy said, " a man out of one cask may not marry a woman out of another cask."

Pupils in Peterborough schools are now studying seriously for the approaching entrance examinations, and a look backward at problems set in previous years may prove as useful to them as entertaining to their elders who "sat" years ago.

Some Problems.

An arithmetic question set at an entrance examination in Peterborough—number 6 on the sheet—is worth trying by those whose sons and daughters strove valiantly to answer it in the mid-summer of 1923, and probably succeeded. It is one of the simplest in the list and is of peculiar interest to the Board of Works and citizens of the city in view of the paving programmes that repeatedly crop up. "Cement mixture for roadbeds," says the problem, "costs 46 cents per cubic foot. Find the cost of this mixture to cover one mile of road 1 rod, 3 feet, 6 inches wide and averaging 7½ inches thick."

Try this under examination conditions. To many grownups who passed with flying colors in their day the word "rod" conveys as much meaning as "divers complaints" did to the girl who wrote on her examination paper "fish bites."

The History Bugaboo.

"Write accounts of any three of the following" commands the history paper blithely, referring to William the Conqueror; Henry II; Sir Robert Walpole; Nelson; and Lord Kitchener.

Happy is the man who has been away from his school books five years and can write fifty words about any one of them. Can you?

William the Conqueror will no doubt be remembered as the originator of high angle fire from which the modern howitzer has been developed. He practiced on Harold, using arrows.

"Henry II" must be a misprint for Henry VIII who is still remembered because of his family troubles. Sir Robert Walpole.

(a blank space on many examination papers represented the knowledge held by the scholar of the man who was 21 years prime minister of Britain and did much to build up its commercial supremacy.)

Even of Nelson, best known of the five, but little could be written by the average man. None will forget the battle of Trafalgar and the Admiral's message, "England expects that every man this day will do his duty."

Of Lord Kitchener and his record in Egypt and in the Great War much has been written and as much learned probably from the newspapers as from school books.

Generally it is found the writer on a history examination remembers the end of the person of whom he writes better than he does any achievements in the great man's life. And sometimes examination papers reveal peculiar ends, as in the case of Louis XVI who, said one student, "was gelatined during the French Revolution."

The Geography Bugbear.

In answer to the question "What is the earth?" one student brought his classics to his service in quoting "The Earth's a thief" from "Timon and Athens."

"Gravitation" said another profound thinker, "is that which if there were none we should all fly away."

"On the accompanying map of Western Canada", the pupil is requested by the examination paper, "Write in the proper location the names of the following: "Fraser river; Athabasca lake; Brandon city."

Some fathers and mothers would be devoutly thankful the paper indicated these places were in Western Canada, instead of leaving them to choose between making the Fraser flow into the Atlantic or the Pacific and locating Brandon at the extremities or in the centre of the Dominion.

Question 7 on the geography is "Explain what is meant by (1) area of high pressure, (2) area of low pressure." This is reminiscent of the answer given to an order to differentiate "climate" and "weather." "Climate" said a pupil, "is a theory. Weather is a condition. Scientists talk about climate and the remaining 999,999 out of a million people talk about the weather." It might be added that weather is a universal language.

Composition.

The principal problem in the composition paper is deciding what one of the six subjects to write upon. Invariably the writer finds that when he has started on one he knows more about another and should have selected it. If you wish to test your knowledge, write a composition of at least thirty lines on one of the following subjects, set at the Peterbrough Entrance examination:

My return home after a holiday; a disastrous fire; our city; a great Canadian; protecting the birds, or a tree tells its story.

The principles having been absorbed, the rules of grammar have passed into the realm of forgotten things in most grown-up minds. Can you, just as a test, analyse "One season to protect my early cherries, I placed a large stuffed owl in the branches of the tree"? What parts of speech are "this, that, away, climbing, beside, because, might?"

It is sufficient for most people to know the general meaning of a word and that it is in its right place, but to come down to cases and pick a word from a printed page, tell its history, formation and relation to others words with which it associates, is too much. The boy who wrote "A grass widow is the wife of a dead vegetarian" had a very general idea of his subject.

These Plurals.

In a very offhand manner the grammar paper demands that the pupil write the possessive plural of "baby, calf, workman, cousin, negro, wife." Only 3 marks are allowed for the correct answers, which is a surprisingly small return for a knowledge of what seems a very much abused principle.

The linking up of plural nouns with singular verbs, and singular nouns with plural verbs seems to be the aim of a great many writers whose effusions come to the copy desk of The Examiner. The fact of a society, council, committee or club forming an entity separate from the individual members is past the comprehension of some, who persist in writing "the Council were entertained; the club were hostesses; the society have plans."

DELORO MINSTRELS DELIGHT MARMORA

Financial Success With Proceeds For Marmora Booster Club.

MARMORA, May 4.—There was a large attendance at the town hall on Friday evening, when the Deloro Minstrels put on an excellent show in aid of the funds of Marmora Booster Club. With necessary alterations and with the addition of two step dances by W. Breault, the programme was that as was successfully rendered at Deloro six weeks ago.

The songs and stories were well received. The dancing provoked much admiration. Mr. R. A. Elliott was the interlocutor of the troupe which consisted of Messrs. A. V. Yates, R. Hunter, F. Melvaer, K. B. Patterson, M. McCallum, S. B. Cheeseman, W. Kerr, C. L. Quinn, F. Seal, F. C. Chapman, A. R. Pengilly, F. Groves, W. Breault, W. L. Rigg, W. Regan, and T. M. Gresham.

Messrs. F. Paquet and R. Parker were accompanists. Following the performance there was a dance for which Messrs. W. Archer and B. Hughes, with Miss F. Archer played. This was, financially, one of the most successful events of the year.

Messrs. A. V. Yates and K. B. Patterson spent the week-end at Montreal.

SOUTH MONAGHAN ONE MONTH AHEAD

Nearly All Seeding Done — Farmers Anxious For Warm Weather.

BAILIEBORO, May 4.—During the past week the weather has been somewhat backward for the busy farmers. There has not been much growth as yet, although the wheat and new seeds have not gone back any but are still holding their own. Many of the farmers throughout the district are beginning to wish for grass for their stock, as their feed is getting scarce. Some of the farmers have stated that grass or no grass their cattle would have to be turned on to pasture during the coming week, as their feed was about finished. If the weather would continue fine for a few days mostly all of the farmers would be through with their spring seeding, as there is very little now left to complete.

Last year the majority of farmers did not complete their spring seeding until around the 1st of June, so that this year the season is almost one month ahead of last. A good growth is all that is needed now to make the prospect for a bumper ocrp look the best that it has looked for years in this district.

Congregations Meet.

On Tuesday evening a meeting will be held in the Methodist Church to consider taking into the Union Circuit the Zion and Bewdley Churches, and to have a double circuit consisting of Fraserville, Bailieboro, Bensfort, Bewdley and Zion Churches. Delegates will be present from Cobourg, Lakefield, Bewdley and Zion as well as other to decide and to plan a double circuit. If a double circuit is decided upon, two ministers will be needed to preside on this circuit instead of one.

Mr. Bertram Stillaway of Toronto spent a few days at Rice Lake last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cole and family of Dale were guests of Mr. Cole's brother, Mr. A. Cole, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Moncrief of Fraserville were guests of friends here on Sunday.

Messrs. Jno. Greer, W. Hibbard, W. Henry, and Jos. Huggins have recently purchased new motor cars.

Arbor Day Postponed.

Many of the rural schools were unable to hold their annual arbor day on Friday last on account of the disagreeable weather, and the cleaning of the school house and yards will be postponed until some fine day this week. This is an annual event which is eagerly looked ahead to by the children of the rural public schools, as it is a day planned for games and amusement after the spring cleaning has been completed. So on Friday morning there was considerable disappointment among the younger element when the sun failed to appear so that the weather might be favorable for this looked ahead to event.

A great many motorists out in the country for a spin find their way down to the shores of Rice Lake, and there examine the little cemetery near the lake shore where the late Joseph Scriver, well known preacher and hymn writer was laid to rest. A great many people are led to believe that his body actually was buried at Kidd's Corners near Bewdley, where David Kidd Byrne erected a monument in memory of the late Mr. Scriven, and seem quite surprised a find a monument erected in his memory in the quiet little cemetery near the lake shore where his remains were actually laid to rest.

HAD BOILS ALL OVER HIM

There is only one way to get rid of boils and that is by going right to the seat of the trouble—the blood—as the bad blood must be made pure before the boils will disappear.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

cleanses the system and removes all the foul matter from the blood in a way that few medicines will do.

Mrs. Chas. Rankin, Bulyea, Sask., writes:—"A few years ago my husband had a terrible time with boils. On one arm he had 16 between his elbow and wrist; five on the back of his neck, and several more on different parts of his body. He tried everything he could think of, but got no relief until he took Burdock Blood Bitters, and to his surprise it completely relieved him of his boils in a very short time."

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past 46 years; be sure you get it when you ask for it; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

London school children took out more than 2,500,000 books from the city libraries last year, as compared with 714,000 twenty years ago.

PICKEREL HAVE GAINED FAVOR

Fishermen in Otonabee Make Good Catches—Fish Are Plentiful.

NO BATTLE

Some good catches of pickerel have been made in the Otonabee River below the Peterborough Locks in the early days of the open season and local anglers are looking forward to record hauls when more satisfactory weather conditions prevail. From early morning till late at night vantage points at the locks and piers and along the east bank of the river are being competed for by knights of the reel. The small boy with his sapling or bamboo pole is also there, proud and happy if his haul consists of only the lowly sucker.

Pickerel fishing in local waters has gained rapidly in popularity in the last few years and there are two reasons for this. The fish are plentiful in the river and at Rice Lake and they are relished by many fishermen as being the equal of the lordly lunge. They may be caught by still fishing, casting or by trawling and are not very particular in their choice of bait. They have one failing, and it's a bad one in the opinion of the dyed-in-the-wool angler. It is their lack of a kick. The pickerel with very few exceptions will not put up a battle, as will lunge and bass. The big fellows will come to the surface and splash their protest but if their captor is in a canoe he has little trouble in landing his fish. There is no final nose dive as in the case of the lunge which has been responsible for many shattered hopes and usually has a part in most fish stories.

The two-and-a-half pounds pickerel makes a tasty meal. The fish is as clean as the proverbial whistle and is easily and quickly prepared for cooking.

Pickerel of five and six pounds weight were not uncommon last season and thirty inches in length were recorded. These figures are liable to be stretched according to the veracity or lack of it of the fellow who always gets the big ones.

Controversy continues over the claim by some fisherman that the pickerel is a pirate and raids the spawning beds of the lunge and that in a few years the latter fish will be almost extinct where there are any considerable number of pickerel. If the two-legged pirate would call a halt to his operations there might be a chance of having the question of the pickerel's alleged crimes settled on its merits.

SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR

Young Women's Auxiliary of Knox Church Had Profitable Affair.

HAVELOCK, May 5.—A successful bazaar was held on Saturday afternoon in the basement of Knox Church under the auspices of the Young Women's Auxiliary. The school room was prettily decorated in pink for the occasion, and Mrs. S. Barlow, leader of the class, was general convenor and had a helpful oversight for all other workers. Miss Edith Greenley was in charge of the sale of fancy-work, and many beautiful and useful articles, moderately priced, were on display in this department. The fish-pond was looked after by Misses E. Armstrong, E. Clark, T. Rorke and V. Rorke, and the financial results were satisfactory. The candy booth, in charge of Misses A. Shannon and B. Watson, and the sale of gladiolus bulbs, in charge of Misses M. Henderson and D. Wright, were well patronized.

A 25c supper was served from 5 to 7, and was also well attended.

About eighty-five dollars was realized after deducting all expenses, and practically everything was disposed of.

HARVEY COUNCIL REGULAR SESSION

Discussion of Work on Roads Occupied Time of Councillors.

A meeting of the Harvey Council was held on April 25. Reeve Parker occupied the chair, and all the members of the council were present.

A letter from the clerk of Verulam township re the spending of government and county money on the Galway Road was read. The Harvey clerk was authorized to reply to the letter, telling that Reeve Parker had a conversation with Reeve Herron and they came to the agreement that Harvey spend $75.00 from the Nogie's Creek turn south to the opening of the village, and the balance to be spent in conjunction with the Verulam township.

The council decided to post notices announcing the sale of timber on the 18 concession line opposite lots 32, and on the 14 concession line opposite lots 18.

John McGuire's statute labor will be exempted for three years, the township not to assume the road.

The council is to issue an order for $18.00 to John McGuire for the work done on his road providing the road is an established road.

By-law number 400 was passed to borrow $400.00 from the Royal Bank, Peterborough.

FILLS HIS CHURCH.

URBANA, O., May 5.—Rev. Ralph G. Carson is playing to packed houses.

He has stolen the punch of the theatre advertiser to fill the pews of the First Baptist Church here. And what's more his audience is made up mainly of young people.

The thin fringe of people in the back seats of the church auditorium discouraged him. Like a business man he turned to the newspapers and planned an advertising campaign.

He startled the town one evening when a church ad appeared mixed in with the movie ads with the same type and general makeup.

Beyond popular surprise, the advertisements accomplished but little. They lacked punch and were too churchy.

Rev. Carson prepared a new series. Attendance picked up slightly. But the deacons notified Carson he could spend only a dollar a month. Finally his allowance was cut off entirely. But Carson refused to drop his advertising campaign and paid for the space taken from his own funds.

Carson adopted the movie ad writer's methods. He featured daring details of a coming sermon, which excited curiosity.

Movie advertisers did not kick. They followed in by running on the border of their ads, "Go to Church Sunday."

Now standing room only is available at the church when services start.

"Of course, you've got to live up to advertising," says Carson. "When the advertised sermon falls through, folks are shy about giving you another chance.

"But the right ads and delivered goods will fill the seats in any church. People will not read the usual. They will read the unusual and extraordinary."

VOCAL RECITAL AT ALL SAINTS'

Miss Edith Tucker, Pupil of Miss Mathilde Masson, Is Artiste.

PLEASING PROGRAM.

A very pretty vocal recital, attended by about a hundred and fifty people, was given in All Saints' Parish Hall last evening, by Miss Edith Tucker pupil of Miss Mathilde Masson, assisted by Miss Ethel Cooper, pupil of Mrs. W. McKee Bingham.

Miss Tucker has a light, clear soprano, which was heard to excellent advantage in several groups of charming songs, her rendition of the Chaminade and del Riego selections being particularly pleasing. With a good command of expression, and careful attention to phrasing and diction, her songs were well received.

The readings by Miss Ethel Cooper were also much enjoyed, the youthful elocutionist giving several difficult readings with dainty effect.

At the conclusion of the programme, several pretty floral offerings were presented to Miss Tucker and Miss Cooper, the presentations being made by three small tots, little Margaret Curtis, Margaret Cotton and Louise Spriggs.

The following is the programme, for which Miss Mathilde Masson provided instrumental accompaniments: Vocal solos by Miss Tucker: "Down in the Forest," "Passing By," "There Are Fairies at the Bottom of Our Garden," "Morning Greeting," "Were I Gard'ner," "Come, My Dear Love," "May Day Morn," "For the Sake o' Somebody," "The Kerry Dance," and "Homing." Miss Tucker was compelled to respond to applause with several encores.

Readings by Miss Cooper included Pauline Johnston's "Legend of Q'Appelle,' and "The Pin," with encores in "No, Thank You, Tom," and "Pups and Teddy Bears."

DOG TAGS DUE.

Police Say There Are Still 300 Discs on Hand For Issue.

The police report that there are still about three hundred dogs in the city which are unlicensed. Owners of dogs should accordingly secure their licenses at their earliest convenience in order that the city may be freed of all undesirable canines.

Any person who "owns, possesses or harbors" a dog is liable to pay the license fee and unless such licenses are applied for it may be necessary to resort to drastic measures the police say.

A person to enforce the dog by-law will probably be appointed this week.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

A recipe for cream puffs has been secured from Mrs. F. C. Webber, 524 Gilmour street:

1 cup water.
1 heaping tablespoon of butter.
4 eggs.
1 cup flour.

Boil flour and water together. Add all the flour at once and stir until the spoon leaves the mixture clear. Take from the fire and add eggs, one at a time, without beating. Stir between each addition until very smooth. Drop with spoon on buttered baking sheet and cook in a medium oven for half an hour. With a pastry tube, force into each a small quantity of sweetened whipped cream or any other filling desired.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

James Abraham Speaks on "Aids to Formation of Character in Young."

The regular monthly meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, was held in the school last evening, the first vice-president, Mrs. Richard Parnell, in the chair.

Routine business was discussed, followed by an interesting address by James Abraham, School Attendance Officer, on "Aids to the Formation of Character in the Young Child." Mr. Abraham, whose talk was listened to with careful atteniton, congratulated the Home and School Association on the work they are doing in aiding children to get an education by supplying clothing when necessary. The paper collections are also a great success.

The picture in the contest went to Miss D. Walker's room.

Members of the association are providing clothing for children when needed and will not hold a rummage sale.

Arrangements were made for the holding of a concert within the next fortnight or three weeks.

The banner was won this month by Junior Second, Miss Burgess' room.

Following the business session was a social half hour, when refreshments were served. Violin selections played by Mr. C. V. Hartshorn, with accompaniment by Miss Grace Reid, were enthusiastically encored.

WEST AND EAST ARE DISCUSSED

Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, of Winnipeg, Speaks to the Canadian Club.

POINTS PROBLEMS.

"The West to the East" was the interesting title of the address delivered to the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon by Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, of Winnipeg, formerly of Peterboro.

Mrs. McWilliams is a very fluent speaker, with a command of forceful language and a charming platform personality that won the abiding attention of her hearers, even while she discoursed on such dry subjects, from a woman's viewpoint, as the transportation and marketing problems of the Western Provinces. She was introduced by the president, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, in a happy little speech, and was accorded a hearty burst of applause and a standing vote of thanks from the large audience of several hundred women who gathered in the auditorium of the Public Library to hear this visitor to her old home. Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams left Peterboro about fourteen years ago.

"The Back Door of Toronto."

"We have a big job on in Canada," said the speaker, alluding to the defiance of geographical and economic laws evidenced in the conformation of the country and its cities. "We are building across the natural lines which run up and down." Between Winnipeg, called by many westerners "the back door of Toronto," and the latter city was a stretch of a thousand miles of rock bridge. In the Eastern provinces of Ontario and Quebec was over sixty per cent. of the population of the Dominion and fifty-eight per cent. of the natural wealth of Canada.

The East has its peaceful atmosphere, its settled traditions, "where the grandmothers all know each other and call each other by their Christian names," and it has, to the Western eye, a less hurried life, and a different psychological background to life. "Your public institutions and schools are paid for, and ours are not. You may think your taxes are high in the East, but in proportion to the service you receive in return, they are lower than ours in the West." To the East also belonged much natural beauty that was denied Western horizons.

Rapid Growth.

An elderly lady of Mrs. McWilliams' acquaintance informed her on one occasion that in 1872, she took the trouble to count the population of the city of Winnipeg, which at that time totalled 268 people. In the intervening fifty-three years, a city of 225,000 people had grown up, a city in a constant state of flux, with ever-changing friendships and relationships and social circles.

Alluding to the interest of the West in agriculture, its basic industry, Mrs. McWilliams quoted figures compiled by Mr. Sandford Evans, a former member of the Winnipeg Legislature, to show that, even in the bad crop years, the West had gone ahead and increased her crop acreage. In the year from 1920 to 1923 the cultivable area had been increased from thirty million to thirty-seven and three-quarter million acres of land, this total representing only twenty-two per cent. of the cultivable land of the Western provinces. A total of twenty-six million pounds of creamery butter in 1920 had been increased in 1923 to thirty-nine million pounds, egg production had increased from forty-one million dozens to seventy-eight million dozens and honey, a new Western product, had increased from 150,000 pounds to 3,150,000 pounds.

"In regard to the honey production, it is quite evident that we had started in our dull moments and put a real industry on its feet."

Speaking of the interest in wheat which marks the life of the Western farmer, Mrs. McWilliams said: "The world is our market, and when this is so, we must take the price that prevails in the markets of the world. Here in the East, if you cannot get your price for manufactured articles, you go to your Government and they impose a tariff which gives you some assistance, but we cannot do that with our wheat. If it costs a Western farmer seventy-five cents to produce a bushel of wheat, and the world price, set at Liverpool, is eighty cents a bushel, he must take that eighty cents, quite regardless of whether he markets at a loss. We have helped our position to a certain extent by discovering a means in the wheat pool by which the farmer can take the price when it is highest, but we have not yet discovered a system by which we cantrol the world price."

The Tariff Question.

The tariff on manufactured goods and transportation costs were two of the main problems of the Western farmer, declared the speaker. "When the Western farmer sees anything that has a tariff cost included in its purchase price, he sees something that costs him more to buy. He cannot refuse to purchase such things, because he must have them in his daily life. He needs agricultural implements and shoes and clothing, but he says to himself: 'If there were no tariff on these things, my costs in producing wheat would be less. The only way in which I can even things up, when I have to take the world price for wheat, is to cut down my costs of producing it. The tariff that benefits the manufacturer in the East gives him the whole benefit. I get none of it.'"

"Then there is the problem of transportation." Here again, according to the speaker's contention, the West pays the piper for the East. Railway charges in Eastern Canada, she declared, are cut materially by reason of the fact that the railways have to face the competition of cheap water transport, and cut their charges to the bone in order to get the trade they need. But the West, lacking such facilities, and compelled to patronize the roads because of their need to get their wheat to the markets of the world, is forced to make good the difference in order to help the railways to pay dividends.

Instances Cited.

An instance quoted was that of the glass importer of Winnipeg who brought glass from Belgium. From the country of source, by way of the Atlantic Ocean and then by boat to Fort William, the cost was much less to the importer than the shipping charges from Fort William to Winnipeg by rail.

"It is much cheaper to take goods from Montreal down the St. Lawrence to the Atlantic, down to the Gulf of Mexico and through the Panama Canal up through the Pacific to Vancouver and for hundreds of miles over the Rocky Mountains to Winnipeg than to bring the same goods from Montreal to Winnipeg by rail. This question of cheaper transportation as a solution of the marketing problems of the West is the reason why we are so keen about the Hudson Bay Railway. We feel that we are going to have that railway or 'bust.' The contention of the West is that the profits of the railways are paid by the West, through rates paid by reason of our having to overcome the competition of cheaper water transportation in the East."

A Third Problem.

A third, intangible problem of human relationships was referred to by Mrs. McWilliams, in the belief held by the West that the East had no sympathy with it and its difficulties. To the West came three different elements in citizenship: the Easterner who had grown up in Ontario and had been transplanted to the West, the simon pure Westerner who had never been East in his life, and the foreigner who came from the Old Land straight through, with no knowledge of any other section of Canada. "Most of us see Canada in the terms of the place in which we live," said the speaker, referring to an instance encountered by her of a Scotsman employed by the Hudson Bay Company who lived for many years in a far outpost of the North, came and went by way of the Hudson Bay lines, "and is probably telling the people in Scotland all about Canada in terms of an isolated Hudson Bay Post."

Business Session.

A very brief business session followed, when the suggestion made by Mrs. Kerr that the annual meeting of the local Women's Canadian Club be held in the fall, instead of in the spring, as heretofore, was adopted on motion of Mrs. R. R. Hall, seconded by Miss M. Archer.

Reference was made to the McGillivray - Knowles exhibition of paintings to be held to-day in the studio at the Conservatory of Music, and Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, representing the Morning Musicale Club, addressed the meeting with regard to patronage of the concert to be given on May 19th by the Peterboro Symphony Orchestra, recommending at the same time that the orchestra be asked to give monthly concerts during the season.

HER NERVES SO BAD SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

Mrs. Grace Kitchen, St. George, Ont., writes: "After having a severe attack of pneumonia I was left in a weak and run down condition. My nerves were so bad I could not sleep nights, and in the day time I had terrible fainting spells, caused by my heart being weak. Finally I got so bad I had to take to my bed for weeks at a time, but one day I read about

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

so decided to try them.

After taking one box I felt a slight improvement. I have now taken five boxes, and have gained 35 pounds in weight. I am now more than able to do all my own housework as well as considerable outside work. I cannot recommend Milburn's H & N Pills too highly for those suffering as I did."

TRAINING YOUR DOG

This is the ninth of a series telling how to train dogs to do tricks.

Now that we have the front-foot stand accomplished, why not go one better and try your dog on a one-foot stand Maybe you will succeed. Who knows?

This equilibristic stunt will take time and lots of it. But it can be done. For a human being it takes from one to three years of constant practice to perfect the sense of balance on one hand.

Dog Under Handicap.

So you must realize the handicaps under which a dog works in seeking perfection in this trick as compared to a human being. The dog has a small foot which covers but a small space for balancing purposes.

The human being has his fingers which he employs in retaining his balance on one hand. The dog is lacking these five movable braces.

Whereas the human being holds his balance mostly by motion of the fingers and wrist, the dog must accomplish the same feat with his body.

Teach Him to Bend Back.

His lessons in the one-foot balance must start on the floor. You must teach him to bend his back and hind-quarters sideways and at the same time lift one foot from the floor and hold this position.

After he can do this on the floor, start him on a two-foot stand in the hand. From this position teach him slowly to bend his body and pick up his right foot to accomplish the one-foot stand on your hand.

When he has located his center of balance for this trick, he should be taught to hold this position for a short period. This is one of the most difficult tricks that a dog performs.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

BEER OR WINE?

To the Editor of The Exmainer.

Sir: Why am I a prohibitionist? Because I can get 30 per cent wine made at home or in the factory, and can get as drunk as ever I like whenever I please, thanks to the prohibitionists who left wine out of the O. T. A., and notwithstanding their dear little bluffs at odd times have kept it out. Because I can get 4.4 beer. I acknowledge the wets with 4.4 have not done as much for me as the 4.4 per cent prohibitionists.

Now, then, brethren and sistern, we asked the wets to respect the law because it was law and we must do the same. Let 4.4 alone. It is only one-seventh of the strength of our own prohibitionist native wine. But we must respect the Law. We asked others to do it, and we ought to do it.

THE HUMAN ENGINE

Mrs. Mann of Anytown learned to compare the body with an engine, in her study of foods for health's sake.

If the engine is not supplied with fuel it will produce no power. The same is true with the body. There is but one difference here.

Nature provided that the body should lay up a reserve of fuel in the form of latent energy. This reserve supply enables one to live for some time, even after food has been cut off.

But just as some materials cannot be converted into power and energy when placed in an engine furnace, likewise many things, sometimes listed under the head of foods, can not be transferred into body energy.

By experience man has learned what materials are useful as foods. These materials exist in a great variety, but science has demonstrated that all of them consist of a few fundamental substances, combined in different proportions.

Here are the only food substances known:

Proteins of different varieties, fats of various kinds, and carbohydrates, or starches and sugars. These three substances, plus water and mineral salts and the group of vitamins, constitute the basis of all foods.

CUPID SETS HEARTS AFLUTTER

By Milton Bronner.

"Poor royal butterfly
Tried to give 'em the slip;
So they sent him away
On a great big ship."

Which is very bad verse, but perfectly good biography of George Edward Alexander Edmund Windsor, prince of the royal British house and youngest living son of the king and queen of England. For butter-fly like Prince George is always hovering around the flowerlike face of some pretty English girl, and then comes stern order:

'Send him away on a ship"

And as Prince George is the sailor of the family and intends to make the navy his career, of he has to go to the bounding blue main.

It's hard lines because George loves the ladies—and dancing— and parties—and cabarets—and all the things that make up the gay life. Even prince of Wales, his elder brother, hasn't anything on him. George is tall, well-built, good-looking, with a wind-burned, sea-tanned face which just naturally breaks into smiles. He's a good dancer.

He's a very decent pianist, especially when it comes to batting out syncopation. He enjoys speeding around London in a little two-seater car that he drives himself. In the field he's a very good shot.

And he has brains. Not long ago all the sub-lieutenants in the navy voluntarily stood an examination in foreign languages. George came out on top in French and took second plance in Italian. He's a keen sailor And when called upon to make a speech at some great function, acquits himself well.

About 18 months ago all the gossips were certain that the Marquess Curzon of Kedleston was going to be made a duke. Because why, Because his lovely daughter, Lady Alexandra Curzon, was rumored to be engaged to Prince George. This society, favorite whose mother was Miss Leiter of Chicago, was George's magnet. Whenever Alexandra was, there George was sure to be. She saved most of her dances for him and he came to claim them all. Then there came crashing through this romance this order:

'H. R. H. Sub. Lieut. Prince George will report to-morrow morning for duty on H. M. ship—"

And off went the royal suitor on a long cruise. Absence didn't make his heart grow fonder. He came back home fancy free. And then society soon had another romance to gabble about. This time the favorite was Miss Poppy Baring, the dashing daughter of Sir Godfrey Baring, who with Lady Baring, frequently entertains royalty at Nubia House, Isle of Wight. Once more the same symptoms were observed. The brightest, merriest cabarets saw them together dancing dance after dance.

And the other day there came this thunderbolt:

'H. R. H. Prince George will soon leave England to join the flagship on the China Station. In the ordinary course he will be gone two years at least and will return a fully commissioned litetenant."

Two years! Thus is the idyll of the Butterfly and the Poppy smashed.

It's evident the royal family isn't keen for the younger son to marry until the Prince of Wales and Prince

TEACHERS TO HAVE TRAVEL EDUCATION

Personal Knowledge of Canada Essential, Says Dean Sinclair Laird.

Travel and a personal knowledge of Canada should be an essential of a Canadian teacher's education, says Dean Sinclair Laird of Macdonald College, Quebec. Some may hesitate on account of the cost, but they should look on it as an investment which not merely gives six per cent interest but is a capital appreciation and safer than a gilt-edged bond. It also adds incalculably to one's own pleasure and efficiency, and gives that self-confidence which comes from personal experience.

A great deal depends on how one sees Canada. Any trip arranged should contain as much variety as possible—variety of scenery, of types of people and occupations, of verdure and climate, of industries and agricultural conditions. Variety of methods of travel should also be considered, as this adds greatly to one's pleasure, the human mind liking nothing so much as change. The ideal transcontinental trip combines train, motor and steamer, with occasional stops so as to give an opportunity for the welcome bath and facilities not only for stretching one's legs but also for studying things of particular interest and importance in more leisurely detail. The best movies have occasional close-ups.

The success of the Canadian Teachers' Federation trip last summer was due in no small measure to consideration of these points. The members of the party returned so enthusiastic about their experiences that others who missed that opportunity have suggested its repetition. Indeed, some of the party wish to cover the ground again, realizing that they cannot have too much of such an education. What particularly appealed to them was the comradeship enjoyed in travelling with colleagues who have the same outlook on life, similar backgrounds of educational experience, and who are bent on understanding, appreciating and enjoying things as they come along.

The advantages of a conducted party are reduction of expenses through travelling in numbers, the provision of table d'hote meals at a fixed price, together with the knowledge that the total cost, including gratuities, is known in advance. All troubles of tickets, baggage, transfers, hotel, boat and motor reservations are eliminated; there is no waste of time.

With this in view an itinerary has been prepared and arrangements have been made to operate a special train similar to that used by the Canadian Teachers' Federation party last year, consisting of standard drawing room sleeping cars, baggage car, dining car, and observation car, supplemented by an open top observation car in the mountains. This will leave Toronto at 2.15 p.m. on Monday, July 20, 1925, travelling westward over the main line of the Canadian Pacific with stop-overs en route at Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg, Regina, Moosejaw Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver, with a steamer trip from Vancouver to Victoria and return. On the return journey eastward, the route will be via the Kettle Valley Railway to Nelson with a stop at Penticton in the orchard country of the Okanagan Lake. At Nelson there will be a break of a steamer trip, crossing Kootenay Lake to Kootenay Landing, where the rail journey will be resumed through Cranbrook to Lake Windermere. Then what might be called the piece de resistance of the whole trip will follow. The entire party will be motored from Lake Windermere to Banff; a distance of 104 miles, through Kootenay National Park across the Great Divide amid the most magnificent Alpine scenery.

The journey homeward will be resumed via Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon to Kenora on the Lake of the Woods. Here one day will be spent at Devils Gap Bungalow Camp. Leaving Kenora by train for Fort William, the party will embark on one of the Canadian Pacific Great Lakes steamers and proceed through Lake Superior and Lake Huron by way of the Sault Ste. Marie Canal to Port McNicoll, where train is taken to Toronto, arriving there in ample time to attend the meeting of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, commencing August 12.

The cost of the trip will include all expenses. An illustrated itinerary will be mailed to anyone sending for it. Full details in this will enable you to calculate to a nicety the exact cost.

NO MORE GRIT TO OBSTRUCT CITY SEWERS FROM WASHRACKS FOR CLEANING OF MOTOR CARS

Bylaw Passed by Council Requiring Inclusion of Sump in Piping.

NEW PARKING LAW

Daylight Saving Thrown Out at Busy Session of City Council.

A by-law, giving the City Engineer power over the construction of racks for washing automobiles passed the City Council at its regular May meeting held last night. Mr. Parsons complained at the last Board of Works meeting that sand and grit was being carried down into the sewers, where it accumulated, so that there was now about eighteen inches of silt in the main pipes and they would soon have to be cleaned out at an expense of thousands of dollars. He said that if a sump were placed under the rack so as to catch all the grit, it would keep the dirt out of the sewer and would call attention to itself when it needed cleaning as it would refuse to work. The by-law also includes a clause forbidding the washing of cars on the public streets and a clause which provides penalties so drastic that the Mayor asked, after hearing them read out, "Can't they hang him, too?" A fine of $25.00 or a jail sentence of six months instead is provided for those who fail to carry out the provisions of this by-law.

Alderman McIntyre asked if this by-law would not interfere with private citizens who wished to wash their cars but it was pointed out that only garage men had the racks, which were the chief cause of trouble and the remedy required was a very simple one.

Write New Parking By-law.

Alderman Fife wants the old parking by-law or by-laws cleaned off entirely and a new one prepared. He thought that the suggestion for a conference, to be attended by representatives of the City Council, the Motor League and the Police Commission should have come from the council instead of in a letter which was read from the Motor League. He was appointed one of a committee, with the Mayor, Aldermen Denne and Phelan, to confer with the Motor League and Police Commission to draw up a new by-law.

Quash Daylight Saving.

An effort to re-open the question of daylight saving made by Paul Manning was summarily halted by Alderman Fife's motion to receive his letter. This was seconded by Alderman Crowe.

Inspect Streets.

Alderman Denne suggested that the Council should make a tour of the city and inspect the roads. The chairman of the Board of Works said he would be pleased to arrange for a glorious two or three days' tour.

Oil For Railway.

An application was made by the Canadian National Railway through A. MacNab, station agent, to have the driveway between the station and the freight shed oiled. This was left to the chairman of the Board of Works and the engineer as several of the aldermen thought that the city should not pay for this.

Ontario Tourists' Association.

Alderman Phelan reported on the meeting to form the Ontario Tourists' Association. He said that the fee for Peterborough had been placed at $25.00 and that the Government had promised to pay an equal sum to that which the municipalities raised. Some objection had been made to the name, which could be abbreviated to O.T.A., but it had been let stand. It was decided that the fee should be paid when requested.

More Gasoline Stations.

Three more gasoline pumps were granted on the usual terms at the motion of Alderman Fife. Ald. Turner said they should be notified that the council is considering taxing these pumps. Alderman Fife said it was his intention to propose a resolution to tax these tanks which he thought would not be objected to by the owners.

Alderman McIntyre said that the time had come to order the tanks removed from the streets. Alderman Crowe supported Alderman McIntyre's suggestion. He said there should be some consideration for those who had garages but did not approve of tanks in front of groceries, etc. One of the three latest applications is for a tank in front of a private house.

Alderman Fife was given authority to prepare a by-law for taxing gas tanks.

Riding Lessons.

Claude Bishop, who owns two ponies, which he keeps in a restricted area, wishes to give riding lessons and hire out his horses for this purpose. The council has no power to grant him a livery license. The city solicitor said that Mr. Bishop could take money for riding lessons without hiring his ponies and would not need a license for this.

New Sanitary Inspector.

Arthur Metheral, plumbing inspector, will from now on have authority as a sanitary inspector. A by-law to this effect was passed at the request of the Board of Health so that when Mr. Metheral found insanitary conditions in the course of his work he might order that they be remedied.

Money for Music.

Alderman Phelan read the report of the Finance Committee but moved that the appropriations of $600 for the Rangers' Band and $400 for the symphony Orchestra be reduced by $100 each and the $200 taken be divided among the Pipe Band and Male Voice Choir. Alderman Jones seconded the motion.

Alderman Turner moved that the motion be passed as it stood.

Alderman Fife supported the amendment and said he stood four-square for one band.

Alderman Denne moved an amendment that the whole grant be given to the band.

Alderman Crowe agreed with Alderman Fife and Denne about one band, but expressed disapproval of the present organization. He said that the Militia Department was not supporting the band, and its military affiliation should be given up so that it would be a city band.

Alderman Phelan's amendment was carried by the Mayor's casting vote.

A by-law was later passed to provide for the payment of the grants.

F. J. Grandy, representing the Male Voice Choir, asked for a grant from the city. He called attention to the fact that vocal organs were the first musical instruments to be used and the choir concerts had been much enjoyed by the citizens.

Not Enough Money.

Alderman Denne said that the sum of $125 set aside for the payment of a caretaker for the tourist camp was not sufficient. He said that the baseball teams which had paid part of the salary last year were not playing on the grounds this year. The amount was left as it stood and more money will be voted if needed.

Truck For Fire Department.

Alderman Fife asked in connection with the report of the Fire, Water and Light Department, why the lower priced car of the Gillespie Garage was not taken.

Ald. Jones said that the Reo car was used by many fire departments and the cheaper of the Federal trucks was not long enough.

F. R. J. MacPherson, who was in the gallery, said that he had not been asked to quote on the old chassis when making his quotation.

Alderman Fife suggested that, if as good a guarantee could be obtained on the repairs of the truck as had been obtained on the roller, the truck should be repaired.

It was moved by Alderman Jones, seconded by Alderman Denne, that the report be adopted.

Tax on Power.

A letter from the Canadian Deep Waterways Association asking for a resolution on the export tax on power was referred to a committee.

Licenses which have expired for eating houses will be renewed.

Fred Lee's request for a laundry license was granted.

D. V. King will be given a refund of license fees on two billiard tables which he has dismantled.

The retiring members, F. H. Dobbin and Mrs. Joseph Knox will be renominated to the Mothers' Pension Board.

There were present: Mayor J. J. Turner, Aldermen Nagle, Phelan, Robert N. Jones, E. Mel. Turner, J. O. Fife, W. J. Hancock, Malcolm McIntyre, Joseph Crowe, Roland Denne.

BOOKS ARE NOT GOOD EVIDENCE

Were Improperly Proved In Case Against Home Bank Director.

LONG ARGUMENT.

TORONTO, May 5 (Canadian Press).—The books of the Home Bank were insufficiently proved by the Crown as evidence against J. F. M. Stewart, a director, it was argued before the First Divisional Court this morning by N. W. Rowell, K.C., counsel of Mr. Stewart, appeal from a conviction for alleged negligence. The books of the bank do not prove themselves, he contended. They could be made evidence only by statute and this had not been done in Canada. Otherwise, he said, they could be proved only by calling the clerks who made the entries and in the majority of items in the present case the Crown had not followed that course, the evidence of accountants proving false, the annual report on which the charge against Mr. Stewart was based was founded on these books. Mr. Rowell declared, and therefore was improperly offered as against his client. Mr. Rowell is on his second day of argument and will not conclude earlier than tomorrow.

SHOWS ECONOMY OF NEW MOTOR

R. M. McIntyre, of Oshawa, Gives Lecture on Chev. Engine.

IMPROVED FEATURES.

Last night at Howson's Garage on Water Street a demonstration of peculiar interest to the motorist was given by R. M. McIntyre, a representative of the General Motors of Oshawa.

Mr. McIntyre used as the subject of his lecture the new Chevrolet engine and chassis and in order to clarify his demonstration he had a cut-out motor, rear axle assembly as well as other parts, so that the principles governing the moving mechanism might be clearly understood.

The new Chevrolet as was shown is a great departure from the older models, as it now embodies several startling and attractive features.

A new type of engine, a new axle and a longer frame, giving a greater spring suspension, are the more important details. The changed features assure a higher grade of performance and greater riding comforts than were ever before experienced by owners of light cars.

In brief, the improvements on the new Chevrolet are as follows: New refined motor, lighter but capable of developing the same horse-power as the older type motor, new crank shaft, new enclosed starting motor. Improvements in gas distribution, entirely enclosed fly wheel, new single plate dry type of clutch requiring no lubrication or adjusting. All of the improvements make for economy in operation.

The new frame is thirty-six inches longer and is considerably stronger, having five cross-members, the rear member being a pressed steel plate over the gas tank and the engine housing of high carbon steel. There are new semi-elliptic springs which give the Chevrolet greater springage than any other Canadian car with equal wheelbase. The front axle is much heavier for balloon tire use, while the rear axle is the semi-floating one piece banjo type of a stronger construction.

The new steering gear is on the direct control principle, having a full worm and worm gear with fore and aft control.

The transmission is directly connected to the engine assembly which makes the power distribution more effective.

On the closed models Fisher bodies are used, which invite comparison as regards appointments with any of the larger cars. The new windshield is of the V.V. type, with special provision for ventilation, and is equipped with an automatic windshield wiper.

All cars are finished with Duco, the advantages of which are that the colors will not fade, blister or crack, and in reality the finish improves with use.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH CONCERT.

(By Jeannette).

Between six and seven hundred people filled St. Andrew's Church almost to capacity last evening, and formed an audience which appreciated to the utmost the fine concert rendered by the choir, assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, soprano, and Leo Smith 'cellist, of Toronto, with Mr. Charles Peaker, of Knox Church, as accompanist, and Mr. John Crane as organist and director.

To Mr. Crane belongs much of the credit for the excellence of the choir's rendition of a varied and difficult programme of music. Their co-operation and his fine sense of musical values produced last evening a very satisfying entertainment, with the religious note extremely apparent. Other concerts by this choir have included a number of lighter efforts, but last night's programme was of a more ambitious type. Possibly the lightest and one of the most charming of the choral offerings was the quaint bit by Pietre Yon, "Jesu Redemptor," and a massive thing, not often attempted by small choral organizations, but very adequately handled, was "Hear My Prayer," by Mendelssohn.

The beautiful vocal numbers by Mrs. Park, sung in her usual thoroughly proficient manner, and the 'cello music by Mr. Leo Smith, rounded out an exceptionally interesting programme, concluded at an early hour.

The opening numbers in the well-balanced programme were sung by the choir, the ladies in white and the choir stalls and pulpit decorated with tall vases of bright flowers. "Doth Not Wisdom Cry?" with recitative by Mr. D. Carlisle, made a fine beginning, and was followed by "The Shepherd's Song," the matin song of the guardian of the sheep, the hush of the dawn in the softly-blended voices, shaded to exquisite effect. Splendid control by the unaccompanied singers was evidenced in a second "a capella" selection, "Fierce was the Wild Billow," a Tertius Noble composition, with a great deal of majestic power in a splendid rendition of its forceful passages, softening to peaceful measures in the refrain, "Peace! It is I!" A fine command of the nuances of expression in choral music was apparent in this, as in the massive vocalism of the big number of the evening, Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer," a soaring, powerful prayer, with vibrant petition in the sublime measures that demonstrated the composer's command of florid and yet rich harmony and the emotional feeling in his imaginative music. Mrs. Park had the solo work in this beautiful number, her fine voice forming a perfect complement for the choral background, with its organ accompaniment.

A piano accompaniment added to the delicate atmosphere of the unique and charming rendition of "Jesu Redemptor," by Pietre Yon. Mr. Carlisle's fine, resonant baritone had the solo, and repeated applause followed the effective singing of this odd bit, with a joyous Christmas note in this song of Noel-time, and the graduated accents of its rhythmic measures. "Trees and the Master," by Protheroe, was a quaint thing, with fine precision of attack and release in its lyrical stanzas, and the final choral number, "Jubilate! Amen," with solo by Mrs. Park, was an appropriate finish to a splendid choral programme that demonstrated to the full the choir's command of restrained, soft music as well as powerful, surging passages that called forth all the resources of the massed voices. A diversity of selections and treatment afforded a splendid opportunity for observation of a well-developed musical sense, both in the choir and their director.

Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park was in splendid voice last night, and received enthusiastic encores for every number. Her first group included a soft lullaby, sung in half voice, a delicate slumber song, "The Virgin at the Manger," followed by a real contrast in the dramatic heart song, "Ah Love, but a Day," with its vibrant sweetness, and finishing with the lovely "Blackbird's Song," the simulated song of a joyous bird, with its slurred, trailing sweetness and rippling accompaniment. This last number was sung by request.

"A Summer Night," a dainty, charming chant of love and dreams, had a 'cello accompaniment, which formed the background also for its encore.

Mr. Leo Smith, violoncellist, of Toronto, played several selections. With a manifest technical mastery of his instrument and an evident absorption in his own fine music, he held his audience charmed with his music. A fine quality of expressive rendition was apparent in his dual opening number, strongly contrasted in treatment, an "Adagio" that was mild and peaceful and rather wistful, played in dreamy style with the broad, legato bow that seems to be a favorite with this artist, and an "Allegro," a saucy number with a jolly tone to the pianissimo briskness of its smooth staccato measures.

The "Study in C sharp minor," which formed Mr. Smith's second offering, was a heavy selection; broad, deep-toned music, with sombre mood in its elegiac atmosphere, heightened by an almost constant use of the G string. Repeated applause for this number brought a soft-toned, unaccompanied encore.

"The Willow Tree" (a paraphrase and a "Minuet," with a light touch in its dainty, dancing rhythm, formed the concluding numbers in Mr. Smith's programme.

A quartette of singers, composed of Messrs, E. Humpage, H. Niven, D. Carlisle and R. A. Brown, gave two well-received selections, "Prayer Perfect" and "Coming Home," the latter bringing a warm encore.

Mr. Charles Peaker, organist of Knox Church, provided piano accompaniments in his usual proficient manner. Mr. Crane acted as organist and choir director.

OTTAWA, May 5 (Canadian Press)—In a judgment which is believed to affect the licensing and control functions of the Board of Grain Commissioners, the Supreme Court of Canada today declared subsection 7 of section 95 of the Canada Grain Act ultra vires of the Canadian Parliament. This sub-section provides that stock must be taken annually of overages in public terminal elevators and that all overages in excess of one-quarter of one per cent must be sold and the proceeds paid to the grain board.

SWEEPERS AVOID GRADE.

Residents On Hunter Street East Say They Get No Service.

Many of the residents on Hunter Street east of Rogers complain as to the dirty condition of the pavement. They report that the sweepers seldom venture in their vicinity and would suggest that the unsightly accumulation be removed so that the work of yard cleaning might not appear useless.

While it is true that the street in that locality climbs a steep grade nevertheless they think some provisions should be made for the maintenance of cleanliness. People of that locality say that the dustless sweeper stops and turns around at Rogers street, entirely neglecting their territory.

"Bing" Miller Has Hand in Another Defeat of the Yankees.

SISLER'S BIG DAY.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Yankees lost their fifth straight game today when "Bing" Miller, whose homer decided yesterday's game, delivered a ninth inning triple which scored Dykes with the run that gave Philadelphia the victory by the score of 8 to 7. Heavy hitting, much substitution of new pitchers and numerous pinch-hitters marked the bitter struggle of the Yankees to stop their slump. Score:

ST. LOUIS, May 4.—George Sisler, manager of the St. Louis Browns, had a field day today and was largely responsible for the 5 to 4 defeat administered Detroit. In addition to getting two singles, Sisler hit into the right field bleachers with two men on the bases, and then in the eighth inning pilfered home on a double steal. It was the nineteenth consecutive game in which he has hit safely. Score:

SPRING TONIC FOR GOLFERS

As Prescribed by Bill Melhorn

There is one little thing I would like to mention about putting in regard to players who spend the day on the course.

That is to make allowance for dew. I have seen golfers start out in the morning and fall lamentably short on putts. And then as the morning wears away they will change to the other extreme and overshoot the cup on eve ry shot.

The dew causes such troubles. Clover is always slow and especially so when it is damp. It causes short putts. And then before the round is half complete, according to how strongly the sun is shining, the greens will have dried up and have regained their former speed.

Wetness also affects a side roll on undulating greens and allowance for that should be made.

On a side-hill putt from right to left I have found it easier to play to the right rather than take a more direct line to the hole and cut the putt. This at least fills the mind with only a single thought.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

It is easily possible to hold the shaft tightly in the fingers, yet have not the least tightness in the forearm, during the address. You can demonstrate for yourself that it is possible, with a finger grasp only on the shaft, to cause the club-head to move up and down or back and forth and still not feel any noticeable tightening of the forearm muscles. That is the correct degree of relaxation the player should have during the address. The club should be held firmly enough in the fingers to indicate that you intend to do business with it, yet the grip should be entirely in the fingers and hands. If you start with this kind of relaxation you will be apt to maintain it. There is a further tightening of the muscles as the back swing progresses that will usually be automatic—if you start right.

OSHAWA PROTEST JOHNNY OUELLET

Will Object to the Trunks' Pitcher at Wednesday Meeting.

(Belleville Intelligencer).

When the executive of the C. O. A. B. L. meets at Cobourg on Wednesday to wind up the business of the League before it opens on the 21st, it is believed that Jack Ouellet will be protested, and an effort made to keep him from pitching for Walter Gerow's nine this season.

The Intelligencer learns that Oshawa will obstruct Belleville and it is also said that Kingston will protest his eligibility. Oshawa claim they were protested by Belleville after the season's play two years ago and last season Kingston claims they were wronged by the locals. They do not feel that Belleville should expect anything but strict justice from them. That is the feeling which exists as learned by the Intelligencer.

This will be a most interesting question for the C.O.B.L. fandom and a vital one for Belleville players and fans. Ouellet reached the zenith of his career with the Moguls last season, and was a tower of strength. His presence with or absence from C.N.R. line-up this season will doubtless mean much too the locals who believe and will contend that he has a perfect right to play with them this season.

SOCCER NOTES

At King Edward Park, tonight, the Masseys and C. P. C. meet in an exhibition game.

On Saturday afternoon the De Laval and C. P. C. open their league schedule at Nicholls Oval. Kick-off at 3 o'clock.

The Thistle will entertain the Quaker Oats on Saturday afternoon on King Edward Park in a league game. Kick-off at 3 o'clock. Referee, W. Rickard.

Let it be understood that the Football Council report relative to the corner kick and throw-in does not effect soccer in Canada until it is accepted by D. F. A.

Quaker Oats went down to defeat to the score of 3 goals to nothing from the fast going C. P. C. Juniors.

The C. P. C. Juveniles defeated the North-Ends at the Oval, by 2 goals to 1. All the kids made a good show in spite of the fact that they have had no coaching.

Phelan Charity Cup Tie draw will take place next Monday evening and all must have their fee of two dollars paid. Campbellford will be invited to participate.

When the referee's report of last Saturday's game between Thistle and Woollens was read the crossbar at the west end caused some discussion, which was left to the Thistle to get fixed before the next game, also to get co-operation of the Juniors if possible.

All entries for the Gordon Cup must be in by next Monday evening with the entry fee of five dollars. Outside teams will be invited to enter this cup tie competition.

SCHOOL LEAGUE OPENING UNDER CLOUDED SKIES

King Edward School Won Close Game 4-3 From Queen Mary School.

RUGBY WEATHER

Sowden, pitching for Queen Mary, walked himself out of a game when he held King Edward to two hits and then spoiled his good work by giving seve bases on balls. The result was that King Edward School won the first game of the Public School League from Queen Mary school by the score of 4-3, in weather more suited to rugby or hockey than baseball.

With a little better control on the part of their pitcher Queen Mary would have won the game as they crashed out 8 hits, three of them for two bases, Crary, with two hits, both doubles, in three tries, was their leading hitter. He was given good assistance by Dormer, Sowden and White, who each managed to connect safely twice. Austin and Steers collected the two hits for the south-end school.

Battle was the fielding star of the game. Catching the first game of his career, he held up Bill Cripps like a veteran, being credited with 14 putouts and 5 assists and having only one passed ball on the wrong side of the sheet. His throwing arm was not equal to catching runners at second base but those who essayed to steal third were turned back. His rival Hall, held up his pitcher well. He threw nicely to the bases but was handicapped by Sowden's three-times-around wind-up which gave the runners a nice start. Both pitchers fielded their position nicely as did all the infielders. Not a an was put out by the outfielders on either side. Kearns had the only chance and misjcdged a fly. He redeemed himself by a nicee throw on Dormer's hit to deep right, cutting off the runner at third base.

Some dumb baserunning was dished up by both teams. A little more coaching will remedy this defect. The players left their teammates on the bases to their own devices to a great extent, and several of them were caught napping.

The home team opened the scoring in the second; Pugh was walked, and stole second and third. Moffat walked and stole second. Both runners remained while Battle missed three and then Pugh scored on Steers' grounder to second Moffatt was slow in starting for third and a quick return throw from McDonald caught him to complete a snappy double play.

The visitors took the lead in the third when they scored two runs on successive hits by Dormer, Crary and Sowden, after Robertson had been run down between the plate and third on a short passed ball. The home team climbed up on even terms again in their half, taking advantage of a walk to Kearns, who stole second and scored on Austin's single to third. They added another to take the lead in the fourth, on two walks and an infield out, by which Pugh was enabled to score.

The visitors made it all square for the last time in their half of the fifth when Crary singled, stole second and scored on Sowden's single.

The winning run was scored in the sixth. Ward struck out but Hall dropped the ball. Austin was walked and then Cripps shoved a hard one at Dormer. The third baseman deflected it to Crary, who threw to third for the force-out. Dormer dropped the ball but Ward, who endeavored to score on the error was out at the plate. Austin took third on the play and scored on a passed ball.

Alex Kay was out to give the boys a good start, with his usual help in training the boys to play the game as it should be played. He was right on top of every play and the boys were happy to have his assistance.

The other game scheduled between King George and Queen Alexandra schools, at the Oval, was called off.

CENTRAL LEAGUE NOTES

New Umpires to be Appointed From Several Applicants for Positions.

OSHAWA, May 5. — (Special). — Noble Stacy's Kingston Club provided the first two strike-outs of the early season—the first was on the umpire appointments; the second on "iron man" Jack Ouellett's residence qualifications.

Once a prominent man claimed he would jack hides on the fence—those days have gone forever. "Hides" are to become a prominent part in the discussion of the residence qualification of a prominent slab artist in the Central Ontario Baseball League — those days are to come. Buying and shipping 'hides' out of Fenelon Falls is one good story.

Now that the sub-committee of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association have passed with favor the transfer of the senior franchise of Peterboro into the hands of President Matthews and his officers, the Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League should have one of its best seasons. President Anderson of Oshawa has called a meeting of the Executive, to be held in Cobourg on Wednesday of this week, when new appointments and assignments to umpires will be made, final preparations for the opening games arranged, a draft copy of constitution submitted, and date set for the committee on the passing of certificates to convene.

Alec Kay and Walter Jackson of Peterboro, Richard Butler and S. Lee of Lindsay, Geo. Sullivan of Kingston and two Toronto umpires answered the S.O.S. of President C. M. Anderson of Oshawa to accept berths in the Central Ontario League for the coming season, and when the Executive meets in Cobourg this week the one who helped put the League on the map in its first year of operation, Alec Kay, will be a welcomed addition.

The Belleville Ontario carries the following as evidence of Jack Ouellett's residence qualifications:

"Let it be said that John Ouellette will receive his card and that no subterfuge will be needed to obtain it. Belleville in all its years in the C.O.B.L. has always 'came clean' with regard to its players being eligible and that condition still remains. The Kingston writers are sure having brain storms and doing a lot of useless worrying Ouellette was in Belleville on January 1st, and for some time afterwards, and has been here repeatedly all through the winter."

Evidently the Ontario writer could not conscientiously use the word "continuous" as provided in the wording of the residence clause of the O.B.A.A. There are many miles between the "repeatedly" and "continuous." Fenelon Falls to Belleville via Lindsay.

President C. M. Anderson of Oshawa is keeping up with the traditions of past presidents of the Central Ontario League, and is now to be seen sitting at the wheel of a gasoline buggy. It took time to induce C. M. to accept the highest office in the big league, but when he fell for the proposition, he decided to put it over in big fashion, and Ban Johnson will have nothing on him in the way of travelling around to see his under officials at work during the coming season.

AUSTRALIA PICKS DAVIS CUP PLAYERS

The Australian tennis team that will seek Davis cup honors this season will again be made up of Patterson, Hawkes and Anderson. All are well known in this country. The Antipodeans, by the way, hope to make a strong bid for the trophy, the best yet, it might be said.

The Washingtons have climbed back to the top in the American League race, thus proving anew that they were lucky to win the flag last year.

SOCCER SEASON PROVED POWER OF LANCASHIRE

Three Teams Finished Well Up In the First Division.

NORTH DOMINATED.

Metropolitan Teams Were Great Disappointment to Their Followers All Season.

LONDON, May 5 (Canadian Press Cable)—A survey of the football season in the Old Country, which closed on Saturday, reveals that the north and midlands continue to dominate the soccer game, while the south of England, and particularly the metropolitan area, shows up to little advantage in the general run of the play. It is noted that not a southern or London team appears in the top half of the first division table.

While the championship went to Huddersfield, this is the only club from that county that emerges creditably from the season's league encounters, the neighboring county of Lancashire furnishing the majority of the strong teams that finished the year well. If the first eleven clubs of the league are tabulated by counties, some indication is given of where the strength in English soccer lies. The column would run in this fashion:

Yorkshire—(Huddersfield)
Staffordshire—(West Bromwich)
Lancashire—(Bolton Wanderers)
Lancashire—(Liverpool)
Lancashire—(Bury)
Northumberland—(Newcastle United)
Durham—(Sunderland)
Staffordshire—(Birmingham)
Nottinghamshire—(Notts County)
Lancashire—(Manchester City)
Wales—(Cardiff City)

In point of fact Lancashire provided over one-third of the teams in the first division, for in addition to the foregoing there were also Blackburn, Everton, Burnley and Preston North End. The proportion will not be lessened when Preston North End take their place in the second division next year, for in their stead will come another Lancastrian aggregation, Manchester United. Neither do the Midlands lose any representation for Notts Forest's place will be taken by Leicester City.

Sheffield Won Cup

With regard to the remaining Yorkshire teams, the others were Sheffield United and Leeds United. Both were indifferent in League football, but Sheffield United retrieved themselves splendidly when they gathered in the cup. Leeds United were newcomers into the first division last season, having been promoted along with Bury, but while Bury finished in fifth place from the top, Leeds United wound up fifth place from the bottom.

The past season was a disappointment to Londoners. Three metropolitan clubs were represented in the senior soring, West Ham United, Tottenham Hotspurs and Arsenal. All three ended their scheduled encounters in the bottom half of the league standing. The least impressive of the trio was Arsenal who sustained 23 defeats out of forty-two games, a "record" that was exceeded only by the two clubs relegated, Preston and Notts Forest. It is noted that Arsenal were able to draw only five contests, the smallest number in the first division, but equaled in the third by Southend United and Merthyr Town. (Tranmere Rovers drew four games.)

To add to the metropolitans' discomfiture was the relegation of one of their clubs from the second to the third division, Crystal Palace being the unfortunates. No compensating promotions lightened the burden of humiliation, for the only London team that displayed spirit in the second string was Chelsea and at that the "Pensioners" had to accept fifth position, with a very indifferent record.

Now Comes Cricket

Whether the 1924-1925 season was a financial success or not will not be known until the "box-office" receipts are counted and the ledgers balanced. That the attendances were not always satisfactory is well known, for the past winter was characterized by atrocious football weather. Several first division clubs had found themselves in serious financial straits at the opening of the season, and the playing year just gone was not of a nature to extricate them from these conditions. The annual meetings, however, will tell their own story, and for a few month now Engand has forgottten football. The ringing down of the curtain on Saturday was also the signal for the entry of the equally pleasing if less boisterous national pastime of cricket.

Billy Evans Says

DEMPSEY'S TITLE

Does Jack Dempsey intend to do any more fighting in defence of his heavyweight title?

I seriously doubt it.

Recently I met Dempsey in Chicago, en rout from California to New York. Jack, naturally, was the magnet for scores of newspapermen and photographers.

To each and every one the champion insisted he was ready to fight any logical contender for a satisfactory purse.

He refused to say whether or not he ragarded Wills or Gibbons as a logical contender and also failed to state what sum of money he regarded as a satisfactory purse.

* * *

I am inclined to think that any interview Dempsey gives out on the fight game has movie publicity as its motive.

* * *

MOVIE ACTOR

The atmosphere and environment of the "movies" has wrought a considerable change in Dempsey's makeup.

Dempsey of today is more the movie star in style and manner than the heavyweight champion of the world.

The paraffin nose has done much to make Dempsey lose that fighting face, once his outstanding character istic.

Jack is the near Valentino now, rather than the cave man of other days.

Also there is something about his general physical appearance that doesn't impress you. I doubt if he is within 75 per cent of his physical fitness of say three years back.

Unquestionably Dempsey realizes that his big asset as a movie actor is his ring reputation and he is seeking to capitalize on it.

* * *

I doubt if Dempsey ever fights again. If he does, and his opponent is of championship caliber, the result may produce a new heavyweight champion.

* * *

FIGHTING SPIRIT

A good game ball club is far more dangerous over the long route than a great club that has a tendency to curl up when the going gets rough.

No ball club in recent years better typifies the fighting spirit, gameness, more than the world champion Washington.

Courage under fire, more than any other factor, won a pennant and baseballs greatest honor, the world series, for Washington.

Three time last season Washington received serious setbacks. Once it was the loss of five game in a row, on two other occasions the dropping of four straight.

Such reverses, coming at a critical time in the race, test the mettle of a ball cub to the limit.

* * *

Each time Washington came back with a string of victories to offset the unexpected reverses. Gameness did it.

SITUATION IN MOROCCO NOW WELL IN HAND

Marshal Lyautey Has Strong Force Aligned Against Riffian Tribesmen.

MOORS DEFEATED.

General Colombat Forced to Abandon Siege of French Outposts.

RABBAT, French Morocco, May 5 (Canadian Press).—The situation arising from the invasion of the French zone of Morocco by Abd-el-Krim's Riffian tribesmen, which was at one time more serious, is now considered well in hand, due to the punishment inflicted upon invaders by French forces.

Marshal Lyautey, who is directing operations from Fez, now has aligned against the tribesmen eighteen battalions of infantry, six squadrons of cavalry, twelve batteries of artillery and a well-equipped aviation corps. The airmen have done considerable execution among the Riffians as well as keeping the commanders of the French troops posted as to the movements of the enemy.

Riffians Ready to Attack

FEZ, Morocco, May 5 (Canadian Press).—The Riffians are preparing to attack the French forces at three principal points, it was reported to-day by French aviators after General Colombat's column had engaged the invaders near Djobal Bibani to relieve the French outposts still surrounded by the tribesmen. Information of the French intelligence division is that one force of Riffians is essembling in the centre of the front to attempt a march in the general direction of Fez. Another native force is apparently assembling to attack the French left, while the third is being formed against the French right. The result of the first skirmishes, the French authorities say, shows that Abd-el Krim's warriors are little prepared to meet French tactics. They appeared surprised at the deadly character of the Fench fire, and although they faced General Colombat's men courageously at the beginning, they broke and fled in disorder when they saw the effects of French fire.

Moors Met Reverse.

PARIS, May 5 (Canadian Press).—Abd-el-Krim's raid into French Morocco has met its first serious check. General Colombat, with a flying column consisting of cavalry, eight battalions of infantry and some Algerian troops, attacked the Riffians 50 miles northwest of Fez across the River Quergha and forced them to abandon the siege of the advance blockhouse at Aoudour. The Riffians left 30 dead.

NO TAX DUE ON ILLICIT GAINS

Bootlegger or Criminal Need Not Pay Income Tax on Profits.

SUPREME COURT RULE.

OTTAWA, May 5. — (Canadian Press).—The Supreme Court of Canada to-day gave unanimous judgment allowing the appeal of Cecil Smith, of Windsor, Ont., against the judgment of the Exchequer Court which ruled that his profits from bootlegging were subject to income tax.

What may be called the machinery clauses of the Act clearly show that it never was contemplated that income tax be levied on gains derived from illicit businesses or from the commission of crime, states Mr. Justice Mignalt in giving reasons for the conclusions reached. "It is difficult to conceive," he said, "of a Minister requiring criminals to furnish information as to the profits derived from the commission of crime or demanding of them the keeping of books or records of their illicit and criminal operations."

DEAL WITH GASES AT ARMS MEETING

United States' Suggestion Would Limit Barbarity of Modern Warfare.

GENEVA, May 5. — (Canadian Press).—A suggestion concerning additional measures to deal with the traffic in poisonous gases will be offered by the United States to the international conference for the control of the traffic in arms, Representative Theodore Burton, of Ohio, told the conference to-day. The measure would have the effect of reducing the barbarity of modern warfare. Certain other constructive suggestions will also be offered by the United States, he announced.

HARBOR IMPORTANT.

Pearl Harbor is Key of United States' Defences in the Pacific.

HONOLULU, May 5. — (Canadian Press.)— The importance of Pearl Harbor as the core of the Island of Oahu defenses, and the basis of the United States' defenses in the Pacific was emphasized by naval officers who toured the base with a party of newspapermen yesterday.

The immediate improvement needed at Pearl Harbor, the naval officers pointed out, is the dredging of the channel to a depth of 45 feet to permit the entrance of the biggest United States' dreadnoughts under any weather condition.

BIRDS WARBLE IN ENTHUSIASM AS THEY BUILD SUMMER HOMES

Limbs of Trees Will Soon Be Heavier Clothed Than Some Others.

BUILDING BOOM.

Jackson Park is Favored, But Some Like Central Locations.

Although the magic touch of spring has been but lightly felt there are nevertheless promises of latent glory evident which will soon burst upon the consciousness of Peterborough folk.

Even now the far off trees have assumed a light green vesture and countless thousands of tiny leaves are breaking through the hard bud cases which kept them prisoners.

Soon the gaunt bare limbs will be board walks and the little grass clothed far more adequately than many recently observed on the local blades already resist the whirring lawn mower.

Birds continue to warble with enthusiasm and are fiercely determined that spring shall come. Early in the morning they rise up to send forth their invitations of welcome and having done this they begin again the assiduous search for suitable building locations convenient to food supply as well as requirements of society. The commuting birds favour Jackson's Park as a rendezvous and there is a great building boom in that locality. This is expedited on account of the high quality of the building material which is to be obtained there.

Good Mortar.

The feathered folk of Jackson's Park report that the mud available there is of the very highest quality and the supply is unlimited. Old grass and suitable feathers are also found in quantity, so it is to be expected that the suburban section will soon be built up.

There are still some splendid lots which might be leased more convenient to the busy section and applications for these will be received throughout the summer.

Birds of urban tastes like the cultivated beauties of the parks in the central portions and they look with high hope on the protruding bulbs in the flower plots. The tulips this year extend a promise of beauty which has seldom been excelled. In the mornings and evenings birds may be observed cultivating and harrowing the earth surface to expedite the growth and discover the odd worm.

The stage is cleared for spring; the melodramatic winter has blustered into the wings followed by his two furies exemplified in the recent snowstorms. Now all is hushed while earth pulses with gladness and expectation, responding to gentle May breaths and shivering tremulously when a chance whisper of cold passes. Softly the orchestra will swing into a prelude and Spring will be officially announced.

CANCER STILL DEFIES SCIENCE

It is on the Increase and is the Scourge of Mankind, Says Dr. Hoffman.

AN IRRITATION.

TORONTO, May 5 (Canadian Press).—In spite of the constant war against cancer, in spit of all the investigation, laboratory work, talk and lecturing done in recent years this disease still remained the outstanding scourge of mankind. It was on the increase, despite all that might be said to the contrary and the only practical result which had been attained by all the war against it was to bring science to the point where man could induce an artificial form of cancer. Those were some of the declarations of Dr. Frank L. Hoffman of New York in the course of an address yesterday afternoon before the annual meeting of the Ontario Health Officers' Association The purpose of Dr. Hoffman's address was to impress upon the medical profession in general and upon medical health officers in particular the importance of furnishing data with regard to all cases of cancer. For in the opinion of Dr. Hoffman, little or no progress would be made in the fight against the scourge until a much greater mass of data had been accumulated with regard to the preliminary stages of the disease or rather of the "irritation."

As Dr. Hoffman put it, cancer could hardly be defined as a disease; it was more nearly an irritation. That had been demonstrated by the fact that it could be produced in various parts of the body by irritation; and he was confident that the time would never come when any special cancer germ would be discovered.

CONVICT MARRIED IN TORONTO JAIL

Two Officers Were Witnesses and Groom Wore Conventional (Jail) Clothes.

TORONTO, May 5.—(Canadian Press).—Brought from Portsmouth Penitentiary, where he is serving a four years and six months sentence for forgery, to face trial for the theft of an automobile, Walter Heintzman was married yesterday to Pauline Ebert, 20 years of age. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. F. E. Powell, in Toronto Jail, in the presence of two officials. Heintzman was attired in the regulation prison uniform.

In Police Court to-day Heintzman was found not guilty on the charge of theft, but he will now appear in Brampton to answer the charge of robbery with violence.

Miss Ebert met Heintzman last December in Toronto, shortly after his release from the penitentiary, on the completion of a two and a half years' term.

GEORGE O'BRIEN PLAYS NEW ROLE IN WILLIAM FOX FEATURE PICTURE.

"The Dancers" is booked as Feature for Tuesday and Wednesday, showing at the Regent Theatre—A New York Stage Success—Directed by Emmett Flynn is Outstanding Production Marking Distinct Advance in Screen Artistry.

The announcement ma . by the management of the Regent Theatre that "The Dancers," the screen version of which has recently been completed, has been booked as the feature attraction for Tuesday and Wednesday is of more than passing interest to the local photoplay devotee, especially as George O'Brien has the lead, and Alma Rubens and Madge Bellanmy play opposite to him.

This picture and adaptation of the stage success by Gerald Du Maurier and Viola Tree, in which Richard Bennett scored a triumph, is one of the biggest on the William Fox schedule this year. Besides O'Brien and Miss Rubens ther: are in the cast Madge Bellamy, who plays 'Una' and Walter McGrail in the heavy role. Other prominent motion picture names in the cast are Templar Saxe, Joan Standing, Freeman Wood and Alice Hollister.

AT THE CAPITOL

"HE WHO GETS SLAPPED" THE STORY OF A CLOWN.

The glamor and romance of a European circus provides the colorful, interesting background for "He Who Gets Slapped," the Victor Seastrom production which opens at the Capitol Theatre here Thursday.

This unusual picture, adapted from the play by the noted Russian author, Leonid Andreyev, is set in the locale of a Continental hippodrome, with a clown as the central character.

Interest surrounds the production because of the fact that Victor Seastrom, the prominent Swedish director, filmed it for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company as his second American picture. Like Lubitsch, Buchowetzski and the other foreign producers Seastrom proved immensely popular with the American audience with his first picture here, "Name the Man."

A strong cast has been announced for the picture, headed by Lon Chaney, who plays the title role. Norma Shearer and John Gilbert. The supporting players are Tully Marshall, Ford Sterling, Clyde Cook, Marc McDermott, Paulette Duval, Harvey Clarke, Ruth King, George Davis and others.

VAUDEVILLE AND RICARDO CORTEZ

A new slant to the Capitol Theatre programmes commences this week with the inclusion of the always-popular vaudeville. Farnum and Johnston are two musical young ladies who add to the zest of the regular picture offerings with their singing and playing. The very latest hits, the songs that the metropolitan centres are humming these days, may be heard on the stage when "two maids and a piano" offer their vocal and instrumental numbers. The possessors of fine voices, one a rich contralto, the other a light, high soprano, they give charming solo and duet renditions of popular music, with the second member of the trio contributing some pretty pianoforte numbers. Farnum and Johnston are well worth hearing.

The handsome, vital Ricardo Cortez, with the speaking eyes and the debonnair manner, is starring in "The Spaniard" at the Capitol for the first half of this week. This new screen matinee idol bids fair to eclipse even the dashing Rudolph Valentino in the affections of his feminine audiences.

"The Spaniard" has all the atmosphere and coloring of sunny Spain to lend added attraction to its romantic story. As Don Pedro de Barrego, the handsome Spanish youth arrives to dazzle London with his flair and his melting eyes. English beauties and English hostesses vie for his favor, but he falls a victim to the charms of the lovely Dolores, played by Jetta Goudal, and progoses to her on their first meeting. To Spain returns the handsome Don, and to Spain, on a visit, goes Dolores. In the Plaza del Toros (the bull ring) they see each other once more, the proud English beauty in her box, the erstwhile Don prodding the bull to further fury, as the idolized matador of Seville. Just how the lady spurns the low-born bull-fighter and just how he pursues and wins her, even to the bandits' laid in the mountains, makes an interesting story, effectively screened.

The comedy is a hilarious affair, with Jonah, a speed boat, as the main item in the entertainment. Some of the stunts that take place in this comedy are revelations in what the moving picture celluloid really can concoct when it sets its mind to it.—Jeanette.

AT THE ROYAL

"FLIRTING WITH LOVE" SUPERB ENTERTAINMENT

Delightful Story of Stage Life

A large audience last night started the Royal off on another week, and the well-balanced programme was thoroughly enjoyed. The shorter featurettes preceeding the feature were varied and unusually interesting.

Superb entertainment is "Flirting With Love," the First National picture, co-featuring Colleen Moore and Conway Earle.

We cannot remember ever seeing a picture before in which these two popular screen players were together, but after viewing this delightful picture of stage life we will look forward with anticipation to their next appearance together.

Based on Leroy Scott's story, "Counterfeit," this photplay establishes tenderly the case of Gilda Lamont, played by Colleen Moore. There are perhaps hundreds of Gildas, who, like the Gilda of "Rigoletto," must suffer ignominy for sacrifice.

Gilda is an actress, and, like most actresses, she is confronted with the problem of holding her audiences by giving up the drama she loves for risque farces. She dies it because she and her manager cannot eat on the profits of "artistic successes." Only those who see Gilda's struggle from the factory bench to divine dramatic gifts can appreciate the sympathy she really deserves.

To complete her come-down she has a press agent who surrounds her with shocking tales of his imagination. She immediately becomes notorious, and we see the sincere little creature suddenly transformed into a violently temperamental prima donna in order to live up to her reputation.

Consequently, when she is starred in "The Lost Kimono," a veritable Niagara of fame and fortune begins. But even this is wrested from her within twenty-four hours. Wade Cameron (enacted by Conway Tearle), a psycho-analyst, who acts as chairman of the "Better Plays Committee," closes the show as immoral.

"Action" inadequately describes what follows fast and furiously. The camel's back has been broken, and its attempts to pass through the eye of a needle could not be more entertainingly full of humor and pathos than Gilda's revenge upon Cameron.

"CODE OF THE SEA" COMING

"Code of the Sea," a new Paramount picture, with Rod La Rocque and Jacqueline Logan, is due at the Royal Theatre on Thursday, to remain for three days. Naturally, it's a sea story. Victor Fleming, who made "To the Last Man," "The Call of the Canyon," "The Law of the Lawless," etc., directed.

Some of the big scenes include a series of storm episodes, a leap by La Rocque across a yawning chasm. This is a REAL thrill. The scene, in which the passengers of a grounded yacht are rescued from the shore by means of a breeches buoy, is a novelty. And then, when the yacht disappears beneath the waves—La Rocque and the captain with it, you will surely think it's the end. But there's a happy climax to the picture.

It'll do you good to see it.

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK FILMED

At last the fairy tale, known by every child as well as adult, Jack and the Bean Stalk, has been filmed and booked by the Royal for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Baby Peggy is the featured player with Jack Earl as the Giant. If it isn't asking too much, will you kindly let the kiddies know about it.

AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Although not so apparent, depreciation is as much an expense of doing business as though it were paid for in cash.

• • •

Suppose you were running a store and bought a truck for delivering. Let us imagine it was worn out and worthless at the end of three years. It is apparent that the expense of delivering must include the cost of the car, distributed over the three years.

In the same way any building is constantly undergoing deterioration; each year it is worth just a little less than it was the year before. Depreciation is one of the costs of doing business and should be figured in with the rest of the expenses. Some schemes of accounting care for this fact by each year reducing the value of buildings and equipment carried on the books and charging the reduction as one of the costs of opefation. The important fact is that depreciation should be accounted for and that no enterprise should count profits and forget this item of expense. (Copyright, 1944, Associated Editors, Inc.)

MADE IN PETERBOROUGH MAMMOTH EXHIBITION

Plans Well Under Way For an Exceptional Affair.

The Made in Peterborough Exhibition is being exceptionally well received by manufacturers and retailers who intend to exhibit their product and wares at the exhibition. Everything points to a mammoth affair with far reaching results.

Primarily the object of this big venture is to obtain sufficient money so that the work of the Peterborough Health Association will be allowed to go on without interruption. To those parents who have children and are able to take care of them through the periods of children's diseases, the worry and expense is great but to those other parents who are not in a position to give the children they love just as much, all the care that is required, the work of the Health Association is most earnestly sought and appreciated. Let every one get behind this movement and make it the huge success it deserves to be.

SPEECH BY NEW ENVOY POPULAR

Warning to Empire of Cessation of American Aid is Agreeable to England.

"MEANS BUSINESS.

(By Lloyd Allen, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, May 5th. — American Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton made an instantaneous "hit" in England by his first formal speech delivered at the Pilgrims' banquet last night, in which he warned Europe to remain at peace or forego American financial support.

"Houghton means business," he Times said to-day, voicing Conservative approval.

The Times declares that the envoy's insistence that Europeans must show a desire for real peace if American interests in Europe are to be augmented, "possess great weight at the present moment and entirely accords with British opinion."

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) sounds the same note, saying "American opinion has been the strongest brake on French policy and has checked it from careening down the inclined plane of Imperialism."

WESTERN DELEGATION FOLLOWS UP PLEA IN PARLIAMENT FOR THE COMPLETION OF HUDSON RAILWAY

Premier Bracken of Manitoba, Says Link Should Be Welded Now.

DREAM OF THE WEST.

Cabinet Considering the Matter, Premier King Assures Prairie Representatives.

OTTAWA, May 6 (By Canadian Press)—"I assure you that we have the matter very much before us," Premier MacKenzie King informed a delegation, which waited upon members of the Cabinet Tuesday afternoon, and urged the completion of the Hudson Bay railway to Port Nelson this year, and the establishment of the minimum harbor facilities there.

The deputation, which included Premier Dracken of Manitoba, members of the "On-to-the-Bay" Association, and other organizations in Manitoba and Saskatchewan was introduced by F. C. Hamilton, President of the Liberal Association, Winnipeg.

"This question is vital to the progress of Western Canada," General R. M. Patterson, President of the On-to-the-Bay Association. He personally had visited Hudson Bay, and on another occasion had gone as far as the end of steel.. An expenditure of one million dollars would carry the road to the Bay, and he asked the Government to so complete the line this year, and provide the minimum harbor facilities. He believed that there was sufficient valuable material at Port Nelson, which, if sold, would more than cover the cost of the completion of the line as suggested.

Manitoba's Ambition

Premier Bracken pointed out that every year since his government had been in office in that province, the legislature had unanimously asked for the completion of this road as soon as possible. He believed that the rails should be laid to the bay this year and the minimum amount of work done on the harbor, so as to give the scheme a chance to prove itself.

Hon. J. R. Wilson, Saskatoon, chairman of the Saskatchewan On-to-the-Bay Association declared that the completion of this line would 'instill a new hope among the western people," who had been laboring under many difficulties. The delegation, he stated, was not asking for the expenditure of any extravagant amount.

F. H. Martin, chief engineer of Manitoba Power Compay, believed that "there would be little difficulty in keeping the harbor at Port Nelson open for a period longer than most people admitted," by reason of the development of power on the Nelson River. Such a development, he considered would keep the harbor open throughout the winter. "We have a wonderful heritage in the Nelson River," said Mr. Martin, who looked forward to extensive power development there when the Hudson Bay project was carried out.

Expenditure Justified

George Edwards, president of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, believed that the government would be justified in spending enough money to complete the railway to the Bay, and sufficiently develop the port to afford an opportunity to try out the scheme. Such an expenditure this year would be money well spent.

W. Thrasher, secretary, Farmers' Union of Canada, considered that the construction of the line would lower the cost of production to the western farmers, bring prosperity, and assist immigration.

A. B. Hudson, M.P., urged that the request of the deputation receive favorable consideration.

F. C. Hamilton, who introduced the delegation in concluding its presentation, cosidered that from a business standpoint, in view of the amount of money already expended, the Hudson Bay project could not be allowed to stand in abeyance.

LINDSAY BOY MISSING.

Disappeared From Home on Monday Night—Drag the River.

LINDSAY, May 6 (Special)—Searching parties were dragging the river Scugog yesterday for the body of little Charles Hodges, the eight year old son, of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hodges, of this town. The little fellow mysteriously disappeared from in front of his home Monday night about 7.30 o"clock, and the whole countryside has been combed by searchers, but without success. The search was kept up all night and hope was entertained that the child would return home Tuesday morning, but no tidings of his whereabouts were revealed. The police and Great War Veterans' Association, of which Mr. Hodges is a member, organized a corps of volunteers who secured boats and equipment in order to drag the river.

SQUATTERS FIGHT VANCOUVER'S CLAIM

Ownership of Strip of Stanley Park Before Supreme Court.

OTTAWA, May 6. — (Canadian Press). — Ownership of a strip of land on the shore of Stanley Park in Vancouver is being contested for in the Supreme Court of Canada. On Tuesday counsel for the Attorney-General of Canada and the City of Vancouver sought to recover possession of this strip of land which is now occupied by squatters. It was argued that Stanley Park was a military reserve, and the property of the Dominion of Canada. It had been leased to the city of Vancouver for 99 years, to be used as a public park, and that squatters' rights did not hold. The respondents, Gonzalves, Smith, Dekosta and Long, through their counsel, claimed title by adverse possession, alleging occupation for the full statutory period of six years as against the Crown, and of 20 years against the city of Vancouver. The case was not concluded.

Aime Geoffrion, K.C., and McCrossam, K.C., presented the appeal. Eugene Lafleur, W. G. McQuarrie and Gregor Barclay represented the respondents.

TORONTO MEMBER LOUDEST SHOUTER

Top Notes of J. H. Harris Won Argument in the House.

OTTAWA, May 6. — (Canadian Press). — An amusing incident occurred in the House of Commons last evening, when a bill respecting amendments to the Toronto Harbor Commissioners Act came up in committee. The bill proposes additional powers to the Commissioners to conduct amusements, recreation, and playgrounds at Sunnyside, Toronto, or to grant permits for same.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, had raised the question as to whether the bill in question had been submitted to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and Right Hon. Arthur Meighen. Sir Henry Drayton, T. L. Church (Conservative, North Toronto), C. G. Power (Liberal, Quebec South) and others took part in the discussion which followed.

J. H. Harris (Conservative, York East) jumped to his feet and took exception to any remarks which might be construed as a reflection on the Toronto Harbor Commissioners.

"Might I ask what reflection I passed on the Harbor Commissioners?" asked Mr. Power.

Mr. Harris ignored the question, and continued to tell the House of the high calibre of the Toronto Harbor Commissioners, while Mr. Power, to the amusement of the House, continued to shout his question. Louder and louder grew the argument, until finally Mr. Power desisted.

The bill was given third hearing, and passed final stages.

Famous Singer Blames Women For Prohibition

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 6—Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, the opera singer, in Kansas City Monday, censured women for bringing on prohibition, yet expressed her admiration for the old-fashioned home-loving woman.

In the first place, she said, women had no right to enact prohibition when the men were away, especially since women nowadays drank along with the men.

The singer believed women in politics were "a crime." It also was a crime, she said, for a married woman not to have children. She had words of praise for the working girls, but working girls, she declared, eventually should settle down and become good housewives. It was all well, she added, to try to retain a good figure, but there was no use going to extremes.

Mme. Schumann-Heink said her son, Ferdinand, who was in Camp Funston during the war, had entered the movies.

MARKETING COSTS HAMPER INDUSTRY

Distribution of Goods in Canada a Problem—Helped By Tariff.

MONTREAL, May 6.—(Canadian Press).—That tariff protection was needed not so much to offset additional cost of production as to meet the increased cost of marketing, was the stand of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association as expressed by W. H. Miner, retiring president of the Montreal branch at the joint annual meeting of the Montreal and Quebec divisions here Tuesday. Actual manufacturing costs in Canada would compare favorably with those in the United States, but the cost of marketing, with a sparse population and the great distances made the problem, he said.

This made a problem which was almost impossible to meet by factory efficiency and economy. He quoted his own business, which required fourteen separate organizations to get their goods from coast to coast, to serve some 8,000,000 people, while the long distances made the expenses of their travellers very high. On the other hand the American factories could use fewer subsidiary organizations, and serve sales ten times the volume of the Canadian plants which kept overhead and distribution costs down.

Mr. Miner urged that in discussing tariff matters Canadian manufacturers should emphasize these points.

The election of officers resulted in H. M. Jaquays succeeding Mr. Miner as chairman of the Montreal branch, with Norman Holland, vice-chairman. W. S. Fallis was elected chairman of the Quebec division to succeed G. D. Mackinnon.

PANHANDLER IS UP AGAINST IT

Peterborough People Freeze Visitor While Reaching For 'Phone.

CALL THE POLICE.

Panhandling in this sophisticated settlement of Mayor Turner's holds promise of profit only for those at the peak of this petitioning profession. Plain pleas for pittances are received in stony silence. Recitals of tragic tribulation retail at less than 10 cents a dozen, and there's no market at all on George Street for mournful memoirs.

Take it from Flannigan — you've seen him even if you don't recognize the name—the panhandler who isn't well versed in the tricks of his torpid trade is faced with the ignominious prospect of going to work soon after he first blinks at the bright lights kept burning through the activity of Chairman Robert Hicks and his merry men.

Flannigan says Peterboro wants styles in its panhandling just as in everything else, and is willing to pay for them. He adds that he doesn't recall any other city where the detailed delineation of a pathetic past is worth so little, or any city where his activities are so frowned upon by the minions of the law.

"Tellin' people in this town that you just got out of the horsepital might get you into jail, but it won't get you anythin' else," he said. "They have padlocks on their pockets, when it comes to payin' cash for that story about the runaway wife and the busted business. The only thing they want to know about the curse of drink is where I got it.

"And if you don't come to them with a brand new idea they'll hand you a shoulder cold enough to give an Eskimo pneumonia when they turn to reach for the 'phone to call out the police reserves."

In short, at least, one panhandler found that Peterboro folk are—a four-letter word meaning expletive—hard to touch.

FOUND DEAD IN BED

WM. D. SHEPHERD IS ACCUSED BY CORONER'S JURY

Concurrence Declared Last Night in Indictment by Chicago Grand Jury.

HOLD WIFE TOO.

Alleged Accessory in Murder of W. N. McClintock by Typhoid Innoculation.

CHICAGO, May 6. — (Canadian Press).—The coroner's jury investigating the death of William N. McClintock, millionaire orphan, last night concurred in the action of the grand jury which indicted William D. Shepherd, McClintock's foster father, for his murder, and also recommended that Mrs. William D. Shepherd be held to the grand jury as an accessory to the murder.

The belated story of the death of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, Billy's mother, nineteen years ago, was told Monday by Mrs. Harry Carson of Linden, Iowa, who was a maid in the McClintock home at that time.

Mrs. Carson said that she went to work for Emma McClintock in May, 1907, and was a member of her household until Mrs. McClintock came home from Texas to die two years later. She added:

"The Shepherds were in the house when I came. They occupied a room between Mrs. McClintock's room and the bathroom. After she died they took her room and they gave Billy the room that they had occupied.

"I frequently heard conversations between Shepherd and Mrs. McClintock. It seemed that he wanted to develop some land that she had in Texas. At first she wasn't favorable to the scheme. But he kept arguing with her about it.

"In January, 1909, he went to Texas to build the house he had been talking about. Mrs. McClintock went later—I think it was in March. She did not go directly to Texas, but stopped to visit relatives and friends in Kansas. Little Billy was with her. At that time he was about six years old."

Mrs. Carson was asked to identify a number of letters addressed to her by Mrs. McClintock from Bay View, Texas, Mudlavia Springs and elsewhere. Two, dated April 4 and 15, 1909, had been sent to Mrs. Carson, then Stella Costigan, from Texas. They contained cheerful gossip and general information. Mrs. McClintock said that she was feeling well. A third letter, under date of May 22, 1909, said that she was feeling ill and that she had decided to go to Mudlavia Springs.

"There is that in my system which must be eliminated, if possible," said a line in this note, according to the evidence.

It was written as the widow was leaving Texas, and, according to the analysis of her vital organs, made sixteen years after her death, even then she must have been suffering from the effects of mercurial poisoning, it is charged.

"When she got to Chicago and came to the house, she looked yellow," Mrs. Carson testified. "She had a fever and she was very ill. I called for Dr. Oscar Olson, but he could not be reached. I called for Dr. Charles Kruzemarck and he came. Two days later she died. Mrs. Shepherd did not arrive until Monday morning, three hours before Mrs. McClintock died. Mrs. McClintock had never asked for her."

She said that Mrs. Shepherd's statement that Emma died in her arms was incorrect—that Dr. Kruzemarck, a nurse named Lulu Smith, and the witneess herself were in the room when Mrs. McClintock died.

She testified that she had seen Mrs. Shepherd take a diamond ring from the dead woman's finger, and that afternoon she had seen the same diamond in a different setting on the person of Mrs. Shepherd. She alleged that Mrs. Shepherd had opposed the suggestion of one of Emma McClintock's relatiyes that a post-mortem examination might be advisable.

TRY TRAINMEN FOR FATALITY

Death of Engineer is Charged to Neglect of Duty By Others.

TRAINS COLLIDED.

PERTH, May 6. — (Canadian Press).—Arthur G. Snyder, C.P.R. agent at Glen Tay, and Walter Norris, C.P.R. engineer at Trenton, were yesterday committed for trial, to appear before Judge J. H. Scott in Lanark County Court next month on the charge arising out of the death of C. P. R. Engineer David Bourne, of Toronto, who was fatally injured on February 20 last when he jumped from the engine of passenger train Number 20 prior to its collision with a freight train standing at Glen Tay Station.

At the preliminary hearing before Magistrate Kirkland, the two men were charged with negligently omitting to perform their duties on the day the passenger train travelled through an open switch and collided with the freight train.

BIG REDUCTION IN OCEAN RATES SINCE THE WAR

Steamship Companies Submit to Committee Comparative Charges.

SUBSIDY FEARED.

Flour Rate of $1.00 in 1919 Down to 19 Cents Last Year.

OTTAWA, May 6. — (Canadian Press).—Steamship companies represented before the special Parliamentary Committee on Ocean Rates Tuesday afternoon, filed a lengthy statement of commodities on which rates had been materially reduced since the war. The statement covered the years 1919 to 1924 inclusive. It showed that a rate of $1.00 per hundred pounds on agricultural implements in 1919 had been reduced to 40 cents a hundred pounds in 1923 stood at 50 cents last year. The cost of shipping a barrel of apples, which in 1919 was $3.00 (ordinary stowage) had dropped to 90 cents in 1924. The rate on automobiles, which was 65 cents a cubic foot in 1919, had gone down, according to the statement, to 25 cents a cubic foot last year. Newsprint paper in rolls, which in 1919 was carried at $1.25 a hundred pounds, was 55 cents a hundred pounds in 1924.

Practically all the commodities listed in the statement showed very great reductions in the 1924 rate as compared with 1919. Some fifty commodities were covered in the statement.

Rates Depressed.

Examination of W. T. Marlow, general foreign freight agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was concluded. He expressed the opinion that freight returns to the steamship companies were now in a depressed condition. In the event of a subsidized line still further depressing rates, it would be natural, he said, for conference lines to operate until rates became "absolutely hopeless" when they would probably withdraw tonnage. Mr. Marlow also filed a statement showing that grain rates from Montreal and from New York have no direct relation one to the other. There was frequently a wide divergence in the two rates.

The statement filed earlier showed that the rate on butter (ordinary stowage) was exactly the same in 1924 as in 1919, $1.00 per hundred pounds. The rate on butter carried in refrigerator, however, which was $2.50 per hundred pounds in 1919, was only $1.50 in 1924. The flour rate, which was $1.00 in 1919, had dropped to 19 cents last year, according to the statement.

The committee asked some further questions of Col. W. I. Gear, of the Robert Reford Company, a former witness who gave some information in regard to the carriage of cattle and grain.

The committee adjourned until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

PRINCE'S SUCCESS PLEASES LONDON

Greatest Personal Triumph as Imperial Ambassador.

LONDON, May 6. — The unexpected warmth and enthusiasm with which the Prince of Wales has been greeted in the Dutch strongholds of South Africa, as well as in the British centres, is delighting both political and social circles at home.

Unquestionably the Prince has scored the greatest personal triumph of his triumphant career as imperial ambassador. The timeliness of his visit, the skill of his personal diplomacy, and the charm of his manner have combined to make this trip one of the happiest moves in many years for the strengthening of the bonds of the Empire.

Official circles in London do not attempt to conceal their satisfaction, and credit the recent decision of the South African Government to give Great Britain most favored nation treatment of the new tariff schemes, to the better atmosphere produced by the presence of the Prince.

There is not a dissenting note in the reports from South Africa, both press and official, with regard to the outstanding success of the tour.

STUDENTS WELCOME.

CAPE TOWN, May 6. — The reception of the Prince of Wales upon his visit to the Stellenbosch University sports ground Monday was of a most hearty nature.

A young Dutch official of the university in a welcoming speech on behalf of the students, thanked the Prince for the honor of his visit. The students, he said, loved nothing better than a real sportsman. It was now their pleasure to welcome one of the finest of sportsmen.

The spokesman said that through modesty he refrained from interpreting the feelings of the young women students, but for information in this regard he could refer the Prince to the way they were looking at him. He would see how enthusiastic they could be over a good-looking young man with a pleasant smile.

FIVE MILLION IMMIGRANTS IN WEST FEW YEARS TO SOLVE CANADA'S PROBLEMS

Should Not Be Impossible, Says Sir John Aird, President of the Bank of Commerce—Conditions Better in the West.

WINNIPEG, May 6. — General conditions in western Canada are a little better than in the east, with the exception of Ontario, according to Sir John Aird, president and general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who is here today en route from Pacific Coast to Toronto. Sir John said the manufacturing sections are slightly depressed although the retail trade is now showing improvement. Discussing the position of the Dominion, especially the railway problems, Sir John said.

"We are short on population, long on taxation and legislation.' Sir John believes that an addition during the next few years of five millions to Canada's population will settle the railway problems, and with federal provincial and railways working together harmoniously it should not be impossible to reach that figure.

On the broader international outlook, the president of the Bank of Commerce holds some interesting views. He believes England's return to the gold standard has been perhaps a little premature, and that the Mother Country has been too willing to settle its own external obligations during the war without insisting at least upon a partial settlement of debts due herself.

'CAL'S' ECONOMY HURTING TRADE

Slump in Retail Buying in United States Laid to President's Policy.

LULL IN BUSINESS.

WASHINGTON, May 6. — Misinterpretation of President Coolidge's policy of economy in governmental affairs is having a retarding effect on buying according to retailers. In many sections of the country they say, people are responding to the pleadings of President Coolidge for saving in Government expenditures by buying only absolute necessities.

Retail business men do not hesitate to say that there has been a decrease in buying and that a buyers' strike, similar to that which existed after the war period, is making its appearance.

The effect of this is that seasonal buying has decreased to such an extent that the retailers are not stocking up as they have in previous seasons. If this continues some retailers say that it will affect manufacturing and in the end the general prosperity of the country will be adversely affected. At the present time the buying lull appears to be entirely in the retail business, but unless there is more spirited buying some trade experts think that inertia will spread and seriously affect all industry.

Friends of the Administration, Senators and others who have come to the White House after trips home, report that President Coolidge is being criticised for emphasing so very strongly the need for reducing governmental expenses. They say the business men are entirely in accord with the general attitude of the Administration on economy in the government but they assert that there is no doubt that the effect of the president's advice on this subject has been with the general public the opposite to what he intended. Some White House visitors have been bold enough to put this view before the president, but the impression they gained was that nothing that the president has said could be accepted as advising personal economies.

Senator Fess of Ohio, assistant whip of the senate, after calling on the President recently, said that there was a let up in business in many sections of the country and that business men had told him that it was due is part to the policy of President Coolidge and his acts. One critic said that the printing of stories that the President had not bought a new Eacter suit and was having his old hat re-made had had the psychological effect of inducing many persons who read such an announcement to follow suit. The utterances and acts of the President, some business men say, influence personal savings when the necessity is absent.

Former Governor Allen of Kansas, while here last week made the same diagnosis of the retail business situation and urged that there be less said about economies in the hope that the present psychology might be changed.

The complaint of business men in Washington is particularly severe. Here retail store receipts have been cut sharply, according to report. Many government departments are discharging employees, and this has injured local business.

TWO ASPHYXIATED.

Carbon Monoxide Caused Deaths in Montreal Home.

MONTREAL, May 6.—(Canadian Press).—Carbon monoxide poisoning caused the death of John D. Kennedy, aged 60, and his wife, Effie, aged 50, who were found dead on their bed on Monday afternoon, it was revealed by medical evidence at the coroner's inquest Tuesday. The case was disposed of as accidental death.

Three witnesses testified that there was no odor of gas in the house, but the autopsy performed by Dr. R. Fontaine, of the morgue medico-legal staff, showed that the double tragedy was due to carbon monoxide.

MONTREAL RED LIGHTS SHADED

Houses in District Down Near "The Main" Report to be Closed.

CHIEF IS SILENT.

MONTREAL, May 6.—(Canadian Press).—Chief of Police Pierre Belanger continues reticent with regard to the campaign reported as being staged by the Montreal police to close up the city's "tenderloin" district. The Chief yesterday refused to comment on the report that instructions had been issued to do away with the district, but that the campaign should be conducted quietly and unostentatiously.

A report in a local newspaper on Tuesday says that constables on duty in the "red light" district declare that the houses of ill-fame in that section of the city confined by Craig to Ontario Streets and St. Denis to St. Lawrence Main had closed their doors.

Whence came the order to clean up the place, however, could not be ascertained. Alderman J. A. A. Brodeur, chairman of the Executive Committee of the City Council, declared that he was unaware of any order having been issued. A canvass of lawyers who defend disorderly house cases in the courts was equally negative in results, none of them admitting that clients had received any intimation to close up.

GOLD STANDARD PASSED EASILY

Much Criticism of the Measure, But No Decision Challenged.

GOES TO LORDS NOW.

LONDON, May 6 (Canadian Press) — With much less difficulty than had been expected Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has secured passage of his gold standard bill unamended through all its stages in the House of Commons with unanimity, since no decision was challenged, although he had to submit to much criticism of its clauses. The Commons passed the third reading of the bill yesterday and it will now go to the House of Lords where its passage is likely to be quite formal.

MOORS MUSTER GREAT FORCES

Forty Thousand Riffians Threaten French, While Others Attack Spaniards.

OTHER TRIBES ARM.

PARIS, May 6 (Canadian Press) —Abd el Krim's raid into French Morocco has assumed much greater importance during the last twenty-four hours.

Although his raiders are blocked at the River Ouergha, his troops' movements to the north are taken to indicate a plan to drive the French as well as the Spaniards from Morocco. Riff troops also are massing around Melilla and Ceuta, where the local tribesmen, under the influence of the new Moroccan nationalism threaten to oblige the Spaniards to retire entirely from Africa. The Jabala tribesmen behind Tangier also are threatening the few remaining Spaniards on that side.

Along a frontier nearly 200 miles long in the mountains where there is a vague unsettled line of demarcation of the zones on which French and Spanish maps do not agree, a new and larger raiding force of Moors is forming on the French side, in the valleys declining into the Ouergha, are more than 20,000 Moorish raiders, and in the higher mountains 20,000 more.

ESKIMO SLAYER WILL BE FREED IN FEW MONTHS

Sentenced Last Summer to Five Years in Manitoba Prison For Killing.

CRIME OF JEALOUSY.

Youth Won Favor of Wife of Eskimo With Whom He Lived.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 6. (By Canadian Press. — The young Copper Eskimo Ikalukpiak, sentenced last summer by Judge Dubuc, of the Albera courts, to serve a term of five years imprisonment for manslaughter will be released from Stony Mountain penitentiary this summer and returned to his people under the charge of the Royal Canadian Mountain Police.

The crime for which Ikalukpiak was sentenced, formed one of the most interesting "human triangle" stories the Arctic has ever known. It centres around Havougach, aged 40, his wife Khattia, aged 26, and Ikalukpiak, aged 25, all Copper Eskimos living inland about 100 miles from the R.C.M.P. post at Tree River in Coronation Gulf.

Havougach and Khattia, being childless, took Ikelukpiak as a youth, to live with them. The boy grew to young manhood, a fearless hunter, a skillful fisherman and handsome to look upon, from the Eskimo standards.

Havougach was a lazy hunter, given to sullen moods and to fits of anger.

Jealousy Deepened.

Khattia looked on the growing youth with favor. It is aroused in Havougach intense jealousy which he took out on the young man by increasingly bad treatment and by threats of death. The more Havougach ill-treated Ikalukpiak the more did Khattia turn to the youth. For a whole winter the triangle developed. Then on a day when the two men went out to load their sleds with deer meat from a cache some miles distant, the end came.

According to Ikelukpiak's story, Havougach threatened to shoot him with a rifle which he carried.

Ikalukpiak had only a knife. The two men faced each other across the loaded sled. Havougach, not daring then to shoot, dropped his gun, and walked back from the sled. The young man, feeling that it was to be his life or that of the older man, took up the rifle, and shot Havougach dead, later giving himself up to the police.

Must Support Widow.

Ikalukpiak was a well behaved prisoner at Stony Mountain. In the meantime the woman Khattia waited at Herschel Island for the return of the man who according to Eskimo law, since he had killed the husband, must now support the widow.

As a climax to this story of primitive passions, modern radio will broadcast to the Arctice from a local station the news that Ikaiukpiak is returning.

UNION VOTE IN JUNE.

By Churches of Winnipeg and District Presbytery.

WINNIPEG May 6. — (Canadian Press).—The vote on Church Union in the Presbyterian churches of Winnipeg and district will be taken on Sunday, June 21, or Monday, June 22. This was the recommendation to the churches within their jurisdiction by the Winnipeg Presbytery at its last regular meeting held yesterday in Manitoba College before the consummation of Uuion on June 10.

This being the last regular meeting of the Presbytery of Winnipeg after 55 years of activities, the members held a half-hour's devotional exercises, commemorating with suitable ceremonies the passing of the Presbytery.

WEATHER

Temperature last night 30 degrees —2 degrees of frost. A light shower in the early morning gave us rain to .02 of an inch. Did you ever notice that a dull, threatening morning often brings forth a fine day. As the old proverb says, "If it rains before seven it quits before eleven." On the contrary, a particularly bright and promising morning, frequently brings rain within 24 hours or less? Take notice, and you will see how seldom it fails.—W. P.

Refuse to Sing at Washington Convention Because Visitors Were Segregated.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(Canadian Press).—The negro delegates to the quinquennial convention of the International Council of Women were pledged to-day to attend the remaining sessions despite the disturbance occasioned last night when 200 negro singers refused to appear in the musical programme because of the segregation in the audience of negro visitors.

The negroes left in a body.

To-day the Council turned to its first general business session with an executive committee meeting called to consider a resolution aimed at the reduction of the production of opium and coca leaf.

A RIVER THAT LOSES ITSELF

Poets and others have taught us to accept rivers as more or less prosiac features in Nature's general scheme of things. Tennyson, for instance, has held up the brook as a model of virtue and longevity. It is both refreshing and interesting to discover, therefore, that there are streams which do not conform to this estimable standard, but which, very much like human beings, do things they are not supposed to do according to the accepted theories of convention.

There is a river in Canada which loses itself completely and thereby has earned a rather outstanding reputation. This is the Maligne River which rises in Maligne Lake in Jasper National Park, Alberta, and after playing its pranks, tumbles—as if it were applauding itself for its cleverness—with a great rush and roar into the staid waters of the Athabaska.

After it leaves Maligne Lake it flows for a goodly number of miles with nothing in its appearance to indicate that soon, so to speak, it is going to sow some wild oats. It is when it reaches the Maligne Canyon, situated about five miles from Jasper Park Lodge, that it begins its pranks. Here it dips suddenly, and without warning, rose dives into a narrow gorge it has cut for itself out of solid rock. Within a distance of fifty yards this chasm reaches a depth of several hundred feet and it is hard to see the water which has lessened in volumn. This diminution continues until only a trickle is left. Yet before the Athabaska is reached the river is again a roaring torrent. Only one explanation seems possible, that somewhere the river loses itself in an underground passage. The canyon is one of the many interesting spots for those who visit this magnificent playground in the Canadian Rockies every year. Jasper National Park is reached by the Canadian National Railways.

MER REMARKABLY LOW IN COST.

"We have travelled through the most gorious scenery it has ever been my privilege to witness," were the words used by the Duke of Devonshire, while Governor-General of Canada, in expressing his admiration for the scenery of the Pacific Coast. The opinion he formed of our magnificent west is confirmed by the many people who tour this wonderful country every year.

If you are planning a tour of the Canadian Rockies and the Pacific Coast this summer, you can't do better than take one of the low cost trips arranged by the Canadian National Railways.

These tours start from Toronto with stop-overs at all interesting points en route. At Jasper National Park—where the famous Triangle Tour commences — is the largest park and the largest sanctuary of wild life in the world—4400 square miles of mountains, rivers, lakes, glaciers, canyons and waterfalls of almost overwhelming beauty.

Leaving Jasper, you pass Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies; then comes the quaint Indian village of Kitwanga with its grotesque totem poles and Indian relics. At Prince Rupert you may choose an interesting side trip to Alaska, or you may board the steamer for the three-day trip through the famous Scenic Seas of the Pacific Coast to Vancouver, Victoria, Portland and Seattle. Returning, the train follows the beauiful winding Fraser and Thompson Rivers with their brilliant colored cliffs of red, gray and yellow, returning again to Jasper National Park—and in due time, to Toronto.

The outstanding beauty and completeness of these tours should appeal to every one. These low summer tourist fares will be in effect from May 15th to October 31st. Complete information, pamphlets and reservations may be secured from any Canadian National Railways Agent.

CAMPBELLFORD TRAFFIC SIGNS WILL ADVERTISE TOWN'S POWER NOW THE CHEAPEST IN DOMINION

Will Be Presented to the Municipality by the Automobile Association.

HAVE A SURPLUS.

Belleville Offers Park Free as Picnic Grounds For Excursions.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 6. — When the special committee appointed by the town council to design new auto signs for the main thoroughfare leading into Campbellford gets down to business the members may find the work has already been half done by others. The Automobile Association has on hand a surplus which it is prepared to donate for the very purpose that the council committee has in view. This matter was discussed at the recent annual meeting of the Association, when it was unanimously resolved to devote the surplus to the purpose referred to. A deputation was to have waited on the council Monday night to establish a new precedent by offering that body a cash donation instead of following the usual custom of asking for some concession. The deputation, however, concluded that with such matters as the purchase of road-building machinery and the appointing of a new policeman, the council had enough work on hand to hold it for one session. Deputy-Reeve Palliser, who brought the matter up on Monday evening, had it in mind long before the Auto Association had decided to take action.

Like the members of the Council, the local autoists believe that if these signs cannot be made artistic they can at least be grammatical and bear a written request couched in polite terms instead of a harsh order. The name of Campbellford is to appear with some such advertising accompaniment as "The Town with the Cheapest Electric Power in Canada," and the desires of the citizens with regard to the rate of speed are merely to be suggested. Whatever information the signs may carry they will at least let visiting autoists know what town they are approaching. It is barely possible that the council may take further action so that the signs will let the visitors know that camping grounds, free of charge, are available.

The Sale of Gasoline.

Erle Turner, who proposes to open a service station on George Street, has received permission from the council to install two pumps. Another new pump is to be put in at Warren's Garage on Bridge Street. This will make the twenty-third pump of the kind in town. This fact moved Councillor Southworth to remark at the meeting of the council, that there must be money in the sale of gasoline when so many are anxious to enter the business and to suggest, in semi-jocular vein, that a special tax be levied on these service stations, as it has been decided to do in Kingston.

Neighborly Courtesy.

Campbellford has received an invitation from the Park Commissioners in Belleville to use Victoria Park in that city for a picnic grounds whenever desired, and Clerk McGregor will write a letter of thanks for the courtesy.

The Rathbun Spur

C.N.R. officials wrote to say that it is proposed to take up the rails on the Rathbun spur west of Market Street, and the company will be glad to receive offers from the town for the purchase of the property so located. If this land is bought, it is likely that the grade will be leveled and the purchase added to the proposed playground for children.

BONAR LAW NEWS.

Auction Sale, Explosion, and Fruit Tree Planting Are Events.

BONAR LAW, May 6.—A large crowd attended the auction sale of the late H. Green near Allen's Mills last week. The auctioneer was George Hay, and everything brought a good price. E. Huff bought the horses for $137. Cows ranged from $30 to $60; the implements were in the best of shape and brought a good price also.

A Blow-out.

Elliott West, cheesemaker at the Maple Leaf Cheese Factory, had a very narrow escape on Saturday morning when one of the pipes under the boiler burst, causing the steam to escape in the boiler room. Mr. West had only left the boiler room a moment before the accident happened. There was about 50 pounds of steam on and coals of fire were blown into the factory. Some of the milk was already in the vats, but owing to the heat of the boiler it was impossible to have it repaired in time to make the cheese that day.

Misses Vera and Daisy McInroy gave a dance at the home of Isaac McInroy when about one hundred and fifty guests were present. Music was rendered by Wallace and Bruce McInroy, violinists, and Miss Myrtle at the organ. A real good old-fashioned time was reported by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dewey, of Campbellford, spent Thursday evening at Mr. A. Burkett's home.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Green visited at Mr. Arthur Burkett's home last week.

Mr. Manley Gifford spent a few days last week in Peterborough.

Mrs. Jos. Willman visited her father, Mr. S. S. Gifford at Brownton last week.

Miss Silvia Lidster is spending a few days with her cousin, Miss Daisy McInroy.

Mr. M. Fitzgerald shipped hogs and veal calves on Wednesday. The price paid for selects was 12 cents and five and six cents for calves.

Seeding Delayed.

The spring seeding has been delayed considerably in this district owing to the cold wet weather. However, the rain has greatly improved the fall grain and meadows.

Fruit Trees Arrive.

Mr. W. McInroy has received a large load of fruit trees and berry bushes, to be distributed in this locality, so nearly everybody is busy with the spade, the wet weather being a great help for such work and fruit was badly needed as very little has been grown of late in this district.

OBITUARY.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 6. — Margaret Ross, daughter of the late Hugh and Mrs. Ross of the Meyersburg district, and wife of Dr. G. I. NOT GAME.

A man with a gun under his arm walked into a village butcher's shop the other day, and asked for a couple of rabbits.

"Sorry, sir," said the shopkeeper, "but I'm completely sold out of rabbits. I could let you have some nice ham, though."

"Don't be ridiculous," snapped the customer angrily. "How the dickens could I go home and say I'd shot a pig?"

ANNUAL MEETING WARSAW SCHOOL

Methodist Sunday School Re-elects Officers Pending Union in June.

WARSAW, May 6.—The annual business meeting of the Warsaw Methodist Sunday School was held on Friday evening. For the present, all the old officers were re-elected, as the Methodist Church automatically goes into the Union on June 10. The reports were quite satisfactory, and the givings, especially the missionary givings, were a decided gain. Next Sunday is "Go-To-Sunday-School Day," and in connection with it, will be a Mothers' service, as well as the Mothers' Day services in the evening.

Mr. Weir was in Carmel on Tuesday, and a Sunday school was organized. There are a good number of children near Carmel, and with the organization, there should be good work done in the Sunday school.

There is also hope of a working Sunday school in Centre Dummer, to be given an impetus by one of the extra ministers at Norwood.

Rev. Mr. Cox conducted service in the Anglican Church.

Ladies' Aid Met.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid met at Miss Margaret Miller's home on Thursday last, a good number of ladies being present. Most of those absent were detained because of sickness among relatives. Holding a social evening soon was discussed, but not settled. There were some splendid hand-knitted men's socks, made from hand-made yarn, of an excellent quality. The sewing was on aprons, house dresses and quilt blocks.

Miss Cressa Crowe paid a short visit home on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Alex. Watt's many friends will be glad to know that she is progressing as favorably as possible at Nicholls Hospital.

Mr. Wm. Hayes and Mr. Thos. Whibbs are both quite ill. Mr. Whibbs is in the hospital.

The Women's Institute will hold its regular meeting on Thursday, May 14. Mrs. George Taylor will give a talk on her visit to Victoria, B.C.

Rev. P. L. Jull, of Lakefield, was in the village on Wednesday.

Rev. W. Atkinson conducted the services in the Presbyterian Churches at Warsaw and Cotteslоe on Sunday. He led in the prayer in the Warsaw Methodist Church on Sunday evening. In Rev. F. G. Weir's talk to the children on Sunday evening, he asked if a cup or anything else would not be just as useful if it were very plain. Would things be so pleasant if there were no ornaments? The little courtesies of life are the ornaments which make things brighter and pleasanter. His sermon was on these two words, "For us."

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the close of the regular service. This was the last Communion service as the Methodist Church, and a good number was out.

ROSENEATH BALL CLUB ORGANIZED

George A. Dawe Elected President—Several Gaps in Cup Holders.

ROSENEATH, May 5—A public meeting was held in the Town Hall on Monday evening when the baseball team was re-organized for the coming season. It was decided to enter a team in the Northumberland league to defend the Sam Clarke cup which they won last year.

The following officers were elected: Pres., Geo. A. Dawe; Vice-Pres., Jas. Down; Sec. Treas., M. Davey. This is an entire set of new officials and it is hoped they will carry on with the best of success. It was decided to leave the appointment of a manager with the president, vice-president and secretary. The team has all of last year's players but Thackeray the catcher and Armstrong and Moore, left and centre fielders, and it is hoped these places will be ably filled from the ranks of the new men who are ready to try out. The loss of these three players will be felt considerably, especially R. Thackeray, the catcher, who was rated as the best catcher in the league during the past season. The only catcher who has been in his class since the league first started was Hugh Strong who caught for Brighton up until the end of 1923. His place will probably be filled by Joe Wilson who caught the latter part of last season for Orland. Wilson is a smart active player behind the plate and with experience ought to make good.

The president, Mr. Geo. A. Dawe, a local merchant, has spent several terms on the executive in past years, and also as a player on the team. His fame as a pitcher is remembered by many a fan in the district. He is a man who thoroughly understands the game and his sound judgment ought to go a long way in carrying the team to success. The vice-president, Mr. Jas. Down, also a player of the famous old team the guardian of the initial sack will also be a good help. The secretary, Mr. Davey, principal of the local public school, athough never playing has always been ready with his time, energy and advice to do anything for the good of the team. He has held the office of secretary in previous years and anything he takes hold of generally goes. So it is felt that the team will be well looked after and if they play the game the cup may remain here for another term.

ODDFELLOWS HOLD A CHURCH PARADE

Rev. Robert Simpson Preached Impressive Sermon to Big Gathering.

STIRLING, May 6.—On Sunday the Oddfellows of Stirling Lodge No. 239 and Encampment No. 80, held their annual church service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. Rev. Robt. Simpson was the preacher and delivered with his old time vigor, an impressive sermon, his subject being "The Spirit of Jesus."

There were about 140 members of the order in line, having representatives from Belleville, Trenton, Frankford, Campbellford, Havelock, Springbrook, Madoc and Tweed.

At the head of the procession was the Belleville Canton of the Patriachs Militant, over 20 strong. The marshals were P.G. W. T. Sine and P. G. J. W. Sarles. The church was filled to capacity, chairs having to be brought from the Sunday school-room to accommodate the large audience. The choir was in good form and sang the anthem, "Stand Up, Stand Up, For Jesus", in a pleasing manner, also a solo by Miss Hazel Burkitt, "If We All Had the Spirit Of Jesus" was rendered in a very acceptable manner.

At the evening service in St. Andrew's church Mr. Simpson again occupied the pulpit and preached a forceful sermon.

Women's Institute.

The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the agricultural rooms on Friday afternoon. It was decided to have a supper on May 19, the proceeds to go towards the new covered rink which is to be erected.

OTTAWA, May 6. — (Canadian Press).—T. L. Church (Conservative, North-East Toronto) asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to institute an enquiry into the loss of life in the wreck at Pelee Point on Lake Erie, and the reported inadequacy of life-saving service at that place.

Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, promised that an enquiry should be made and that all necessary steps should be taken to prevent a recurrence of the loss of life.

PRESENTATION TO DEPARTING FRIENDS

Douro People Meet to Say Farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCann.

DOURO, May 5.—An evening of jollity and good-fellowship took place on Friday when a presentation was made to Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCann at their home before their departure for their new home in North Bay. A large crowd was present and cards, dancing, etc., formed the entertainment.

The following address was read by Mrs. David Garvey:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. McCann and Ada.—It is with feelings of deep regret that we are assembled this evening to bid you good-bye and to wish you the best of luck in your new home. It is hard to break old ties, and we are sorry you are leaving our community. For many years you have lived amongst us and your family have been brought up here. We have always found you helpful, kindly and sociable.

You, Mr. McCann, having been the village blacksmith for many years, were always efficient, obliging and trustworthy. Your shop was always a social centre for the men folks.

You, Mrs. McCann, have often proved the friend in need in your capacity of nurse. You have always answered the call of need cheerfully and willingly and have not spared yourself in the service of the sick. Your cheerful, bright personality has also been a help in the sick-room.

We ask you to accept these gifts, not for their value, but hoping they will be in your new home a reminder of your old friends in Douro.

Wishing you Godspeed, and trusting you will return sometimes to visit your old home.

Signed on behalf of your many Douro friends,

John Garvey, Wm. McManus, Mrs. Wm. Allen.

John Garvey then presented a handsome pair of leather chairs, Mrs. William Allen presented a cabinet of silver flat-ware, Mrs. W. J. McCamus presented a china tea set and little Miss Carmeita Condon presented Miss Ada McCann with a handsome rosary.

Mr. and Mrs. McCann expressed their thanks and appreciation. Reeve M. Coughlin spoke a few kind words to Mr. and Mrs. McCann and all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." A dainty lunch was served. Though over seventy years of age, Mr. McCann stepdanced for his guests and was applauded loudly.

ACCEPTS CALL UNION CHURCH

Rev. G. S. Hammond of Warkworth Leaves for Essex County Church.

AT COMBER

By A Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, May 6.—Rev. George S. Hammond, who was pastor of the Presbyterian church here before the division on the Union question and who since that time has been associate pastor of the Methodist congregation, has received and accepted a unanimous call to the United Church at Comber in Essex County. Mr. Hammond will leave here on Wednesday for his new charge and will be inducted as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

Mr. Hammond took his first regular pastorate when he came to Warkworth, being ordained and inducted here in August, 1923. He is a graduate of Toronto University and took his theological course in Knox College. During his student days he spent four seasons in the home mission field, four years in Western Canada and one in Northern Ontario. He was called to Warkworth soon after he graduated and has been popular with all classes in the community, a young man who made friends inside and outside of his own congregation and who took an active part in the social life of the village and district. His departure from Warkworth will be generally regretted. When the war broke out he enlisted at Guelph and served three years and one month in active service in France.

The Presbyterians here voted anti union by 95 to 84 and Mr. Hammond and his followers cast in their lot with the Methodists. Of those who favored union 65 have already applied for certificates of membership in order to join the United Church after June 10th.

Mr. Hammond received his formal release from the Peterborough Presbytery on March 14th. The next day he preached in the Comber church, the only time he has been a candidate for a new pastorate, and a unanimous call was the result. The stipend offered is $1800 a year, with a manse and four weeks' holidays.

The Comber church was practically unanimous for union only two members going on record as opposed to it.

Ask The Owner of a Year-Old Chrysler Six How it Performs

Products like the Chrysler Six, that create first-year production records in the effort to satisfy demand, naturally cause an upheaval.

Results that upset all the well-established conceptions of quality manufacture, performance, economy, riding and the engineering of space, are subjected to the closest scrutiny.

The Chrysler Six has been in the hands of owners something more than a year. Its new results are a matter of record; but it is equally important for you to know the proved endurance of the Chrysler, that it continues to perform brilliantly.

The proper source of such testimony is the owner. The important fact you will discover if you will make such inquiry is that a year-old Chrysler Six performs with the same brilliance, eagerness and zest as it did 12 months ago when it electrified its purchaser.

New results? Yes, and stamina and endurance as the records now show. We are always eager to demonstrate Chrysler results and we are particularly glad of an opportunity to show you that it is the best built car on the market today.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan. Chrysler dealers and superior Chrysler service everywhere.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 6, 1925.

TIME TO CALL A HALT.

The Examiner's reference yesterday to the question of gasoline pumps, which was in type before it was known that the matter came before the Council on Monday night, is given point to by the fact that the city fathers granted permits at that meeting for the installation of three more pumps.

Isn't it about time a halt was called to this overrunning of the city with these obstructions?

Other communities are taking action along this line, and they are right in so doing.

At first, perhaps, there was some excuse for permits being issued for gasoline pumps, because no one foresaw that the time would soon come when scores of people would want to get into the gasoline business.

But there is little justification now in constantly adding to the numbers of pumps, and the Council should adopt a firm attitude to the question, collecting revenue from the owners of the outfits already installed and being very slow in giving assent to propositions that involve the erection of new pumps.

The battle to clean up our business streets was too exhaustive and its results too important to allow the fruits of the victory to be lost because of the invasion of a new enemy.

PROVIDING MUSIC.

The City Council, in appropriating $1,000 for the providing of concerts in the parks during the summer has gone a considerable distance toward giving the people the entertainment they want and should have.

Last year's arrangement, by which the Symphony Orchestra, Male Voice Choir and the Pipers' Band shared in the grant on condition that they gave park concerts during the season, has again been followed.

The Rangers' Band will receive half the grant, and will contribute the greater number of the programmes.

Thus the Council by a total expenditure of $1,000 will be able to give the citizens band concerts, orchestra selections, choral singing and pipe music.

Musical organizations like a brass band or a symphony orchestra are expensive in their upkeep, and larger grants could undoubtedly have been used by both the Rangers' Band and the Orchestra, but the Aldermen doubtless went as far as the state of the exchequer warranted in their appropriation for park music.

The band problem is not a simple one.

There is no military appropriation large enough to take care of the expense involved in its upkeep, and revenue-earning engagements do not come as frequently as formerly.

LET THE PEOPLE VOTE.

The daylight saving question is definitely shelved for this year as the result of the failure of the City Council to take any action on Monday evening.

It is to be hoped, however, that provision will be made for submitting this question to the people at the next municipal election.

That a large percentage of the citizens wants summer time adopted the Examiner's vote testified, over 3,000 declaring in favour of the plan.

It is safe then to predict that unless the Council forestalls it by providing for a plebiscite at New Year's that next year will see a revival of the controversy and another demand for daylight saving legislation.

An official vote of the people is the most satisfactory way of settling the argument.

It can be taken in connection with the municipal elections at a minimum of expense, and, in addition, it will add a new interest to the civic campaign and produce a wider expression of public opinion than can usually be obtained.

The city fathers should not fail to remember this question later on in the year, in time to make sure of a January plebiscite on daylight saving.

They will avert a lot of trouble for next year's Council by having the matter settled in such a fashion, following the example of many other Canadian municipalities which submit a bylaw at the municipal elections each year.

THE BEER REGULATIONS.

The more explanations are given of the regulations in regard to the sale of 4.4 beer the greater is the bewilderment of the average citizen, who cannot see why, if the beverage is not intoxicating, as is claimed, there should be such elaborate precautions, or why either, if the 4.4 should develop a "kick," the mere fact that it cannot be served over a bar will make it harmless.

When the new brew was first announced everybody was going to sell it.

Apparently there would be as many beer pumps in operation in Peterboro as there are gasoline pumps on local streets—and the latter are beginning to crowd out the fire hydrants.

Grocers, restaurants, standard hotels all would act as vendors of the Ferguson-Nickle palatable beverage.

The scenario has been changed.

Somebody has cut the book to pieces.

The grocers don't want to sell the 4.4.

Some restaurants do, but they are not of the type likely to be recommended by the sitting member.

All the standard hotels were willing and anxious to handle 4.4 beer—until they read the regulations.

Just at present they are wondering if the game will be worth the candle.

The majority will have to call in a wrecking crew to put their premises in the shape necessary to qualify for permits.

Its a great old mix-up—and the funny part about it is that nobody is pleased, unless it be the Attorney-General.

"WHAUR'S MA PARRITCH?"

The ghost of Dr. Johnson must be waving its bony arms in glee today, says the Montreal Star. After long years, the worthy lexicographer is vindicated at last. In 1755 he defined oats as "a grain which in England is generally given to horses, but in Scotland supports the people," thus earning for himself the bitter contempt of every Scotsman. For your true Scot is proud of two things on this earth—his blood and his porridge.

And now there comes an official report from the Scottish Board of Agriculture, which declares that ham and eggs as a breakfast dish has replaced the old-fashioned, reliable porridge, and that the thrifty Scottish housewife will not be bothered to put the latter on as well. And Professor Mellanby, a Scottish physician of note, has declared that porridge is injurious as a diet, tending to the development of rickets in the young. And all Scotland is up in arms—even those renegades who have deserted the morning dish of their forefathers for the more succulent ham and eggs of the hated Sassenach.

It matters not that Professor Mellanby's verdict is the result of experiment he made with puppies. It would not matter if he had arrived at his conclusion after having tested the effect of porridge on cockroaches. His fiat has gone forth, and a tradition that has stood longer than Hadrian's Wall is in danger of being dispelled. To what extent the judgment of Johnson is responsible for this turning from the faith of their ancestors on the part of the ham-and-eggs-eating Scots, it is, of course, impossible to say. But the keenness of his jibe has lasted for over a century and a half, and today a Scotsman has come forward to lend the weight of professional judgment to the injurious character of the bone-making, blood-building, stamina-creating and life-sustaining mess of crushed oats and water upon which the Scotsman has relied with an implicit and touching faith for so many suffering years.

After this, nothing matters. Even if the thistle is discovered to be an Irish emblem, it will not hurt. The last bitter drop has been drunk. Ham and eggs rampant may become emblazoned upon the Scottish saltire yet.

THE CAR DRIVER'S RESPONSIBILITY.

A boy of eleven years went down town with his father in Petrolia on Saturday night. Crossing the street he was struck down and run over by a car. The driver of this car did not stop. Instead, it is claimed, he turned off his lights and sped away in order to avoid arrest.

A party of six were walking along the road near Sarnia when a car ran into the group, and two of them were seriously injured. Over the week-end one Toronto driver lost control of his machine, running over the curb and striking a woman on the sidewalk. Another Toronto driver got into a collision and was arrested as being intoxicated.

This latter case is in a class by itself, and the law must learn the necessity of going the limit. A person who undertakes to drive a machine while drunk or near-drunk should have his license cancelled and his car sold to pay the damage he does.

The other cases represent what is happening in a day's traffic. The driver who strikes down his victim and runs away is, if possible, in a worse class than the man who takes it upon himself to drive while drunk. The skulking coward who runs away knows what he is doing. His only thought is the saving of himself. In the Petrolia case the fact that there was a dull thud, perhaps a cry, and a broken and crushed lad lying on the road was not worthy to be placed in the scales beside the idea of the driver of what in this instance turned out to be the death car getting so far away that the hand of justice could not reach him. It makes the nerves of red-blooded people creep to think there are such people in existence—unfortunately there are.

These two classes of people need law and plenty of it. The public also needs the hand of the same law for its protection.

The other accidents, where the driver loses control of the car or where he runs into some one on a road at night, fall into another class, and the cure rests with the driver in most cases. A driver must always anticipate that the unexpected is likely to happen. If he is on a city street he knows that a child is liable to run out on the road. He may contend that the child has no business to do such a thing, but that only increases his responsibility. The driver must, in a sense, think for himself and the child at the same time. On a country road at night the driver may hold that all vehicles carry lights, and that others using the road will protect themselves. It does not work out this way. The man who drives at night must be on the lookout for others who are not protecting themselves. It may be urged that it is an extreme view, but any driver who has crashed into an unmarked buggy at night, and has helped carry the occupants into a nearby farmhouse, will not stop to argue the ponit. He will admit at once that extreme caution pays a handsome dividend.

The motorist is apt to urge that traffic laws are irksome, that he is perfectly capable of doing the right thing; he always knows that the speed cop was in the wrong. The best way for motorists to head off more drastic regulations is for them to give a collective demonstration that they can cut down the growing accident list. Less speed on city streets, more caution at street intersections, and above all a realization of the fact that the driver is in charge of a machine that can work a great deal of havoc in a very short space of time.—London Advertiser.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 5.—Trade was very quiet today. Packers got busy yesterday afternoon taking the bulk of the big offering at the reduced prices.

here was still left a heavy hold over at the close, making with today's fresh receipts a total offering of about 2,600 cattle. In the heavy erport cattle class, Rogers & Maybee took about 400, their requirements for this week being lighter than expected. The result is a large number of heavy steers left over for which there is no immediate outlet.

A couple of loads of extra fancy quality heavy cattle sold to the Harris Abattoir at $8.40. Good to choice butcher hand weights selling steady around $7.50.

The general run of medium and common butcher and rough heavy steers are from 25 cents to 40 cents lower than last week.

Fat butcher cows still holding very firm from $5.50 to $6.50.

Small meats steady at yesterday's prices.

Hogs steady at $11 f.o.b., but 25 cents lower for tomorrow.

In connection with this week's sharp decline in hog prices, it is pointed out that a year ago hogs were selling in this market at $7.50 f.o.b.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, May 5.—The market continues very firm, this being particularly the case at Ontario country points where buying competition is very keen.

In Montreal prices are higher in line with offerings from the Prairie Provinces. United States markets are fairly steady.

Toronto—Jobbing, extras 33, firsts 31, seconds 29.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 5.—The export trade in Canadian grain here today was reported quiet owing to the fact that foreign buyers did not respond to the higher prices asked by exporters. There was some demand in the domestic market for oats and sales of No. 1 feed grade were made at 3 1-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal.

The market for potatoes remains dull and featureless with car lots of No. 1 Green Mountains nominally quoted at 60 cents per bag, and Quebec varieties at 50 cents per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, ex-track.

A fairly good trade continues to be done in eggs in a wholesale jobbing way and the market was moderately active with a steady undertone. The receipts continue to be somewhat smaller than at this period last year, but they are ample to meet all requirements.

The receipts were 2,387 cases, as against 4,976 for the same day last week, and 3,757 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Butter Prices Unsteady.

The receipts of butter today were 237 packages, as against 256 for the same day last week, and 978 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no further change in prices, but the undertone to the market continues easy and a lower level in the near future would be no surprise to the trade. The volume of business transacted was small, the demand being still somewhat limited and sales of only small lots were made. Held No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at 32 1-2 cents per lb., No. 1 creamery at 31 1-2 cents per lb. and No. 2 creamery at 30 1-2 cents per lb. In a wholesale jobbing way a fair trade was reported, there being a steady demand from grocers and other dealers for small lots, and prices were unchanged with sales of finest creamery at 35 cents per lb. in solid packages, and at 36 cents per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

Cheese Trade Quiet.

The receipts of cheese were 4,950 boxes, as compared with 3,785 for the same day last week, and 2,232 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no further change in the condition of the market to note. Business in all directions being reported quiet owing to the fact that advices from over the cable were not very encouraging. On spot, Western No. 1 white cheese was quoted at 18 cents per lb, and No. 1 colored at 17 3-4 cents per lb; Eastern No. 1 white 17 3-4 cents per lb., and No. 1 colored at 17 1-2 cents per lb, with No. 2 grades 1 cent per lb. lower.

On the local curb market today there were 600 packages creamery butter and 1,000 boxes of cheese offered. The No. 1 creamery butter sold at 31 1-2 cents per lb., and the No. 2 at 30 1-2 cents per lb., with the cheese at 15 7-8 cents per lb. all delivered here.

The Process that makes Canada's Finest Tires

THE latex web cord treatment, patented in Dominion Royal Cord Tires, is the most forward development in tire making Canada has known.

This exclusive process does away with cross ties, thus eliminating destructive internal friction and heat.

The cords are individually saturated in natural liquid rubber (latex) and then united in a perfectly flat even web. The absence of any irregularity removes the last cause of friction. Heat is eliminated—adding to the life of the tire. This exclusive process adds nothing to the cost.

MAY DAY PAGEANT BRIGHTON SCHOOL

Pupils Put on Fantasy Entitled "A Trip to Old Story Book Land."

BRIGHTON, May 6.—On the evening of May 1 the pupils of the Brighton Public School presented, under the direction of Mrs. Addie Wellington-Lapp, a May Day pageant, entitled, "A Trip to Old Story Book Land." This was put on under the auspices of the Home and School Club in order to fit the Public School with a library. The entertainment was a huge success, taking in about two hundred dollars.

The entertainment was opened by an address from the Principal, Mr. Langdon, and a community song, led by the Principal and faculty.

The stage was prettily decorated with evergreens and flowers to represent Old Ma'am Make Believe's clearing in the woods, where Mother Goose is receiving her guests. Mother Goose was well represented by Miss Edna Ross, who was the only one taking part not a member of the Public School.

All the old fairy stories and people were represented, two hundred children in all taking part.

Between the first and second act Miss Bernadine Brintnell sang a Gypsy song, "Merry Zingara," and Miss Dorothy Blyth danced the "Sword Dance," with concertina accompaniment.

A very pleasing event of the programme was when Mother Goose and Mrs. Lapp were presented each with a beautiful bouquet of roses.

The concert was repeated on Tuesday evening.

Afternoon Tea.

Saturday afternoon and evening a tea was served by the Methodist C.G.I.T. girls. The room was prettily decorated and the girls looked charming in their blue skirts and white middies. The tea was well patronized, the proceeds being $24.

Personals.

A number of Rebekahs attended the Quinte Queen Lodge in Trenton Friday night, when the Mystic Link Lodge of Toronto put on an initiation.

Bill Harper of Detroit is visiting his aunt, Mrs. S. D. Ross, for a couple of weeks.

Geo. Powell of Barry was in town for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Simpson, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Simpson, motored to Bloomfield on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Edwards of Georgetown has moved to Brighton, where he will be pastor of the Baptist Church.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

Glory flung herself out of the office, slamming the door behind her so that its glass pane rattled. She picked up her coat and hat from Miss Briggs' desk, without so much as a look at her.

Outside in the corridor Glory stopped and put them on. When she got into her car, she adjusted her hat before the windshield mirrot. The orchid on her coat was wilted. Viciously Glory threw it down into the gutter.

. . . She drove straight through the town out into the bare open country. Ahead of her on the lonely road a man was walking head down against the high wind.

As Glory approached she saw that it was Stan Wayburn. She put on the brakes. The car slowed to a standstill, just abreast of Stan. He looked up.

Glory opened the door of her car.

"Well, of all things! To find you here, just when I need you most! Get in!" she cried.

"Why do you have need of me, just now?" Stan asked when the car was under way again . . . slowly this time.

Glory laughed gaily.

"Oh, I don't know," she answered, "unless it's that you're always a sort of mental cocktail to me . . . you pick me up."

"You picked me up, just now," Stan parried.

"I did. I never was so glad to see anybody in my life. I was feeling blue. . . . But tell me, what were you doing, rambling around the country all by yourself?" the girl asked.

Stan's hand in its suede glove came down on the wheel over hers.

"I was thinking of someone whom I loved . . . and lost," he said.

"It was you own fault that you lost her . . . that is, if you mean me," Glory answered. She could feel her heart thumping in her breast.

"You knew I was mad about you a year ago, and that I'd have married you like a shot . . . If you'd asked me,' she went on with difficulty. "But you didn't ask me."

"I know," Stan's voice was very low. "But it does'nt make it any easier for me now. . . . It's impossible for me to realize that you're another man's wife!"

He turned in his seat and took the other man's wife in his arms. . . . The little blue car slid to a standstill at the side of the lonely road.

Glory closed her eyes. There was a new feeling in her. It was like being flooded with sweet, warm sunshine . . . on this wintry day. She felt, she thought the way a flower must feel the moment it bursts into bloom.

"Kiss me," she said. "I love you, Stan."

Wayburn kissed her. . . .

* * *

An automobile whizzed by on the pavement. But Glory didn't hear it.

The world for her, at that moment, was bounded by the rough fabric of Stan's coat, as it brushed her cheek . . . by the hard ring of his arms that held her close.

"If he loves me the way I love him, he'll want me to leave Dick," she thought to herself.

But did Stan want her to leave Dick?

Did he care for her as she did for him?

Did he want her for forever . . . or for just the passing moment's thrill? . . . Glory wondered.

She never had been sure of Wayburn as she had been sure of Dick. She never had trusted him. . . . And yet there was no one else in the world who was thrilling to her as Stanley Wayburn was thrilling!

"Here comes a car, Russet. We'd better drive on," Stan said suddenly in a matter-of-fact voice. "There's a farm-house along here on this road where we can stop for some tea . . . if you'd like it."

Glory straightened her hat, and started the car.

"I would," she said with a briskness that matched his own. "I had no lunch, and I'm famished."

The farm-house was a low-eaved brown one. A copper kettle hung beside its green front door.

The plump blond woman who kept the tea-house bustled about in the kitchen that could be seen through the open doorway. Presently there was a smell of browning toast and of fragrant tea.

* * *

He said nothing. He seemed only to want to look at her. His eyes were eager as if he were filling them with her beauty . . . so that he could remember it, afterward.

Glory knew that she was pretty that day. The wind had made her eyes and cheeks glow. And moreover she was wearing her new clothes. . . . the clothes she had bought with Dick's money so that she should be beautiful for Stan's eyes!

"I'm a bad wife," she said in an undertone. "I've no business to be here with you, Stanley, when I've a husband of my own."

Wayburn laughed a little. He pressed her hands so that it seemed that the little bones in them would snap.

"Don't talk about husbands. Let's not waste our time when we're together talking about anything but you . . . and me," he said. "Do you know that your hair is the nicest color . . . like beech leaves with the sun on 'em?"

Glory frowned.

"I am. I admit it," she said. "You quite spoiled my dinner the other night when I saw you in that restaurant with that Chotek woman!"

Stan mused.

"Sonya Chotek, a very capable actress," he commented. "She's had a most interesting career. She was imprisoned in Russia for a year at the beginning of the war.

"I wish she were there now!" Glory cried. "I wish they'd never freed her!"

"They didn't free her. She escaped," Stanley went on, his eyes twinkling with amusement. "Then she went to France. . . ."

"Oh, will you be still about her! I don't want to know anything about the women you're in love with . . . or have been in love with!" Glory cried.

The farm woman brought in their tea.

"Cream?" Glory asked.

"No, thanks."

"Sugar?"

"One lump, please."

"I love to pour your tea," Glory said when the woman had again disappeared into the kitchen. "I love to do little homey things for you."

Wayburn took one of her hands again.

"Pretending that we're married, you and I?" he asked.

Glory nodded. She couldn't trust her voice.

"It would be nice," Stan's tone was flat.

Glory knew that he didn't mean it. And yet, somehow, she hoped with all her soul that he did mean it!

* * *

They finished their tea and toast. And the farm woman laid the bill on the table.

Glory took out her tiny mirror and powder box and dusted her nose. She buttoned her fur coat close about her neck and drew on her gloves.

Stan leaned across the table.

"I'm in a deuce of a fix," he said in a low tone. "I've forgotten my billfolder. I must have left it on my dresser at the hotel. . . . Will you lend me a couple of dollars to pay the check?"

"Why, of course," Glory replied eagerly.

In her new beaded bag was a five dollar bill that Dick had given her to buy gasoline that morning. She passed it across the table to Stanley.

When the change came Stanley absently stuffed it into his trousers pocket.

"When he gets back to the hotel and discovers that he forgot to give me my change, he'll have a fit," Glory laughed to herself.

Outside the clear afternoon light had faded a little. The fields lay brown and barren under the bleak sky.

Glory felt a little melancholy as she turned her car toward the city. She hated the thought of leaving Stan . . . of going home to Dick, and the dull evening.

"Isn't this matinee day?" Glory asked. "Why, of course, it is! . . . Why aren't you at the theatre, giving the matinee girls a thrill?"

"The company's gone blooey," Wayburn said. "It disbanded last Saturday. Tha'ts what amused me so back there, when you were raving about Sonya Chotek. She left town Sunday. I'll probably never see her again."

Glory laughed.

"And Myra Gail leaves for Europe soon . . . she and her husband!" she said. "So that both of my deadly rivals will be gone . . . and I'll have you all to myself!"

"Will you like that?" Stanley asked. "I thought all women enjoyed being jealous."

"Enjoy being jealous!" Glory repeated.

* * *

It seemed to her at the moment that the thing she would most enjoy in the world would be to know that Stanley Wayburn was blind when it came to seeing other women . . . to know that she would have to be jealous of him again!

"Get over on your side of the road . . . a car's trying to pass us!" Stanley said, looking back over his shoulder. Glory nosed in toward the right-hand side of the road.

In the car was a woman, alone. she looked sharply into Glory's car, as she passed it.

Mother Gregory!

Glory almost ran the car off the road into the muddy ditch beside it. as her eyes met those of Dick's mother.

"Hot bozo!" she cried. Dismay was in her voice.

"What's the matter now?" Stan asked.

"Oh, nothing much . . . except that that was my husband's mother who passed us just now in that car!" Glory answered.

"Did she see you? Are you sure?" Stan asked.

Glory laughed mirthlessly.

"I'll say she saw me! And you, too! She looked daggers at us both! . . . Oh, what will I do?"

Stanley pondered.

"Tell the truth," he suggested. "After all, what did we do that was wrong? You happened to meet me out on this road. You didn't know I was here. It was just a chance meeting. . . . Tell your husband all about it the minute you get home."

* * *

But when Glory ran into her house, Ranfhild told her that Dick had phoned to say that he was going to stay downtown for dinner with some men from out of town.

"And Mrs. Gregory telephoned just a minute ago. She wants you to call her as soon as possible," Ranghild said primly.

Glory sat down at the telephone table and looked up Mother Gregory's telephone number. Slowly and unwillingly she took the receiver from its hook.

Mother Gregory herself answered the telephone.

"I want to see you, Glory," she said in her quick, business-like way. "Can you run over here for a minute or two?"

"I suppose so," Glory answered, and hung up the receiver.

PIONEERS TO USE TRENT WATERWAYS

Men Making Boat Trip From Pacific to Atlantic to Go Through City.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 4.—A three months' cruise across the American continent by motor boat, following the inland waterways of the United States and Canada from Astoria, Oregon, to New York City, is the unusual outing announced by three Los Angeles men, John Edwin Hoag, Frank S. Wilton and Val. Woodbury.

The trio of adventurers who hope to blaze the first motor boat trail across the continent from the Pacific to the Atlantic will leave here early this month for Astoria, Oregon. A special motor boat, built to meet the peculiar requirements of the trip, will be shipped to Astoria, from which point the voyagers will set out up the Columbia River on May 15th, on the first 400 mile lap of a 5,000 mile water journey.

In making what they contemplate will be the first crossing of the continent via the inland waterways the boat will be taken out of the water only once—a short portage being necessary to get over the continental divide where no navigable waterways exist.

Leaving the tidewaters of the Pacific at the mouth of the Columbia River near Astoria on May 15th these water travelers expect to dock in New York City August 15th, or approximately 90 days after getting under way.

From Astoria to St. Louis, Missouri, the boat will be taken over the identical route that was traveled by the Lewis and Clark expedition of 120 years ago; and by the earliest explorers who penetrated across the continent by way of the St. Lawrence River, the Great Lakes, the Illinois, Mississippi, Missouri, Snake and Columbia Rivers.

Upon reaching Lake Huron they will abandon the conventional Great Lakes route in favor of the shorter and more scenic Trent waterways, across the province of Ontario.

The Trent waterways is a chain of rivers and inland lakes that have been joined together by artificial canals for purposes of navigation and Hydro-electric power development.

This route provides a short cut for vessels of light tonnage between Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario. The eastern terminal is Trenton, Ontario, on the Bay of Quinte, an arm of Lake Ontario directly across from Oswego, New York.

On the 5,000 mile trip there is only one stretch of 250 miles where the boat will have to be transported overland while there are only 760 miles in which the boat will be traveling against opposing river currents.

The trip could be made in 60 days if no unforeseen developments occur but the three pioneers are allowing themselves 90 days.

Out of Doors

We have every reason to know it's the season when kiddies come into their own. The plans they are layin'; the games they are playin', are envied by folks who are grown.

We find that the boys shun their in-a-door toys, as the summer call gets in their blood. They hie to the open and shortly are gropin' and playin' around in the mud.

Their tops are brought out with a romp and a shout and their marbles are swung into play. Dad's working at night, fixin' sonny-boy's kite, and there's fun in the offing today.

Sedate little Polly is taking her dolly out riding, and my, but she's proud. The youngsters today feel the thrill of real play 'cause the call of the summer is loud.

To Interview Hydro Officials.

Dr. C. C. Armstrong, member of the local Hydro Commission, will go to Toronto this week to interview the Hydro officials with regard to the rates to be charged here this year. The Hydro has given notice that it will reduce its price for power from $85 to $44 per horse power, and the local commission has a surplus from last year's operations. This means a reduction to the consumer and the enrollment of a large number of new patrons. So far, however, nothing definite has been heard from the Hydro officials, so that the old rates are still in force. Dr. Armstrong goes to Toronto to ascertain just where the villagers are at.

Your grandparents relied on ENO

Years before the C.P.R. spanned Canada, ENO's "Fruit Salt" had found its way across the continent. As years have sped, its sterling merits have become more and more widely acknowledged. Now there is not a corner of the civilized world where the morning 'dash' of ENO is not part and parcel of life as it should be lived.

ENO excels because it is the one simple, pleasant and, above all, natural way to ensure internal cleanliness. You never wish you hadn't taken ENO, as perhaps you have wished with other laxatives. It doesn't do good to-day to leave you worse to-morrow.

It excels, too, because of its purity, its unchanging high quality, its freedom from purgative mineral salts and sugar and flavouring matter.

The rule of our grandparents—ENO's "Fruit Salt" first thing every morning—is as sound to-day as ever it was.

HASTINGS COUNCIL TAKES STEPS TO PAVE PRINCIPAL STREETS

Submits Plan of Roadways to be Designated as Links.

NO VOTE NEEDED.

Business Men Petition Council to Declare a Half Holiday Eveary Week.

(By a Staff Reporter).

HASTINGS, May 6.—The paving question in this village was advanced another stage by the Council last night, when it was decided to submit to the Minister of Highways a plan of the streets which it is proposed to improve to have them properly designated as links in the county roads. W. B. Redfern, representing James, Proctor and Redfern, the Toronto engineers who have made a survey of the streets here, will personally lay the matter before the Minister. Reeve Hess will then call a special meeting of the Council, when further action will be taken.

The Estimated Cost.

Mr. Redfern appeared before the Council last night with a blue print of the village of Hastings, with red lines showing the streets which it is proposed to pave. These streets, all of which are connecting links in the county road system, although not yet officially designated as such, are: Front Street from Victoria to New; New from Front to Albert; Victoria from Front to Albert; Albert from New to Nelson; Bridge from Front South to Bay. The route of the county road may be changed and the length of pavement in one case would be 5,700 feet and 4,400 feet in the other. For both of these Mr. Redfern submitted estimates as follows:

Concrete for 5,700 feet, $44,500; for 4,400 feet, $32,000.

Asphalt for 5,700 feet, $53,000; for 4,400 feet, $37,000.

The Government will pay at least 50 per cent. of the cost of paving these streets for 20 feet of the roadway, and Mr. Redfern stated that under the Act as amended at the last session, the Provincial grant would equal the entire cost of the 20 feet. In any case, the town's share of the cost of paving 5,700 feet would not exceed $22,250. A 15-year debenture issue would mean an annual payment of $2,200. The village at present lays out about that amount yearly on its streets and the work has to be repeated year after year. Mr. Redfern advised the Council to have their engineer go to the Minister of Highways with plans and specification for his approval. When this was secured, the matter could be taken up with the Counties Council and work on the streets could be started in June.

Local Improvement Act.

Mr. Redfern said that under the Local Improvement Act, the Council had the right to charge up the whole or any part of the cost to the adjacent property owners. If half the expenditure were so charged the cost per foot frontage would be 17 cents a year to the owners on either side of the streets.

No Vote Required.

In reply to a question by Councillor Hatherley Mr. Redfern said it was not necessary to take the vote of the taxpayers on this question before beginning paving work. He cited the case of the town of Barrie, where the council on its own initiative is spending thousands of dollars on the streets under the Highway Improvement Act.

The firm of which Mr. Redfern is a member offers to draw up all plans, to manage every detail, including getting tenders for the different kinds of paving and will keep a man constantly in charge of the work, the firm's compensation being five per cent of the total outlay.

The Reeve's Opinion.

Reeve Hess said he was opposed to the use of any more oil on the streets The village was spending large sums of money every year on the roadways and still they were in bad shape.

A reference to the financial statement of 1924 showed that $2399 had been spent on the streets in that year.

Mr. Redfern has Opposition.

William Spellman, a resident of Hastings, addressed the council and offered to do for 3½ per cent. the work for which Mr. Redfern's bid was 5 per cent. He offered further to draw up the preliminary plans and specifications for $100.

The Reeve Explains.

Reeve Hess said that when he was aspiring for the nomination for his present position he had gone on record as in favor of permanent work on the streets. At the nomination meeting he did not possess the information required to deal with the matter in detail. After he took office the Toronto engineers had written him with a view to securing work and he had told them that he could give them no assurance that any paving would be done as the town might not be able to bear the cost. If however the engineers were willing to make a survey and an estimate of the cost, and without placing the village under any obligation, they were welcome to do so. On those terms the survey and estimates had been made and if no paving is done this year the ratepayers are out nothing. He did not think that the council should tie itself up to any particular engineer at present but should have plans and specifications prepared so that a closer estimate could be made of the actual cost.

Mr. Redfern offered to prepare these plans. If no paving is done he would cahrge $200 for his work but if the work goes on this charge would be included in the 5 per cent. on the total outlay.

On motion of Councillors Dodd and McDonald it was decided to have Mr. Redfern lay the matter before the Minister of Highways.

If Bridge street south is paved the small bridge near the Front street corner will have to be widened. It is proposed to put in a fill at each end so as to shorten the bridge and to shift it so as to straighten the roadway. Mr. Redfern's estimate for this work was $6000, while Mr. Spellman placed the cost at $9000.

Reeve Hess believes both estimates are too high and has the same opinion of Mr. Redfern's figures on the cost of paving.

Want A Half Holiday

Hastings is likely to go on record as the first village in Ontario to avail itself of the amendment to the statute passed at the last session of the legislature giving the councils of villages the right to institute a weekly half holiday by-law, a power which was given to city and town councils only by the amendment of 1921.

A petition, signed by nearly every business man in the village was received last night asking the Council to declare a half holiday on Wednesdays during the summer months and to compel all stores to close at 7 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings throughout the entire year except for the week before Christmas. In past Wednesdays have been a half holiday in Hastings by a gentlemen's agreement among the merchants but some business men refused to observe it.

Reeve Hess said that if such a by-law were passed care should be taken to have it so framed that it would stand any test. Clerk Wilson was accordingly authorized to go to Peterboro to interview G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., who is solicitor for the village and have a by-law drawn up in accordance with the provision of the statute.

BIRTH CONTROL LEAGE FORMED

Meeting Held in Toronto Declared That Government Must Inform People.

REDUCE POVERTY.

TORONTO, May 6 (Canadian Press)—The Ontario Birth Control League was formally launched here last night at a meeting held here. Prof. MacIver, of the University of Toronto, was in the chair and the hall was fairly well filled.

Prof. MacIver briefly referred to the aims and objects of the movement. He believed the time was opportune for educational work respecting the problems of a differential birth rate and population. Citing the conditions in some countries of continental Europe, Prof. MacIver said that the unskilled and uneducated classes contributed far more than their proportionate share to the population.

Prof. MacIver said that the educated classes did not require information about the methods of birth control but it was essential that such information should be imparted by the government to the unskilled and poorer casses throughout the Dominion. He believed such information would do much towards reducing the misery, poverty and unhappiness to be found in many homes in the larger centres of population. One class of population should not be kept ignorant of what another class knew.

Dr. O. J. C. Withrow said one means of educating the public was through birth control clinics held under the auspices of established institutions.

JUNIOR FIRST AID LEGION ORGANIZED

Sponsors Hope to Interest Million Boys and Girls to Fight Infection.

The first aid army is calling for new volunteers this week.

Young blood especially is wanted in the ranks, and to that end, the Junior First Aid Legion has been formed.

In hundreds of cities and towns enrollment stations are now open where boys and girls may enlist in the new organization and become actively identified with a cause designed to alleviate human suffering and prevent trivial accidents from becoming dangerous infections.

This, in fact, is Junior First Aid Week, and more than 45,000 druggists are authorized to accept enrollments in the Junior First Aid Legion.

It is the aim of the legion to enlist at least a million members in the present drive and thus recruit a nation-wide organization of boys and girls to teach the lessons of first aid as well as to render first aid services whenever the need arises. Any boy or girl may become a member by signing the enrollment blank and paying a membership fee of 12 cents which entitles them to a membership certificate and button, a complete handbook of first aid instructions, and a junior first aid kit, consisting of iodine swabs, sterile gauze, sterile gauze bandages, adhesive plaster, and picric acid gauze for application to burns.

To further the interest in the junior first aid movement and to reward children for giving prompt and expert assistance in time of accident, the founders of the Junior First Aid Legion—Bauer & Black, makers of surgical dressings and hospital supplies—has set aside a fund of $5,000 to be distributed equally among the 500 boys and girls, who during the present year, render the most notable first aid services.

TRY STARVING OUT RUM ROW

Seaplanes Used by Dry Forces to Prevent Supplies Reaching Ships.

RUNNERS USE PLANES.

CLIFTON, N.Y., May 6.—(United Press).—Seaplanes may assist the dry navy in its campaign to exterminate rum row by a "starvation" programme.

This became known to-day when a squadron of twelve planes headed out to sea for the Narrows. Another seaplane hopped off from Rockaway Point.

Government officials were reticent concerning this phase of rum war operations, but they intimated that it was thought possible that the ships in rum row would try to replenish their food supplies by the use of seaplanes.

NO PORTION OF FINE TO TOWN

Warkworth Constable Captured Three O. T. A. Offenders Single Handed.

COIN TO PROVINCE

(By Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, May 6.—The village of Warkworth, in the township of Percy, has never had a special officer to enforce the O.T.A., probably, for the best of all reasons, in that law-abiding community no such official being required. Abram Phillips, who resides in Warkworth, is a county policeman and, besides, he acts as guardian of the peace in the village of Warkworth, but his discharge of the latter duty is purely a labor of love and he receives no salary for it whatever, although it is of record that he has on more than one occasion performed some detective work that would have reflected credit upon a full-fledged policeman.

Recently three young men, who had evidently negotiated with a bootlegger, misbehaved themselves at a dance in Warkworth and were promptly called to account by Constable Phillips. He did not subdue the worst of these until he (the officer) had received a black eye.

The three men were strangers in the village and were given a hearing before a magistrate in Hastings, Constable Phillips laying the information. Two of the defendants were fined $10 and costs and the third $50. Neither Percy Township nor the village of Warkworth receives any part of these fines, the total amount going to the Province as the complainant was a county instead of a local policeman.

The thrifty Constable Phillips regretted to see the municipality lose the sum of money and he consulted a Campbellford lawyer, who told him that a repetition of the case could be avoided if the Municipal Council would pass a bylaw appointing him special O.T.A. officer. Mr. Phillips had the lawyer draw up such a bylaw, which he presented at the May meeting of the Percy Council Monday, with the request that it be given effect. The Council, however, decided to take no action in the matter, probably under the impression that a similar incident was not likely to occur again in a life-time.

Teachers' Income Tax.

For the first time since the income tax law went into effect the township has collected from every teacher in Warkworth and Percy liable for payment. Several of the teachers have threatened to appeal when the Council meets as a Court of Revision in June, and one teacher from Warkworth has actually given notice to that effect. Reeve McCubbin, however, gives notice that if his colleagues will back him up he will fight the appeals to the last trench.

For some reason or other the impression seems to have got about that the Council has taxed the teachers on salaries earned in different years, but no such plan has been followed, and the Council knew that such a method of assessment would be illegal.

The case of Miss Shirley A. Muir is taken as a precedent, and it is claimed on her behalf that she was taxed on salary earned in 1923 and 1924. Reeve McCubbin most emphatically denies this. He says that in 1923 Miss Muir, fresh from the Normal, taught the latter half of the year in Warkworth, but did not earn enough to bring her under the operation of the law. She taught for the first half of 1924, and when the Assessor called on her she told him that she was earning $2,000 a year. She left Warkworth to teach in Mt. Albert in September of last year, but she was taxed on $1,200 of the amount of her total income as given to the Assessor. The tax amounted to $49. At first she refused to pay, but later changed her mind and sent the amount to the Town Treasurer with interest added.

There was a mass of legal correspondence read at the Council meeting Monday, letters from G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., who had been asked by the Council for advice. Mr. Gordon made it clear that a person was liable for income tax in the municipality where the bulk of his or her income is earned, even if for part of the year they reside in some other place. Copies of letters that had passed between Mr. Gordon and W. A. Sinclair of Toronto, Miss Muir's solicitor, were also read to the Council. Mr. Sinclair holds that a tax on an income earned in different periods covering two years is illegal, and in this view no one appears to take issue with him.

Warkworth Town Hall.

A communication was received from R. C. Buckley, Inspector of Theatres, dealing with the matter of a license for the Warkworth Town Hall. The Inspector said that a public hall license is required when local concerts, dances, etc., are held in the building. If motion pictures or travelling entertainments are to be shown or held in the hall certain alterations must be made in order to comply with the statute dealing with theatres, such as putting in fire exits, fastening the chairs to the floor and hanging a fireproof curtain in front of the stage. Until the law is complied with in this regard no theatre license can be issued.

Buying a Grader.

A. G. Turnbull of Belleville offered to sell the Council an adjustable leaning wheel road grader, made in Indianapolis, Ind., the price asked being $545.00. This matter was deferred until the Councillors look over the roads and ascertain what work is required.

Ex-Reeve Atkinson was appointed Pathmaster of Division No. 48, to succeed Gordon Honey, resigned.

The Council will meet as a Court of Revision on June 1.

SPECIAL PREACHER AT GRACE CHURCH

Non - Concurring Minister From Blakney Addresses Congregation on Purity.

MILLBROOK, May 6.—Rev. Mr. Graham, of Blakney, whose congregation voted to go into the United Church of Canada on June 10th, but who is himself on the side of the anti-unionists, preached in Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday morning and evening.

There was a fair attendance at both services. Miss Gussie Clarry presided at the organ during the day. Rev. G. S. Gervan took Mr. Graham's work at his charge near Ottawa.

According to present plans, the non-concurring members and adherents of the congregation will unite with Centreville under one leadership, and a call will be extended to a pastor of anti-union sympathies to become the minister of the two churches, after June 10th.

On Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Graham based his sermon on the 12th chapter of Hebrews, beginning with a reference to the 14th verse: "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord, coupling with this a verse from Matthew's gospel: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

The speaker dwelt briefly on the importance of genuine purity, and warned against the brand exhibited by the Pharisees who made white the outside, but within were full of uncleanness. Even a "root of bitterness, spring up," the writer says, may cause one to be defiled. "It isn't the size of the thing you fight for which may break up some of the most beautiful friendships."

This lack of holiness, and purity, finds its climax in the character of Esau, "a profane person, who for one morsel of meat, sold his birthright." Yet Esau was the outcome of the kind of home in which he was brought up—irreligious, unwalled by truth, marred by sordiness and vulgarity. Rebekah and Isaac began their life together in romance, but the former ends as a querulous, old woman lying to deceive her blind husband. There are no guardian angels in that kind of home which has fifty doors open to the world, and but one to God.

Some of the traits of Esau's character warned against were an unguarded temper, and undue haste to gain prominence, and an uncontrollable appetite, making him the prey of the first unprincipled man he met—in this case, his own brother. Parents may find it easier to let the boys, or girls, do what they like, but they are leaving undefended souls to go out into the world, having little respect for truth, awe, or religion, and lacking a love of the things worth while.

Esau indulged in exaggerated feelings about himself: "Behold, I am at the point to die; and what profit shall this birthright do to me?" And this is a sin of Christian people, as well as of outlaw characters. "It is not what we say, but what our passions and habits say for us, "that shows the horizon of our souls.

"An empty mind is the unholiest of all unholy places. Treat it as the worst enemy of the soul, for nothing was ever done wrong that was not first thought wrong. In your spare time 'tune in' on God and eternity, as great men have been doing through all the ages. The Christian is never moral unless he spends time in the company of the Highest."

In one sense, Esau is a type of the busy do-nothings, who are substantial idlers—who smoke instead of working becaue it is easier and suits their inclinations better. "Nothing lives unless it changes. Are we wearing ourselves out, or merely rusting out? Are we planting for the Kingdom of God, seeking to have the image of The Creator and Redeemer reproduced in some human soul? Looking to the Prince and Emancipator, with whom Jacob wrestled, we shall have personal healing, and see our own, and other tangled lives, made straight and smooth, so that we fitly adorn the temple of His Holiness."

ODDFELLOWS PAID VISIT

TWEED, May 6.—Quite a number of Oddfellows' and Rebekahs from here attende dthe Oddfellows' sermon in St. Andrew's Church, Stirling, Sunday, May 3. The Rev. Simpson gave a very impressive sermon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Carelton of Plainfield spent Monday in town.

Miss Helen Way, nurse-in-training of Rockwood Hospital, Kingston, is home on sick leave.

On Friday night, May 1, the Auditorium was packed to the doors. A minstrel show was put on by Tweed talent.

SENDER'S ADDRESS ON MAIL MATTER

Post Office Authorities Would Have Less Trouble If This Were Done.

The transactions at the "dead letter" office during the year ended March 31st, 1924, show that the number of articles originating in Canada and returned as undeliverable from the United States, the United Kingdom, British Dominions and Colonies, foreign countries and Canadian Post Offices, total 1,999,624.

It may be pointed out that if the correct return address had been placed on this mail matter by the sender, and if found undeliverable, would have been returned direct to them from the office of destination, suffering no delay in having to go through the "dead letter" office.

To avoid having your mail matter forwarded to the "dead letter" office, have your return address placed on it.

The HIGHWAY EXTRAORDINARY

ALONG the line of the transcontinental—at almost any station—is evidence of the revenue that is brought to Canada through the efforts of the Canadian Pacific abroad.

The long trains of human freight that cross and re-cross Canada in a never ending stream, would be cut in half if only traffic originating in Canada were carried! Those huge trains transport passengers from foreign lands across the great Canadian land-link between the oceans----contributing enormously to the revenue of Canadian merchants and trade generally. It is truly the Highway Extraordinary----for it is unique in the history of railroading.

In every city of importance throughout the world, the Canadian Pacific maintains offices or agents to direct traffic across Canada ---thereby bringing profitable business to Canada, as well as insuring the success of the Railway----success from which all Canada benefits.

DO YOU KNOW

That the Canadian Pacific, one of the largest advertisers on the North American continent, has done more to make Canada known ab oad than any other single agency; and that last year the Company distributed over 1,800,000 booklets; folders and posters, the greater proportion going abroad.

More, this activity of the Canadian Pacific abroad has been the greatest single factor in advertising Canada to the world.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

ART EXHIBITION HELD TUESDAY

Paintings By Mr. and Mrs. F. McGillivray—Knowles Were Admitted.

ARTISTS PRESENT.

The exhibit of paintings from the brushes of Mr. and Mrs. F. McGillivray-Knowles, held at the Conservatory of Music Studio yesterday afternoon and evening, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association was very well patronized. The exhibit was exceptionally worth while, and the presence of the two artists served to heighten the interest for those attending.

In the afternoon, a brief talk was given by Mr. Knowles to an audience of about sixty ladies. Introduced by Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, president of the Women's Art Association, he commenced his address with the words:

"There come a time in the development of a people when the higher and more beautiful begins to fail in the face of more material desires, and today we are much struck with the menace of this facing our present time."

Explaining some of the technique of mechanical training, so necessary to the artist, Mr. Knowles gave an interesting glimpse of the painter's sense of color. "You say a tree is green, but there are fifty shades of green, and interlaced with them may be fifty of the colors which we call prismatic, so that you have the true green in the centre of a tree, while gold may be the dominant light and purple or violet the undertone."

"It is the most difficult thing in the world to define art, one see art in beauty alone, some in ugliness, some in things which are cruel. Art is really putting something across that grips the beholder. A certain man, trying to define art, put it thus: 'When I say nothing and do nothing and yet in some way make others think that I have said something and done something.—that is art'."

Mr. Knowles alluded to the modern manifestations of art, in the work of the cubuists, the futurists and the Daddists, those queer people who take nails and bits of old material and stick them on a canvas and call it a picture. They are "illustrative of a phase of insanity."

"There are types of artistic critics who should not be taken too seriously, such as journalists who are not good enough to write up a murder and are given the job of criticizing paintings, professors who know little of their subject, and others. To gain a knowledge of real art, never fear to express your opinion. Do not accept all you hear from others."

"The charlatan and the fakir is the one I am bitter against," declared Mr. Knowles, saying that much of the crude modern art, which he denounced, including some of the work of the well-known Group of Seven, was the outcome of a desire to "see the money flow over the turnstile," this allusion having to do with the relation by him of the exhibit in Paris in his student days of the work 'done by a donkey," which was set up by a group of fellow students, and realized considerable money.

Referring again to much of this modern work, he declared that a collection of some of the posters which deface the countryside in certain sections of the continent would be as logical an attempt to form an art exhibit as a collection of the modernists. "Some of their paintings are not half as artistic as 'Alas! My Poor Brother'."

Exhibit Good.

Although none of the large paintings by Mr. and Mrs. Knowles were included in the collection exhibited yesterday, the number of small examples and the miniatures excited much favorable comment. Chiefly oil paintings of the bright type, with bits of natural scenic beauty as their theme, there were no portraitures or vigorous landscapes. A daintiness of execution is evident in the work of both, with a perfection of detail that carries out every item of the thing painted. While some of the small landscapes left an impression of roughness in their execution, the bits of natural life, in the collection of Mrs. Knowles' work, showed a meticulous attention to detail. Unlike some artists, neither is content to give an impression only of an object by painting only a portion of it. Even the tail feathers and the gleaming eyes of the father of the barnyard flock in Mrs. Knowles' "Put to Flight" were as apparent as the bright red of his raised comb.

The sense of color values which was explained by Mr. Knowles as an important adjunct to an artist's work was well exemplified in his pictures and those of his wife. Analyzing some of the dominant color tones in several of his pictures that were especially striking showed the deep blue shadings on the snow of "Hauling the Wood, Quebec," with a team of oxen laboring through the deep snow of the foreground. Vivid and yet restrained treatment of light and shade, in what artists call chiaroscuro, and what seemed like an overwash of golden coloring, was the outstanding attribute of "The Yellow Mill," with a pale shaft of sunlight beaming out of the picture. A bold application of deep violet was in the mossy flooring of an autumn wood scene, and there was atmosphere a-plenty in "Stormy Weather," with its angry grey sky.

The changing tints of water and sky and landscape were reproduced faithfully in "Autumn in the Laurentians," and the sombre browns of undergrowth and the dull greens of a burnt hillside were apparent in "In the Hudson Highlands."

Of the smaller sketches, "Blossom Time," by Mrs. Knowles, was an effective splash of pale pink and white blossoms against the line of a yellow field, there was humor in "A Surprise Party," with an unwelcome frog intruding on the barnyard fowls' dinner-bowl, and a little story in the vaguely-sketched "Robbers of Niagara," by Mr. Knowles, the towering factories above the diminishing waterfall telling their own tale.

A collection of landscape sketches included a number of bold, free examples of the way in which a lone tree or a patch of green wood will appear to the eye of the artist. A great deal of interest also centred about the tiny miniatures in water color from the brush of Mrs. Knowles, several of them reproducing "in little" the artist's evident fondness for barnyard dwellers. One was a tiny replica of an indignant red-combed father of the flock, while another showed an energetic biddy.

As an example of some of the smaller sketches of two of Canada's best-known artists, the exhibit was exceptionally good. It left an impression on the eye of the beholder of new vistas, in the bold, original treatment of color and light and atmosphere in these lovely bits of painting, and an idea of the breadth and compass of vision necessary to reproduce on canvas such beautiful examples of the work of the Creator. Mr. Knowles' allusion in his brief address to a delineation of ugliness as having no place in art and as having no lasting life, was well illustrated in his work and that of his wife. To be able to paint nature in such a way that its loveliness and beauty soothe and charm the beholder and give him a glimpse of its far-stretching wonders, is an art that will probably never fail to attract the world-weary and tired, seeking in art and in music for some thing that will lift them above and beyond the sordid things of every day. To delineate the loveliness in created things, reproduced with color and light and life, is to do something worth while. One cannot fail, in looking at such pictures, to see the intention to charm and soothe that lies behind their painted canvases.

The committee in charge was responsible for a very jolly evening. The dance commenced with a novelty number that broke the ice immediately and set the pace for the members and out-of-town visitors for a very pleasant evening, apparently enjoyed thoroughly by everyone present. Excellent music was provided by an orchestra, composed of Harold Armstrong at the piano, Jerry Collins, violin; Ted McCarthy and Paul Koster, traps. Whites of 3 eggs.
1 cup brown sugar.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 teaspoon corn starch.
2 cups dessicated cocoanut.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

USE SLICED POTATOES.

If fat becomes too hot before you are ready to use it for doughnuts, put in a handful of raw sliced potatoes.

CLEAN THEM FIRST.

Garments that are to be packed away during the summer months should first be well cleaned and brushed.

DELICIOUS DRINK.

A very delicious drink is made by blending equal portions of cider and grape juice and adding a pint of sparkling water just before it is poured over cracked ice and served.

PUT IN ICE WATER.

Vegetables for salad should always be cleaned in advance and then allowed to stand in ice water until crisp. After that they should be drained, spread out on a towel and set aside in a cold place until just before they are ready to be mixed and served.

HANDLING DRIED FRUIT.

Wash all dried fruit carefully and cover with cold water for a while before you put it on the fire.

YE KNOW NOT THE HOUR.

We know not when to call us, to his blissfull home on high
To abide with Him forever, the Lord Jesus may draw nigh,
Whether suddenly at noontide, without sound of footfall, He Shall come, from toil and trouble and all care, to set us free,
If in tenderest love, His heralds, He shall send His face before,
Weary, wasting pain and sickness to announce Him at the door.

We know not if His coming shall be when the flush of morn
With rainbow tinted radiance the eastern skies adorn,
Or when from cloudless heaven the great sun's meridian ray
Is shining in full splendor and life gladsome is and gay,
Or at silent gloom of midnight when we little deem Him near,
Stealing through sweet vales of dreamland, the summons we may hear.

But we know He's surely coming, tho' He only knows what time,
Let us watch then and be ready, be it night or morning prime.
About our Father's business, every hour let us be found,
Faithful helpers in His vineyard, and not cumberers of the ground,
While life's span He kindly lengthens, seek and serve Him while we may,
For now is the time accepted, and now is Salvation's day.

Although we're frail and faulty and unmeet to enter in
To His heavenly habitation, with our robes all soiled with sin,
There's a found, which for all foulness on the cross was opened wide,
Where we may wash and cleanse us, in its freely flowing tide.
We must keep our souls unspotted from the world, and serve Him here,
Would we whensoe'er He cometh, meet Him with guilty fear.

TRAINING YOUR DOG

This is the tenth and last of a series telling how to train dogs to do tricks.

As a fitting close to this series of articles we have reserved the description of the most difficult of all tricks now being performed by dogs on the professional stage.

The last lesson of this series covers the routine of the complete somersault in midair. The dog finishes his somersault by alighting on his front paws on the trainer's outstretched hand and holding his position.

Use Heavy Pad.

This being an exceedingly dangerous trick, you must use a heavy pad on the floor. The pad is used to prevent injury to the dog in case you happen to drop him.

Kindly keep in mind that should you succeed in advancing the dog to the point where you feel he can safely essay this trick, he is worth his weight in gold.

In starting this trick, hold the dog in your hands with his back down. In throwing him into the air, use more force with the right hand than with the left. This impetus with the right hand will turn him over in the air. You should throw him upward about five feet from his original position on your hands.

After he has completed his turn in the air he will naturally drop back toward your hands with his front legs extended to meet your left hand.

See that your left hand is placed conveniently for him to alight. Also make sure that your left hand is higher than the point at which you expect him to make his landing.

As the dog approaches your hand in his drop, and is about to alight, lower your hand slightly to aid in breaking his fall.

Do not let the dog come to a sudden, jarring stop on your hand. Once the dog's weight is felt on your hand you must aid him in every way to maintain his balance. The balancing of the dog on your hand serves to finish off this trick in an exceedingly graceful manner.

By no means attempt even to start this trick until your dog has mastered perfectly all of the tricks which have preceded it in this series.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Wrapping the fingers around the shaft, with thumbs and all so wrapped, as one would hold a baseball bat is wrong in golf not wholly because the ball can not be hit that way—it can be—but because such a hit is accomplished in spite of the method, and more, because, a grip of that kind leads at once to great tightening of the muscles in the forearms. This tightening must be avoided because forearm rigidity in the address leads to arm rigidity as the back swing progresses. Arm rigidity means shoulder rigidity. This can hardly be chased out after the swing has started. The way to keep it out is to see that it is out at the beginning. Stand up to the ball easily in the address, and keep free, easy and graceful at the beginning of the back swing.

MASSEYS LOSE TO C. P. C. JUNIORS

On King Edward Park By Two Goals to One.

POOR SHOOTING

The C.P.C. juniors added another soccer victory to their record last evening when they defeated the Masseys by two goals to one, on King Edward Park before a fair attendance of spectators.

First Half.

Both teams set a fast pace from the kick off but fell away after a short duration of hard work around the goal areas that was only productive of fruitless corner-kicks which was made interesting when Curtis skinned the cross-bar with first time efforts. On mid-field, Halliday stopped Williams on the run to his own advantage as he placed to Fosters' foot who made tracks for goals to pick inside the post for opening counter. Exchanges were even thereafter, but Middleton and Smith on nice combination bewildered the C.P.C. defense to gain the equalizer from 15-yard drive that the goal-keeper failed to stop, as half-time arrived—one goal each.

Half Time.

On resuming, the C.P.C. forwards played havoc around the Massey's goal without success because Hotston and Fenner were holding the youngsters outside shooting distance. Eventually they succumbed to the everlasting hammering. Buchan travelled along the wing, to land an accurate centre in front of goal, where the defense got mixed-up, to leave James the opportunity to come running in at a fast pace and put the C.P.C. in the lead again. Play was of a ding-dong nature after this goal until the end which resulted in C.P.C. 2 goals to Massey's 1.

C.P.C.—Smith, goal; Downer and Grant, backs; Cross, Halliday and Nicholls, half-backs; Buchan, James, Curtis, Laidlaw and Foster, forwards.

Referee—Sam Calladine.

GASTON DOING WELL FOR SISLER'S TEAM

Milton Gaston, Brow's pitcher, obtained from the Yankees in the Shocker trade, has done some nice work for the Sislerites thus far. The other day he not only whipped the White Sox but fanned five of them in the first two innings. Sisler, obviously, expects great things of him.

AFTER TITLE.

You've all heard of King Solomon of old—well, here's a present-day chap by the same name. This fellow's a pugilist, heavyweight champion of Central and South America. He's seeking bouts with Gibbons, Wills and some of the rest of the top-notchers. He has got his eyes on the world title.

PHILLIES' HITS BEAT NEW YORK

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—The Phillies swamped the New York Giants today, 13 to 5, Jack Knight holding the league leaders to seven scattered hits. Cy Williams and Russell Wrightstone each made two home runs, and George Kelly and Billy Southworth each made one. Score:

BOSTON, May 5. — Burleigh Grimes held the Boston Braves to six hits today and the Brooklyn Dodgers won by a score of 6 to 1. Jess Barnes was hammered out of the box in the sixth inning. Score:

ILLINOIS DIAMOND OUTLOOK NOT ROSY.

Prospects for a winning baseball team at Illinois are anything but rosy this season, according to latest reports. Several of last year's stars have graduated and some exceptional material will have to be uncovered if the Illini are to be in the race for Big Ten honors.

The Referee

What was Ray Kremer's pitching record with the Pirates last season? —F. F. W.

Kremer won 18 games annd lost 10 in 1924 for a percentage of .643.

Colima won in four rounds.

LOST THREE POUNDS IN MARATHON RACE

"Chuck" Mellor, famous Illinois A. C. runner and winner of the Boston A. A. marthon the other day, only lost three pounds during the race. Not very bad considering the grueling jaunt of 26 miles, 385 yards plus the classy competition entered.

BOWLING CLUB WANTS SECTION OF SOUTH PARK

Would Build a Handsome Club House and Improve Corner Section.

ON LONG LEASE.

Similar Request in Respect to Central Park Refused in 1924.

An application was made by the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club through Mr Sedgewick for the use of a section of King Edward Park 120 feet by 160 feet for use as a bowling green. The north east corner was specified, bordering George street.

The club, Mr. Sedgewick explained, would prepare the ground, a process requiring two years, build a handsome club house and fence, and install attractive electric lights To bind the contract, $1 a year would be paid, and he suggested a ninety-nine year lease. If the privilege was given the club, the spokesman said, control of the green would be vested in the organization since the public could not be allowed to spoil the work on which considerable sums of money would be expended.

Mr. Sedgewick reminded Council that last year the bowling club applied to the Council for a section of Central park. The request was refused on the grounds that public property could not be given over to the use of private individuals or associations.

A request this year from a St. John's church club for the use of part of Central Park was refused for the same reason.

Monday night's application was referred to the Parks Committee for consideration.

Harold "Shrimp" McDougal left on Monday for Owen Sound where he has obtained a position. His departure will be a distinct loss to the Peterborough Junior O.H.A. team but he hopes to catch a place with the famous Owen Sound Greys. His friends in the city will wish him success, both in his new work and in athletic activities and will look forward to seeing his name in the paper as the Greys' regular centre player.

It looks as if the cold spell were leaving for a few days and every vacant lot will resound with the crack of the bat and the thud of the big mitt. The small boys will choose sides and the big ones will try out with the various teams of the City League.

The first game of the school league was a sample of the hard-fought encounters that will be staged during the next six weeks. Despite the cold weather both pitchers were burning them in—a little too much, in fact, for the good of their arms—and the batters were swinging hard. There were a number of free trips at first but when warm weather is here they should be less plentiful.

The papers these days are filled with speculation about next year's hockey teams. The time for making additions to the playing strength is nearly over as the new date for establishing residence under the O.H.A. is May 15.

May 1 was the big day for the lacrosse enthusiasts and in several towns the inhabitants were out in force to welcome last-minute additions to the squads.

It is expected that the parks committee will meet sometime this week to make arrangements for the use of Riverside (James Stevenson) Park for this season.

The Kingston team had an disagreement with the council over their park. They pay no rental, but have to spend several hundred dollars every year getting the grounds in shape. The council, or at least some of the members, proposed to charge them a rental and the team said they would pay it if the grounds were improved and good stands provided for their customers. The team will go ahead on the same old basis—no rent and no accomodations.

It might have been!

We're off! Daylight saving started yesterday and that means that the baseballers are going to have a lot of time to practice now in the evenings.—Kingston Standard.

Many a ball player in Peterborough would like to be able to say this.

Manager Joe Daly called a practice of his team for this evening. At least fifteen players were expected to be on deck for the workout. —Kingston Standard.

The Belleville Ontario comments on the other team but takes its own advice and keeps quiet about the Trunks:

Kingston has straightened out the tangle with the council with regard to the fair grounds for the use of the ball team and the team from now on will hold forth regularly at the same old stand. The Limestones are due for their best season and will have a fine balanced team. Shiner Johnson is grooming a player for the middle cushion so that he may devote all his time to the managing end. Oshawa since their defeat at the hands of Oslers have emitted very little in the way of news and they probably think more work and less talking will be more beneficial.

In another column it is reported that the Keene baseball team has strengthened up for the coming season and expects to win the Wright cup. This will bring fear into the hearts of the other teams although they would doubtless say: "That's what they all say."

Billy Evans Says

ANENT THE TYGERS

One of the real disappointments of the early baseball season has been the Detroit club. The Tygers have been getting whipped in a most consistent manner. Other western teams have been using the Cobb outfit for a regular doormat.

Before the opening of the chase Detroit was picked as one of the outstanding favorites in the American League. It stacked up as a tough team to beat. It appeared well fortified in practically all departments of play.

But the Tygers, thus far, have found the going extremely rough. At this writing they have taken six straight whippings. And have won only three tilts in 13 starts.

In 1920, under Jennings, Detroit lost its first 13 games. It was without a doubt the most disastrous beginning a major league club ever experienced. It put the Tygers so far behind that they never did catch up.

This season the club hasn't got off to a much better start, though it had been doped to get away in good shape.

BATTING IS WEAK

One reason for the poor showing of the Tygers has been a weakness at the plate. The team hasn't been hitting. At least, not in the manner it is capable of doing. Fielding also has been a bit off edge. Not so many miscues have been made. But errors have cropped out just at critical moments, runs resulting.

In the main the team has been getting some good pitching. George Dauss and Rip Collins, especially, have displayed a bit of real hurling. In one game Dauss had the White Sox blanked for eight frames, only to lose out in the ninth, 1 to 0.

Many games have been dropped by close scores, which show the team hasn't been so badly outclassed. Other frays have been lost when they looked in the bag. This was especially true of Monday's brush with the Browns, where the Tygers went into the ninth leading 8 to 3, only to have Sisler's men chase over seven counters and grab the game.

With Ty Cobb back in the game, the Tygers should do better however. And it would not be suprising to see them strike a real winning gait shortly. They have the stuff to do it with.

MANY BIG INNINGS

There have been quite a few high scoring innings in the majors to date. Teams in both circuits have taken turns at holding regular run melees at the expense of a cluster of opposing twirlers.

In the opening day of the season, Cleveland chased over 12 runs in the eight innings against St. Louis, and a few days later the Cardinals counted 11 markers in the first frame on the Reds.

The other day the Browns batted out seven runs in the ninth in a game at Detroit, and on the same afternoon Eddie Collins and his Hose chalked up nine counters in the eighth against Cleveland.

Several other clubs have enjoyed big innings wherein it seemed that practically anything that came across the plate was sent crashing back for a safe wallop.

For so early in the season, many old-time hitting bees have certainly been put on exhibition for the fans who enjoy nothing better than a heavy-hitting affair.

BETTER PITCHING.

A majority of the major league managers with whom I talked in the south are of the opinion that the pitching will be much improved this season. While none of them offer any definite or logical reasons for their opinion, they are positive in their statements that batting will be considerably curtailed this summer.

Most of them argue that batting and pitching run in cycles. There is a belief that batting has for a time almost ended its period of complete supremacy and that pitching is to come to the front.

It is the history of baseball that the supremacy of batting or pitching usually is limited. The belief is that pitching is due for a comeback.

It is just possible that the pitchers have finally reached the point of effectiveness where they can combat the far reaching effects of the lively ball.

* * *

CURVE BALL ERA.

While I feel that the batsman will continue to have a fairly comfortable edge in the matter of supremacy this year, I do look for improved pitching.

My reason for this is due to the great revival of the curve ball. As far back as five years ago it was made apparent that the successful big league pitcher must have not only a change of pace but a good curve.

This news traveled quickly to the minors and pitchers everywhere began paying attention to their curve ball. This is shown by the work of many highly touted minor league pitchers. In a great many cases the curve is their best asset.

* * *

Curve ball pitching is going to shrink batting averages. I feel that I am conservative when I say the curve ball brand of pitching in the majors has improved 25 per cent in three years.

* * *

SOUTHPAW CRAZE.

It is a well known fact that several managers are pinning their hopes for success on an over-balanced left-handed staff.

Several managers have as many as four southpaws, possessing the ability to be listed as regulars. It is the intention of such managers no doubt to southpaw their respective leagues into submission.

There is something about the southpaw that seems to cause certain clubs to wilt before the battle ever starts. The moment the players observe a crack left-hander warming up for the opposition they start discussing the next day's game.

It wouldn't surprise me at all if the season's results proved that the craze for left-handed pitching had been overplayed.

* * *

Certainly there will be no novelty to the portsider's brand of pitching with so many left-handers in the two majors.

* * *

UMPIRES HELP.

However, to my way of thinking, the curve ball, plus the fact that the umpires are cutting down greatly on the number of new balls in play, will make for better pitching and less hitting.

For several years the major league umpires have kept a new ball in play almost constantly. Undoubtedly this made for hitting and helped kill off curve pitching.

It is necessary to get a firm grip on the ball in order to throw a deceptive hook, the purchase being everything. This is well nigh impossible with a new ball.

* * *

The old ball is always welcomed by the cuve ball pitcher. Another reason for the revival of the "hook," as the curve ball is known to the profession.

* * *

REAL CLIMAX

In the spring series with the Giants, after losing five of the first six games, apparently hopelessly out of the running, Washington duplicated the start made by the Giants, by winning five of the last six contests, evening the series. Gameness did it.

In the first two weeks of play the club came from behind to win half of its games. It takes courage to come from behind.

However, to my way of thinking, it would have been hard for a writer of fiction to have staged a better climax than put across in a recent 2 to 1 victory over New York.

Beaten 1 to 0 in the ninth, two out and the bases filled, Manager Harris suddenly realized he had used up all his available pinch-hitters. A rush call to the dressing room brought the news that Walter Johnson was preparing for his shower.

Would the umpires delay the game a moment for Johnson? Of course. He was lacing his shoes as he came on the field.

Then he proceeded to drive out a two-base hit, scoring the two runs necessary to win the ball game. It brought back memories of the world series and the part Johnson played.

MESSAGES FOR MOTHER'S DAY

C. N. R. Has Special Plan for Sending Greetings by Telegraph.

NICELY COLORED

May 10th is "Mother's Day"—the one day in the year when old-time home ties are recalled and we grow young again in retrospect. It is a day of national observance, when the world pays tribute to its ideal woman. The Canadian National Telegraphs appreciate to the full the magic sentiment woven about "Mother's Day," and through its hundreds of offices throughout Canada it has arranged a quick and concise medium for remembering her upon this day of days.

What better form of remembrance could be sent than that of a telegram to be delivered to her within a short time after it is written. Though the sender may be scores of miles away, here is to be found a personal touch which is absent in a letter. It is as if her own boy or girl had just sent her a message from around the corner. The march of miles means nothing to the telegraph. Its message of greeting speeds over the wires in a twinkling of an eye. It will make mother feel as if her child is not far away, but is as near to her as he is dear.

It will not be an ordinary telegraphic greeting that will be received on "Mother's Day," but one appropriate to the great occasion. Attractively decorated forms have been prepared for these messages, printed in three colors, symbolic of the warmth of greeting and of the old home and of the roses so frequently associated with floral gifts of the day. All too often the business world finds small place for sentiment and for those whose business cares give but little time for other affairs, the Canadian National Telegraphs have also prepared an attractive booklet of "Mother's Day" greetings. Here will be found a large number of appropriately worded messages from which the sender may select a greeting to suit his fancy.

This complete service which the Canadian National Telegraphs has prepared for "Mother's Day" should be greatly appreciated by its patrons.

ONTARIO SLEEPS IN FACE OF MENACE

Problem of Feeble Minded Might Be Solved By Farm Colony.

TORONTO, May 6 (Canadian Press).—Christian Ontario is asleep in the presence of the greatest social menace it has to face, declared Rev. R. J. Wilson, D.D., President of the Social Service Council of Ontario, at a joint meeting of that organization and the Toronto Social Welfare Conference in Convocation Hall last night. The speaker was referring to the problem of feeble-mindedness. There was, he said, an immediate need for an industrial colony, preferably a farm colony, where work already begun through auxiliary classes could be completed by training the manually minded to become economically efficient and providing against the development of anti-social tendencies which lead to juvenile delinquency and crime.

CLAIMS DAMAGES FOR VACCINATION

French Aviator Lost Use of Arm After Being Forcibly Vaccinated.

NEW YORK, May 6 (Canadian Press)—Charging that forcible vaccination performed by physicians of the Cunard Steamship Company, five years ago, caused him to lose the use of his left arm, Alexander Karely, a French aviator, yesterday sued in New Rochelle to collect $50,000 from the steamship company. He said he was vaccinated in Cherbourg prior to sailing for America on the Caronia in 1920. Arriving here, he said, he was forced to remain in a hospital six months and since then has been unable to pursue his profession as an aviator because his arm is practically paralyzed.
